TORONTO (CP) — A bill introduced in the legislature Tuesday would prohibit candidates in the next provincial election from accepting campaign contributions until issuing of the writ, normally 37 days prior to an election.

Merchants Fearful
Bylaw May Kill Downtown Core

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville's downtown business association will protest city council's proposed downtown redevelopment bylaw.

At a Tuesday meeting, the association voted to lodge its protest at the next available opportunity — council's July 21 meeting.

A development control bylaw on the city's business section will kill the downtown core, says Irv Shulman, member of the downtown business association.

He made the comment following presentations to explain such a proposal to lodge by aldermen Joe Cox and Jack Ireland at an association meeting Tuesday.

Several months ago the city's industrial committee approached council with a scheme to monitor and regulate downtown growth and foster its revitalization. The commission asked it be given charge of the bylaw once passed but since then several resolutions have extended commission involvement leaving bylaw administration with the Belleville planning committee.

The downtown association will approach council to formally oppose the bylaw, it was decided following the presentation.

Ald. Cox, chairman of the city's planning committee said he agreed with the bulk of downtown comments and Ald. Ireland said: "I'm not opposed to it but I'm not excited about it either."

If passed, the bylaw would seek to restrict downtown development in much the same fashion as residential growth is restricted.

Developers would have to appear before council and its committees to present plans and meet regulations. Regulations already in force include setbacks from roadways and parking allotments.

"It is tyrannical of council to even consider such a bylaw without circulating a proposal in the area such a document would affect," said Mr. Shulman.

"Let's not kill the downtown," said Mr. Shulman. "The bylaw would do just that. It would be add to the odds of agreement from other association members."

Mr. Shulman contended that when a calamity such as fire or flood strikes a downtown business, that business might end up "dying" if the owner has to conform with such a bylaw.

He said "council is acting autocratically and like the bylaw is very detrimental to the downtown".

Illustrating how downtown merchants use the entire parcel of property for their business and that setbacks would destroy their income, a spokesman for Leslie's said "our lot is 22 feet by 178 feet and our store is the same. If you start putting restrictions on . . . well . . .

Portugal Announces Guidelines

LISBON (Reuter) — Portugal's left-wing military rulers announced new guidelines today for the country's political future, making clear that the ultimate aim was worker power.

The plan was outlined in a document issued after an 18-hour meeting of the 240-member assembly of the Armed Forces Movement.

Fourteen months after overthrowing the long-established right-wing dictatorship, the armed forces outlined these three tasks:

—Stimulate the revolutionary participation of the masses with a view to establishing new organs of popular power;

—Defend the revolution from the attacks of reactionary forces by making the people aware of the needs of the moment and the creation of a fence bodies; and —Win the economic battle.

In the foreign field, the document said "social relations with all people of the world will be guaranteed and an economic position guaranteeing national independence will be consolidated."

Report on the Bayfront

Ralph Crysler, Toronto consulting engineer, explains recreation development possibilities of Bay of Quinte shoreline to Moira Conservation Authority's water control advisory committee Tuesday night. An interim report gave some tentative suggestions on expanding public use of waterfront through Belleville, Thurlow and Sidney townships, to spark reaction before final report is prepared later this year.

Ford to Draw Line

WASHINGTON (AP) — The manager of President Ford's 1976 election campaign said today an effort will be made to draw a line between the president's political and governmental functions but conceded, "being the best president is the best politics."

PLO Visit Uncertain

OTTAWA (CP) — A decision on whether to allow representatives of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) to attend a United States crime conference in Toronto this fall still is being considered by cabinet, the external affairs department said today.

Summons Parliament

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India today summoned Parliament to meet in a special session beginning July 21 to approve her declaration of a national emergency, official sources reported. She decreed the state of emergency June 26 to put down calls for her resignation after she was convicted of election campaign violations.

Increase Charter Flights

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada is thrusting itself into the charter business as a way of cutting its own costs. As an offshoot, Canadians will soon have greater access to holiday air travel at prices lower than scheduled service. Air Canada's plan is to increase the number of charter flights using space with passengers on scheduled flights, said John McGill, vice president marketing for the airline.

Search for Criminals

PARIS (Reuter) Police are searching for a convicted criminal who shot his way out of the Paris central law courts after his wife, disguised in lawyer's robes, handed him a revolver and brandished a hand grenade. Jean Charles Willocquet, arrested last year after a gun battle with police, shot two gendarmes before escaping Monday in a car with his wife and two hostages.

Consumer May Suffer

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada President A. Jean deGrandpre said Tuesday that if a company rate increase application now before the Canadian transport commission is not approved, the consumer may be the one who suffers in the long term. He told the commission the company, which serves Ontario, Quebec and parts of the Northwest Territories, has been forced by inflationary pressures to cut programs designed to reduce consumers' cost for Bell services.

Kerr Rejoins Cabinet

TORONTO (CP) — George Kerr was to be sworn in as solicitor-general of Ontario today, the office of Premier William Davis announced.

Mr. Kerr, 51, (PC—Halton West) resigned his cabinet post last February when testimony at a preliminary hearing of the Hamilton Harbor dredging scandal mentioned him in connection with a $10,000 bribe.

At the trial, completed last week, former Hamilton Harbor commissioner Kenneth Elliott and business consultant Reginald Fisher of Hamilton were found guilty on 10 charges of fraud, conspiracy and uttering.

Peace Plan Worked Out By U.S. Sadat Asserts

BOSTON (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has indicated that the basic terms of a new Sinai agreement with Israel have been worked out through the United States, Herald Newspapers report.

In an interview with representatives of the newspaper group, Sadat said Tuesday he would not confirm the details of the agreement until it is heard from Washington.

"It was clear from what he said that barring a last-minute hitch a new agreement will soon be concluded and signed," the newspapers say in a story from Alexandria, Egypt.

Sadat said he has been assured will include the return to Egypt of the Sinai oil fields and the "mediation" had assured President Ford that Egypt would allow the United States to establish and operate an early-warning system in the strategic Mitla and Gidi passes when Israel withdraws from all but the eastern end of them.

He said that when Washington announces that as part of the new agreement it will be true, but only when Washington, not Jerusalem, announces it," the story says.

In Berlin today, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said "many problems have been solved, but I think that the key issues have not yet been solved. And when I say key issues, I mean to make sure what will be the minimum duration of the agreement."

British Miners Drop Wage Demand

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Labor government secured its first victory in its battle against Europe's highest rate of inflation when coal miners agreed to drop a demand for a 40-per-cent wage increase.

The decision Tuesday came after a long, angry meeting at the annual convention of the 270,000-member National Union of Mineworkers here.

The meeting discussed a demand by militant union leaders in Yorkshire and Scotland for a $70.40-a-week increase for workers at the coal face, raising their basic wage to $220 a week.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson told the convention Monday that such inflationary pay raises would be "crazy, even suicidal" in the current state of the British economy.

Private Sector to Pay More for UIC Benefits

OTTAWA (CP) — Promised legislation to make employers and employees pay a larger share of unemployment insurance costs was introduced in the Commons Tuesday.

It means premium costs will start rising next year so that the government can extract about $250 million more a year from the private sector, Manpower Minister Robert Andras said.

The proposals were one of two budget-related bills introduced as part of Finance Minister John Turner's June 23 budget promise to restrain spending.

The other bill limits federal contributions to provincial medical care programs, also starting next year.

Mr. Andras' proposals will require employees in 1976 to pay between $1.50 and $1.70 weekly for each $100 of insurable earnings.

This compared with the current $1.40 a week premium requirement for each $100. With current maximum insurable earnings at $185 a week, the maximum purchase requirement this year is $2.59 weekly.

Bricklins Cost More In Canada

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — A Bricklin Canada Ltd. official says Canadians must pay nearly $2,600 more than Americans to own a Bricklin, partly because Bricklin is not recognized as a manufacturer of the United States-Canadian auto pact.

Canadian car dealers, so far, have been discouraged from buy their Big Three auto companies to sell other makes of cars. Canadian fanciers of the gullwinged four automobile, assembled in Saint John with the aid of $18.5 million in New Brunswick financing, must make their purchasing arrangements through U.S. dealers, now located in 39 states from the Atlantic coast to Hawaii.

There is said-trust, legislation in the United States to prevent this restriction on dealers, but Canada has no similar provision on the law books.

U.S. May Renew Turkey Arms Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today is tentative compromise that, if cleared by Congress, would permit renewed United States military aid shipments to Turkey.

At a news conference following a meeting with leaders of the House of Representatives, Ford also expressed hope that the compromise would lead to a solution of the Greek-Turkish dispute over Cyprus and encourage Turkey to remain a full partner in the Western defence alliance.

As explained by Ford and an Thomas Morgan, chairman of the House international affairs committee, the principal elements of the compromise were:

—$70 million of military goods already bought and paid for by Turkey would be released to that country immediately.

—In addition, Turkey would be free to buy for cash any additional U.S.-produced military hardware it wants.

—The president would be required to report to Congress every 60 days on any arms sales to Turkey and on progress toward a Cyprus settlement.

Congress voted to end all U.S. arms shipments to Turkey this February following use by that country of U.S.-supplied arms in its invasion of Cyprus. The senate recently lifted the ban but there has been no similar action in the House.

Turkey set a July 17 deadline for resumption of shipments, saying otherwise that it would require reexamination of agreements under which U.S. military bases are maintained in that country.

No Nix on Nixon In Mao's Red Book

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Mao Tse-tung still thinks well of former president Richard Nixon and says the Watergate scandal was the result of "too much freedom of political expression in the U.S.," Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj reports.

Kukrit said that during his meeting with Mao in Peking last week, the 81-year-old chairman of the Chinese Communist party told him:

"What's wrong with taping a conversation when you happen to have a tape recorder with you? Most people in America love playing with tape recorders."

Mao said he remembered Nixon's visit to China in 1972 and added: "Please tell him I still think of him," the prime minister reported.

Kukrit talked with newspaper men during a reception to celebrate his return from Peking, where he established diplomatic relations between the Chinese Communist regime and his government.

He said Mao complained of pains in his legs and that his eyesight was getting worse, but he refused to wear glasses.

They talked for an hour, and Mao's lips were trembling all the time he talked. "But I consider him a healthy man at the age of 81," Kukrit said.

Complaints Too Late Authority Tells Owner

Moira River Conservation Authority members would be happier if more people protested over the turgid state of their waterway in dry weather.

The trouble is, no one starts complaining until the problem hits. This gives the authority little backing in seeking a solution from senior government.

That was the indication given one complainant, Roy Baigent of Camilton, at a meeting of the authority's water control advisory committee Tuesday night.

Mr. Baigent, owner of Club Cedars called for action on repair of more dams along the waterway to alleviate the summer dryup.

But committee members told him, the problem wasn't so simply solved. For one things there's the stumbling block of private ownership.

There are six dams between Tweed and Belleville privately owned, said authority chairman Guy Hughes. Some are in "bad need of repair" but are outside the conservation group's jurisdiction.

For two years, the authority has been pressing for a provincial government policy on such privately-owned structures. So far, there's been no response, he said.

But if more people started complaining to senior politicians it might evoke action.

The authority already has a committee considering a big storage reservoir at Bend Bay in Huntingdon Township -- a major project estimated to cost about $5 million.

"People don't complain until the water is gone," he said. "We need people, we need letters (of complaint) to senior government. It's got to be planned asking — not just when everything is dry."

Dry Spell Heightens Forest Fire Danger

The forest fire hazard is extreme in the parched bushland of the Quinte district's northern township.

This morning, a sustained, week-long heat wave had broken in the Belleville-Trenton area of the Quinte district.

But the the hazard rating remained unchanged further north, a natural resources district spokesman at Tweed reported.

The threat ceased prolonged by the dry weather and marked by severe fire losses — has caused the ministry to reinforce its firefighting crews in its Tweed district and place them on 24-hour alert.

All time off has been cancelled for the units, says Doug Mumford, district fire control supervisor.

"We are sort of prepared for the worst, — hoping we don't get it," he said.

But, already fires — feeding on tinder-dry bushland — have destroyed more than four times the acreage lost for the entire 1974 fire season.

Last year from April to late fall there were 63 fires in the district which destroyed about 280 acres, said the supervisor.

By Tuesday, there already had been 78 fires in the district. These have burned out more than 1,135 acres.

A "good portion" of the fires are caused by campfires left improperly doused, he said.

But thunderstorms — with more lightening than rain — also have been a major problem. Such fires, striking at random in isolated areas, are often difficult for firefighters to reach, said the supervisor.

"There is a very definite need for caution in the outdoors by the public 'until the hazard passes, cautioned Mr. Mumford.

He said 10 men had been temposaphy hired to reinforce the district's two regular fireman firefighting units. Fire wardens — appointed by the ministry as watchdogs in local townships — also are on continuous alert.

Meantime, all burning permits have been cancelled in the district. These are issued to rural residents who want to burn brush or garbage.

No Road Aid Coming Council Tells Residents

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

AMELIASBURG — Residents of the Quinte Shores subdivision near Weller's Bay met a stone wall head-on Tuesday in their attempt to get Ameliasburg Township council to take over a road they say is tearing their cars apart.

A 15-member delegation, representing about 50 home and cottage owners, wants the township to take over a potholed, one-mile stretch of road leading into the 55-lot subdivision.

Delegation spokesmen armed with an offer of compromise, met with no offer from council to take over the road in its present state.

Discussion in council Tuesday was interspersed with charges council had "snowed" residents and backed away from promises made.

The inconclusiveness of the meeting fuels a four-year controversy that one cottage owner said he will take over council's head — to the provincial transportation ministry offices in Pope and on to Queen's Park.

In an interview Al Steers said he will speak to his home town Toronto provincial member, Margaret Bunch, M.LA. for Scarborough-East in an effort to get action. He said he was determined to go over council's head.

Prince spokesman for the group, Joe Bekcrewski said Quinte Shores' residents "ended up worse than we started." He labelled some council members "unsympathetic"

Delegation action was prompted Tuesday by opposition to recent plans the township would take over the road only if residents paid an estimated $250 per lot to upgrade the road to township standards. The township's construction cost would fall under Local Improvement Act regulations and would be recovered through additional taxation.

A township official said Tuesday the municipality could not find a principle owner whom he charge road improvement. Cost of road upgrading now wanted by residents therefore falls on each lot owners.

Until the road is upgraded to the point at which it is acceptable to council, maintenance costs must be borne by residents.

Residents Angry

Quinte Shores cottage owners Lillian Belcrewski from her husband Joe and Al Steers sat at the Ameliasburgh Township council table Tuesday to ask the municipality to take over a road leading into the subdivision near Weller's Bay. Residents protested an estimated $250 levy for road improvement suggested by council under Local Improvement Act provisions.

Park Assaults Reported

OUTLET PARK — The Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police is investigating the alleged indecent assault of three women at outlet. Provincial Park early today.

Community services officer, Constable Donald Walt, said names of the women, residents of the Belleville-Trenton area, are being withheld at this time. The incident occurred at 1 a.m.

Grass Fire Minor

ROSSMORE — Ameliasburg Fire Department was called to the Melbond farm near to Tobe's Country Gardens here to deal with a grass fire Tuesday.

A spokesman said the fire of undetermined origin was located behind the residence and required only a half hour to quell. The fire, which started at about 3 p.m., did not damage surrounding buildings.

MPP Wants Ottawa To Check Oil Prices

PICTON — Because of the federal government's "senseless and totally unrealistic energy price increases" Premier William Davis has announced the introduction of the Lasselle and Fuel Oil Price Freeze Act, says James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

In a news release this week, Mr. Taylor said the major purpose of the legislation is to place a 90-day temporary freeze on refined petroleum products sold in Ontario to the price levels of June 23. The price freeze was effective midnight, July 3.

Mr. Taylor commented he was "especially elated" by the leadership demonstrated by Ontario in attempting to meet the twin challenges of inflation and recession.

He emphasized two other aspects of premier Davis' statement noting:

"I believe the formation of a one-man Royal Commission to get to the bottom of energy pricing difficulties must not be overlooked."

"The possibility of extending the 90-day freeze is central to the unjustified price increase imposed by Ottawa."

Mr. Taylor observed, "This whole exercise illustrates the immediate necessity to develop a sane energy policy and a long term industrial strategy for Canada."

Workshop Outlines Restoration Techniques

PICTON — Garbed in a white smock and surrounded by kettles and a package of rice flour, Prince Edward Museum curator James Gooding this week confided his special paste recipe to interested observers.

Actually, the unusual "dish" he prepared Tuesday was a mild paste suitable for use in mounting old drawings.

Assisted by students of museum technology Charles Baird and Donna Midwinter, Mr. Gooding conducted the first in a series of museum workshops on conservation and restoration.

Two drawings of the Old Church of St. Mary Magdalene, dating probably to the 1800s, were found by Prince Edward County clerk Thomas Walker in the the vault at Shire Hall. These sketches, made prior to the addition of the chancel and the bell tower of the church, were mounted to demonstrate technique to interested community residents attending the workshop.

Mr. Gooding and Miss Midwinter also demonstrated how the heavy card-board backing of old photographs may be removed to permit remounting.

Horse Show July 13

SOPHIASBURG — The Sophiasburg Riding Club will hold its final show of the season on Sunday, July 13 at the farm of Lyle Mitchell, Bethel Road.

Classes begin at 1 p.m. with the English pleasure division and small and medium chariot races open to all entrants.

Recipe for Success

Cemetery Improves

PICTON — Town clerk Andrew Jarvis lent new life to a report from the Glenwood Cemetery committee this month when he mentioned work in progress at the grave sites.

He observed there were more men employed this summer to maintain the cemetery in comparison with the skeleton crew hired last year.

Board to Meet

PICTON — The Prince Edward County Planning Board and its consultants will meet Thursday, July 10 to hear a progress report on the Picton-Hallowell secondary plan.

Chairman and members of the Picton planning committee are invited to attend as well as representatives of Hallowell township.

Permit Value Noted

PICTON — Building inspector Morley Brooks has reported permits totalling $263,300 here for the month of June.

Among these is a $200,000 permit issued to Rollins Construction for an 18-unit apartment building on Bridge Street.

Clerk May Move

PICTON — Town clerk Andrew Jarvis may move up in the municipal world if Picton councillors approve expansions at the town offices.

The second floor of the building now rented by the town has become vacant this month and on July 21 council will inspect it to study its potential as a meeting area for committees.

Taxes Due

PICTON — Town clerk Andrew Jarvis Monday told Picton councillors that 37 per cent of the total tax levy for 1975 has been collected to date.

In 1974, 39 per cent of the total levy had been collected by July 7.

Gas Prices Decline

PICTON — President of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, Sheldon Whittaker, this week told directors gasoline prices in Picton have been lowered.

Mr. Whittaker said some local retail outlets are selling gas at 73.9 cents per gallon, about six cents below prices at other stations.

Recently the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce invited representatives of several gas stations and oil companies to meet with directors to discuss the price of gasoline in the county. For some time the price in Picton and outlying areas has been about 10 cents more per gallon than in Belleville, Trenton and Marysville.

"Perhaps the work of the Chamber of Commerce was not in vain," commented Mr. Whittaker, referring to its inquiry into gas prices here.

Crashing the Diplomatic Cocktail Circuit in Ottawa Has Become Quite an Art

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — You probably aren't going to believe this, but it's straight, mate.

There are a few social showboaters in town who free-lance their grog and groceries every night of the week around perhaps on a quiet Sunday.

All they need is a decently tailored and pressed lounge suit, preferably in businessman's blue — on some occasions, a black tie — a presentable appearance — and a casually knowing man-of-the-world manner.

They are wired into the diplomatic cocktail circle so perfectly they know every night who is pouring the martinis and serving the canapes in what mission all across town.

And it's the truth, Ruth, that there are as many such soirees — the diplomatic community now tops 1,000 persons — that these slick social clowns can look over the evening's list and pick the very best.

They don't get to go to the intimate little 10-course, eight-place dinners — too exclusive — but it's no brick to crash the big bash.

When the police rope off the street for the parking of the big black diplomatic limousines, the uniformed chauffeurs loll in the shade of a tree and, in summer, or keep their motors running in winter, and the doorman hands the ladies out of waves of taxis rolling up the driveway — well, man, that is the tipoff there is a martini mob scene in the making.

The booze will be as good as at the cozy little glo-dins, even if there will be 10 wine — and the groceries — little sandwiches, tiny fishes in aspics, mini-sausages, lobster claws and other goodies — will be as tasty if not as elaborately served.

There will be no shortage of good liquor and fine food, Ever.

And with scores and often hundreds of guests milling around, the chit-chat loud enough to scare the pigeons off Parliament Hill, even the uninvited can blend, unnoticed, into the scene of fun and frolic.

Benjamin Rogers, Chief of Protocol for the Department of External Affairs, provides confirmation of this. Just about everybody in the National Capital hog has suspected if not known for certain — that there are literally "hundreds upon hundreds" of cocktail parties roaring along at the various levels of the diplomatic strata each year.

So many, in fact, that is becomes a bit of a bore.

You see, the diplomat comes socially well prepared with an entertainment allowance generously calculated to uphold the prestige of the government back home, and you, the even-generous taxpayer, are your helpful little thing by carrying the tax he doesn't have to pay on the glorious alcoholic irrigation.

It makes for oceans of cheap — but excellent quality, nothing but-the-best — booze.

And awards Ottawa station crews as the country's heavyweight drinking champion — or so says StatCan.

So for the diplomat it becomes work, not pleasure, this merry-go-round ritual of invitations, visiting cards, and cocktails.

Some get three and four invitations an evening, and chiefs of Protocol Chief Rogers, "It's not elegant to decline."

But after a certain number of soirees, the fun goes out of the thing after the third, martini, and choking it down becomes a chore.

Hence the wave here).

Now hear this — there are 30 defence attaches posted here, eight of them from Communist countries, and another 40, stationed in Washington make regular social calls in the Canadian capital at opportune times.

No major world espionage conspiracies have broken here since Igor Gouzenko defected, his Soviet master's North American spy network based in the Russian embassy here.

From time to time, diplomats are diplomatically given the boots by External Affairs for Conduct "inimical to Canadian security."

And National Defence Headquarters recently felt compelled to warn Armed Forces brass to limit their drinking and chatter when bending elbows at cocktail capers in the hearing of Warsaw Pact military attaches. The NDHQ memo underlined that not all Communist diplomatic personnel in Ottawa accessories are trusted members of the Canadian service messes.

But most of the select military circle, West and East, almost everything and everybody goes to the diplomatic do.

The Busy Harbor Scene

The harbor scene is unsurpassed these days. With Belleville's expanded docking facilities, there are more boats than ever tied up at the waterfront.

The Fourth of July holiday in the U.S. brought its annual crop of visitors from across the lake and among both visiting and home-based vessels there is greater variety than ever before.

From Victoria Park looking across to the Four Seasons and Zwick's Island there is a good view of the new park complex under development. Trees have been planted along the water's edge, the soil preparation is smoothly-contoured, and the shape of things to come is easily discernible.

It's difficult to imagine what the area was like a few years ago. Yes, it was the city dump.

In years to come, along with the enduring and popular Zwick's Island which itself grew from a landfill operation years ago, there will be in that area one of the finest marine and park complexes anywhere.

Billie Jean's Great Win

Billie Jean King is the greatest . . . the greatest woman tennis player of her time.

There has never been much doubt of it, but with her devastating win over Evonne Goolagong Cawley at Wimbledon last week, Mrs. King closed the door finally on all her rivals.

At 31, Mrs. King has won her sixth Wimbledon singles title — equalling the celebrated Suzanne Lenglen's record — and aside from continuing doubles competition and World Team Tennis play for New York Sets, is calling it quits.

Both Mrs. King and the game she has served with such distinction have come a long way since her first Wimbledon appearance in 1961. She stayed in a room then for $1.20 a night and ate only hamburgers and french fries. Today, she says "we're treated like pop stars."

Mrs. King has had a lot to do with that, being a driving force in popularizing the game and raising the status of the players.

Her own style of all-court play, especially in the realm of serve-and volley, has been the nemesis of many opponent for years. Her competitive edge and fighting spirit would carry her through even on days when she was off her game; and that was not often.

For Mrs. Cawley and 1974 champion Chris Evert, this Wimbledon was their last opportunity to get past Mrs. King. It was not to be — and all the more ironic by reason of the score in these and previous encounters. In the last year's epic Forest Hills (U.S. Open) final against Mrs. Cawley and this year's Wimbledon semi-final against Miss Evert, Mrs. King came from 0-3 in the final set to win.

It's as Mrs. Cawley, the 23-year-old Australian who beat Billie Jean on the way to the 1971 Wimbledon title, said after Forest Hills last year: "I don't know why they call Billie Jean the 'old lady' "

Black Power At Wimbledon

A black power salute at Wimbledon!

It came from Arthur Ashe after he had disposed handily of Jimmy Connors, the kid from Belleville, Illinois, who had been expected to walk off with the title for the second year running.

Somehow it didn't seem the place for political symbolism and it seemed out of character for Ashe, a modest enough man at the best of times.

Ashe compounded this show of political and personal arrogance by giving Connors the most surrory of handshakes — and that after the raised and clenched fist to the crowd. It was the kind of behavior Ashe accuses Connors of. Of course Ashe has reason enough. Connors has a suit against Ashe for allegedly calling him "brash" and "unpatriotic," a reference apparently to Connors' reluctance to play for the United States Davis Cup team.

Politics aside though, it was a fine win by Ashe. Althea Gibson did it for black women two years running in 1957-58. Now this title for a male counterpart. Miss Gibson, incidentally, now plays professional golf and was a competitor in that recent tourney at St. Georges in Toronto.

For Jimmy Connors things are at rather a low point. In addition to losing his Wimbledon title, he and Chris Evert, who lost hers, are no longer seeing each other. Staying at the top in tennis is probably tough enough without keeping real love matches going.

While Governments Bicker . . .

Population Growth Threatens to Outstrip Food Output

The Christian Science Monitor

Hard decisions lie ahead for world leaders who must deal with the peek-and-peril race between population and food production.

Unfortunately, the bickering between "have" and "have-not" countries, which characterized last week's World Food Council meeting in Rome, showed little grounds for optimism that a consensus for international action will quickly be found.

Meanwhile, as many as 10 million persons are thought likely to fall victim to hunger this year, and another five billion — one out of 3 of the globe's 4 billion persons — will endure serious undernourishment.

True, not all is negative on the world food front. The emphasis of the food council meeting in Rome was on increasing the agricultural production capacity of food-short countries, rather than on merely increasing aid from the food-rich lands. An International Agriculture Development Fund is being formed to finance agricultural production in the "third world." Study projects are under way to increase supplies of fertilizer, to improve water management and irrigation in areas like West Africa and India. Weather conditions have been largely favorable this year in the Northern Hemisphere, and grain reserves are expected to be ample.

But these more positive signs should not be permitted to mask the starving and malnutrition suffered at this very moment, or the danger of widespread famine that could be touched off by altered weather trends, political instability in certain populous countries, or simply population overload as world population increases its climb toward 6 billion persons in the next two decades.

Some responsible food authorities, whose task it is to make international food relief and production efforts work, complain that too much is made of the political posturing and conflicts at meetings like last week's in Rome. They argue that expectations should not be set too high. Indeed, Adrikus Boerma, head of the UN Food and Agriculture Organization, told the Rome parley the goal of banishing world hunger by 1985 is unrealistic.

But how far should expectations be scaled down? As far down as "triage" — a now widely discussed term for writing off the starving regions such as Bangladesh and Ethiopia and concentrating helped?

Such a step, deciding whom to help and not to help, seems morally unacceptable for a modern society consciously to take, especially while it still appears possible to increase food production and reduce population growth enough to feed all persons.

But unless there is more of a commitment by both developed and developing countries to a balanced food-population policy, a tragic policy of triage might result from inaction and neglect.

Senior Citizens and the Handicapped

Sherbrooke La Tribune

We like to describe our day-to-day lives with the verbs to produce, to accumulate, to hold, to be busy, get sometimes, as a distraction, to love.

Yet the very fact of it often confronted with contradictions in real life.

Between [illegible] bouts of daily living, we often strive to help for our own peace in the sun that it becomes too easy to ignore callously the physically or mentally handicapped senior citizens or lonely people.

Fortunately, our social progress has brought about a realization of the majority of life even partially broken that eases human being enjoys.

Thanks to people such as Jean Vanier, son of the governor of Canadian governor-general, and other opponents of impersonal society, we are learning to love and help the young and old mentally handicapped who have been shunted aside for too long by the big machine called progress.

. . . The mentally handicapped must begin to feel in homes and in special schools that we are making room for them, that we are giving them a place in the sun.

They must be allowed to breathe and to feel free when among us.

This is a powerful challenge for all of us and a measure of those grandiose ideals we espouse such as the just, human and personal society.

Volunteers Available

Oshawa Times

A small success story:

A few weeks ago an appeal went out from the Oshawa Branch of the Ontario Humane Society for volunteers to help in the operation of the animal shelter on Simcoe Street, a shelter, which at one time had been able to pay a full-time worker, had reached the point where it had no funds for staff and so few volunteers that it was only a very part-time operation and was in danger of having to close completely. That would have meant primarily that a few cats who might as a last chance at life been found a home would either have remained wild (so to speak) or been exterminated.

Now the society reports that it has received offers from 60 people who are willing to volunteer time to keep the service going.

Vanity of Vanities: Are Men Immune?

Benton Globe

The late Christopher Fry, author who wrote unorthodox books about the sexes at the earth, once penned this line:

"In every age, the wise men have always been wrong."

In every age, including this one, the wise men have agreed that the outstanding characteristic of woman is vanity.

Their obvious point is that women diet to keep slim, use cosmetics on their faces, think about clothes a lot and otherwise go to great lengths to decorate their persons.

But just suppose, in defiance of the wise men, that any motive for such preoccupation is not vanity, but humility, a feeling of inadequacy and a worthy desire for self-improvement?

Now men, as a rule, are not accused of vanity.

But suppose man is really the vain one, who thinks the Lord created him without need for any improvement? His unwritten rule is that any male who decorates his face, except maybe with the beard or mustache, is probably pretty queer. After he has bathed and put on a necktie, man assumes he is all set to go to the party and give the girls a treat.

Are the wise men right when they say women are vain because they try hard to improve on nature, whereas men aren't because they don't see that they require any decoration?

Norwegian Oil Boom

Brockville Recorder and Times

While Britons are anxiously looking to the arrival of North Sea oil as their salvation from impending economic catastrophe, the Norwegians are just as anxiously wondering what they are going to do with their share of the bonanza and how it's going to affect their society.

Because it can use only a fraction of the oil it can drill, Norway should be able to export all but 10 million tons of its projected 90-million-ton annual output from Ekofisk, the first of several rich fields lying astride the British-Norwegian boundary dividing the North Sea that is expected to begin flowing this summer.

Norway stands to earn at least $4 billion annually from oil exports.

Teacher Salaries

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

W.J. Curtis, in his recent letter regarding teachers' salaries, said that the 49 who opted for rejection of the 9-annual by the Economic Policy Committee (EPC) "preceded the meeting with the stench of greed". Tisk! Tisk! It was not greed that motivated these teachers but the sincere and, o-decisional conviction that the proposal by the EPC was not adequate in the areas of salary, living costs and working conditions.

Mr. Curtis quotes the percentage increases at the maximums of the Teacher's Salary Guide which were as follows: "A" September to ecember — 11evel 1= 12.0; level 2= 12.0; level 3= 20.0; level 4= 20.5; level 5= 20.0; level 6= 20.0; level 7= 20.0; and "B" January to August — level 1= 11.1; level 2= 11.1; level 3= 23.6; level 4= 23.3; level 5= 22.6; level 6= 22.3; level 7= 22.3. The average for September to December increase is 21.8 per cent maximum; and the average January to August increase is 16.6 per cent at maximum.

The Economic Policy Committee stated that this grid meant an increase in excess of 28.0 per cent for the teacher — and vice principals. How can this be true when the purpose of this group is already at these maximums? Did the E.P.C. — to a man — "stonewall" the real percentage increase to the teachers and the general public? Just which group — the teachers or the E.P.C. — has misled, info med lot who came to that "stench of greed" statistics which in fact were pure fantasy"? And as for statistics which were definitely not pure fantasy, consider the number who indicated on the E.P.C. survey that they wanted a cost of living adjustment (COLA) clause.

Your own statistic, Mr. Curtis, is that 68.75 per cent of the responses indicated that a COLA clause was a must. (Since when is 68.75 per cent not a majority? And again, your own statistic, indicates that 80.9 per cent responding to the E.P.C. survey wanted the COLA payment in December and June. If you had read your own survey carefully and interpreted your own data correctly you would have realized that these two statistics were one-and-the-same — an overwhelming response — in favor of the principle of cost of living adjustment (COLA). Giving those who 90.9 per cent of your teachers indicated that they wanted COLA, whether payment was monthly or in December and June. Why did you bet bring that out emphatically to the attention of the E.P.C.? Why omit that statistic from the other A.S.G. surveys, with the exception of the North Hastings A.S.G. survey, supported by the same data and denied by the E.P.C. chairman to the Press?

The great placed on the grid in January will give teachers $500 by August. As a percentage of a salary of $10,000 these amounts to 4.9 per cent and 2.4 per cent (respectively) represent much less than a cost of living adjustment (COLA). Inflation due to increased food, housing, fuel, etc., will create an outdistance these adjustments.

A HASTINGS TEACHER.

They Served in the Navy

Letter in The Mont eal Gazette

The article on page 9 of the June 28 Gazette, under the headline "Silent Service spawns legal-mother" identifies it not altogether accurate and in my opinion, rather unfair criticism.

The headline itself is say the least is feeble in dignity. The writer in referring to men with strong feelings who had the courage to speak out, used the term "loud-mouthed" which has a derogatory connotation!

The reference to Rear-Admiral Hose includes the wording ". . . father of the [illegible] Canadian navy, founder of the navy league. It is chief of the naval staff . . ." I do not wish in any way to detract from the reference to the contribution and reputation of this fine officer. But the author was certainly conveniently forgetful his homework. Admiral Hose took over in 1920, whereas the R.C.N. was founded in 1910 when Admiral C.E. Kingsmill was appointed director of naval service.

The quotation from a Royal Naval historian is interesting and perhaps amusing, but surely it is out-dated. And the author's use of the quotation suggests that the men to whom he has referred may not have been serving in the navy.

I believe, and I feel that many who had the privilege of knowing these men or who learned about them will agree, that Canada has been singularly fortunate in having senior naval officers who were professional seamen in the highest sense of the term who also had the courage to speak out publicly when they felt the occasion in which was so close to their hea ts was in any way threatened.

C.G. Kingsmill.

Traffic Check

Traffic study of vehicles entering and leaving Prince Edward County continued Tuesday on Highway 14 at Roblesmere. Gathering data to assist in current project to find suitable alternative to swing-bridge link across the Bay of Quinte, the survey was launched Sunday to gather statistics on summer travel. Tuesday was expected to give better analysis of commuter flow across bridge from Belleville. Surveys will also be held next Sunday and Tuesday at other strategic highway points in county.

Floating Along

Away from hectic summer jobs working on the carnival midway, Frank Phillips, 15, and Bill Rankin, right, also 15, explored Belleville and the bay area near Zwick's Island by raft. For two long, lazy weeks these high school students from Toronto will enjoy Quinte fun and sun until rejoining the carnival in Ottawa.

Mixup Shortens Tourist Booth Hours

Four young people operating the Marmora tourist information booth have run into a problem which has resulted in a decision to reduce the number of hours that booth will operate.

In reporting on the situation to Marmora village council this week evening, Councillor Gordon Bennett said two of the youths, from Madoc, had indicated they were unable to come to Marmora to help in the operation of the booth because they needed the time to work on a history of Madoc.

Preparation of a history on Madoc and Marmora and operation of information booth were combined in the application the young people made for an Opportunities for You OFY grant.

Mr. Bennett said he was asked to attend a meeting last Wednesday with the four young people and the OFY projects manager to discuss the situation and learned from him that the tourist information booth was not mentioned in the contract the government had given him.

Mr. Bennett said he felt the young people had been misled adding that two projects had been married which shouldn't have been.

It was decided that Jim Airhart and Anita Watt would operate the booth on weekends. The new hours are 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. on Friday and noon to 5:00 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Ditch Angers Residents

A delegation of four residents attended the Marmora Village Council this week to protest a drainage ditch along the east side of Cameron Street directly behind their properties which front on Forsyth Street.

The delegation consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Brady, Mrs. Norma Darrah and Mrs. Elmore Barker. They complained that the ditch will be a detriment to selling the back portion of their property.

The ditch has always been a source of bad odor and insects, Mrs. Darrah complained. The delegation accused council of not looking after their interests by not making sure the situation was corrected while the sewage and water installation was carried out on Cameron Street.

Mrs. Brady said they were told by one employee of Clarison Construction Co. that the ditch would be put in on the west side of Cameron Street and a few minutes later the engineer had come to her and said that was wrong and it would be on the east side.

Mrs. Barker asked why the drainage ditch couldn't be filled and covered over. When council explained that it would cost $2,000 she commented that it would have to be done sooner or later.

Council agreed to an on-site inspection of the area Monday following a meeting with the ministry of environment representative, and the project engineer.

Governments To Monitor Water Supply

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government signed an agreement with Ontario Tuesday to operate jointly a network of 43 stations to monitor water supply in the province, a day after Ontario said it would not enter further shared-cost projects with Ottawa.

But Ontario Resources Minister Leo Bernier said a news conference that the two governments are ready informally operating the network. The agreement only made the arrangement formal.

Environment Minister Jeanne Sauve said the system is "very important for planning development of a river basin."

She said that agreements have been reached with most other provinces on operating similar stations.

The federal government will assume all construction and maintenance costs for federal stations and Ontario will pay all provincial station costs.

A third group of stations will be operated jointly by the federal and provincial governments.

Extends Route

OTTAWA (CP) — The Journal says a government study recommends the Ottawa River be opened from Ottawa to Lake Temiskaming to provide a 250-mile route for pleasure boats.

The newspaper says the two-year, $40,000 study commissioned by the public works department estimates enough pleasure craft would use a system to improve nine existing dams and repairs to repay a major railway's cost within 10 years.

Star to Publish

MONTREAL (CP) — The Star will publish today for the first time since a strike halted publication of the afternoon daily newspaper May 30, a newspaper spokesman said Tuesday. Members of Local 111 of the Newspaper Guild voted 197-53 Saturday to accept the newspaper's wage offer of an increase of 18.5 per cent over a 15-month period. The 450 employees had demanded a 24-per-cent wage increase over one year.

Morgentaler Recovers

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Dr. Henry Morgentaler is "progressing well" and will be sent to a rehabilitation centre for coronary patients within a week, Dr. Bertrand Dumais of the University of Sherbrooke's medical centre said Tuesday. Dr. Morgentaler was taken to hospital in Granby, Que., June 16, and transferred to the Sherbrooke centre June 18, after suffering chest pains at the Waterloo Detention Centre where he has been serving an 18-month sentence for having performed an illegal abortion.

Pregnancy Okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pregnant women will be allowed to stay in the United States armed forces under new regulations issued by the U.S. Air Force and being written by the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, the Pentagon said Monday. Under a policy outlined in 1951, pregnant women received an automatic discharge unless they got waivers based on a showing that their children or military duties would not be neglected if they stayed in the forces.

Pills to Stay

LEEDS, England (AP) — British doctors have voted to continue giving out free contraceptives under the state-run National Health Service after being told they would look "fuddy-duddy" and "middle aged" if they di not. About 800 agreed at the end of a day about the doctors at the Association's annual conference in Tuesday narrowly favored the move after Dr. Jean Laverie said that otherwise, the public would view doctors as "a fuddy-duddy collection of middle-aged men who are really not interested in the welfare of your families."

Workers Demonstrate

OTTAWA (CP) — Representatives of the 2,000-member Dockyards Trades and Labor Council demonstrated on Parliament Hill and before federal offices Tuesday, protesting a breakdown in contract talks with the government. The employees, who work in federal dockyards on the east and west coasts, have been holding rotating strikes since June 3 after a failure to reach a new agreement with the treasury board.

Signs Contract

MONTREAL (CP) — Canac Consultants Ltd., a subsidiary of Canadian National Railways, has signed a $3-million contract with the government of Brazil for a study aimed at modernization of its Federal Railway System, which operates 30,000 freight and 2,500 passenger cars over 15,000 miles of track. The company said Tuesday work on the project, involving a 26-man team, will begin in Rio de Janeiro this fall and take 13 months to complete. The contract increases Canac's business volume since its inception in 1971 to more than $15 million.

Operates at Loss

WOLFSBURG, West Germany (AP) — After a record $325-million loss in 1974, Volkswagen operated at a loss again during the first half of 1975, general manager Toni Schmucker said Tuesday. He said he expected "a clear loss" for the year, but told stockholders he was optimistic about a profit in 1976 provided there were no setbacks. In the first half of 1975, the company sold 1.2 million vehicles, up 18.8 per cent from last year, but almost 10 per cent below 1973. Declining exports, a weaker U.S. dollar and higher costs caused the negative results, he said.

Miners Strike

TORONTO (CP) — About 13,-600 miners and production workers at two International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. facilities in Ontario will go on strike midnight Wednesday night unless a settlement between the United Steelworkers of America and the company is reached, a union representative says.

The joint bargaining committee of Local 6500 and Local 6200 notified its members Tuesday that a strike has been authorized at Sudbury and Port Colborne, the spokesman said.

Mini-budget Popular

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario treasury ran out of its initial 3,000 copies of the mini-budget Tuesday.

"We never never been such a popular book," said one official.

Printed for Monday's presentation, the 56-page booklets were grabbed up before the ministry was able to supply those on its official mailing list or the government book shop.

A ministry spokesman said a second printing should be available by Friday.

Meters Removed

TORONTO (CP) — Traffic meters, used to regulate traffic at access points to the Queen Elizabeth Way in Mississauga, Ont., 15 miles west of here, have been ordered removed, Transportation Minister John Rhodes said in the legislature Tuesday. The meters backed up traffic last weekend and caused more problems than they solved, he said. "There've been some lengthy traffic delays so (the lights) will be removed."

Passes Test

TORONTO (CP) — Inspection last April of a hotel in Guelph, Ont., where two persons died in a fire Monday showed the hotel passed all requirements, Sidney Handleman, minister of consumer and commercial relations, told the legislature Tuesday. He said the inspection by the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario (LLBO) at agreed for the fire marshal's office turned up only "one minor work order," to be completed by September, 1976.

Program Doomed

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government's proposed 2-cent-call stabilization program is doomed to "total and absolute failure," Pat Reid of Stoney-Rainy River) told the legislature Tuesday. He told Allan Grossman, secretary for resource development, that the provincial has not offered enough money to sweeten the plan.

Chrysler Team Promises Growth

DETROIT (AP) — A new management team hand-picked by the outgoing chairman is ready to take over at Chrysler Corp. with promises to steer the troubled auto company toward financial health.

"We're realistic about our problems, but we're also very confident about the future of Chrysler," John Riccardo, the next chairman, said Tuesday.

"We're very encouraged by what we see in the market-place and expect solid gains with considerable improvements in sales."

Riccardo, 51, company president since 1970, succeeds Lynn Townsend, 56, who is taking early retirement Oct. 1 after nearly nine years as Chrysler's chief executive.

Riccardo will be succeeded as president by executive vice president Eugene Cafiero, 49, now the firm's No. 3 man.

The new management team was approved Tuesday at a special meeting of the firm's board of directors in New York.

The board accepted the retirement of Townsend, who had come under fire because of the firm's dwindling sales and heavy losses—$176 million since last summer.

Riccardo, a Townsend protege who becomes the sixth chairman in the firm's 39-year history, told reporters that cost-cutting policies initiated by Townsend are pulling the company out of the red.

He said there would be no immediate or sharp departure from the course set by his predecessor. "There may be new decisions in the future as market conditions change."

Riccardo, like Townsend a former accountant, has worked under Townsend since joining Chrysler in 1959. Both men previously were at Touche, Ross and Co., an accounting firm. Townsend, who came to Chrysler in 1957, brought Riccardo aboard.

Cafiero, who rises through the automotive ranks, joined Chrysler in 1953. He served as a plant manager and later as vice-president of various automotive operations until last December, when he was leap-frogged over several senior associates to become executive vice-president.

Two MPPs Want Strike Amendment

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal and a New Democrat joined Tuesday to move an amendment to proposed Ontario legislation that the right to strike be extended to school principals and vice-principals.

Donald Deacon (L—Toronto-York Centre) and James Foulds (NDP—Port Arthur) co-authored an amendment to Education Minister Thomas Wells' guides regarding collective bargaining between school boards and teachers.

The legislation would give teachers the right to strike but exclude principals and vice-principals on grounds they perform essential services.

The amendment was not expected to come to a vote today as the committee hears presentations from teacher and trustee groups.

When it comes to a vote, Mr. Wells says he is confident the committee's Progressive Conservative majority will support his view.

Various teacher groups spoke against clause 45 of the bill which excludes principals and vice-principals from the strike sanction, but Mr. Wells held ground.

"I don't accept the arguments put forward at all. They are in the long run downgrading the future role of the principal."

Son Wants Help, Parents Addicted

Dear Ann Landers: We keep hearings lectures and reading articles for parents who need to know how to help their children get off drugs. I have a different kind of question. What can children do to help parents who become addicted? I am not speaking about pot or LSD or heroin. I'm referring to a nice, respectable middle-aged couple in the suburbs who are hooked on barbiturates and amphetamines.

My mother and dad have a medicine chest full of Seconal, Tuinal, Nembutal, phenobarbitial and Enkatrol.

I'm sure they would be highly insulted if anyone suggested that they were drug addicts. When I told my mother amphetamines were "speed" she said, "Don't be silly."

My dad insists he can't get a night's sleep without pills. They both seem to think they are in no danger because the drugs are prescribed by our family doctor. What can I do to help them? — Concerned Son

Dear SON: Call your family doctor and ask him if he is aware that your parents are addicted. HE is the one who should handle this problem — and I hope he does, promptly.

Dear Ann Landers: I have read with interest several letters in your column from widows whose husbands have very little life insurance, or in some cases none at all. Some of those widows were bitter because their husbands had not planned ahead." But in my case, I was the guilty party.

Every time our agent suggested that Mel increase his insurance, I came out with that stupid remark, "We're insurance poor." The truth was that I, like so many other wives, thought my husband would live forever. Widowhood was something that happened to other women. Today, I'm that other woman.

Last week, while going through my husband's desk drawers I came across an insurance proposal for $40,000 of life insurance. It was dated five months before Mel died. It was a good plan and we could have afforded it. Our agent was trying to help and I knew it, but Mel was in perfect health and I figured I could use that $31.57 a month toward a new color TV.

Today, I'm working in a steak restaurant trying to keep my family together. Believe me, it's tough. I hope you will print this letter for the benefit of all those wives out there who don't appreciate the insurance agents as widows do. Sign me — Working Myself in Winston-Salem.

Dear Friend: Twenty-twenty hindsight is easy. The family that looks ahead and makes provisions for the long shots is the one that sleeps better at night. I'm sorry your husband didn't override your veto. Good luck to you, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: Your column touches people's lives in ways your will never know. You touched mine recently and I want to thank you. It was your answer to the person who asked if it was in poor taste to send a note of condolence to a woman whose husband just committed suicide.

You said, "By all means write to the bereaved widow at once. She needs to hear from family and friends at this critical time."

I was often when a husband takes his life, the widow wonders if people think perhaps their marriage was bad — that if she had been a better wife she could have prevented the tragedy. Thank God my family and friends didn't think that why a year ago. — N.J., Widow

Dear Friend: I appreciate your confirmation. Only one who has been there knows what it's like.

Life Difficult if You Can't Speak English

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Spanish mother buys a particularly expensive brand of milk. A Chilean immigrant won't use a coin laundry. An Italian enters hospital and finds himself with enormous medical bills.

These people share a common problem: They speak no English.

The woman can't read the labels, the Chilean an't read directions at the laundry and he one has bothered to explain medical coverage to the Italian.

"We take so much for granted in our day-to-day life that we really can't understand how difficult a simple thing like shopping—particularly food shopping—can be to the non-English speaking person," said Rosemary Gill, coordinator of Multilingual Social Services.

Her group and a second, Language Aid for Ethnic Groups, were created to try solving the problems of non-English-speaking people in Vancouver. They began three years ago under Local Initiative Programs and funding was extended until they were taken over by the B.C. department of human resources.

All staff speak two languages and know the ethnic backgrounds. The informal store-front offices receive more than 1,000 inquiries each month.

Major problems of ethnic groups are employment, housing and immigration, all hampered by lack of English. Even those who have been here for some time require counselling when their children become totally Canadianized and a cultural gap forms.

Rosemary Gill says women at home, lonely and missing their families, are hurt most.

"Their daughters are dating and they remember how it was 20 years ago in their country and what they see now just blows their minds," she said.

"On the other hand, you get the kids who are ashamed of their parents because of the controls forced by them, their lack of English and their foreign culture."

She has organized a group of Punjabi mothers who gather to talk about their problems.

"Their way of life was changing even back in their village and now we must instruct them on the Canadian way of life, our attitudes and even our school system."

Other non-English-speaking groups will soon be formed, she says.

Michiko Sakata, co-ordinator of Language Aid, says her group serves in another area.

"We serve the Skid Road and Chinatown area where many elderly live alone and are without any real contact.

"They're an isolated group of people and need assistance obtaining pensions, pharmacare, minimum income, rental grants and bus passes. Their housing is terrible and we have to check the sick in hotels and rooms and shop for them—we have a lot of home visits. We charter buses and take them out."

Miss Sakata says the elderly in the area are exposed to abuse because everyone knows when they receive their cheques. Sometimes they are attacked on the streets or in their rooms.

"We get them to bank their money and we work with community groups to improve housing so the seniors can live decently. Their rooms are unsanitary and there's no dignity in their dwellings. These people have worked all their lives and there's no excuse for them living this way," she said.

"The general public has to realize that this country is made up of many races and nationalities. The public just presumes that everyone speaks English—this country is multilingual."

Versatile Salmon Can be Economical or Elegant

Salmon — in a can, it's economical; served in steaks, it's elegant.

Try our different and taste-tempting recipes using British Columbia canned and frozen salmon.

Layered Salmon Casserole
one can B.C. salmon ½ cup instant rice
one can kernel corn
two tsps. salt
one can (19 oz.) stewed tomatoes one can (10 oz.) whole mushrooms, drained
¼ cup buttered bread crumbs
Green pepper rings

Flake salmon, including bones and crushed bones. Place rice in 8 1½-qt. casserole dish and top with kernel corn, including juice. Sprinkle with salt. Layer half the stewed tomatoes over top. Then layer the mushrooms, followed by the flaked salmon and top with remaining stewed tomatoes. Sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs and cover. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes. Remove cover and continue baking 15-20 minutes. Remove from oven, and let stand for 5 minutes. Garnish with green pepper rings and serve. Serves four.

Salmon Casserole a la Romanoff
one can (7¾ oz.) B.C. Salmon
one package noodles Romanoff two-thirds cup milk ½ cup cottage cheese
one tbsp. chopped chives

Flake salmon and crush bones. Prepare noodles Romanoff according to package directions using two-thirds cup milk instead of the one-third cup specified. Combine salmon (including crushed bones and juice), cottage cheese and chives. Stir salmon mixture into noodles and place in 1½-quart casserole. Cover and bake in 350 degrees F. oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Serves four.

For added taste and eye appeal, garnish with chopped dill pickle and black olive slices.

Biscuit-Topped Salmon Casserole
two cans (7¾ oz. each) B.C. salmon one can (10 oz.) Cheddar cheese soup
½ cup liquid (salmon liquid plus light cream or canned milk to make volume)
½ cup frozen peas
¼ cup package refrigerator biscuits
one teaspoon parsley flakes or dill weed

Drain salmon, reserving juice. Flake salmon and crush bones. In a saucepan, combine cheddar cheese soup and ½ cup liquid. Blend well. Stir in salmon (including crushed bones) and peas. Heat through. Place mixture in greased 11-quart casserole and top with ready-to-bake biscuits. Sprinkle with parsley or dill weed. Bake at 450 degrees F. for 20 minutes or until biscuits are golden brown and baked through.

Salmon and Fruit Casserole three cans (7¾ oz. each) B.C. salmon ½ cup cooked brown long grain rice three small fresh apricots (or one medium peeled, pealed and diced one cup green seedless grapes, halved ½ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Flake salmon with its juice, mashing the bones. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Pack into a 1-quart casserole dish. Casserole can be unmoulded onto lettuce leaves and served cold; or bake at 350 degrees F. for 30-35 minutes to serve hot. Serves two.

Open - Faced Salmon Sandwich
one can (3¾ oz.) B.C. salmon two tbsps. chopped celery one tbsp. sliced radish or carrot seasoned salt to taste one slice whole wheat bread one tsp. margarine
one leaf lettuce
chopped chives.

Flake salmon with its juice, mashing the bones. Mix with celery, radish, and seasoned salt. Spread bread with margarine; top with lettuce leaf; spread the salmon mixture; sprinkle with chopped chives to taste. Cut in half to serve. Serves one.

Pirate Salmon Loaf
two cans (7¾ oz. each) or one can (15½ oz.) B.C. salmon one loaf day-old sandwich bread (unsliced) two tsps. lemon juice
one tbsp. chopped green pepper
½ cup finely chopped celery
½ tsp. salt
½ cup (approximately) mayonnaise two tbsps. sliced green olives (optional)
three chopped hard-cooked eggs

To assemble a loaf: With a very sharp knife, remove the crusts from a loaf of bread to make an even, box-shaped loaf. Cut a lengthwise slice from the top. Hollow out the centre of the loaf (be sure to leave the sides and bottom at least ½ inch thick). Place on cookie sheet.

Filling: In a bowl mix the flaked salmon, lemon juice, chopped green pepper, celery, salt, mayonnaise, green olives and chopped hard-cooked eggs. Fill the hollowed bread with the salmon mixture. Cover with the slice of bread. Cover with topping (recipe follows).

Topping
one envelope unflavored gelatin one tbsp. white vinegar
one cup mayonnaise
¾ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
Garnish
Strips of green pepper
Slice of hard-cooked egg
Black Olive sliced in half

Mix gelatin with vinegar; dissolve over hot water. Slowly stir in mayonnaise, add seasonings.

Spread top and sides of loaf with the topping mixture working quickly as the mixture will not set. Garnish with the slice of hard-cooked egg, green pepper strips and halved black olive. Cover the finished loaf with wax paper to prevent discoloration of topping. Refrigerate 12 hours before serving. (Do not freeze.)

Crumb Coated Salmon Steaks
Make your own crumb coating:
one cup very fine bread crumbs
¼ cup flour
½ tsp. sugar
1 tsp. paprika
¼ tsp. white pepper
½ tsp. salt
½ teaspoon thyme OR rosemary

Blend all ingredients together four salmon steaks, cut 1-1¼" thick

Butter, melted
Lemon juice

Sprinkle Salmon Steaks lightly with lemon juice. Brush with melted butter and coat with the crumb mix. Place fish in well-greased, hinged wire basket or on well-greased grill. Cook over medium-hot coals for approximately 5 to 8 minutes. Turn carefully and cook 5 to 8 minutes more. (Do not overcook.) Baste several times lightly with melted butter during cooking process. Serve with lemon wedges. Serves four.

Chinese Poached Salmon
two pounds whole piece of fresh B.C. salmon salt, pepper
fresh ginger root celery stalks
one large onion, chopped one-third cup white wine (approximately) ½ cup peanut oil
Juice of half lemon
one-third cup light soy sauce slivered green onions
coriander

Run salmon under hot water and very quickly scrape off scales.

Fill saucepan with enough water to cover the salmon completely. Add salt, pepper, piece of fresh ginger root the size of a hazelnut, celery stalks, onion and white wine.

Bring to rolling boil. Then remove from heat, quickly add salmon and cover tightly. Leave off heat and cook about ½ hour. Depending on thickness of salmon, longer cooking may be desirable. As soon as fish is cooked (and don't overcook!), remove immediately to serving platter.

Heat peanut oil until smoking and pour quickly over salmon. Squeeze lemon juice over, followed by the light soy sauce. Garnish with green onion, finely slivered ginger root and coriander.

Serves four. Suggested vegetable accompaniment — sugar peas and water chestnuts.

Not the Books

RCMP Insp. Frank Kobie, who heads the commercial fraud section in Edmonton, says investigations are not a matter of checking a company's books since they have usually been destroyed. Instead, he has to build up transactions from the bottom to get a complete picture of the fraudulent operation. (CP Photo)

Truckers Use Radios To Reduce Tickets

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Long-haul truckers use citizens band (CB) radios to let other drivers know when they've spotted "Smokey the Bear", trucker talk for a radar patrolman lying in wait along a highway.

In Columbus, "Smokey" has a CB radio, too. And he tells truckers where to find him.

Columbus freeway Patrolman Keith Evans, 27, got a CB and took the CB name or "handle" of Casper Last October. Since then, 12 other Columbus freeway officers have bought their own units and taken their own handles, Casper said.

Official city permission to use the CB units came in March, Casper said, but the officers had proved the CBs have helped.

Casper says that letting truckers know the location of radar units helps control traffic. He said his speeding arrests have not decreased since he began broadcasting his location.

"The idea behind my job is to slow people down, not see how many tickets I can write," he said.

Co-operation with truckers also has become a two-way street, Casper said.

Truckers and other motorists with CB units tell each other when a motorist is in trouble, enabling police to get there faster than the drivers can telephone for help. Warnings from truck drivers that someone is "driving funny" have increased drunken-driving arrests, he said.

Casper said he's heard the tone of his unit and those of fellow "Smokeys" with handles like "Grabber," "White Ghost," "El Camino" and "Phantom Bear" has spread as far a Florida, Kansas and Massachusetts.

TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS OF A MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT — By Gordon Aiken.

This book takes an earnest, funny and human look at the average M.P., the man who makes the government work. Mrs. Aiken was a member of parliament from 1958 to 1972, during which time her served in various positions. He was chairman of the banking and commerce committee, delegate to the United National and leader of the Canadian delegation to the Inter-Parliamentiary Conference in Rome. Hence he is well qualified to describe Parliament from a back-bencher's viewpoint and this he does in very readable style, well spiced with anecdotes.

MY STORY — By Uri Geller.

Uri Geller is a famous and controversial Israeli psychic who has revealed extraordinary powers. He states that he had a normal childhood except for such things as being able to read his mother's mind. telepathic experiences at school and foreknowledge of the six-day war. He tells of his first public appearance which led to his career on the stage and describes his experiments with scientists which verified his powers.

MOBILE HOMES: THE LOW-COST HOUSING HOAX — A report by the Centre for auto safety.

The Centre for Auto Safety was founded in 1970 with a grant from Consumers Union. He purpose is to study and bring pressure for safer car design. This report on mobile homes states that these homes are for the most part poorly built; electrical fires are common; and it is difficult to get repairs done. There is also the problem of mobile home parks and dealing with "tyrannical" owners who are free to make any rules they may wish.

OUR MOTHERLAND AND OTHER VENTURES IN RUSSIAN REPORTAGE — By George Feifer

Ever since he was an exchange student and translator wandering about Moscow during the 1959 Fair, George Feifer has had a wish to show the West the flavor of Russian daily life. Over the years he has made many visits. His book is so guided tour via Intourist, but a sliced-of-life look at the real U.S.S.R., including the private life of the Bolshoi's greatest ballerina, justice at the metropolitan level, and prostitution in Moscow.

SPADINA: A STORY OF OLD TORONTO — By Austin Seton Thompson

Spadina is the story of an old Toronto property, originally stretching from Queen St. to Eglinton Ave. and of the two families who have lived there since Governor Simcoe granted the land in 1792. Part 1 of the book describes the building of the first home, named "Spadina" by Dr. William Baldwin, a lawyer who dreamed of founding a family dynasty. His grandson sold the property in 1866. Part II describes its purchase and development by James Austin, a financier. He built a row house which stands today. Sir Henry Pellett built Casa Loma nearby. Sir John Eaton built Ardwold and Samuel Nordheimer built Glenedyth. The area became known as "Millionaire's Row". The book provides an interesting glimpse into Toronto's history.

French Canadians Feel At Home in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Jean-Raymond Saint-Cyr's friendly "bonjour" to person in his office building used to be ignored. Today, his greetings are returned.

It is a small but significant sign of the growing place French-Canadians have carved for themselves here in the last 10 years.

"We now feel we belong here," said Mr. Saint-Cyr, station manager of CJBC radio, Toronto's French-language station.

"We still are French-Canadian and we will never be assimilated, but we are pleased to live in Toronto with English-speaking persons. We are all Canadians."

There is no French quarter here but there are 100,000 French speaking residents. Most come from Quebec and others have moved from New Brunswick, Manitoba and other parts of Ontario.

When Mr. Saint-Cyr, his wife and five children moved here from a small French-speaking community near Ottawa 10 years ago, there was only one elementary school, one small private high school and one French Catholic parish where the French language was used.

Now there are two parishes, 18 elementary schools, with public and separate school boards, a public high school, bilingual Glendon College, a weekly newspaper and a radio and television station as well as French theatres, book stores and cultural centres.

"Today this is a positive city for us. We feel free here," said Micheline St.-Cyr, director of La Chasse-Galerie, a French cultural centre. She is married to Jean-Raymond Saint-Cyr but is quite sure her name differently.

Although the city is improving for French-speaking residents, she said, "When French Canadians come here not knowing English it is impossible to live."

La Chasse-Galerie tries to find jobs for French-speaking persons. There are some jobs for those speaking only French but more than 200 companies and government agencies have registered at the centre as potential employers for bilingual job-seekers.

Most French-Canadians agree it is important to keep their identity in an English-speaking city and also exchange their culture.

"French-Canadian culture is the culture of everyone in Canada," said Micheline St.-Cyr. "The more available we make it, the better we will all understand each other."

Names Disputed

TOKYO (AP) — Independent studies by two computer firms are due 1 ted on which name is more common—Suzuki or Sato —as a Japanese surname. General opinion has usually sided with Suzuki as the most common name.

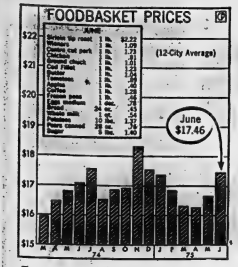
FOODBASKET PRICES



There was an 81 cent rise in the cost of the monthly foodbasket, according to a Canadian Press Cross-Canada Survey. Saint John was hardest hit when potatoes jumped to $2.80 from 79 cents in May. The foodbasket — 17 basic food items in the survey — cost $17.46 in June compared with $6.85 a month earlier. Graph shows national average prices for each item in June, and the average total since January, 1974. (CP Newsmap)

Chemist Finds New Extracting Method

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — In the continuing quest for new sources of protein, a University of Wisconsin chemist has developed a method of extracting protein from oats.

Wisconsin Agriculturist, a rural magazine, reports that Vernon Youngs is able to extract protein from oats by a simple method in which water is the only chemical used.

Youngs hulls the oats, and then mills them into flour and bran. He then makes a water slurry of the oat flour and the bran and centrifuges the mixtures.

Each yields a high protein layer of more than 50 per cent protein, which could be used to fortify snack foods and bread. A side benefit is a residue bran that is about 19 per cent protein and could be used in breakfast cereals.

Porpoises Saved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tuna fishermen have demonstrated the latest techniques designed to prevent porpoise fatalities. Large schools of yellow fin tuna are usually found around porpoises. Under the new technique, porpoises are rounded up before the net is set and closed at the bottom. The tuna boat retreats, pulling the net so that porpoises can get out through the rear.

Old Schooner Met with Tears

TORONTO (CP) — When the schooner Atlanta sailed into Toronto harbor in mid-June, she was met by 18 old friends, some with tears in their eyes.

In 1948, the Atlanta brought 61 Estonian refugees to safety in Canada after a harrowing voyage across the Atlantic.

On June 19 of that year, the over-loaded, 87-foot schooner slipped out of Stockholm harbor. The refugees, fleeing Soviet harassment, felt they were not safe in Sweden because other members of their group had mysteriously disappeared.

Karl Aaspere of Sutton, Ont., who organized the escape, sat in Atlanta's stern and recalled the 61-day voyage.

"She is designed to sleep 12, but we had 42 on board as well and here we are today."

As all our luggage," he said. "She sat deeper in the water than she does now.

"We went through a hurricane with her and ran aground on a reef near Bermuda, but still she took us all the way," Mr. Aaspere said.

Instead of trying to go into Bermuda during the hurricane, they headed for New Brunswick, fighting 30-foot waves and living on bread crumbs and rain water.

"We had left with no papers and no passports," Mr. Aaspere said. "We were people without a country, but when we landed, Canadian authorities let us stay.

The 37-ton schooner, originally built for the Swedish royal family, was sold at a Toronto auction by a New Brunswick businessman to the refugees.

The Atlanta has changed ownership several times since then. The men have refurbished the vessel and will use her in Toronto as a charter boat.

Seven of the refugees have died since the voyage and others have moved to other parts of Canada.

UN Demands Halt To Illegal Flights

LIBREVILLE (Gabon) (CP) — "Our meal is the very best," said the head waiter at Libreville's largest hotel. "It is flown in specially from Rhodesia."

The policies of President Albert Bernard Bongo have made this black-ruled African nation one of the biggest loopholes in the system of economic sanctions imposed by the United Nations on the white-minority government that rules Rhodesia.

A regular air-freight service of a Gabonese-owned DC8 jetliner carries Rhodesian meat and South African fruit and vegetables from Salisbury, Rhodesia, to Libreville. The plane normally flies on to Europe to bring back machinery and spare parts which are banned for export to Rhodesia by virtually all European countries.

British authorities said last week a UN committee had demanded a halt to the flights and the United States, which sold the aircraft to Bongo, also has protested.

The Rhodesian trade does not appear in any Gabon government statistics. Officially, the government of the mineral-rich West African state strictly observes the sanctions against Rhodesia. But government officials concede privately that Gabon has a liberal interpretation of the sanction rules.

"We are not alone among African countries to be realistic about sanction," one official said. "So let others not cast stones at us."

High-quality fresh beef is on sale in Gabon's butcher shops and supermarkets at the equivalent of $3.50 a pound.

All of it comes from Rhodesia. The manager of one leading supermarket put the $800,000 worth of Rhodesian meat last year.

Diplomatic sources said the trade has increased sharply in recent years with the upswing in Gabon's prosperity. The last available trade figures show $900,000 worth of meat imports and $200,000 worth of fruit and vegetables in 1972 from "other" countries.

The sources said the "other" countries were Rhodesia and South Africa, and the statistics were incomplete.

The DC8 was sold to the Gabon government five years ago with a U.S. government export licence which stipulated that it was not to be diverted to uses not approved by the United States.

President Bongo said he needed the plane for his personal use, but a few months after he received it it was leased permanently by a charter company operated by Rhodesian citizens from an air-conditioned office in Libreville.

The manager of the airline, David Adams, functions as unofficial Rhodesian consul in Libreville, but spends much of his time in Salisbury.

Wildlife Rewards Clean-up

LONDON (CP) — They may not be nightingales, but more birds sing in Berkeley Square now than for decades past, the experts say.

Roses are redder, evergreens taller and butterflies more numerous, and it all makes this great city even more inviting for the natives as well as summertime tourist.

Naturalists attribute the flourishing new wildlife in London to the Clean Air Act, passed 18 years ago but still changing the face of the city.

"First to benefit from the pea-soup fogs that once were as familiar here as the Thames, have been the insects.

They're a new headache for gardeners, but a blessing for birds. That, say ornithologists at the British Museum, is partly why such species as house martin, swift and black-cap are breeding closer than ever before to the centre of London.

They may also be braving the traffic din under pressures of a population explosion in their traditional territories.

Plants that one withered under a burden of soot now thrive and bloom more brightly in parks and back gardens.

Gardening writer Ashley Heythrowaay says evergreens especially have enjoyed a resurgence, because they never were able to shed their sooi-clogged leaves in the foggy days of coal fires and chimney pots.

Exotic new species from China and elsewhere are growing here for the first time, he says.

Records kept by naturalists since the Clean Air Act was passed show 32 new types of butterflies and moths spotted between 1968 and 1967.

The insects, and the birds that eat them, seem partial to fairly numerous this summer because of an abnormally mild winter.

To Decorate Hoardings

LONDON (CP) — Schoolchildren have been invited to add color to Covent Garden by decorating the hoardings which surround the central market building—now deserted since the market moved to Nine Elms earlier this year. Art schools, adult institutes, primary and secondary schools have been asked to get a good range of age groups. Some 50 children and their teachers are expected to take part.

GIVES BOAT

LONDON (CP) — Sir Alec Rose, who won fame sailing his 36-foot auxiliary yacht, Lively Lady, around the world in 1967-68, has given the boat to the Maritime Trust. They plan to charter the craft to the Island Cruising Club at Salcombe in South Devon at his request.

Senior Citizens...

If you are 65 or older and have lived here for the past year, most prescription drugs can be free.

This is what Ontario is doing for you to get them.

Effective August 1, we have a new law in Ontario. It will allow almost everyone who is 65 or older and has been an Ontario resident for at least the past 12 months to receive most prescription drugs free. That means prescriptions written by physician or dentist and filled in Ontario. Only those drugs listed in Ontario's Drug Benefit Formulary are free.

Here is who is eligible:

Ontario residents who receive Old Age Security.

If you are 65 or older and are presently receiving an Old Age Security cheque from the federal government, you will automatically receive your new Drug Benefit Eligibility Card before August 1. (And, of course, if you are already getting a drug benefit card, you will continue to get one.) You don't have to do anything about it.

Ontario residents not receiving Old Age Security.

If you are 65 or older, and have lived in Ontario for at least the past year but less than 10 years, you too are entitled to Ontario's prescription drug benefits. But because we don't know who you are, you'll have to apply for the drug benefit card — at your pharmacy or from the Ministry of Health. After you're enrolled, you'll automatically receive your drug benefit card.

Here's how Drug Benefit works.

There are more than 1,500 prescription drugs listed in the Ministry of Health's Drug Benefit Formulary. When you visit a physician or dentist, tell him you qualify for the Drug Benefit so that he can prescribe medication from the Formulary. Then, have your Drug Benefit Card to the pharmacist. Your pharmacy will keep your card. But you can have it returned — in case you move or want to go to a different pharmacy.

No cost to you.

When you get your prescription, you pay nothing. The pharmacist will be paid by your Ontario government.

In Ontario, we wish you the best of health. And we're doing something about it. So if you need to apply (and most people don't), pick up your Drug Benefit application form at your pharmacy, or write to:

Hydro to Accept Capital Costs Cut

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro will abide by prov'l tial government directives to cut administrative and long-term capital costs, Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell told the legislature Tuesday.

But he could not say what impact cost-cutting, introduced in Monday's new budget measures, would have on Hydro's requested 29.7-per-cent rate increase for next year.

He said despite published reports indicating Hydro would not pledge spending cuts, the Crown agency understands objectives and "has already begun to do something to achieve them."

He said he met Hydro chairman Robert Taylor Tuesday and was informed a 60-day freeze on hiring has been imposed as well as a review of costs, and a reassessment of capital spending is under way for submission to the Ontario Energy Board.

Among factors which could affect the board's decision on rate increases are new data on load forecasts, fuel costs and reserves required, he said.

He said requiring Hydro to shave $1 billion from its long-term capital spending program could mean stretching the completion schedule of one or more proposed generating stations and thus "narrowing the reserve margin which we have been used to."

Outside the legislature, he said this might mean greater interruptions and temporary power cuts to the small percentage of customers on interruptible service.

Referring to Hydro's requested rate increase, Mr. "Timbrell said the 29.7-per-cent hike was "not one I'd promote."

He told the legislature the cost-cutting measures will result in "a smaller increase in rates than that which we might otherwise have had to accept."

Ford to Be Candidate And Will Spend Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's campaign managers hope to spend the full $10 million permitted by law in his campaign for the 1976 Republican nomination, an informed source said today.

Ford campaign officials said the spending limits in the new federal campaign law mean the President Ford Committee will have about 55 employees. By contrast, President Richard Nixon's 1972 campaign committee had more than 300 employees.

Following Ford's formal announcement of candidacy Tuesday, his campaign managers were said to be considering whether to seek the $10 million in private funds or accept up to $5 million in federal funds, the source said.

The law gives candidates matching federal funds after they raise $5,000 in contributions of under $250 in each of 20 states.

Another early decision will be where to find office space for the committee headed by Hoveand Callaway, former army secretary, and the fund-raising operation headed by David Packard, former deputy defence secretary.

The law limits candidates to spending $10 million in pursuing the nomination. Once nominated, they can spend another $20 million in the general election.

Ford's announcement came the same day that it was disclosed a committee is being formed for a possible challenge to the president by Ronald Reagan, former California governor.

Reagan denied reports that he had decided to challenge Ford and said his future plans will be announced some time this year.

Arctic Gas Tries To Bar U.S. Rival

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd. moved Tuesday to bar a United States competitor from a National Energy Board hearing this fall on a northern natural gas pipeline.

Lawyers for Arctic Gas, one of the two Canadian proponents for a northern pipeline, told the board that El Paso Alaska Co. has no direct interest in the

Curb Sought On Sparing Killers' Lives

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Progressive Conservative MPs introduced bills in the Commons Tuesday to restrict the cabinet's right to commute death sentences.

John Reynolds (Burnaby-Richmond-Delta) would allow the cabinet to commute death sentences only when a jury recommended clemency or was unable to agree on a recommendation. Donald Munro (Esquimalt-Saanich) said in his bill that commutation should be limited to cases where a majority of jurors have recommended clemency.

A jury may recommend for or against clemency or make no recommendation.

Mr. Munro's bill also would amend the Criminal Code to provide the death penalty for murders committed in the commission of violent crimes such as robberies, kidnappings, hijackings and rapes.

Reporter 'Researches' Kissinger's Garbage

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger is distressed that a reporter in rooting through his garbage in search of scenery.

Jay Gourley, 27, of The National Examiner, a weekly newspaper published in Lantana, Fla., collected five bags of trash from in front of Kissinger's home early Tuesday and is sifting through the debris.

So far, the reporter said he has determined that someone in Kissinger's home uses patent medicine, smokes Marlboro cigarettes and occasionally throws away the morning paper unopened.

board hearings.

Michael Golcie, the Arctic lawyer, told the board it objects to El Paso's inclusion in the hearing because "It's sole purpose is to promote the success of its own project."

But that view was challenged by Walter Willisson, counsel for El Paso, who said "a person is directly interested if it affects his pocket book."

The exchanges came during a conference called by the board to settle procedures for the full hearings on the pipeline, expected to start this fall and take most of a year to complete.

Arctic Gas has applied for permission to build a 57-billion pipeline connecting Alaskan and Mackenzie River Delta gas to southern markets. Foothills Pipelines Ltd. of Calgary seeks permission to build a smaller, 34-billion line linking only th Delta gas.

El Paso has asked the U.S. Federal Power Commission for permission to build a line from the northern Prudhoe Bay oil and gas field south across Alaska to the port of Valdez, where it would be liquified and shipped by tanker to the U.S. west coast. There it would be turned back to gas and transported to market by pipeline.

Major gas pipeline companies and distributors such as Trans-Canada PipeLines Ltd., Consumers Gas Co. and Union Gas Co. called for exclusion of El Paso. All are members of the Arctic Gas group.

Hyman Soloway, appearing on behalf of the board, said a ruling on the matter will be handed down later.

Seventeen Quebec Students to Make City Home for Two Weeks

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

An army of almost 1,100 Quebec students will pass through Belleville on a train, Thursday afternoon, pausing long enough to discharge 17 French-Canadian visitors and their Quinte area hosts.

Part of a national exchange program arranged annually and subsidized by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, the travellers will be met by a contingent of prominent Bellevillians, among them Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

She will be joined by Keith Allison of the Rotary Club, the local group sponsoring the exchange program, an emissary from the chamber of commerce and the president of the horticultural society who will present them with a gift of a flower.

The program was conceived by Louis St. Laurent, the first chairman of the council, as a device to foster better understanding between the diverse geographical sections of Canada.

Students throughout the country are invited to apply to visit with young people in different areas for two weeks and immediately reciprocate and entertain their counterparts in their homes.

The 21-car train, the one-time largest to pass through Belleville in a year, said Mr. Allison, is carrying the students to various Ontario destinations after spending the past two weeks with Quebec families.

The students are advised to participate in all the local activities and customs they encounter during the trip in an attempt to improve their understanding of different cultures.

The visitors, 15 girls and two boys will be offered a limited special activities program while in Belleville.

"The whole idea is learn about other people, to improve understanding," "by living among them," said Mr. Allison, "The student and families will assume responsibility for the two-week stay."

On Monday, July 14, the Rotarians have invited the visitors and local young people to be guests at their weekly meeting.

Following the meeting a tour of Deloro Stellite has been arranged.

The highlight of the day's events will be an audience at city hall during which the mayor will make all the visitors honorary citizens.

The students then go back to the family setting for more experience without another break in routine until July 22, the day before they return home.

The Rotarians have arranged a scenic tour of the city for the visitors which will terminate with a patio party.

Cycling Path, Yacht Basin Suggested in Waterfront Study

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A current study of the Bay of Quinte waterfront recommends the establishment of a conservation area for Point Anne and a yachting basin for Belleville.

The suggestions are the first step towards conclusive recommendations on how the southside shoreline fronted by the three municipalities in the Belleville area could best be developed for waterfront recreation.

The initial report came Tuesday night as consultants presented their interim findings to the Moira Conservation Authority's water control advisory committee.

The study at this stage, however, is not locked into any specific proposals.

Ralph E. Gaysek, Toronto consulting engineer who has directed the study — launched late last year — emphasized any suggestions at this stage are merely to "bounce off" agencies interested or involved and obtain reaction. Such reflexes will help form the basis for the final draft document on the study expected sometime in late fall.

The report in the next week will go before municipal government groups and other local agencies involved in the waterfront areas under study — including all of Thurlow Township, the city of Belleville and west to Aiken's Road in Sidney Township.

After that, reaction of community groups involved when the study was in its formative stages earlier this years, will be sought, said Mr. Crysler.

A main thread of his study is to provide an unbroken flank of public access to the waterfront resource. This calls for walkways along an area where access is compounded by a variety of ownership — private, public corporation.

"Continuous waterfront walkways is what I'm looking for — while respecting private rights at the same time," he said later in an interview.

"That's the concept I'm working on."

But, he admitted, some of his suggestions to date could be "controversial" — specifically those dealing with expanding boating facilities in the city area.

Suggestions he is going to present official waterfront groups in the next week for reaction include:

— Yacht and small boat basins east of the city harbor in the area under the jurisdiction of the Belleville Harbor Commission. This includes discussing the possibility of the commission shifting its commercial shipping operations which have declined over the years — further east to Point Anne, where the water is deeper.

— Docks on South Front St., off East Zwicky's Park and in West Zwicky's Park lagoon.

Such proposals, he said, will be discussed with the harbor commission, the city's harbor improvement Committee and the parks and recreation committee.

The report also notes the city's present park system does not provide for extensive walking or cycling — and cycling is a "rapidly growing and very popular" recreation.

It proposes walkways along the Moira River linking the city's northend riverside parks into the waterfront parks system.

Other suggestions include:

In Thurlow — the big marsh on the western rim of Point Anne could become a conservation area. A marina could be considered for the adjacent Bleasington Creek area.

Sidney Township — Acquisition of a barn and part of a farm west of Montrose Road, which could be transformed into an "active" "activity centre" — for summer theatre, crafts and other cultural pursuits.

Report Critical Of Dredging Plan

A biologist has recommended against dredging the mouth of the Moira River to improve fishing.

The suggestion is contained in a report commissioned for the Quinte Bayfront Group — and Thursday night drew angry reaction from a city councillor when it was aired.

The biologist's finding was part of an interim report on the study presented the Moira Conservation Authority's water control advisory committee by Toronto consultant Ralph E. Crysler.

The presence of proposed dams has reduced the potential for rainbow trout while the natural resources ministry was discontinuing its Pacific salmon stocking program, said the report.

Dredging therefore would be of no advantage and would only upset fish which already are in the area, it concluded.

Ald. Jim Hooks called the situation "ridiculous."

He said various varieties of fish now are being caught in the river — some from United States stocking programs.

"The U.S. fish find our river attractive. Why don't Canadian fish?" he queried.

Mr. Crysler said he had not spoken to the ministry on the matter. A spect has been seeking more information before making his final report to the authority.

Campaign Nets $102,000 For YMCA Capital Debt

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

With the help of $12,000 donated by the Yardmen Benefit Fund, the YMCA's "quiet but persistent" fund-raising campaign came to a successful conclusion today.

In a letter of resignation delivered at a press conference, Ben Corke, campaign chairman for the effort announced the original goal of $100,000 to eliminate the capital debt incurred when the "Y" was built had been exceeded by $2,000.

The outstanding loan at the bank for $4,125 has been completed for by pledges totalling $6,270.

The money was raised in a "low-pressure" participation campaign from friends of the "Y" and from business men in town.

The company Proctor and Gamble, one of the 312 contributors, pledged the local ever the top last week with a $2,000 gift even though they have yet to begin operations in Belleville.

The regional board of the YMCA expressed scepticism about the project from the beginning citing failures by all other YMCAs to reduce debt by fund-raising, said Di Diamanides, executive director of the Y.

Douglas Horne, president of the YMCA said there were three reason for the campaigns success.

"Without Ben Coke's drive, push and persistent efforts we wouldn't have done it." said Mr. Horne.

The fact it was low-key was important, he said, and thirdly because it was non-professional, we kept costs at level of one — and one-half per-cent, or just under $1,500.

Checking for Faults

Members of mobile team from the transportation and communications ministry closely examines an automobile as part of safety check now underway at Quinte Exhibition grounds.

The check will last all week and faulty vehicles have licence plates removed on the spot until problems are corrected.

Proposed Bill Would Expand Area Of Teacher - College Negotiations

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Negotiations between the provincial government and Ontario's community college teachers have stirred as both parties await legislative passage of Bill 108 says Bruce McColl, head of the teachers' negotiating team.

In a telephone interview from his Kingston area home, Mr. McColl, a mathematics instructor at St. Lawrence College Kingston Campus, said Tuesday, both parties will not meet again until the week of July 21 at which time it is expected the bill will be either put into law or close to it.

The talks involve a new contract for teachers in the 22 colleges who comprise the college of applied arts and technology (CAAT) academic division of the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO).

The two-year contract expires Aug. 31. Meetings were held during May and June but others slated for late June and the second week of July were postponed due to the pending legislation and the recent arbitration award for the present contract.

Bill 108 will free both the CSAO's CAAT academic and support divisions from the Crown Employees' Collective Bargaining Act. Under the act, such issues as hours of work, job classification and staff evaluation are not negotiable.

Paul Wall, president of the Loyalist College teachers' local here, said Tuesday the new bill will mean "future negotiations in our area will not be hemmed in."

Thunder Showers End Heat Wave

It's still summertime — but the living is easier.

Searching, sticky weather finally released its grip on the Belleville-Trenton area of the Quinte district late Monday as thundershowers move in to break the sweltering pattern of recent weeks.

In the wake of the break, the duty forecaster at CFB Trenton today was predicting "noticeably cooler" weather for the rest of the week.

Temperatures will drop about seven degrees Celsius — from the recent sweltering high 29s and low 20s which have made life a clammy endurance test for many.

Humidity was also sharply on the decline.

Talks Still On

Contract talks between the college of applied arts and technology (CAAT) academic division of the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) and the provincial government are proceeding well, said Bruce McColl, head of the negotiating team.

"The general atmosphere and tenor is better than it has been the last two times," he said of bargaining on the two-year contract which is scheduled to be in effect Sept. 1.

Mr. McColl said both sides have settled such minor issues as sabbatical and other types of leave, copyright protection for teachers, a no discrimination clause and a tentative agreement on a grievance procedure.

Boyle Remanded

MADOC — A Belleville man has been remanded for trial to Sept. 2 on a charge of possession of a weapon dangerous to the public in Madoc provincial court, following a brief appearance in court Tuesday.

Charged is John Robert Boyle, 29, of RR4, Belleville.

The charge against Mr. Boyle was laid June 18 during a strike of Hastings County road workers of whom he was a representative during the wildcat.

Police said the charge was laid following an "intrusion" at Eldorado on Highway 62 north of here.

Mouthguard Clinic To Resume

The Hastings and Prince Edward Counties health unit has announced its mouthguard project will resume in September.

Dr. Dennis Warrick, director of dental services, explains the service promotes "mouth protection in contact sports".

He says mouthguard clinics have been confirmed for 10 counties high schools. Only high school students are eligible and there is a $4 cost per student for each custom-made mouthguard. Insurance is not included.

Promotion materials and further instructions will reach all of the schools during the first week of September.

Rain Forestalls Water Rationing

TRENTON — Today's rain and drop in temperature will likely forestall any need to impose controls on water used by Trenton households.

Trenton utilities commission manager Douglas Manlove said today it was too early to accurately predict what the change in the weather will mean to demand for water.

However, he "guestimated" demand will likely drop by 1.5 million gallons.

He said that if the dry spell had continued the commission could have been forced to consider establishing controls on water use here.

Average daily use calculated over a year runs between 2.5 and 4 million gallons. During the recent hot spell use of water in Trenton almost doubled to 5.7 million gallons.

As a result, said Mr. Manlove, the commission was forced to meet demand by working pumps at the Murray wells and the filter station on the Trent River at maximum capacity.

Warm Spell Water Demand

Dry weather sees annual daily trek of water carriers to city's filtration plant where they draw supplies to top up rural wells as levels evaporate. Bill O'Brien and brother Mike load 1,000-gallon tanker at plant Tuesday — one of a number of carriers who now make such trips daily. However, plant officials so far this year say demand is not notably up from last year despite recent, long dry spell.

BGH May Cut Surgery Due to Blood Shortage

Belleville General Hospital (BGH) might have to cut back on surgery this summer due to a serious shortage of blood, says Philip Rickard, BGH executive director.

Mr. Rickard said today, "it's a province-wide problem and it also affects us locally. It seasonally comes around like this.

"It's sufficiently serious that we may have to restrict some surgery," he commented. "We're asking surgeons to watch the situation so that anything that can be delayed will be delayed."

Mr. Rickard said BGH uses about 70-80 units of blood per day during a busy period. "We've been drawing more from the province than we've been raising locally," he said.

Mr. Rickard pointed out a fled Cross blood donor clinic will be held Thursday at Centennial Secondary School on Palmer Rd., from 1:45 - 4:30 p.m. and 6-8:30 p.m.

And Then It Rained

All weekend indications pointed to a prolonged period of hot, humid, sunny weather with no rain in sight — so Jim Heffer and his eight-year-old son, James, of Belleville decided to launch their boat to enjoy the bright sunshine enveloping the area. They at least enjoyed a few days of lazy drifting on Bay of Quinte waters — and then, today, the rains came.

Marshall Serves Notice He's Healthy

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Marshall on the mound for Los Angeles Dodgers is a sight for sore eyes—not to mention sore rib cages.

"Mike's healthy now, and when he's healthy he's one of the best," said Los Angeles manager Walt Alston after his ace relief pitcher helped the Dodgers beat Pittsburgh 7-5 Tuesday night.

The right-hander looked like the Marshall of old, checking the Pirates on one hit over three innings after taking over for injured Don Sutton in the seventh inning.

Marshall, last year's Cy Young winner, has been having a painful season this year due to a rib injury, but he threw with ease in batting practice 30 minutes before putting the Pirates down and out.

"I threw batting practice before the game to get my bench ing pitches under control," Marshall said. "I'm not all the way back yet, but I'm starting to get there."

In other National League baseball games, San Diego Padres beat Chicago Cubs 6-4 in 15 innings, New York Mets defeated Atlanta Braves 4-3, Cincinnati Reds beat Philadelphia Phillies 7-1, Houston Astros defeated Montreal Expos 5-1 and San Francisco Giants beat St. Louis Cardinals 6-4.

Boston, 13-8, lost 3-0 on a two-hitter going into the seventh when he was forced to leave the game. Dave Parker opened the Pirate seventh with a single off Sutton, went to the showers when he pulled a groin muscle on an ensuing delivery to Richie Zisk.

Marshall retired Zisk before Manny Sanguillen singled up the middle, then he retired pinch-hitters Ed Kirkpatrick and Bob Robertson to end the inning.

Unearned runs in the third and fourth innings helped Los Angeles to a 3-0 lead off loser Dock Ellis, and Jim Wynn homered with two out in the sixth.

Fred Kendall's two-run single in the 15th inning off San Diego re ief Chicago, Willoughby, 0-1, scored Bill Madlock from second. Tom Dettore, 5-2, and Dave Winfield was walked intentionally. The runners moved up on a grounder by Nate Colbert before Kendall singled in left.

Joe McIntosh, 7-7, San Diego's sixth pitcher in the game, got the victory that snapped the Padres' three-game losing streak and handed the Cubs their fourth consecutive loss.

New York's Dave Kingman hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning, his 19th home run of the season, to lead the Mets against Atlanta. Wayne Garrett opened the game with his third homer of the year for the Mets 13 homers in their last eight games.

Cincinnati's Gary Nolan notched his first victory in almost a month with relief help from Rawly Eastwick as the Reds beat Philadelphia. Nolan, 8-5, scattered six hits in 4 2-3 innings before departing in the seventh with the Phillies scored their run.

Dave Roberts pitched a four-hitter and drove across two runs with two singles to lead Houston over Montreal.

Roberts Two-way Threat

HOUSTON (AP) — Robert Houston pitcher Dave Roberts says his performance against Montreal Tuesday night was his best of the season, he should indicate if he means hitting or pitching.

Roberts thwarted the Expos with four hits and led the Astros to their third consecutive victory, a 5-1 decision that included two run-scoring hits by Roberts.

"I'd say that was my best performance of the season," said Roberts, now 3-10. "Whether I started tonight or not was uncertain because of a slight groin pull. I threw eight minutes warming up, nothing but slow stuff."

Roberts had a 4-0 shutout working until the fifth inning when Montreal's Larry Parrish hit his sixth home run of the season.

The Astros took a 3-0 lead in the first inning on Bob Watson's run-scoring single and a sacrifice fly by catcher Milt May. Houston scored two more runs in the fourth on Rob Andrews' sacrifice fly and the first of two run-scoring singles by Roberts.

Roberts banned another single off the right-fie's fence to score Andrews in the sixth inning at which could have been a double.

"On that ball I hit to the wall, I might have tried to stretch it into a double, but I didn't think it was worth the risk," he said. "I don't want to waste one game for two or t starts if I did hurt my Roberts put down a minor Expos uprising in the ninth when Gary Carter singled and Pepe Mangual walked. Roberts got his victory with two pop-ups and then a strikeout of Nate Colbert for the final out.

Barrie Winner

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ontario scored two runs in the last two innings to break a 4-4 tie and defeat Saskatchewan 6-4 Tuesday in the opening game of the Canadian Senior baseball championship.

Righthander Mel Kennedy went the distance for the victory, scattering five hits and striking out seven.

He was helped by five Saskatchewan errors, three of them in the second inning, which allowed Ontario to score four unearned runs.

Ontario is represented by Barrie Red Sox and Saskatchewan by Regina Red Sox.

John Sell's two runs and Ron Peterson's five-hit pitching led Alberta, represented by Calgary Jimmies, to a 3-1 victory over the Prince Edward Island all-star team.

Sell helped Alberta score from the early 1-0 deficit, hitting a solo home run in the fourth inning.

He reached first in the bottom of the ninth inning on a single, moving to third on a throwing error by Dave Grove and Dave Morris, and scored the game-winning run when Al Herback hit a ground ball which P.E.I. shortstop Don Brown fielded. Brown's throw to home plate eluded catcher Dave Larkin.

Lynda Leads by 3

WINNIPEG (CP) — Lynda Devine of Thunder Bay, Ont., carded her second consecutive 80 to take a three-stroke lead Tuesday after two rounds in the Manitoba Womens Golf Association amateur championship.

Miss Devine, seeking her third consecutive victory in the tournament, toured the par 73 Hill Golf and Country Club in identical nines of 40.

Fran Falk of Winnipeg moved into second place with the day's best round—a 79—that left her three strokes behind the leader with a two-round total of 83. Also in third place was Jo-Ann Lindsay, of Minneapolis, who plays out of Fulton Lake, Man. She improved on opening round 83 by one stroke for a two-round total of 165.

Expected Duel Fizzles

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A great pitchers' duel was anticipated when Baltimore's Jim Palmer and California's Nolan Ryan, both named to the American League all-star team, faced each other Tuesday night.

It turned out to be a hitting duel instead.

Palmer wasn't involved in the decision although he came within one out of becoming the first 14-game winner in the majors. And Ryan suffered his fifth consecutive defeat as Baltimore Orioles beat California Angels 8-5 in 10 innings.

In other AL baseball action, Boston Red Sox beat Minnesota Twins 6-5, New York Yankees blanked Texas Rangers 4-0, Kansas City Royals defeated Milwaukee Brewers 8-1, Oakland A's beat Cleveland Indians 15-5 and Detroit Tigers defeated Chicago White Sox 5-3.

Palmer, although he allowed eight six hits, was credited with all five California runs in 8 2-3 innings and blew a 5-3 lead with two out in the ninth. Ryan, who hasn't won since June 8, yielded 10 hits, six walks and eight runs—three of them unearned.

Ed Farmer and Ryan weren't up to their usual all-star form, either, according to both sides. A two-base throwing error by

JIM PALMER

"The only ball I threw in the ninth inning was to Lahoud," said Palmer, who saw his two-run lead disappear on a walk to Lahoud, a single by Lee Stanton, who homered earlier, a walk to John Doherty and Dave Chalk's two-run single.

The Orioles maintained from their bench and Evans finally ejected manager Earl Weaver. Then, Billy Williams homered but to no avail.

The Orioles won the game on Mark Belanger's two-run single in the 10th following a walk and a two-base throwing error by first baseman Doherty.

Fred Lynn's tie - breaking pinch single with the bases loaded in the ninth inning drove in the winning run for Boston.

By winning, the Red Sox remained one game ahead of New York Yankees in the American League's East Division.

New York's Catfish Hunter pitched a seven-hitter for his 10th victory and fifth shutout and Ron Blomberg hit a two-run homer in the first inning against Texas.

Harmon Killebrew's two-run double highlighted a five-run Kansas City first inning against Bill Travers and John Mayberry added a three-run homer off Fritz Peterson in the fourth.

Oakland's Gene Tenace drove in four runs with a homer and double. Billy Williams hit a two-run homer and Claudell Washington tripled twice, drove in two runs and scored twice.

Old Hand at Pitching, Waite Enjoys OFL Play

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

So far this season the one thing the Belleville McDonald's of the Ontario Football League have needed is a pitching ace.

Oshawa has Paul Wennamaker, Hamilton has Wally Dick, London has Metro Szeryk and St. Catharines has Dick Balint.

Belleville's only veteran starter was Bob Ethier, who impressed many with the games he threw. But Bob Ethier seems to be no more, as he hasn't been any road flyer with Mean Mabely and seems to be wholly disinterested.

That leaves everything on the shoulders of young Ted Waite, heir apparent to leadership of the Belleville McDonald's pitching staff.

This is not to take anything away from Scott Reid of Jimmy Chase. Both have already proven themselves, but, it is true, that Waite is the harsher thrower of the three.

Ted already has over 30 strikeouts for this season, and has one win over the Oshawa Tony's under his belt, when he threw a shutout against Walter.

One of the things which might put Waite ahead of his counterpart is the fact that he practises more often than most. Every night he can be found at one of the local schools, practising his fries or his drop.

Abe, he's been pitching since he was 15, and that was in the old Commercial League, for Pulse Arms, a team most will remember.

He also pitched for the Ellis Juniors and Rollins Construction contributed five championship teams in his years with the Commercial League (now the Quinte Fastball League).

Twice Ted had the honor of playing on the league's All-star team, and three times he was named the league's top pitcher.

In 1970 his record was 13-1 and the Ellis Juniors went on to win the Oshawa Junior Tournament Championship.

Ted's teammates call him "Smokey", mostly because of the abe of his arms. He is no Pete Landers, but his arms are large, mostly from working with weights in his spare time.

TED WAITE

He even came close to winning the Commercial League batting championship one year, hitting .436 to come second to Larry Wheeler.

"This is a great opportunity" says Waite, "I'm improving all the time and I've learned that one bad pitch can kill you".

"This is a good chance for all of us and I'm glad Dale (Derail) and Doug (Adams) came up with the idea".

"I think next year we'll be in the thick of things; so for this year, it's never too late to come back and improve some more people".

At 5-foot-7 and 190 pounds Waite looks small to some batters, but his fastball is known to be one of the best in the league.

Maybe the Mets won't win it all this year, but at least with players like Ted they'll know they tried.

Meads Move Up On Holoway's Arm

Sonny Holoway of Mead Johnson threw hitless ball at Bronco Bend on Tuesday night in Belleville Industrial Softball League play.

Holoway took the 5-0 win as he stymied Brooke Bond batters, striking out 11 of them while walking just three.

The loss went to Tom St. Jules, who gave up five hits and three walks while striking out six batters.

Holoway helped himself at the plate too, as he came through with a triple. Reg Bennett, Dave Dolan, Charley Rowbotham, Gary Genereaux and Jim Woods singled.

The win moved Meads into a tie with the Post Office for second place in the West Division.

Broadloom Blanked

Belleville Yardmen Betafit Fund defeated a slipping Belleville Broadloom team 10-8, with Shirley Gulliver taking the victory on a two-hitter.

The Belleville and District Ladies Softball League game gave the Belleville Yardmen Betafit Fund team a stronger bold on first place.

The loss went to Sue Fobert, who gave up 19 hits and two walks in the five inning game.

Sheila Alexander, Helen Delisle and Sharon Brownell all came up with three hits each to lead the victors' attack.

Andy Wilson of Kingston, a Junior League player, shows one of the finer points of the game to young Jeff, Barnes. It was all part of the Government program to give clinics in all sports to younger participants. Jeff plays in the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association Tyke-Novice Division.

Getting Some Pointers

The Squeeze Is On In Fastball League

The farther things get into the Quinte Fastball League season, the closer games, and consequently, the race for playoff positions, get.

On Tuesday night Howard and Robert put up excellent pitching from Ian Hunter Rpn Hall, who gave up just one Junior his during the game. He walked three batters and set down four on third strikes, going all the way.

Paul Wilson and John Sprocket combined for the Junior, giving up three hits and three walks while striking out five 11 and 8 batsmen.

Rick Graham reached the Junior for two singles, and continues to lead the league in batting at .500. Dwight Rathwell also got on with one single.

The only Junior hit came from John Hedden.

DeMille gave up five hits and a walk while sending 12 Rorabeck batters back to the bench on third strikes.

Wayne Cunningham put together a good pitching effort for Rorabeck, giving up four hits and no walks while striking out two batters.

Dennis Neron collected two RBIs in the win while picking up a double. Carl Stacey, Wayne McDonnell and Ted Walkwork all singled.

Harry MacDonald picked up a triple in the loss, while Lyle Lloyd, Pete Pettingill, Bernie Coughlin and Casselman singled.

Esso Car Wash And Dairy Queen Come Up Big

The Dairy Queen and Esso Car Wash put together fine efforts to win their games in the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Associations Tyke-Novice Division recently.

Dairy Queen defeated Quinte Mall 11-4 with Doug Burley and Rob Brooks scoring four goals apiece.

Mike Phillips put out a fine effort for the losers, scoring four times.

Esso Car Wash took their win 11-9 with Jim Thompson popping in six goals and Peter Libbie scoring five for the winners.

Don Dafoe was especially effective for the losers, as he scored no less than all nine of his team's markers.

In the Midget age division Local 191 defeated A and D Esso 17-0.

In Bantam play an excellent effort by goalie Dan Maracle failed as Deseronto was beaten by Cornerstone 5-2.

Brad Gill defeated Bob's Sports'4 on a three goal effort by Joe Belanger. Mike Schmidt had two goals.

The Peewee division saw a 3-3 tie between the Dairy Queen and Ponderosa, with goalies Bryan LeMahe and Brian Slaughter impressive in the nets.

The Police Association came up with a good effort to defeat Woodland Cleaners 8-5 in their league game.

Dave Pattie scored both of the losers' goals.

On July 26 and 27 the McDonalds Invitational Bantam Tournament will be held at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

Top teams will come from Buffalo, Orillia, Nepean, Cornwall, Gloucester and of course Belleville to name a few.

Trophies will go to four teams and were donated by McDonald's, Bell Telephone, City Hotel and Marsh Insurance.

DECLARED WINNER

GROSSE POINTE, Mich. (AP) — Ricochet has been declared the official winner in the Two Ton world sailing championships after an international racing jury dismissed the protests against the boat. The jury's decision gives Ricochet the over-all crown and makes her the winner of the final race in the two-ton series as well.

Merchants Rally; Edge Juveniles

It took two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to give Stirling Merchants a slim 3-2 win over the Stirling Juveniles. In the other Stirling and District Softball League game Holloway A and B Precast continued their winning ways with a 10-1 victory over Stirling Mens.

Larry Bernard gave up three hits and three walks in taking the win, while striking out 10 batters.

Robert Cook took the loss, giving up seven hits and two walks while gaining four strikeouts.

Barnard had two hits for the winners while Ted Dobson, Don Puts and Rick Shorey had RBI.

Cooke had two RIB in the loss while Mark Dobson and Kevin Solmes were the other Juvenile batters.

Dave Marvin took an easy win in the other Stirling Men's as Holloway A and B Precast had 18 hits.

The loss went to Ray Weldman and Don Burkitt, who combined for six strikeouts.

Bill Sills had three RBI in the winning drive, while Keith McDonnell smacked a homer.

Burkitt was his own team's leading hitter with a homer and two RBIs.

2 Wins for London Dukes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

London Dukes defeated St. Catharines Mr. Jackets 5-4 and 2-1 in Ontario Football League doubleheader Tuesday.

Meanwhile in Toronto, the Globals beat Hamilton Scrapers 3-0 in a 17-inning game that lasted for more than 3½ hours.

In Oshawa, Jim Murdock's 10th-inning single drove in Terry Gallamore with the winning run as Kitchener Evergreens beat the Tonys 2-1.

At London, the Dukes' Jim Brown hit a two-run home run in the first inning of the opener and a solo homer in the third to bring his season total to six.

Catcher Don Hildebrand hit his fifth home run of the season for St. Catharines in the fifth inning of the first game.

St. Catharines' first run came in the second inning on two singles and a London error.

London's Don Dominas was the winning pitcher in the first game and Dave Fransen took the loss.

In the second game, Brown came home on a single from Bruce Everest and Bob Meggarels scored his first run of the season.

London pitcher Dick Harnes got his fifth win of the season.

In Toronto, the winning run was scored by Lee Gould in the bottom of the 17th. He got on first on an error by Fran Stuart, advanced to second on a bad throw and scored on an error by shortstop Jim Thompson.

Toronto scored in the bottom of the first inning but Hamilton took the lead in the top of the fourth with two runs.

The game was tied in the bottom of the eighth inning on a run by Gerry Rayerall.

Peterborough Squad Sparked by Plunkett

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Steve Plunkett scored six goals Tuesday, leading Peterborough Gray-Munros to a 29-13 win over St. Catharines Legionnaires in Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A action.

In another game, Mississauga Chiefs defeated Lakeshore Maple Leafs 21-10.

At Peterborough, Dan Eastman scored five goals for the Gray-Munros while Mark Villerell, Randy Bryan and Moe Jobin each had three.

Bob Watson and Gord Duncan each scored a pair and single goals went to Greg Lustic, Dan Green, Bob Short, Steve Byers and Paul Evans.

Pat Patrick, with six goals and Joe Martin, with four, led St. Catharines. Mike McGrath, Don Rickers and Dan Peart added single goals.

Peterborough took period leads of 11-2 and 17-9.

At Lakeshore, top scorers for Mississauga were Rick Halliday and Rob Gemmell, each with three goals and five assists. George Chandler got four goals and three assists and Mick Hicks two goals and one assist.

Lakeshore's top scorers were Joe Sheeran and Pete Collins with two goals and one assist each. Ted Hopkins had four assists.

Winning goaltender was Fred Gardner and Greg Kelly took the loss.

Drut Takes Foster

PARIS (AP) — Guy Drut of France beat arch-rival Charles Foster of the United States by more than six feet to win the 110-metre hurdles, opening event of an international track meet Tuesday.

Drut's time of 13.40 seconds on the thin-seeded track was well below American Rod Milburn's world record of 13.10. Foster finished in 13.47.

More than 8,000 spectators attended the meet despite a violent thunderstorm which swept across Paris less than two hours before the first events.

Drut and Foster are principal contenders for the 110-metre hurdles gold medal at the Montreal Olympics next year. In their six encounters this season, Drut has won three times and Foster twice. In one race both fell.

In the 400-metre hurdles, Jim Bolding of the U.S. took first in 49.55, ahead of France's Jean-Claude Audilet, second in 49.57.

In the 10-metres, Don Quarrie of Jamaica was first in 10.30, ahead of Guyana's Gilbert, second in 10.35, and American SteveWilliams,third in 10.39.

Marie France Dolaize of France won the women's 800 metres in 2:02.2, ahead of Francine Larrieu of the U.S., second in 2:05.1.

New Zealand's John Walker won the 1,000 metres in a heating Rick Wohlhuter of the U.S., second in 2:20.3.

Finks Supports The Rozelle Rule

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The National Football League's Rozelle Rule is helping to keep teams in cold-weather areas such as Minnesota and Green Bay, Jim Finks of Chicago Bears said in federal court Tuesday.

Finks, executive vice-president and general manager of the Bears, was the latest in a parade of league witnesses attesting that NFL rules are designed to preserve a competitive balance within the league.

Finks said elimination of the Rozelle Rule—named after NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle — would be the "beginning of the end" of the NFL as it now exists.

"I think Minnesota would be a problem," he said. "I think Green Bay would be a problem. I think you would find many clubs unable to keep op-

Rule allows the NFL commissioner to award clubs choices or players when a player completes his contract and signs with another team. The commissioner steps in to set compensation only when the two teams are unable to come to terms on their own.

The rule is being challenged by a group of current and former players on grounds the rule violates federal anti-trust laws.

"The clubs will have the resources to get the superstars ... you'd find three or four clubs with all the superstars," Finks said. "The rest would be playing with castoffs."

The players' suit contends that Rozelle's authority to set fees has genuinely free [illegible] market their services after playing out the option year beyond their contracts. By setting the compensation too high, Rozelle can, in effect, force a player to renegotiate with his former employers, the suit contends.

Potent Power Play

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Owen Sound North Stars scored 10 power-play goals in handing Niagara-Brantford Warriors a 24-9 setback in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Major series game Tuesday.

The win put the North Stars into a second-place tie with Ferguson Thistles but the Stars have two games in hand.

The winners jumped off in a 9-2 lead in the first period and led 17-7 at the end of the second.

Doug Zonneveille led Owen Sound with five goals followed by Ken Tyler and Scott Cameron with three. Hugh Prentice, Doug Maynard, Terry Keeling and Norm Hope added two goals each. Single goals went to Mike Lachapelle, Thom Vann, Dave Lytle, Dave Foster and Ardie Rymerson.

Als Tie B. C. Lions 14 - 14

Wilkinson Leads Eskimos

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Eskimos made their early lead stand up but Montreal Alouettes watched theirs evaporate and settled for a tie in Canadian Football League exhibition action Tuesday night.

The Eskimos built a 27-0 lead in the first half and coasted to a 30-14 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats at Edmonton.

The Als were down 8-0 in the first half but had to scramble to emerge with a 14-14 tie against British Columbia Lions.

The exhibition schedule continues tonight with Saskatchewan Roughriders visiting Ottawa Rough Riders and Calgary Stampeders meeting the Blue Bombers in Winnipeg. B.C. moves on to visit Toronto Argonauts on Thursday night.

Veteran quarterback Tom Wilkinson directed the Eskimos' early surge, starting with a nine-yard touchdown pass to fullback Roy Bell.

Edmonton defensive end Leroy Jones intercepted a pass by Hamilton halfback Earl Lee and ran 26 yards for the second touchdown and running back Jerry Mann carried four yards for the third.

Dave Cutler added field goals from 30 and 37 yards in the first half and from 15 in the fourth quarter as well as converts on all three touchdowns.

The late Hamilton rally consisted of two touchdown passes by rookie quarterback Jim McMillan. He fired 18 yards to Jack McKowen in the third quarter and 10 yards to Garney Henley in the fourth. Ian Sunter kicked both converts.

Hamilton, gaining only 29 yards rushing throughout the game, failed to cross midfield in the first half and seemed to have problems under the direction of veteran Eller and Jim Stoeckel.

Eskimo quarterbacks Bruce Lemmerman and rookie Dennis Morrison also failed to move the ball effectively.

Several fights broke out in the game and Hamilton's Adisy Curtis and Edmonton's Tom Lapuka, Joe Wereb ec and Jones were ejected.

At Montreal, the Als took the lead with a secondquarter touchdown by Johnny Rodgers on a 15-yard pass from veteran Sonny Lewis while Don Sweet kicked the convert and a first quarter single.

The Lions came back with Lou Harris's two-yard touchdown run in the third quarter and the Als replied with a 38-yard touchdown pass from Jimmy Jones to Joe Petty early in the fourth but Sweet's convert attempt failed.

Veteran quarterback Pete Liske then fired an eight-yard touchdown pass to Ross Clarkson and John Whitemarsh kicked his second convert to tie the game.

On the last play of the game, the Lions' Ivan MacMillan kicked wide on a 16-yard field goal attempt. Montreal's Dave Elliott kicked the ball out of the end zone, B.C.'s Rocky Long kicked it back and Montreal's Ward Smith ran it back out to avoid a Lions single and preserved the tie.

The new league rule that allows restricted blocking on punt returns helped Alouette running back Wayne Mosley make a big impression. He had several good runbacks, including a 62 yard run to the B.C. 26-yard line in the second quarter.

Wings Share Third

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Zenny Lipinski scored four goals to pace Philadelphia Wings to a 13 win over Quebec Caribous in the only National Lacrosse League game Tuesday night.

The win moved the Wings into a third-place tie with Maryland Arrows at 28 points, eight behind the leading Long Island Thunderbirds. Maryland has two games in hand over Philadelphia.

Jimmy Higgs and Brian Wilson scored two goals each for the Caribous, outshot 41-35.

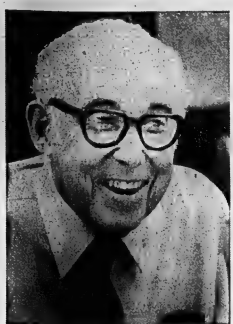
Shorter Schedule? No Way!



Clarence Campbell

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League schedule cannot be shortened for the 1975-76 season because of the economic situation, says president Clarence Campbell.

The NHL Players' Association would like the 80-game schedule played in a reduced time period so the Stanley Cup would end around mid-May instead of late in the month as it did this year.

"The owners undoubtedly would like to do these things, too, but the inexorable economic situation is against it," says Campbell. "The 80 games could be compressed in the future but, at best, a week could be lopped off."

The NHL owner-player council meets here Friday followed by a board-of-governors meeting at which the governors hope to approve new owners for Pittsburgh Penguins and California Seals.

Also in contention is a decision made earlier this year by the general managers who set the team rosters at 17 skaters and two goaltenders, the suits per dressed for each game. The association wants 21 players on the rosters.

"The players want to see training camps open Sept. 15, the schedule start Oct. 1 and end March 21," said Al Eagleson, the association's executive director. "They feel strongly that the Stanley Cup final should be concluded by May 15, not two weeks later as it was last season.

"The players have offered to take a proportionate reduction in salary if the schedule is cut to 70 games."

Campbell says: "Many teams are having financial problems and a pro-rata reduction according to the number of games played isn't the answer.

"Last season, teams paid 50 per cent of their budgets in salaries for 80 games. If the schedule were cut to 70 games, a pro-rated salary schedule still would cost the clubs the same percentage of the budget."

In 1973-74, the last season before the World Hockey Association arrived—the teams paid 25 per cent of their budgets in player salaries, he said.

Campbell said the roster numbers are negotiable and named a 20-player limit as the middle point.

"I think the general managers looked at it this way: The easiest way to reduce their payrolls was to cut off two players rather than taking a percentage of each salary. If a team carries 18 players instead of 20, that's a 10-per-cent salary reduction.

"But most teams can figure on having at least one injured player much of the time over the season. Our protected lists now call for 18 skaters and two goalies, one more than can be dressed for games and that would be where agreement is reached."

The governors are expected to welcome Albert Small, a Cleveland, Ohio, mortgage banker, at head of a group which will purchase the Pittsburgh franchise for $12 million, plus a $600,000 tab for an NHL membership card.

The Penguins went into bankruptcy receivership last month with a debt of $6.5 million.

Pamela Grabs The Lead

ASBESTOS, Que. (CP) — Pamela Johns of Weston, Ont., shot a six-over-par 79 Tuesday to grab the second-round lead in the 54-hole Quebec women's senior golf championship.

Miss Johns had a 36-hole score of 161 for a two-stroke lead over Josee Peruse of the host Asbestos Golf Club. Miss Peruse won the 36-hole 14-and-under competition held in conjunction with the junior event.

Christiane Renaud of Montreal was third overall at 166, followed by Elaine Beter of Trois-Rivieres, Que., at 167.

Ontario Amateur Leader Surprised

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Mike Mealis of Toronto, the 20-year-old first-round leader of the Ontario amateur championship at Westmount Golf and Country Club, was pleasantly surprised Tuesday after shooting nines of 35-35 for a two-under par 70.

"I usually don't play a tight course like Westmount well," said the junior finance student at Indiana University. "My putting is usually pretty good and my driving is the weak spot but today my ubole game was pretty solid.

"I'm more confident in my game now," he said. "I just step up to the ball and let it go. You can't score well on this course if you back off."

Mealis is one shot ahead of Ted Pease of London who had a one-under-par 71 on a the 6,681-yard, par-72 course, two shots ahead of Gary Cowan, the home course favorite who is tied for third with four other golfers.

Cowie, four-time Ontario and twice U.S. amateur champion, had an even-par 72 first round, but he was scrambling. His big-put problem seemed to be his putting.

"I had it all around the hole but they just didn't want to drop," he said. "It kept up all day."

Cowan started with two birdies on the first two holes but lost his early lead with a double-bogie six on the 442-yard seventh hole. He also birdied the 12th and 17th but bogeyed the 15th to finish with nines of 37-35.

Kelly Roberts of London, winner of this event in 1973 and 1975, also shot 72 but was dissatisfied with his round. "I played better than I scored," he said.

Also tied at 72 are Wayne Kilmura of Toronto, Rod Spittle of Port Erie and Les Westlake of Niagara Falls.

Nick Weslock of Burlington, seven-time former champion, shot a 73.

The field, down to 125 after two players withdrew, will be cut to the low 60 and ties after today's round and further cut to the low 40 golfers and ties for the final round Friday.

Golfers Looking for Rain But Nicklaus Is Happy

GARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — Two hundred and fifty of the world's top golfers teed off for the 104th British Open championship today.

And 149 of them were praying that Britain's five-week drought would end, the rain would fall and Garnoustie's new-hard course would soften up.

The odd man out was Jack Nicklaus, the biggest hitter in the modern game. He has been burning up the 7,065-yard, par-72 course in practice and, over the last two days, has hurtled an unofficial 36-under-par 394 for four rounds.

He'd be more than happy if things stayed as they are, with the fairways hard and the greens true—and his game allowed its head.

"I'm a bit surprised to find a course this fast and with so rough," he said later. "But I've never yet seen a British Open when the weather conditions didn't play a big part in the scoring."

Nicklaus is considered the man to beat in the chase for the $16,500 top prize. Twice a British Open winner—in 1966 and 1970—and four times a runner-up, he was rated by Britain's legal bookmakers at odds of 7 to 2 to win a third.

But the weather forecast was for some rain, which would slow the course and leave things wide open for a field that included last year's champion, South African Gary Player, who four last time the Open was played here seven years ago.

Population Rise Creates Oil Town Social Problems

FORT MCMURRAY, Alta. (CP)—The population boom in this northeastern Alberta town, brought on by development of the Athabasca oil sands, has created major problems in the areas of social services, schooling and recreational facilities.

Owners of mobile homes, which constitute about 30 per cent of the town's dwelling units, are upset about the lack of recreation facilities for their use.

They also want the town to change zoning laws, which are unresponsive to the requirements of mobile-home dwellers, and want more land freed for potential mobile-home developments, since hundreds of people are expected to need housing in the community.

Development of social services, such as day-care, social and psychological treatment and counselling services, is also lagging far behind the population growth, which is expected to double to 25,000 in at least four years.

"We're even lacking the services to meet what is a crisis situation now," said John Harper, director of the town's preventive social services program, which co-ordinates virtually all the town's social services.

A study of Fort McMurray's criminal justice services needs, commissioned by the solicitor-general's office, was released last month. It was critical of the shortcomings of almost every social service agency in the community.

Lack of finances has led the public and separate school boards in the town to seek government help. Jerry Hext, head of the Roman Catholic system, says the schools are unable to cope with the social and psychological needs of the students.

BC Hires Retired Mounties To Collect Overdue Fines

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia government has established a fine collection agency "staffed mainly by retired RCMP officers.

The agency is a branch of the attorney-general's department called the civil enforcement of fines division, and it's meant to deal with people who don't pay provincial fines.

It began operating in May and in a month collected about $1,300 in fines owing on violations of provincial statutes.

Under revised legislation in the Summary Convictions Act, judges normally cannot jail persons convicted of breaking provincial or municipal laws. If offenders default on fines, they must be sued in civil court for debt.

Lorne Newson, chief enforcement officer for the division, said people who can pay their fines but haven't done so will be taken to small claims court. If they do not comply with the requests of his staff.

If the fine still is not paid, the offender can be ordered by the court to be jailed for up to 10 days, and ordered to pay the $20-a-day cost of incarceration. An RCMP sergeant in 1974 after 30 years' service, said the division endeavors to by extra fines unpaid.

passionate with persons having genuine difficulty in paying their fines.

He said he doubts the money collected by the division will meet the cost of collecting it.

"We will be prepared to spend a reasonable number of man hours in some cases to collect even the smallest of fines because we cannot leave the impression with people who would exploit a given situation that there would be no effort to enforce a judgment against them," he said.

But he thinks the new system will be less expensive than the old policy of immediately incarcerating persons who left fines unpaid.

BIRTHS

BYLSMA — Steve and Alice are happy to announce the arrival of their second born, a daughter, Sherry Lynn, arriving on September 27, 1974 at 7:40 p.m. Weighing in at 7 lbs. 12 ozs. Proud brother is Jeff. Thanks to Drs. Dr. Edgar and Dr. Thomas.

COREY — Mr. and Mrs. Reginald W. Corey of Brantford, are pleased to announce the birth of their first child, a son Lee Reginald, born at 7:45 a.m., weighing 8 lbs., 8½ ozs. Grandaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Corey of Belleville. We are so grateful to be blessed with such a lovely child.

SETENBECK — Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Overton are pleased to announce the birth of their son Jeffrey Dennis Christian, born at Belleville General on July 3th, 1975 at the Attalsiaque hospital. Proud parents are Valerie and Jim Setenbeck. A niece for Jessica.

PATTERSON — Mr. and Mrs. Ken (Thompson), R.R. 4, Stirling, thank God for the safe arrival of their daughter, Nicole Ann, 8 lbs., 9½ ozs. on Friday, July 4, 1975. A sister for Linda.

IN MEMORIAM

BUTLER — In loving memory of a dear sister Marjorie Butler who passed away July 9, 1974.

Memory drifts to scenes long past,
Where you and I were together last.
Sweetest memories, memories true,
Love's remembrance outlasts all.

—Sadly missed by dearly remembered by sister Jean and nieces Cathy and Linda.

BUTLER — In loving memory of a dear wife, Marjorie Butler, who passed away July 9, 1974.

Memories are golden memories,
Memories are silver memories,
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep,
Her memories we will always keep.

—And the girl I loved still remains
In my heart always, husband Bob.

BUTLER — In loving memory of a dear sister-in-law, Marjorie Butler who passed away July 9, 1974.

Sadly missed by Ruth and Harold.
That the hills were hard to climb.
That the road was long,
And whispered, "Peace to thine."
Away in the beautiful hills of God.
By the valley of the pines.
Some time, some day, we know not where,
But we
We shall meet and love once more.
—Ever remembered by Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Butler and family, Brighton.

BUTLER — In loving memory of a dear memory, Marjorie Kathleen Butler, who passed away July 9, 1974.

The touch of memories hand will always remain
Though God saw best to take her away.
In Heaven
Her love will always be their deep
As her hearth for ever and ever.
—Daughter Marie, sons Steven and Allen.

CLARKE — In loving memory of our dear mother Emily C. Clarke who passed away July 9th, 1962.

Sweet memories are those we hold,
Dear memories are locked within,
And though we cannot see you,
Mother, we are with you still.
—Sadly missed by Ernest, daughter Ethel and daughter-in-law Lilian and Vera and family.

SLINGERLAND — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Charles Slingerland who passed away on July 9, 1973.

Sweet memories the memory,
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him today,
Are those who loved him best.
The flowers we lay upon his grave,
Will fade and pass away,
But the love for him we have beneath,
Will never fade away.
—Lovingly remembered by Hazel, Ethel and Julia.

ARMSTRONG

WALKER — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Frank Walker who passed away one year ago, July 9, 1974.

Time goes by so fast and quickly,
When a care was not to be.
But he closed his eyes and loved you,
And whispered, "Come home to Me."
—Ever remembered by wife Nora, daughters, son and families.

BUTLER — In loving memory of a dear sister and aunt, Marjorie, who passed away July 9, 1974.

Sadly missed by elementary pal,
Time heals not a memory,
Sunshine passes, memories last,
Love's remembrance outlasts all.
—Sadly missed by sister and aunt, Shirley and family and Ken and Evelyn Shaver and family.

BUTLER — In loving memory of a dear sister Marjorie who passed away July 9, 1974.

Dear sister in life my heart shall hold,
The memory ever dear,
And ever for dears in loving grief,
Shall fall a silent tear.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed, sister Dorothy.

BUTLER — In loving memory of my dear sister Marjorie who passed away July 9, 1974.

Sadly missed by sister Lil and husband.

BUTLER — In loving memory of our dear daughter Marjorie, who passed away July 9, 1974.

Sadly missed by special day,
Memories linger on,
For they are we do not think of you,
We are very hard to find,
If all this world were ours to give,
We'd give it to you and more,
To see you back once more to-day,
Is all we ask for evermore.
—Sadly missed and always remembered, Mom and Dad.

BUTLER — In loving memory of our dear daughter Marjorie, who passed away one year ago, July 9, 1974.

Some are the days we used to share,
But in our hearts you are always there.
The pain of memory will never cease,
We miss you more than anyone knows,
With tender love and deep regret,
We who loved you will never forget.
—Sadly missed and always remembered, Mom and Dad.

CARDS OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald W. Corey would like to send their sincere thanks to Dr. W. Stewart for the late delivery of their baby Lee Reginald on June 28, 1975. Special thanks to Mrs. McConaghie, Mrs. Mohn, Mrs. Harris, all of the delivery staff who worked along side with Dr. Steward, to Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Dr. Thomson who helped to make it all so precious.

The family of the late Stephen Earl Hubbs wish to thank Dr. Hall, Dr. Hall and Dr. Bagley, Belleville Ambulance and the Niagara Finance Company for the arrangement of flowers. They also wish to thank the neighbors, friends and relatives for their kindness and sympathy and friends for their mass offerings and floral tributes and expressions of the love of their father's death.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mrs. Shirley Aills of St. Catharines and Mr. Ronald Bishop of Belleville are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Karen to Private Norman W. (Tad) Bishop, son of Mrs. Bishop and the late Cpl. Norman P. Bish. Wedding to take place Friday, Aug. 15, 1975 in St. Michael's Church, Belleville.

MARRIAGE

Clendenning and Edwards — On Saturday, June 21, 1975, Nancy Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Edwards of Belleville, to Mr. Ronald Clendenning, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Clendenning of Belleville. Judge and Mrs. John Leslie Chester officiating. Married.

Phillips to Direct Opera

OTTAWA (CP) — Robin Phillips, new artistic director of the Stratford Festival, will direct a touring production of Verdi's La Traviata for the Canadian Opera Company next spring, Jan Robes, the company's touring director, has announced.

Robes, directing a month-long cabaret show of lyric opera excerpts at the National Arts Centre, said in an interview that Phillips will prepare the new production of one of Verdi's most popular operas next March.

It will join the touring company's current production of Puccini's La Boheme on a tour of Ontario during April. Before that, however, the company will take La Boheme and a revue show of opera excerpts on a tour of Newfoundland and the Maritime provinces—opening in Wabush, Nfld., late in October.

Phillips became artistic director of the Stratford Festival last fall, and first directed two up-tempo versions of Shakespeare's comedies, The Two Gentlemen of Verona and The Comedy of Errors, for a tour of western Canada.

They now are running at the Stratford Festival in the Avon Theatre, and were joined last month by dramatically new production of Measure for Measure, also directed by Phillips.

Though his appointment was controversial because it meant bringing a young British director to take over Canada's leading theater, Phillips' productions have won general acclaim from the critics.

He has directed opera previously in Britain, but Robes said this will be his first opera work in Canada. Robes said Phillips' intentions to present Shakespeare works in ways more becoming to popular audiences fits nicely with the touring work of the Canadian Opera Company.

After its fall Atlantic tour, the touring group will spend two months touring the U.S. under the aegis of Columbia Artists. It then will move into the Shaw Festival Theatre at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., for three weeks in March to prepare La Traviata.

It is a story of the love of a rich noblemen's son for a courtesan who throws him over out of respect for the father, only to confess her love as she dies of consumption. It is set to some of Verdi's most popular, bumable music.

Ticketed Home

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Robert Whitmore was on his way to the bus garage after accepting the safe driver of the year award from a firm supplying bus transportation to city schools. The trophy was resting on the bus's floor when it slipped and Whitmore hit the brake, ramming into a car ahead. He appeared in court with the trophy and the judge told him he didn't have the "heart" to spoil his record, so put him on probation.

Art Show Opens

OTTAWA (CP) — Julian Grey of Montreal has been painting for three years, and Wednesday he got to open an art show including four of his works.

Julian, who is nine years old, opened a display of children's art in the lobby of the National Capital Commission building in downtown Ottawa.

The 133 works on display were gathered by All About Us, a government-supported organization promoting creativity among young Canadians.

Its co-ordinator is Betty Nickerson, a sociologist who believes adults can become more aware of the country's needs through writings and drawings of their children—if they'll only read and look.

Julian Grey began drawing three years ago while on a trip to Europe with his parents. For this summer's show, he painted four pictures, with felt-tipped pens, showing his Montreal house and neighborhood during the four seasons.

Grenda Craig, 10, of Montreal, B.C., entered a poster picturing the high cost of living—a grocery store with shelves filled with fruit, jam and pop, and a cash register with a lone paper baby spilling on to the floor.

Laurel McClubbin, 14, of Toronto, created an eight foot mural of bits of felt sewn on to silk, giving her interpretation of a poster preserved professionally for next summer's UN Conference on Human Settlements, to be held in Vancouver.

It shows a question mark with the earth as its dot, the development of man from prehistoric times and agricultural life to today's big cities, and the future overcrowding of the world—with people falling off.

Showbiz Shorts

BERLIN (AP) — In an unusual movie premiere Sunday, an east German actress in Communist east Berlin will be screened for the first time in the 25-year-history of West Berlin's annual Berlinale Film Festival.

Jakob the Liar, based on a novel by East German author Jurik Becker and produced by Defa countryman Frank Beyer of the Defa State Film Concern, tells the tale of Jewish ghetto inhabitants under Nazi rule in 1943.

NEW YORK (AP) — Audrey Gellen Mass, co-producer of the motion picture, Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore, died Wednesday at New York Hospital. She was 41.

Mrs. Mass, who was married to Peter Mass, was a producer with David Susskind Talent Associates.

Besides the movie, she co-produced with Susskind the television specials Moon for the Misbegotten and The Power and the Glory. They currently were producing Eleanor and Franklin for television.

Her husband is the author of the Serpico and The Valachi Papers.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Thursday, July 10

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There's no reason to pick up temsins tah lodor for a fun activity with friends. Let each pay a fair share.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Re extra-patient with members of your household, even though they may pull a few stunts that will exasperate you. You can handle things.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't rehash an old, irritating issue with it won't be worth charge today. Forgiveness will win you an ally.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If shopping today be careful when it comes to novel merchandise. There's a good chance you'll buy something you'll never use.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Avoid the company today of one whose goals are not in harmony with yours. It won't be worth the effort to try and convince him you're right.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's to your advantage to play a little hard-nosed today in your dealings. Let them come to you for a change.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) It's not a good day to make regenerals of a material nature from your friends. It could prove embarrassing when you're turned down.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Unfortunately, you can't base a major decision today on whether you tread upon someone's toes. First, protect your own interests.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A co-worker today will have a rather sharp tongue. He can be won over easily if you react tactfully, not angrily.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll profit more in the coming run today if you think in terms of what's best for all concerned, rather than "What's in it for me?"

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have a tendency today to turn to conclusions. You base assumptions could create a problem.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This can be a very productive period for you don't try to build Rome in one day. Mistakes are likely if you rush yourself.

Rheumatic Fever Serious Problem

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any way you can tell me and my husband how we can be of help with his younger brother. He is 23 and has rheumatic fever. He came down with it at the age of 18. It still bothers him. His doctor has put him on penicillin. I thought people with this were born with it. Is he due?

He has a hard time maintaining a job that requires physical activity, and after such activity his arms will start rheumatic pain he is worn out. Is there any way we can be of help so he can lead an normal, happy life and be able to participate in sports, for example?—Mrs. K.

This is a difficult problem. Much more information is needed. But I can offer some general thoughts.

Rheumatic fever is caused by the streptococcus germ. Patients are not born with it—it is an "acquired" disease.

Usually there is an initial attack followed in some cases by such things as St. Vitus dance (chorea) and heart involvement. The latter occurs in about a half of the cases, stemming usually from the first attack or from a subsequent one. You don't say whether there has been any heart involvement, but I can assume from your note that there has been some.

This can affect the heart muscle proper or the lining of the valves, the latter referred to as rheumatic valvular heart disease. The valves can be obvious and often lasting effect on the efficiency of heart action, and this is where your problem is style. And this, I presume, is your main concern at the moment.

Recurrent attacks can follow with subsequent infections—of the throat, tonsils, or perhaps bowling about—like infection. Hence, in the future, prompt treatment will be required for such infections and steps taken to guard against them as much as possible.

You say the doctor has prescribed penicillin. This is a treatment of choice. Recurrent attacks can be forestalled with monthly injections of benzathine penicillin G. This must be continued for from two to three years at least, for life in some cases.

There is not much more you can do to help the young man beyond making him understand his condition and the need for careful attention to it.

I presume his doctor has discussed this with him, but I would suggest reminding.

He may have to resign himself to a life of relative inactivity, depending on the degree of heart damage, and in this you can play a supportive role.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can body lice be transferred through use of bathroom facilities? I have been told the only way you can be rid of them is through sexual contact, from bedding or wearing the clothing of someone who has them. — V.W.

Body lice confine themselves to the hairy parts of the body, and the most common sites are the genital areas and the head. They cling to the hair shafts and are quite difficult to dislodge. However, they can rub off on to clothing, headgear and bedclothes and survive long enough to be transferred.

The toilet seat notion is popular but not correct. The lice would not tolerate the natural body temperature for one to be hospitable.

Lice are more par

Incidentally, the lice problem has increased only 300 per cent in the last 10 years. The popularity of long hair among men may be a factor since men, or more particularly youngsters, have not been accustomed to the added hygiene that long locks keep healthy. Increasing sexual promiscuity may be another factor, as you suggest. sexual contact is a classic method of transmitting the body lice from person to person.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

"What sort of free bid was that?" roared North. "Only 13 high-card points and there you were up at the five-level."

"It turned out to be very costly," replied South. "We had a game, slam and rubber waiting for us and you had to bid seven and throw it all away."

"If you had just passed over East's two hearts, I would have had three clubs and we would have reached the slam," continued North.

"Right," said South. "We also would have scored everything if you hadn't bung me for bidding three clubs."

The argument may still be going on as we will try to answer it for you, our readers.

If East had not stuck in his two-heart bid, North would merely have rebid to two clubs. When he did bid two hearts South was given a choice. He could pass and maybe never get to show his club suit or he could bid at the three level.

This time the pass would have worked out better, because North overbid to an unsound seven. Your in and your bet the bid will be the winning action.

Ask the Jacobys

Question from Maine: I held: ♠ Q 10 7 ♥ 2 3 ♦ A K J 8 7 ♣ 10 9 3. Our opponents reached four spades with no bidding by either my partner or myself. Should I have doubled?

This is the sort of question that is impossible to answer fully well because we don't have enough information. How did the bidding go? Who was on lead?

After some bidding you should a double is indicated. After others, you should pass if your double may tel declarer how to play and make the contract. We assume this is the situation in our correspondent stuck in a double.

(Do you have a question for the Jacobys? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and readers will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Master Minter Gives Rare Gift to Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Usually, when a civil servant retires he is the only one to receive a gift to mark the occasion.

But when Gordon Hunter retired recently the federal government also presented a watch, cane and rare gift—a profitable Crown corporation.

Mr. Hunter, a civil servant for 35 years, the last 4½ as master of the Royal Canadian Mint at Ottawa, retired with a gift of master sheet in the black.

Under his direction the mint has shown total profits of $5.4 million since 1970. Annual sales of the mint's products—its profits are earned on the export of coins—have increased to $37.7 million from $7.4 million in that time.

"It may be a record for a Crown corporation to show a profit," Mr. Hunter said in an interview. "We're really proud of our record over the past five years."

Production of coins has increased threefold since 1970.

"At the mint in Ottawa we now are operating three days a day 5½ days a week. Our payroll has gone from 250 to 750 employees.

The increased production at the Ottawa mint has necessitated its expansion and in September a second mint will be officially opened in Winnipeg. The Winnipeg mint now is producing one-cent, 10-cent and 25-cent pieces.

Before his retirement, Mr. Hunter committed the mint to an agreement to strike 30 million coins of numismatic quality to mark the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

The volume, if achieved over the three-year schedule, will be a world record, he said.

Prior to joining the mint in January, 1970, Mr. Hunter served as deputy minister of the defence production department.

Sikhs Lured With Promises Of Big Wages

By RAM SUNDAR
CP Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — Hundreds of Sikh farmers have been lured to Persian Gulf countries with promises of big wages they never materialize, press reports here say.

Bombay Times called it "man-hunting" since most of the workers are burly Sikhs from the north Indian state of Punjab.

There is a big demand for Indian workers in the Arab countries. The bearded Sikhs are particularly in demand since they work hard, are disciplined and create no trouble for employers.

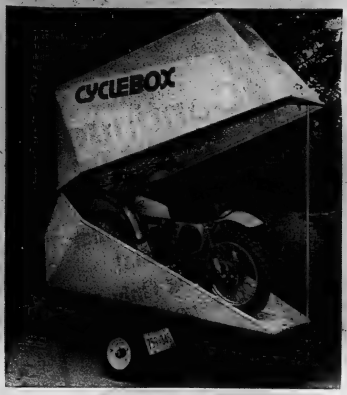
The Indian police have been investigating reports that a gang of recruiting agents has been exploiting Sikh villagers anxious to supplement their income.

The gang is said to charge anything from $200 to $700 to arrange the necessary formalities for the journey to Oman, Qatar, Bahrein and other Persian Gulf countries. The money is in addition to the air fare from Bombay.

The Sikhs are promised salaries ranging from $300 to $500 a month—a sizable sum according to local standards, considering what they actually get is never more than $100.

"It's all a gigantic fraud," said Harcharan Singh of Ludhiana, Punjab, who returned to Bombay after a year in Oman where he was on a construction job.

Singh said that as soon as the Indians land in Oman their passports are seized by the agents. They are then forced to work under inhuman conditions for a year before being permitted to return.



Complete Safety

A new box that is claimed to completely safeguard against motorcycle and bicycle theftsa has been invented. The cycle-box, a 54-inch-high and 7½-foot-long oblong box, took five months to perfect and according to Paul Coustouris, president of Flamingo Fibreglass of Mississauga, Ont., only the key or a stick of dynamite can open it once shut. (CP

Box Prevents Cycle Thefts

TORONTO (CP) — A new box that is claimed to safeguard against motorcycle and bicycle thefts has been invented by Paul Coustouris, president of Flamingo Fibreglass in suburban Mississauga.

The cyclebox, which took five months to perfect, can only be opened with a key or dynamite.

At a cost of $225, the 54-inch-high and 7½ foot long oblong box with a plastic cover can hold one motorcycle or several bicycles. A box is being planned to hold a snowmobile.

"If someone tries to break into it," said Mr. Coustouris, "it could take four hours with a sledge hammer."

Motorcycles are most feasible for the box. Jim Patterson, sales manager of the company, said, but he said a family in an apartment building could buy the box to lock their bicycles outside to avoid carrying them inside.

"We can foresee the possibility of having a box in a shopping centre," he said. "Shoppers could lock their bikes, motorcycles or purchases and put money in a meter.

The box goes on wheels and can be used as a trailer.

HIGH

Mr. Patterson said a motivating reason for the invention is the high cost of insurance for motorcycles. He said the company researched police and insurance group statistics and found that an average of one set of three motorcycles is stolen or damaged.

"Motorcycle insurance is a losing offer," said Mr. Patterson. "It just doesn't pay anymore to insure the bikes."

The company produces car bodies and sailboats but now plans to concentrate primarily on the cyclebox, said Mr. Patterson. He said the firm is ready to produce 10 to 20 boxes a day if demanded.

Currently, the only cycleboxes produced are used for demonstrations to marketing companies interested in buying them.

Giving one reason for investing the high security of the cyclebox, Mr. Coustouris said, "It makes me so mad when kids just throw a bike or deliberately damage a motorcycle for no reason."

He said the future bike thief would have to be industrious and be armed with a stick of dynamite to break into the cyclebox.

Vicarage Guest House

CORNWALL, England (CP) — Rev. John Harper and his family are "camping out" in their vicarage garden for the summer because they have gone into the tourist business. They are letting out their four bedrooms for bed, breakfast and dinner. Harper waits at table and his wife Romola does the cooking. "I don't wear my clerical collar when serving meals," said the vicar.

What if your pay cheque was late?

Your Intelligencer carrier is a young, independent businessman; he doesn't receive a pay cheque. His profit is the difference between the wholesale cost of his newspapers and the amount collected from his customers. Most subscribers pay their carriers on the first call. But some people say "come back later"... and the carrier's profit is put off. It's like asking you to come back two or three times for your pay cheque.

For many of us this would be a calamity. Of course, you want to be paid promptly. All of us do. The boy or girl who delivers your Intelligencer will appreciate being paid promptly.

Free Trade Helps Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Free trade would produce a gain of at least five per cent in the total value of national wealth, the Economic Council says in a special report urging government movement toward that goal.

Canadians are poorer because of the protection given the economy from foreign competition it says, adding that wages in some highly protected industries might fall under a free trade arrangement.

Agriculture and energy present two special problems, but the report says liberalisation should begin as soon as possible on farm products although it would exclude crude oil and natural gas — at least initially—from any free trade agreement.

Such an agreement, which would have to include the United States, should be undertaken gradually to avoid economic dislocation.

Hills Freed Today

KAMPALA (AP) — British lecturer Denis Hills, who was sentenced to death for calling Ugandan President Idi Amin a village tyrant, was freed by Amin today after the president met with British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan.

Callaghan flew more than an hour with Amin in Kampala, then drove with Hills to Entebbe airport, Lake Victoria's 30 miles away, where a Royal Air Force plane took them back to London.

Hills, 61, a longtime resident of Uganda who is reported to be suffering from cancer, is a British radio reporter after his release.

"I'm feeling very well. I'm very happy indeed."

Hills was arrested April 1 and convicted by a military court of treason for remarks about Uganda's military president in an unpublished manuscript.

Amin announced that Hills would die before a firing squad July 4 but postponed the execution. He fixed the death sentence last week after President Mobutu of Zaire intervened on the Britons behalf.

Amin said Hills and the other 700 British subjects still living in Uganda are free. He threatened earlier, but later said the Britons were welcome to stay and help develop the former British colony.

Drapeau Still Optimistic

Olympics to Pay Way

QUEBEC (CP) — Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau said Wednesday that the 1976 Olympics can still be self-financing despite the latest estimates showing costs should exceed revenues by at least $221 million.

Mr. Drapeau told the municipal affairs standing committee in the national assembly that the main obstacle to self-financing of the Games is the negative attitude of those who have already accepted that there will be a deficit.

Marcel Leger of Lafontaine predicted a $400-million deficit and said the public must be informed now of the burden it will have to bear.

Revised cost estimates presented to the committee by Games organizers Wednesday showed the total costs, originally estimated at $310 million, now are set at $714.8 million.

The new total represents a sizable increase over figures filed with the committee last January. The total price tag at the time was estimated at $600 million and Mr. Drapeau had promised to try to trim the figure down to $600 million.

Revenue estimates have also increased from last January's figures, estimated outlook at $493 million to a new maximum of $493 million.

Mayor Drapeau and his assistants hastened to point out that the Olympics project was not the only one to see its cost skyrocket. The CN tower in Toronto has soared from original estimates of $8 million to an expected total cost of $70 million, consulting engineer Berard Lamarre said.

As the hearings began in Quebec City, first reports began arriving from Ottawa that the federal government has decided to abandon a project to mint commemorative gold coins for the Olympics.

Tables submitted to the com-

Cabinet to Make Wage Restraints

LONDON (Reuter) — The British media today approve a furn wage restraint policy in general outlines, and will almost certainly back it by law despite opposition from unions.

Union leaders approved a voluntary policy. By a 194-11 vote Wednesday, the general council of the Trades Union Congress supported a wage increase limit of $12.20 a week.

Most political observers agreed that the narrow majority would not be enough to convince the government that it could rely on the trade unions' voluntary co-operation.

They believed the cabinet meeting would insist on including legal powers to contribute to the wage policy.

But ministers were expected to accept the $12.20 limit on pay increases, rather than the 6 per-cent barrier which the government said last week it would enforce. The $12.20 limit is roughly 6 per cent of the present average weekly wage.

After cabinet approval, the wage restraint measures will be announced Friday by Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey.

If the government does decide on legal backing, it will face tough opposition from the left wing of the governing Labor party.

But in the week since it announced it would restrict wages, much has gone well for the government.

France Expels Cubans

PARIS (Reuter) — Three Cubans diplomats have been ordered to leave France in connection with the "Carlos affair" in which two French Security Service men were shot to death two weeks ago.

The interior ministry, which announced the move, did not name the diplomats.

Police in France, Britain and several other countries are searching for a South American guerrilla called Ilich Ramirez Sanchez, alias Carlos Martinez, in connection with the killings at a Paris apartment.

The interior ministry did not give specific reasons for the expulsions, but added in a communique that large-scale police operations aimed today in Paris, the provincial city of Lyons and the mountainous Savoy region.

Rear-end Brakemen Keep Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — The union representing crews on CN and CP freight trains has won at least a temporary delay in the companies' plan to eliminate the position of rear-end brakeman.

The right to eliminate the rear brakeman, leaving only a conductor at the end of freights, was granted in an arbitration award made in January by a retired judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, Emmett Hall.

The United Transportation Union, facing the possibility of the loss of 3,000 jobs for members, challenged the ruling in the Federal Court if Appeal.

George McDevell, a vice-president of the union, said the companies would take issue with the court's reasoning and raise the issue again.

Sally Ann Camp Helps Alcoholics

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

AMELIASBURGH — If a current program now underway at the Salvation Army summer camp on Roblin Lake here proves successful it could become an annual event.

Now enjoying a week's holiday at the camp are 30 persons and more than 60 participants in the Army's evangelical project from Toronto.

Harbor light is the Salvationist rehabilitation program for alcoholics.

Since their arrival last Friday — some with families — the Harborlighters have been involved in a program that involved in a program with a spiritual study and lectures, under Major Austin Miller, who heads the project. Swimming, boating and fishing have been available to the Toronto visitors.

The camp provides serenity and peaceful surroundings for them, said Capt. John Carew, camp director and recently appointed youth director with the Army's mid-Ontario division in Belleville.

The key things are the relaxing atmosphere combined with the spiritual emphasis of the program, he said.

The project is a sequel to a first attempt last year to get the Harborlighters into such surroundings, he said. At that time they were taken to a Salvation Army camp about 60 miles north of Orillia and close to Northern Ontario.

But the Roblin Lake facility is much closer to Toronto.

Olympic Gold Coin Held Up

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill authorizing the minting of Olympic gold coins to assist the financing the minting of Olympics could have been passed "in just a matter of two nerve hours in the House," Progressive Conservative Otto Jelinek said Wednesday.

It was just "childish game" Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey was playing by abandoning plans to mint the coin, the MP representing Toronto High Park-Humber Valley said.

Mr. Mackasey told reporters Wednesday that opposition critics had held up the bill both in committee last week and in the Commons Tuesday.

Kidnappers Extend Deadline

BEIRUT (AP) — A note received by a news agency said today that the kidnappers of a United States Army colonel have decided on a 72-hour extension of their deadline to kill him if certain demands are not met by the U.S. government.

The note was sent to the office here of the French agency Agence France-Presse.

New York Repeals Drug Law

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state Senate voted Wednesday to repeal a key section of one of the toughest anti-drug laws in the United States.

The bill would remove a plea bargaining ban and thus allow many drug offenders to escape mandatory life sentences required by the law, passed in 1973 with the backing of former governor Nelson Rockefeller.

The bill was approved in the Senate without debate and assembly approval was expected.

The rate of drug-related convictions has declined under the present law and opponents complained it was clogging the courts by making more jury trials necessary.

Radicals Worry Legion

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Legion wants assurance that "pro-Soviet instructors are not filling students' heads with "distorted views of view or undesirable propaganda."

In a brief to the special parliamentary immigration committee, the legion also said draft dodgers should not be allowed in Canada because they have "demonstrated disloyalty to their country."

While the legion called for "a highly-restrictive immigration policy," Carleton University professor Harvey Lithwick said further economic growth will depend, to a large extent, on immigration.

Food Board Challenges Egg Limit

OTTAWA (CP) — Accusing Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan of using threats and coercion in his dealings with the provinces, the Food Prices Review Board today challenged the government to account for its decision to limit the import of eggs from the United States.

In a statement, the board says import restrictions create a monopoly situation for Canadian producers that can be expected to drive up egg prices.

The board also asked if the government intends to "wink the minister of agriculture's use of coercion in threatening Alberta and New Brunswick" if they adopt also a national egg marketing agreement.

Thurlow Donates To Arena

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

Thurlow Township council has passed a resolution to give almost $14,000 to the Stirling arena building fund.

The council voted Wednesday to accept the recommendation of the town's recreation committee and allocate $3,630 yearly in budget for the next four years.

The money will be given to Stirling for the $400,000 arena only if two conditions are met.

Construction of the arena must begin in 1976 and the decision is subject to approval by future councils.

Almost $141,000 has been raised so far from local municipalities including a $75,000 provincial grant.

Construction in the new facility may begin as early as this fall if the project qualifies for a Local Initiative Project grant which must be exercised during the winter months.

"If not, we hope we can begin work next spring," said Jack Bluth, member of the fund raising committee, "but we'll keep plugging along trying to raise money."

Hey Mac, Start the Furnace!

Personnel employed at a branch of the Department of Social Affairs in Quebec City go about their duties in swimwear Tuesday to protest what they fell were high temperatures inside the building. They said they would continue to work in like attire until an air conditioner is installed.

Westinghouse
heat pump system can now be added to most gas, oil and electric furnaces
Here's how it works:
SUMMER
In hot weather, the Westinghouse Hi/Re/Li Heat Pump removes warm, muggy inside air to the outdoors- leaving your home cool and comfortable.
WINTER
In cool weather, the Westinghouse Hi/Re/Li Heat Pump absorbs available heat from outside air and transfers it into your home.
In colder weather, your furnace supplements the Westinghouse Hi/Re/Li Heat Pump to keep your home warm and comfortable.
If you are building a new home or replacing your present furnace, consider an all-electric Westinghouse Hi/Re/Li Heat Pump System. You'll enjoy year round home comfort and be ready for tomorrow's energy crisis.

Work Under Way On Medical Centre

TRENTON — Tenders for construction of a medical arts centre at King and Elgin Sts. were called today and a start on the three-story building now is expected by early September, a spokesman for the company erecting the structure said Wednesday.

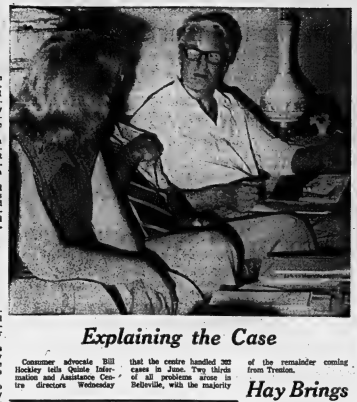
Estimates previously obtained from outside sources indicate the cost of the building might range between $500,000 and $600,000. The spokesman however, declined to reveal an estimated cost.

He said completion of the centre is expected six months after contruction starts.

As a major tenant, it will house a Shoppers Drug Mart on the ground-level. On the two upper floors, approximately 10 suites for medical staff, a bio-chemical laboratory and facilities for x-ray equipment will be made available.

The centre planned for the site isascaledownversion ofin is a scaled down version of an original four or five-story structure. Present plans call for the possible addition of a fourth storey at a later date.

A construction start had been expected in March this year, but a spokesman said in January the number of vacant offices in Trenton and economic conditions had delayed a start.



Township Still Firm On Payment for Road

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

AMELIASBURG — Ameliasburg Township council refuses to assume responsibility for a developer's "goal" at the expense of the taxpayer says Stan Goodfellow, chairman of the township committee, referring to controversy over the road in Quinte Shores sub-division.

A delegation representing approximately 50 home and cottage owners residing in the sub-division on Weller's Bay met with township councillors Tuesday night to seek maintenance for the one-mile road leading to their doors.

Council does not plan to take over the road until it conforms with township standards, a provision stated earlier in agreements with developers involved with the sub-division, Councillor Goodfellow said Wednesday, the delegation claimed a "snow job" from the township but he stressed the problem with the road relates to the developer.

He observed council has suggested a road could be built for approximately $14,000 at a cost of about $250 per lot and costs billed under Local Improvement Act regulations. This would permit construction of a satisfactory road at no burden to other taxpayers.

"They have made their bed and now they must lie in it," commented councillor Goodfellow, referring to the residents of Quinte Shores.

He said under Local Improvement the road could be upgraded to township standards "in a one shot deal".

Councillor Goodfellow noted the township has offered to begin road improvements this fall with a target date for completion in the spring of 1976.

He expressed concern for and delays in the project as the inflation factor could put the cost of the work "out of sight" for Quinte Shores residents.

Township councillors have viewed the road during inspections and have agreed to take it over when it meets township standards.

Councillor Goodfellow suggested the delegation to council on Tuesday night was "grasping at straws" in its bid to have the township assume responsibility for road improvement.

"We are giving them a piece of iron," he added, referring to the proposal for sub-division residents to pay $250 per lot to finance the road's construction.

Some Firms Bilking Students Centre Says

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — It is a "common thing" for students working summers to not to get what they are legally entitled to in wages and benefits under Employment Standards Act provisions, Bill Hockley said Wednesday.

The civic activist with the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre in Belleville said some employers are not keeping proper work records for students they hire.

He said some fire students five to nine weeks after they are taken on and then hire another student to take the first ones places.

The strategem is used to avoid book-keeping necessary for employer and student payment of such items as unemployment insurance premiums.

Mr. Hockley said the Belleville centre has delt with 11 Employment Standards Act violations in June. As the summer progresses, he expects to see more complaints by students.

Frequently, he said, students aren't getting the minimum wages provided for in the act.

In an effort to end such abuses, the Belleville centre may be undertaking an in-school program next year to inform students of their rights under the act, he said.

Mr. Hockley said the Hastings Board of Education is going to consider the group's involvement prior to summer holidays when students begin looking for work.

Explaining the Case

Consumer advocate Bill Hockley tells Quinte Information and Assistance Centre directors Wednesday that the centre handled 202 cases in June. Two thirds of all problems arose in Belleville, with the majority of the remainder coming from Trenton.

District at a Glance

Patrick Steps Down

FRANKFORD — Frankford councillor Robert Patrick has resigned from village council and has reportedly cited health reasons for his action. No decision has been made by council in its future method of replacing the councillor.

Larry Joins Firm

TRENTON —Former town clerk. O. W. Larry has joined the sales staff of Quinte Transport Ltd. Mr. Larry, who has served Trenton for 27 years, retired late last year and his position was taken over by present clerk Aubrie Sharp.

4-H Plans Tour

BRIGHTON — Northumberland County 4-H Club members will visit the Ontario Hydro Lennox Generating Station at Bath July 15 as part of an annual club tour. Fort Henry and Frontenac owns, a Kingston raceway, will also be visited.

County Without Power

PICTON — A power blackout was experienced in Prince Edward County Wednesday afternoon through malfunction of the regulator on a feeder line at Rossmore

The town of Picton and outlying communities were without electricity for about three-quarters of an hour. The blackout occurred at approximately 12:40 p.m.

More Patrols Sought

PICTON — The Prince Edward County Board of Education has requested Picton town council to assist in providing greater police patrol on Princess Street in front of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute. A letter from business administrator E. A. Sherit recently informed council that traffic conditions near the school are "deteriorating". A motion to forward the trustees' letter to the police commission was carried.

Hay Brings Complaint

PICTON — An in-town hay field on Main Street West this week prompted complaints from a Picton woman who considers it town council's job to eliminate such eyesores automatically each summer.

In a letter to council, Mrs. Brian York observed the hay field is adjacent to the rear of her property and constitutes a fire hazard as well as a breeding ground for insects.

"Living in the town of Picton should have its advantages but having a situation like this takes care of is apparently not one of them," stated Mrs. York

She added, "I must write to council each year to get action on something which I consider the fire chief should take care of automatically."

Picton reeve Larry Richardson told council he has inspected the field in question and noted "something should be done as it detracts from the area".

Town clerk Andrew Jarvis observed the land is owned by an out-of-town resident. Recently the tall grass in the field was cut but no work was done near the house standing on this site.

Council voted to ask fire chief Leonard Tripp to take action to ensure the lot is cleared.

Short-sighted Policies of Governments Hamper Search for New Oil Resources

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs
Analyst
Thomson News Service

There must be something unduly complicated: The bulk about the oil market that sends the blood rushing to the heads of politicians and makes them do strange things.

The world oil problem is not simple.

The job of getting that oil from beneath the earth's surface and into your furnace or your car's gasoline tank takes expertise and capital on a big scale—more than can be marshalled to develop all of the known deposits.

The capital must come from profits—and so must the money that will attract the skilled people needed to do the job.

But politicians, in Ottawa and the major provincial capitals, evidently care little about the tiny-to-zero task of developing new deposits of oil.

The policies of Ontario's Premier William Davis, in freezing gasoline and heating-oil prices until Oct. 1, almost seems to imply that the world will be coming to an end on that date.

If it were, the price freeze would be a welcome move. Consumers could live off known supplies until then, and there would be no need to go on keeping the pipelines full year after year.

But assuming that life is to go on and that no miracle substitute for petroleum-based energy is likely to be discovered by the end of September, an arbitrary move such as Ontario's price freeze can be self-defeating.

Since the beginning of July, oil refiners have been forced to hurried low crude oil. Premier Davis has decreed that they must sell refined products in Ontario, at least—at the price they charged when they were paying $6.50 for their raw material.

Ontario's consumers thus get a short-range advantage—lasting, perhaps, until the next provincial election. But the oil industry is denied the financial return that it needs in orders to keep up its exploration and development activities.

Ontario is not alone in taking a short-sighted view of oil. Our federal government, as well as Alberta and Saskatchewan, have drastically increased their take from oil production, and put little back in the form of assistance to exploration activities.

Nor is short-sightedness a failing of Canadian politicians. The British treasury skims off the lion's share of North Sea oil production revenues, to such an extent that production beyond 1985 appears doubtful.

Punishing the oil industry for its past sins of profiteering may give us some momentary satisfaction.

But it could be a form of self-punishment when the only defence against the oil cartel is to develop high-cost new reserves.

The oil multinationals have to decide where to allot their lucrocative supply of capital and skilled labor among the potential development sites of the world.

It doesn't make much sense to force them to invest their activities in Canada at a time like this.

Problems of Diet

Canadians are badly fed.

Not badly fed in the sense that we are undernourished.

It's simply that some of us eat too much, and too much of the wrong things. This, coupled with too little exercise, is what leads to too much poundage and worse, the possibility of a heart attack. Obesity is a common problem too.

In the steak houses it's easy to pick the big eaters; clearly, they are regular customers, and at home the diet exhibits a similar degree of overkill. Others, teenagers for example, exist on horrendous diets such as chips and soft drink.

(With them it's not too much, but too little — and of the wrong sort.

Food Prices Review Board chairman Beryl Plumptre had something to say on the subject in Moncton the other day. She says large numbers of Canadians know little about nutrition. Food is merely something to eat.

Mrs. Plumptre believes an average family of four could spend a third less each year on food and still be well fed.

Again, she says: "The chief reason Canadians spend too much on food is that they eat too much of some foods and not enough of others.

Rather than the 40 per cent spent on meat or meat alternatives such as fish, by the average family, Mrs. Plumptre thinks 25 per cent would be satisfactity. At the same time Canadians are spending too little on fruits and vegetables, which currently attract less than 20 cents in every dollar.

Then there's the waste. A California reader wrote to Ann Landers recently concerning an elementary school principal who noticed how much food his students threw out, then wrote to the parents telling them of his observations.

It's much the same in Canada. Mrs. Plumptre describes the cumulative effect of industrialrate food purchases as "staggering." And she points out that taxpayers spent $7 billion every year on health care, of which $1 billion is related to nutrition-related problems.

Federal nutritionists say 50 pounds of sugar annually is an acceptable total for the individual. Compare this with the per capita 100 to 110 pounds consumed every year.

There was a time when Canadians said rude things about the Food Prices Review Board and its chairman. Their image has been improving steadily though, and with information such as this, from which hopefully Canadians will benefit, they age now virtually indispensible.

"We Are Only Up To The Arm Exercises So Far"

Vacation Transport

Almost as common as Newfie and Polish jokes are the legends that have grown up around a certain European import that has stacked up a lot of miles since its introduction in the postwar era.

In Kingston some months ago university students managed to manhandle one into the branches of a tree a fair distance off the ground.

Here in Belleville The Intelligencer had a picture of one containing a calf and parked outside a veterinarian's building.

Of course there have been numerous student capers involving the stuffing of as many bodies inside the vehicle as possible.

And now, a new angle, observed on Highway 14 just across the bay the other day. A large motor camper with Maryland plates was cruising along with one of these durable little autos in close-up tow. Often motorbikes are taken along, but these visitors had brought their car.

Controls Envisaged for 'Mopeds'

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

One thing can be said for the moped (motor-assisted bicycle). It is not, apparently, the cause of the greater racket on the streets and roads of Canadian cities and towns this summer. That mistake is the product of the increasing numbers of motorcycles on the roads.

The moped, a low-powered bicycle with a motor, does not make all that much noise and, in the opinion of many, offers a valuable alternative to the gas-eating car or the 10-speed leg-powered bike.

It arrived on the scene with such surprising force that it caused a certain amount of confusion at Queen's Park, now acknowledged by Transportation Minister John Rhodes. There is now a proposal for tighter controls following a confession earlier this month that legislation introduced in February was inadequate.

The new legislation will require registration of mopeds and the certification by dealers that they will not exceed 30 miles an hour. There will also, probably, be a requirement for operators to be 16 years old where formerly 14-year-olds were allowed to operate mopeds. And, as well, there are recommendations that drivers wear helmets.

The latter is in the category of advice to motorists to wear seat belts, so will hardly be taken seriously. Otherwise, the government is at least moving to acknowledge that the moped is a somewhat different kind of machine requiring its own regulatory legislation.

Time alone will tell if it becomes a regular fixture and relatively safe and easy-to-operate alternative for large numbers of motorists, if the oil crunch comes, however, it should exert a growing appeal and become a much more common form of transport.

Liverpool Daily Post

The gratuitous thuggery practised in the name of sport during the recent Australia vs England Rugby Union match will have shocked and dismayed millions who saw the scenes of unbridled violence on television.

It is welcome news therefore that the English authorities have warned the Australians that they will not be welcome here on their autumn tour unless their over-aggressive approach is eradicated.

But British Rugby should set its own house in order. Let it not be forgotten that it was an international team from these isles which coined the chilling phrase: "Get your retaliation in first" — and implemented that philosophy.

PCs Regaining Strength But Election Should Be Tight

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The report has now been released on the Toronto Star's special series of election surveys and it confirmed what pretty well everyone has felt.

Its finding is that the Davis government has been building its way back from its obvious low of last winter while the Liberals have been dropping from their artificial high.

Even if one discounts the efficiency of polls, and this is an easy exercise, few will discount these findings. The physical signs that Davis must have been too sensitively present to we observers who take our sounding through our spirits and our smuch at Queen's Park.

The government has obviously been improving while the Liberals have been dropping.

Which, at the same time, doesn't automatically mean that the Davis government will be returned.

First of all, of course, even while the government has been gaining it has still been running second to the Liberals

The gap has narrowed but it is still there and while most observers give the PC's the best chance the fact is that the record doesn't show this.

On the record, of the polls they are correct.

Then in an election which is running as close as this one is there are any number of possibilities.

For instance if the north should switch solidly for any party it could make a sharp difference.

If the NDP should do well in the cities it could have dramatic influence on the final results, no matter what polls say.

Then there is the matter of candidates.

If the Liberals come up with some good ones, which they have been desperately trying to do, the impact could be powerful.

At the same time the PC's have two Roman Catholic priests running for them. What will this mean?

In fact the safest speculation — it seems to be all we make about this election is that it is going to be an interesting one right down to the wire.

Boston Poaches Telephone Invention from Canada

Ottawa Journal

At a Holy Cross Alumni dinner in 1919, the following toast was proposed:

And this is good old Boston,
The home of the bean and the cod,
Where the Lowells talk to the Cabots
And the Cabots talk only to God.

If the A.T. and T. claim is taken seriously, perhaps Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone in Boston to link the Cabots by telephone with a celestial switchboard.

The Canadian company, rightly protests that Bell devised and talked on a telephone first in Brantford, Ont., in 1874, two years before the event is claimed to have occurred in Boston. But A. T. and T. persists in planning to publish its fiction on the covers of its 1976 telephone directories.

Plainly, stronger countermeasures are called for.

We suggest that Bell Canada directories commemorate the event of the first crock of beans, yummy with pork and molasses, being served in Brantford in 1874; of the first loaf of brown bread baked in Ottawa in 1875; of the first bowl of clam chowder being dispensed in Halifax in 1876. Nor is the old claim of "banned in Boston" inviolate; the assertion might be made that our Customs Department, in the 1920s and 1930s banned more books — not just for one year, but all of Canada — than ever did Boston. On this issue, we have only begun to fight.

Axe Decends on Library

The Globe and Mail

People who use the Toronto Public Library's library on wheels, or at the library on Sunday or during the evening, may soon be out of luck.

City Council has taken the axe to the library budget for the third time this year, this time to the tune of $100,000. In two previous cuts, Council removed first $465,000 and then $75,000 from the library's operating budget of almost $7-million. The result of the third cut is if it is not withdrawn — will be a cutback in service.

Cutting non-essentials is one thing but Sunday and evening hours are anything but frill, to be lopped off whenever the city fathers need a quick $100,000. A library system which provides only nine-to-five service is cheating many others of access to one of the community's most valuable assets.

The public library long ago ceased to be just a place to find light reading. It is a vital part of the continuing education system. In a less formal university extension work, high school night courses, apprenticeships, in-plant-training courses or personal instructional programs the library is an irreplaceable reference source.

No other part of the city's vast educational system had been subjected to three budget cuts in one year, why should the library?

Country Littering

Owen Sound Sun-Times

Urban littering is bad enough, but when it spreads to rural areas, it is serious.

There is often a tendency to drive into the country and dump things that you don't want left around the house.

And there are rural people who can get just as sloppy with their littering habits as city people.

Trouble is, once you start messing up the open land, you destroy one of the last hopes to keep pollution under control.

Littering is a lousy habit, whether it be tossing a gum wrapper on a city street, or a pile of old wood on a country road.

LETTERS

Capital Punishment Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

It's about time the MPs in Ottawa mustered up the ambition to reinstate the death sentence in Canada. They have done nothing but procrastinate and delay any decision on it since 1961. I am all for the prison guards walking off their jobs until the federal government brings back capital punishment. Unless a man is insane or benefits these brave men are standing on the gallows for one of life or death — murder or respect.

Like the prisoner in Quebec showed a criminal has nothing to fear today. He can kill anyone in the country and know, that at worst he will have to spend a few years behind upholstered bars.

Criminals must be conditioned to feel that killing anyone is an inexcusable crime and the only way to do that is to be consistent in the sentencing and punishment. If every murderer is given the same sentence — death, for no matter who the victim is, I think that the thought of murder would not enter so many minds.

I would like to rob a bank to have some money to cash but it has been ingrained in me that it would always be caught and I thought my prison is enough to keep my respect for the law. If murderers were beheaded or electrocuted consistently, I think that most criminals would put a big black on the thought of killing. We have already seen that most murderers and criminals are afraid of prison, so there must be some greater fear exposed to them. Nobody likes to die, but if criminals have no feelings toward those why they kill, why should the government have any feelings toward the killers?

For an issue such as this, there should be a national plebiscite now (we have put it off long enough) and a plebiscite about every 10 years if we still have second thoughts.

T. SVOBODA,

The Intelligencer:

In the diary dates I read on the front page of The Intelligencer was the following: "Kings Rally Here".

A like parade has not been held since 1958. Why do we need one in 1975? Have we with us a second Adolf Hitler or Northern Ireland?

Are we that ignorant and foolish enough to keep the scabs of a 300-year-old fire burning in that land, must we kindle sparks here?

Hydro Costs Worry Council

MARMORA — Marmora Village Council has concurred with a resolution passed by the Association of Municipalities of Ontario (AMO) that the municipalities of Ontario register their concern with Ontario Hydro and the provincial government regarding the excessive rates projected for hydro customers in the province.

The resolution also calls for the municipalities to urge the consumers in their jurisdiction to register their concern with Ontario Hydro, the minister of energy and their local MPP.

Ontario Hydro in proposing rate increases amounting to 30 per cent for municipal customers in 1976 followed by further increases of 25 per cent in 1977 and 20 per cent in 1978, for a cumulative increase totalling 95 per cent over the three-year span. The proposed increases are blended to generate $14 billion for Ontario Hydro capital expansion.

The AMO letter stated while such a large expansion may be necessary, it is incumbent upon Ontario Hydro to thoroughly justify their plans before an Ontario Energy Board hearing. The effect of those costs will be to double hydro rates for municipal customers, thus adding substantially to the inflationary spiral, AMO pointed out.

Coun. Gordon Bennett commented he couldn't understand why Ontario Hydro needed such a large amount for capital expenditure for generally the new users who benefit from such expansion would pay for it.

Council indicated it doubted if endorsing the resolution would do any good but decided to add Marmora's name to the list of objectors.

Heavy Trash Rejected

MARMORA — Marmora and Lake Townships will not provide a special garbage collection for the pickup of old refrigerators and stoves.

The request was made by contractor George Kingsley who said he had been asked to pick up such items and said he felt he should have extra pay for doing so.

People should look after carting such items to the disposal site, therefore, the members of council decreed.

Deputy reeve John Wilkes reported a case where human waste had been deposited for collection and urged council to take action immediately to curb such a practice. It was decided that Clerk Mabell Gawley should prepare a by-law defining collectable domestic waste. The by-law will be published and any contravention would be subject to a fine.

North Beach Lovely

Located just south of Consecon in Prince Edward County, North Beach Provincial Park and its 75 acres of sand dunes caters to visitors from a 300-mile radius. Such as this blanket-clad girl on a thoughtful stroll along the 1½ mile of sandy beach. The park is situated 1.4 miles west of Highway 33 occupying a 60-foot wide baymouth sandbar with beaches on both sides.

Hitch-hikers Find Hastings Friendly Part of Province

MARMORA — Two young men from Cranbrook, B.C. spent a couple of days in the Marmora area recently while enroute to the east coast on a cross-Canada hitch-hiking tour.

Darcy Staples, 20 and Robert Clinton, 21, pitched their tent at Glen-Allan Tourist Resort Thursday and found everyone there so friendly they decided to stay a couple of days before resuming their trek east.

The two lads left Cranbrook on May 18 with $1,000 between them. Food and camping fees have been their major expense. They said they aren't concerned their funds are down to $200 now because they feel they can find work if necessary.

When they reach Quebec, the said they hope to find a former school friend, now living near Montreal.

They had no trouble getting rides, they said, and people were wonderful to them. One man took them to his home overnight, gave them breakfast and then drove them back to the highway so they could get another ride.

When asked if they had any unpleasant experiences to relate, they said they spent a sleepless night at a Salvation Army hostel in Thunder Bay with a lot of rough characters.

They carry back packs weighing 35 lbs. containing their tent, sleeping bags, change of clothes and a few utensils. They got one lend by leaving it on the back of a truck and had it buy another.

Both of them said they were tired of going to school and want to take a couple of years off before returning to take a technical course of some kind. They hope to get a job in Edmonton on their return and save enough money to go to Europe next summer.

Cranbrook is quite a lumbering centre, they said. It has a population of 13,000 and lies in the Kootney valley between the Selkirk Mountains and the Rocky Mountains. They said their families were reluctant for them to make the trip at first but have been encouraged by frequent post cards from the two young men that the trip has gone well. Darcy said he met his grandmother in Petrolia for the first time when they arrived in Ontario.

Marmora Contributes $400 To Legion Park Program

MARMORA — A donation of $400 to the Marmora Recreation Committee towards the expenses of operating the recreation program at Legion Park was authorized by Marmora and Lake Townships Council meeting recently.

The request for a contribution was presented by Coun. Ted Booker at last month's meeting but was held in abeyance because council felt they didn't have enough information on the recreation committee's budget needs.

A notice in the local paper that swimming lessons would cost township children $6 each and Marmora Village children $8 because the township lack of financial support aroused a number of residents and a petition was circulated.

The petition was presented by Bob Sanderson who urged that council act quickly on the matter. Mr. Sanderson said it was his understanding that $5 per cent of the children in last year's program were from the township.

Hastings Highlights

Oil Sciences Complaint

MARMORA —One of the first jobs the road maintenance men should get busy at after their week's holiday, is spraying for dust control, the Marmora and Lake Township Council has agreed. A letter from Mrs. Clayton Tompkins asking for some type of oil treatment for a stretch of Moira Street was only one of the complaints the members of council have been receiving because of dry weather.

Cameron Spectator

MARMORA — As part of her research on the social, economic and political study of the Marmora area, Ms. Catherine Cameron was a guest speaker at the recent meeting one afternoon of Marmora and Lake Township Council.

Cottage Protest

ARMORA — The cottage owners at Dickie Lake in Lake Township are protesting Phase three of a development program proposed by Charlotte Properties Ltd. of Peterborough, a letter from one of the owners, Prof. Pat White, has informed Marmora and Lake Township Council. The matter is before the Hastings County Planning Committee.

Taxes Collected

MARMORA — Sixty percent of 1975 taxes amounting to $130,964 have been collected as of June 30, Clerk-Treasurer Mabell Gawley reported at the recent Marmora and Lake Township Council meeting.

Payments of $40,980 to the Hastings County Board of Education and $6,437 to the separate school board have been made, Mrs. Gawley said, the payments being half of the levy for 1975.

Wolf Bounty Paid

MARMORA — Payment of the $25 wolf bounty to Jim Cuddy was authorized by Marmora and Lake Townships Council even though Mr. Cuddy neither shot or trapped the animal but found it dead on a road, a victim of a car accident presumably. Council approved the bounty when it was pointed out by Coun. Joe McGrath that council had not specified the bounty was contingent on the wolf being shot or trapped. Some

Annexation Proceeding

MARMORA — Marmora Village Council has received from the Ontario Municipal Board that approval by Marmora and Lake Township is not necessary in order for the village to annex the properties on south Maloney St., and the property owned by Bob Drummond which is proposed to develop as a subdivision.

Andre Philpott, the village's legal advisor, has advised the signatures of all the residents involved is required and offered to complete this portion of the annexation procedure if Clerk William Shanon would supply him with a list of names, which he (Mr. Shannon) said he would do.

Safety Check Removes Faulty Cars from Road

The annual safety check for faulty vehicles is under way in Belleville.

A mobile team from the transportation and communications ministry now is at work at the Quinte Exhibition grounds — scrutinizing vehicles sent by city police.

The check runs through to Friday.

But by Tuesday, police had reported a number of automobiles had been found mechanically unsound.

The sequel to such a discovery: Licence plates are removed on the spot, and the driver's ownership slamped. The vehicle — which has to be towed away — then must be corrected as ordered and a mechanic's certificate of safety issued. That document entitles the driver to have new licence plates issued free at the vehicle licence bureau in the city.

On Tuesday cars being checked were those ordered by police to report for a safety sounding — the ministry team arrived, said a police official.

But police may also order any automobile they deem mechanically faulty off the street for a checkover.

CP News Roundup

Nader Says Mounties Snooping

WASHINGTON (CP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader wants to know whether the RCMP has been snooping into the mail of United States citizens—and he's asking Prime Minister Trudeau to come up with the answers.

In a letter to the Canadian prime minister, in which he makes a request that Trudeau conduct an inquiry into the possibility, Nader makes reference to the U.S. Freedom of Information Act as "a statute which is commended to your attention for possible emulation in Canada."

Nader made his letter, dated July 9, public late Wednesday.

In it, he refers to "disturbing disclosures about the scope of governmental invasion of the privacy of the mail in the U.S."

"Mail has been intercepted before leaving and re-entering the country (the U.S.) to and from certain areas abroad by the CIA (Central Intelligence Agency), with or without the knowledge of the U.S. postal service," he wrote.

Chemical Treatments

TORONTO (CP) — A United States doctor told the Canadian environmental hearing board Wednesday that many Chicago children are given harsh chemicals to purge lead from their blood.

Shocking Act

TORONTO (CP) - To issue entry to Canada to the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) is a "shocking and disgraceful political act," Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said Wednesday. The PLO was an organization avowed to international terrorism and "represents only a fanatical urge to achieve by violence what the world would wish to achieve by negotiation."

Won't Run

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis said Wednesday that he will not be a candidate for the federal leadership of the Progressive Conservative party when Robert Stanfield steps down. "I'm very involved with government here," Mr. Davis said in an interview.

Gas Sparks Fumers

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's consumer protection bureau has received 80 calls about the price of gasoline since the provincial government put a temporary freeze on June 1st, bureau registrar Dor Goudy said Wednesday. He said most calls were from motorists who wanted to know about the freeze.

Suggests Controls

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Pare, president of Imasco Ltd., a conglomerate with tobacco and food interests, suggested Wednesday that businesses should institute their own voluntary price and wage guidelines, but added that government controls are totally unacceptable.

Production Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Crude oil production by the Arabian American Oil Co. (Aramco) the world's largest petroleum producer, dropped in June follow ing a rise in May, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Accept Contract

QUEBEC (CP) — The 300 office and production employees at the French-language daily Le Soleil have voted to ratify a new contract, under which the 182 production employees would receive a total increase of $105 weekly spread over the next three years, making salaries by $220 from $215.

Women Eligible

REGINA (CP) — Women of the Mennonite Brethren Church now are eligible to be elected as delegates to conferences and to most church and conference boards and committees, according to a resolution passed Tuesday at the annual Conference of Canadian Mennonite Brethren Churches.

Inquiry Continues

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Farris inquiry into hostage-taking at the British Columbia penitentiary continued Wednesday to sit in camera. Three commissioners headed by Chief Justice John Farris of the B.C. Court of Appeal are investigating the June 9 incident in which three prisoners armed with knives held 15 employees hostage for 11 hours.

Extends Loan

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian international development agency (CIDA) will lend Barbados $2.1 million for purchase of water supply equipment, CIDA announced Wednesday.

Paints Portrait

TORONTO (CP) — A portrait of John Robarts, Ontario's 17th premier, was unveiled in the halls of Queen's Park Wednesday.

Three years in the making, the four-by six foot portrait in egg tempera on gesso panel, is a departure from the somewhat somber paintings of his predecessors which hang outside the cabinet office.

Deplores Waste

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said Wednesday he deplores the waste of fish by Canadian fishing boats whose catches exceed international quotas.

But it is difficult to do anything about it, he said in the Commons.

Abandons Coins

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has abandoned plans to mint a special gold coin for the 1976 Olympics because an authorizing bill cannot be approved in time, Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey said Wednesday.

Broadbent Passes Protest Chance

OTTAWA (CP) — Ed Broadbent promised after winning the New Democratic party leadership to wage an all-out battle against the new 20 cents-a-gallon federal tax on gasoline.

But he passed up a chance Wednesday to stall the matter on technical grounds.

The tax took effect June 30 but legislation giving formal approval must be passed by Parliament.

The bill covering budget tax changes came up for debate in the Commons Wednesday and was immediately challenged by the Progressive Conservatives on technical grounds. Marcel Lambert (Edmonton West) said the ways and means motion tabled by Mr. Turner in advance of the bill differs from the contents of the bill.

Speaker James Jerome declined to rule immediately on the objection, opening a chance for opposition parties to interrupt the debate and go on to other business until a ruling is made. But Mr. Jerome asked party leaders to let the debate go ahead.

Mr. Broadbent initially shook his head at the suggestion, but changed his mind when the Conservatives said they were willing.

Mr. Jerome is expected to make his ruling today.

The complaint by Mr. Lambert is raised traditionally by opposition critics as a delaying tactic. Parliamentary rules require the government to table ways and means motions in advance of all tax bills.

Mr. Broadbent, elected NDP leader Monday, said the tax will cost motorists $70 to $80 a year on average

Lawyers Expect Long Hearing

OTTAWA (CP) — Lawyers said Wednesday they were worried they will be buried in a blizzard of paper when hearings open this fall on applications to build a natural gas pipeline to the north.

The hearing is expected to be among the longest and most complicated held by the National Energy Board.

Lawyers for parties involved in the proceedings—a total of 86 counting the two applicants and other interested parties—are to requests for written evidence and other documents might lead to a massive accumulation of paper before the hearing ends.

Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd. is seeking permission to build a $7-billion line linking Alaskan and Mackenzie Delta gas to markets while Foothills Pipeline Ltd. of Calgary wants to construct a smaller $4-billion pipeline connecting Delta gas only.

"We'll be snowed under in a virtual avalanche of paper," said John Howard, executive of Alberta Gas Trunk Lines Ltd., after listened particulars to at a pre hearing conference.

Canada, Iran Sign Business Pact

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and Iran signed memorandums of agreement Wednesday covering a record $1.3 billion worth of business and Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said the figure would go to $3 billion or higher.

Mr. Gillespie said about $1 billion of the $1.3 billion in business involved in projects expected to be completed within the next five years, will rest a to Canadian industry.

Some of the projects are joint ventures with Iranians.

He said about a dozen companies are involved as prime contractors. Hundreds and perhaps thousands of other companies would act as suppliers.

Negotiations were in progress with Iranian interests that could add business totalling another $600 million.

Mr. Gillespie said it is believed the $1.3 billion is a record figure for business transacted with a country at one time.

The agreements call for supply of Canadian goods and services for metal production and fabrication, marine services, transportation, urban development and social welfare services.

A partial list of prime contractors involved in the agreements included:

Alcan will provide a complete aluminum smelter operation,

P. S. Ross and Partners management consultants of Toronto will provide proposals for a complete coast guard service.

Farsi Teleprinter Terminals in Montreal which has demonstrated a computer typewriter-telephone system that for the first time will make possible transmission of the farsee script used in Iran.

Canada Wire and Cable Co. is involved in a joint venture worth $30 million with Iranian interests to produce a wire and cable stand.

The Sladler Hunter interests of Montreal reached agreement on provision of another pulp and paper plant—worth $60 million. The interests now are involved in a $300 million pulp and paper project in Iran.

Maloney to Hold Ontario Hearings

TORONTO (CP) — Ombudsman Arthur Maloney says he will conduct hearings across Ontario during his first year in office, asking citizens how he can best fulfil his role.

Mr. Maloney made the comments Wednesday following his presentation to Lt.-Gov. Pauline McGibbon by Premier William Davis.

The Toronto lawyer is expected to be sworn in formally as Ontario's first ombudsman in September.

His staff will be housed in offices to be rented in Queen and Bay streets in downtown Toronto. More than 300 complaints have already piled up at his office.

"I'd like to spend my first year studying the office of ombudsman in other provinces and to tour the province meeting interested groups and people at public hearings," he said.

He would visit other countries that have an ombudsman. "Within less than a year I'd like to draw up a blueprint which will give me the best ombudsman second to none anywhere in the world."

Will be be a white knight expected to rush to the rescue of every disgruntled taxpayer?

"I hope people don't feel the office creates some type of superman."

He said he is pleased with legislation passed by the legislature dealing with his responsibilities, adding "it is workable."

Plutonium Sale Still in Doubt

OTTAWA (CP) — A French denial that plutonium recycling equipment will be sold to South Korea was thrown in doubt Wednesday in the Commons when External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen indicated that the deal is being negotiated.

Telling the House that South Korea does not plan to process spent fuel from a Canadian reactor there, he said:

"The Korean foreign minister has informed us that the proposed facility (plutonium recycling plant), which I understand is to be secured from France, will be on a research scale and designed to establish technical feasibility for the reprocessing of spent fuel."

The comments by Mr. MacEachen were at odds with a denial Tuesday in Ottawa by French Minister Michel Jobert toward that France intends to make the sale.

An external affairs spokesman, asked about the contradiction, said all the department had to go on was reports of the Pontiatowski press conference.

Strike Statistics Still Skyrocketing

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail, painting a bleak labor picture for the remainder of the 1975 season, says there are currently 185 active strikes across Canada involving at least 40,000 workers and the numbers might increase as the weeks go by.

The newspaper says that in Ontario there are currently 73 strikes—31 of which started last month and four last year.

This year will set a record for the number of contracts being negotiated and the number of workers affected, The Globe and Mail says. It also says that many of the most critical negotiations are still to come.

The newspaper says the entire pulp and paper industry in British Columbia might be shut down soon by a locked-out strike in a showdown between the industry and the unions. A similar situation, it says, might develop in Ontario and Manitoba next month between the Canadian Paperworkers Union and Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd.

It says the dispute between the Canadian Union of Postal Workers and the post office might easily lead to a strike in the fall.

Unless in the textile industry are bargaining for 30,000 workers, the newspaper adds, Canmont unions, both in the men's and women's clothing industry, are also due to renegotiate agreements.

On the national scene, Air Canada and the Air Line Flight Attendants Association are trying to work out an agreement and the CBC and its unions have begun bargaining, the newspaper says.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the federal treasury board face another round of negotiations, The Globe and Mail says, adding that bargaining will start in the fall between the Canadian Postmasters and the treasury board.

Tough bargaining, the newspaper says, also lies ahead for the Canadian Union of Public Employees and the Service Employees International Union and hospitals in Ontario.

Housing Movement Active

OTTAWA (CP) — The co-operative housing movement is better than the federal government expected this year—a bright spot in a generally depressing housing scene.

Continuing co-operatives, a fairly new phenomenon in Canada, still capture only a small portion of the housing market but they are consuming federal funds so quickly that Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) officials say the current budget will not be enough.

These officials note the government may decide to bolster this year's $35-million co-operatives budget with some of the extra $300 million promised CMHC by Finance Minister John Turner in his June 23 budget.

Lorne Nicolaire, British Columbia housing minister, strongly criticized the federal budget for co-ops in April, saying British Columbia alone could pick up all the federal money.

Company Offers $25 a Share

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — A Hamilton investment firm has offered more than $35 a share for control of the Canadian-based, but British-controlled, Eddy Match Co. Ltd.

Central Ontario Fund Ltd., a private investment holding company, proposes to buy all of the 290,953 issued and outstanding common shares of Eddy for $35 a share in cash, plus half of a participating class A share of Central Ontario Fund for each common share of Eddy.

The offer is subject to obtaining at least 90 per cent in total of the common shares of Eddy, Central Ontario Fund already holds 19,900 Eddy shares.

As part of the offer, Central Fund Canada Ltd., an allied company of Central Ontario, would purchase all of the Class A shares of Central Ontario Fund at $5 a share on surrender of 90 per cent of the Eddy shares.

It was the second offer for Eddy Match in the last month. Warrington Products Ltd. of Toronto offered to purchase all Eddy shares at $25 a share last month. President Robert Curt of Warrington said the company is proceeding with the offer and will mail the proposal to Eddy shareholders later this month.

Tariffs Raise Consumer Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers are being forced to subsidize manufacturers, based mainly in Quebec and southern Ontario, through protective tariffs raising prices for imports and domestic goods, an Economic Council of Canada study says.

The report, urging movement toward free trade, says tariffs a type of tax that effectively transfer income from other parts of the country to Ontario and Quebec, encouraging most manufacturing activity takes place.

"About 45 per cent of the manufacturing activity in Canada is still protected by nominal (tariff) rates in excess of 10 per cent.

"Of those protected jobs, 40 per cent are found in Ontario, 27 per cent in Quebec, and 14 per cent in all other provinces," the report says.

The "hidden transfer" of money and jobs has long irritated the Atlantic and western provinces, which feel they have been made to pay consistently for the industrialization of central Canada, the council notes.

The report says the Atlantic and western provinces could expect substantial gains from removing tariffs because products of their primary industries would be more in demand. And because of easier access to neighboring markets, particularly the United States, there would be some expansion of secondary manufacturing, it predicts.

Ontario would benefit both as a consumer and a primary producer, but a good deal of industrial reorganization would be necessary, the report says. More manufacturing specialization likely would occur in Ontario, particularly if trade barriers with the United States were removed.

Quebec's primary products sector would benefit from greater demand and a strengthened base suffers the chance for more processing.

But such Quebec-based industries as textiles, shoes and other labor-intensive manufacturing probably would suffer from competing with low-wage developing countries making these same items. However the report says the competition already is increasing, even without free trade.

Air Canada Letters Can't Explain Losses

MONTREAL (CP) — C. I. of Air Canada internal cor... spondence made public Wednesday revealed the airline had difficulties explaining losses sustained by its affiliate, Ventures.

A memorandum from company secretary K. F. Pearmain released to reporters at an inquiry into the airline's financial affairs, said a Feb. 24 meeting of company officials was held to determine whether Air Canada should defend Ventures's losses or disguise them.

The correspondence was released soon after Air Ca... counsel Gordon Henderson told the airline had a $1.134 million loss by Ventures, an air... race-booking charter firm.

The memo said "services" billed to Air Canada under the accounting procedures would not be "worth a fraction" of the proposed $220,000 annual fee by Ventures and a "service agreement" covering these charges would be "nothing but a device to prevent Ventures from showing a loss."

Mr. Henderson said the airline's financial records had "been audited by a responsible firm according to generally-accepted procedures."

Stephen Layden, an accountant commissioned by the inquiry to study the airline's financial statements, testified Wednesday that the Ventures figures were "grossly overstated" and "fairly" incorrect in the Air Canada statement.

Intervener Claims Bell Intimidating Commission

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada is trying to win a rate increase case by intimidating the Canadian transport commission with threats of massive layoffs and reductions in construction programs if its current application is not approved, a private intervener said Wednesday.

Carlyle Gilmour, a Quebec farmer and frequent intervener in Bell rate increase hearings, said the company "has used these threats to intimidate the commission."

"I know they have certainly intimidated me as an intervener," he said.

The commission is hearing the first stage of a two-stage Bell application which would give the company an emergency rate increase of $28 million over the next five months.

Company president A. Jean deGrandpre told the commission Wednesday that Bell would have to lay off several thousand employees between Aug. 1, 1975 and the end of 1976 if the emergency increase was not granted.

ALL IN THE FAMILY/by Isabel Huggan

Unpredictable Killer, Sudden Infant Death

Conversation with a mother whose four-month-old son had died is bound to be a painful, difficult experience.

But how much more heart-breaking, how much harder to find the right thing to say, when the cause of the baby's death is SIDS — Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.

This still-mysterious killer of babies in their first year of life comes silently, without warning, while they sleep. It leaves behind infants who have apparently died peacefully with no struggle or alarm, almost as if they "just simply forgotten to breathe".

And it leaves behind parents stunned by horror and disbelief that their children have been taken so quickly from them. Even worse is the universal reaction of guilt that follows acceptance of the death.

"You can't help feeling guilty," said the young mother I talked to recently. "You keep wondering what you might have done, or not done, and if somehow the death is your fault, even though the doctor and the coroner tell you it's not.

"And it doesn't help to encounter people who seem to turn away from you, as if you were somehow to blame."

That feeling of being at fault haunts parents until they fully realize the nature of SIDS — also called Crib Death, Cot Death and SIDS Syndrome. Unexplained Death. Eventually, they come to know what researchers have discovered: that, so far, there is no known cause, and therefore no possible prediction or prevention.

What is known, are a multitude of factors: It seems to occur more frequently in the winter, although it occurs all through the year. It happens to both sexes, but male infants, and those with a lower birth weight, are at a slightly greater risk. Often, but not always, there may have been a recent viral infection or mild cold.

SIDS is the cause of death for approximately two out of every 1,000 liveborn babies, and most usually around the second or third month.

Sudden death of infants is not a new syndrome. It has been recorded for centuries. Neither does it happen in only one place — it's known around the world — although there is a higher instance of SIDS in more modern socio-economic environments.

The disease attracts many theories that have yet to be substantiated. Speculation has included enlarged thymus gland, absent or parathyroid glands, allergy to cow's milk, sudden infection, whiplash injury of the spinal cord, SIDS but these have all been disproven.

Obviously, more research needs to be done. In our area, the Queen's University Department of Community Health and Epidemiology is conducting a study of the facts surrounding infant cot/crib deaths. The Canadian Foundation for the Study of Infant Deaths (4 Lawton Blvd., Toronto), solicits funds in order to collect further data, and to distribute what facts are already known.

"I thought it could never happen to us," said the grieving mother, "and I felt so confident that all my children had escaped. I thought my son was old enough that we were past the danger point. He was such a healthy baby.

"Now it's so hard, explaining his death to the other children. "I say he's gone to live with Jesus, but how do I explain what happened?

"We intend to contribute to research in every way that we can. That's all we can do now. That and tell people about what SIDS is."

Al Gardiner and Jim McCulloch lay sod at the Cheshire Home.

Cheshire Landscaping Garden Club Project

Garden Club members and friends took another step in the completion of their current project Wednesday night when they laid 825 square yards of sod at the Cheshire Home.

In the second year of their landscaping project at the John Street home for handicapped young adults, the Garden Club already sodded part of the front lawn last year after removing three 10-ton truckloads of rubble with the help of the Parks Board.

Hedges were planted and a rock garden established. This year, the Garden Club has not only laid the sod but built a patio with materials donated by Stanley Structures.

The Garden Club has also rented a city garden plot where members are tending vegetables to be donated to the residents.

Chairman of the project is Jim McCulloch. Laying sod Wednesday with Mr. McCulloch was Al Gardiner, Joan McCulloch, Cheshire home night superintendent. Alan Doering, Daina and Stuart Honeyman, Harold Thompson, Mike Leroux, Mike Poole, Alma Cassenbeck, Jonathon Cassenbeck, Larry Johnson and resident Tommy Kells.

Study Guild Chooses Executive

The annual meeting of the Women's Study Guild was held at the home of Lois Wishart when many members gathered in her garden for a potluck supper.

Following the meal, a short business meeting was held when reports of the year's activities were heard. A letter from Marylene Cohen of Marseilles, France, the girl adopted through CANSAVE was read, and the slate of officers for the coming year was presented. Elected to office were Jill Cox, president; Georgina Mackie, vice-president; Susan Sherry, secretary, and Linda Wilson, treasurer.

Following this, Marjorie Tooth told of her recent trip to Prague, Czechoslovakia. Introducing the topic, she told of the size and the geographical features of the country, and of its location in the heartland of Europe. Then she gave a capsule account of the history of Czechoslovakia from the second half of the ninth century to the present time.

Mrs. Tooth told of the many different groups of people who have joined to form this federation of ten regions. She spoke of great leaders such as Wenceslas, Charles IV, head of the Holy Roman Empire who made this city his capital, the rise to power of John Huss, the great religious leader, and of Masaryk and Dubcek.

In conclusion she showed slides, pictures and brochures and related some of her experiences which demonstrated how Prague has preserved many things from the past, yet is moving into the future with such modern construction as a subway.

People and Events

The last regular meeting of the Madoc and District Senior Citizens Club for the summer months was held on Wednesday.

A reading on hospitality was given by the President, Jennie Broadwell.

A schedule has been made out for golden at O'Hara Mills on Sunday afternoons through July and August.

On July 16 the club will take The Stoney Lake Boat Cruise from Young's Point through the Kawarthas. The bus is leaving the United Church at 8 a.m.

After the business was dealt with, bingo, crocknole and cards were enjoyed.

RETIREMENT TEA

A retirement tea to honor Gladys Sine of Stirling was held at the home of Carrol Clements, Rivervalley Road, recently.

Mrs. Sine taught for 23 years, the last seven in the Stirling school, where she has taught in the Special Education Classes and done remedial work.

Eighty-two friends and teacher associates were greeted at the door and asked to sign the guest book by Olive Whitehead and Grace Morton.

The guests visited and were served a punch by Mrs. Sine's granddaughter Kim Cooney and Amy Lotendorf.

The hostess invited the guests to the tea room where the tea table was centred by an orange, yellow and white floral arrangement and orange candles in silver candle holders. The tea services at either end were presided over by Gwen Fargey, Alice Heasman, Isabel Good, and Dorothy Blakely. The guests were served by Fay Dunham, Frances Prest, Ana Watson, and Ruth Heath.

Alpha Delta Kappa Sorority, of which Mrs. Sine is a member, attended as a group and the president, Pearl McCurdy presended her with a cup and saucer flower arrangement.

During the afternoon Grace Norton recited a poem which she composed about the special education teacher.

A framed copy of the poem printed in old English was presented to Mrs. Sine.

LEV'S BAKE BREAD

The old art of baking bread has become a new trend in this area. Many young people are realizing that they don't want to lose the many skills, arts and crafts of yesteryear and so bread making has been revived.

"Let's Bake Bread" is the topic of the newest 4-H Homemaking project for young people between the ages of 12 and 26 years. A minimum of four members is required to have a 4-H club. Each club requires a minimum of one adult club leader, but two leaders would be best. With training schools held at the end of the summer clubs meeting during the fall and winter are equally complete by the end of November.

For Prince Edward County the leaders training school has been scheduled for August 25-26, in Picton from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days.

If you are interested in reviving your skills in breadmaking or actually learning how to bake bread and if you would like to volunteer your time to teach a small informal group of young people from your area, contact the County Home Economist, Jacquelyn Hact, 41 Dundas St. W., Napanee 354-3371. No Specific Qualifications are necessary. Applications are available at the County Agricultural Office. Please phone for more information. The deadline for applications is August 1st.

Young people in Prince Edward County interested in joining a 4-H Homemaking club may contact the Picton or Napanee Agricultural Office for more information.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Adams wish to announce the engagement of their oldest daughter Trista to Wally Dalnard, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Dalnard. The marriage will take place July 25, at 7 p.m. at College Hill United Church.

NICHOLAS J. POPPENK, son of William and Joan Popenk of Owensville and graduated June 17 from the University of Toronto Law School with the LLB. Nicholas attended Clinton High School in Clinton.

Kline—Murphy

St. Joseph's Church was the setting for the June 7 wedding of Mary-Jo-Anne Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy, and Robert Thomas Kline, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Kline.

Rev. J.A. Carley performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of sheer over sharkskin with a mandarin neckline. Alencon lace trimmed the front and back bodice, and made a flounce around the hemline. The full length two-tier veil fell from a headpiece was trimmed with lace and of flowers and seed pearls, and the bouquet was red roses, lily of the valley and fern.

Susan Thibodeau was maid of honor in a peach knit dress with an empire waist, tie-back belt and lace trimmed collar and puffed sleeves. She wore a white lace-trimmed hat and carried a white lace fan with peach-colored carnations, lily of the valley and fern.

Sharon Fox, the bride's sister, was matron of honor and Debbie Donaldson, the groom's cousin, was bridesmaid. They were identical gowns and carried identical bouquets to the maid of honor.

The bride's niece, Tammy Fox, was flower girl in a white and peach flowered dress, similar in the design to the bridesmaids. She carried a white basket of peach-colored carnations, and wore matching flowers in her hair.

John Murphy, the bride's brother, was ring-bearer, and Gary Craig was best man. The bride's brother Pat Murphy, and the groom's cousin Ken Donaldson, were ushers.

A reception was held at the Four Seasons Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Kline now live on Charles Street.

Legal secretaries are being recognized as more than a shorthand typists, coffee pourers and photo answerers, and credit for the change must go largely to two Vancouver women. Kaila ertse Moore and Gail Parry.

In the past four years they have written procedural manuals and reference books for legal secretaries as well as giving seminars and night school courses to update secretaries on the latest happenings.

It all started when both women were working in the same law firm.

"I needed something to guide me in doing a special job," said Mrs. Moore. "I was in litigation and Gail was in conveyancing and we couldn't help each other. We thought there must be a book for legal secretaries. We looked around but could find none.

"One day, when I was particularly bugged, I said to Gail, 'Let's write a book.'

Working at night and on Sundays, they put together a manuscript containing nearly 200 legal documents detailing the intricacies of a legal secretary's job. The Legal Secretary's Guide has become a must not only in law offices but in government offices and schools.

"A proficient secretary works on her own," said Mrs. Parry. "It saves time. I've prepared divorce papers, and at the same time, the lawyer has seen four clients."

Last year the two women published another book B.C. Companies Act-Practice and Procedure, and they are working on the Ontario edition of the reference book.

"The laws are different there from B.C.'s and it will probably take us a year," explained Mrs. Moore.

Mrs. Parry and Mrs. Moore are also involved in providing continuing education for legal secretaries. They sponsor night school classes for secretaries at their training centre and have a reference service for legal secretaries and non-professional legal office staff members.

"We plan to do more writing and upgrading of legal secretarial services and procedural material for law offices," said Mrs. Moore. "We fit into a niche in the whole general court and legal system."

Legal secretaries Gail Parry (left) and Katherine Moore have written procedural manuals and reference books for legal secretaries as well as giving seminars and night school courses to update secretaries on the latest happenings. When they began preparing the information four years ago there was no reference material available in their field. (CP Photo)

Escapes Arranged Marriage Girl Elopes in Rebellion

BOMBAY (CP) — Fatima Rahiman, a 19-year-old Moslem girl from India's southern state of Kerala, recently eloped with a young businessman to Kuwait in the Persian Gulf area.

Fatima's two brothers flew to Bombay to try to solve the matter and talk her back home. But she and her lover slipped away in time.

Fatima's parents wanted her to marry a 55-year-old landlord who already had one wife. Moslem law permits a man to have four wives at a time. But the girl said she strongly believes in monogamy.

She is a note to her mother, Fatima wrote: "I do not accept the old-fashioned notion of marriage and can never be the wife of a man who has another wife."

This and other similar events showing the growing rebellion among India's Moslem women against orthodox customs and beliefs appear to have caught the imagination of women attending the recent All-India Moslem Education Conference in Calicut.

Though the conference was primarily called to discuss the educational needs of Moslems, who number more than 60 million in India, women delegates resisted the occasion to berate Moslem men for "suppressing" women and "keeping them down in the name of the Koran."

Several delegates said Moslem priests were not even permitting women to learn to read and write.

Begum Abdullah, wife of Sheikh Abdullah, the popular Kashmir Moslem leader, asked Moslem men to encourage their own women in India to "rise against the tyrannical religious laws governing marriage and divorce."

The Indian parliament has enacted laws banning polygamy and facilitating divorce, only among Hindus. Government spokesmen have repeatedly said they do not wish to "interfere" in the affairs of the Moslem minority.

Apparently, the ruling Congress Party does not wish to risk valuable votes by earning the hostility of the powerful orthodox elements among Moslems.

But Moslem women are increasingly clamoring for reforming their religious laws.

Fatima Ghafoor, president of the women's wing of the All-India Moslem Education Society, said: "Priests and feudal elements are conspiring to misinterpret the teachings of Prophet Mohammed to deny the women their rights to women.

"Moslem women will not any longer tolerate their suppression by misguided men."

Canadian Mini-skools Expand in U.S.

WINNIPEG (CP) — After years of concentrating on the dominance of American text books in Canadian schools, a Winnipeg-based company is beginning to educate children in the United States with a bottom up.

Mini-Skools Ltd., a preschool child-care company founded in 1969, now has a total of 66 centres in the U.S. stretching from Atlanta, Ga., to San Diego, Calif. In contrast, the Canadian content of the company consists entirely of two schools in Winnipeg and eight in Toronto.

Marketing manager Roger Williams estimates 75 to 80 per cent of the company's child-handling capacity of about 9,000 is full.

Part of the reason behind the company's rapid expansion in the United States while the Canadian market remains virtually untapped is based on simple economics.

Mr. Williams said in an interview that building or acquiring established day care centres is much more economical in the United States than in Canada.

"One of our main problems is that we can't get land where we would like to build at decent prices. We need at least an acre of land if we're going to build. And of course, the market in the United States is much larger."

A school was recently built in Atlanta at a cost of about $500,000, significantly less than the estimated cost of a centre of a similar scope and size in a city like Toronto, Mr. Williams said.

"And quite frankly, there's not many schools we would want to acquire in Canada."

Based on a liberalized style of care for children between the ages of two months and six years, the schools offer programs ranging from tailor, Stella to music lessons.

In addition, some schools offer supplementary services like programs for night and weekend activities and after-care for children in school in Grades 1 through 6.

Computer literature stresses developing a child's self-identity, encouraging an understanding of his own emotions, fingering responsibility and creating an understanding of personal relationships with both adults and other children.

Mr. Williams says a large measure of the company's success is due to the growing number of families with two parents working and the subsequent need for child-care facilities. And although a child may be enrolled in the school for as little as two hours a week, the company realizes it cannot act as substitute for parents.

"We don't think of ourselves as providing parents for the family, but as an extension to the family unit.

The cost of the service, areas, varies from $30 a week for a child for a full five-day week, to $50 a week for full care. And the fact that parents are paying directly for the service enforces the company to maintain a high standard of quality.

"If we're satisfied the parent all the time, if we don't, we'll lose the child," he said. And the fact that parents are paying directly for the service also forces the company to maintain a high standard of quality.

Fashion Show Merry Go-round Wearies Magazine Editors, Buyers

NEW YORK (AP)—Stuffy robes dangerously packed beyond capacity and blaring rock music from 9 a.m. or 9 p.m. are some of the lingering, uncomfortable memories of two solid weeks of fashion shows.

When New York spring temperatures are in the sixties, Seventh Avenue designers, sometimes six or more in one day, present their design concepts for fall.

Buyers, department store heads, celebrities and fashion editors from all over the country, guided by their fashion caterers, drag themselves to showrooms, hotel ballrooms, discotheques and occasionally to the lobby of an unfinished building to record the latest in bemlines, sleeve shapes, fabrics and colors.

The audience is steered to assigned seats, some so remote from the action there is inevitable grumbling from photogra phers and late-arriving Palm Beach dowagers. Vogue, Harper's Bazaar and Women's Wear Daily reporters are among those that rank the press box.

Those who are tucked away behind five rows of empty chairs hate to think what might happen in case of fire.

A mini-fashion show is preceded by the crowd. What does a fashion writer wear when covering someone like Oscar de la Renta or Bill Blass? The editor of Harper's Bazaar is always in a grey or white dress. The editor of Vogue is unobtrusive in black slacks and jacket.

The outer-town fashion editors have long show is critical to the pace and presentation of the outfits. It is usually too loud and repetitive. If fashion writers never hear an endless, bouncy song called The Hustle ever again, they surely will cheer.

But again, something soft and appealing like the ballads at Doc sid Brooks and Tchaikovsky at Arthur Murray has lulled at least one disinterested matron to sleep in her airless corner.

The audience is usually cool and discriminating in its appraisal which is sparingly applauded for some innovative ways with slips and for the new lines.

But there were good-natured cheer and claps for one model whose right breast was bared suddenly when the border of her plunged-neckline dress gown popped.

In a similar, visceral critique, one lanky-haired young showgoer who watched the Concept VII show in the lobby on his unfinished building said he thought the audience would applaud everything because "all the models are so beautiful."

Overthrowing Her Brother Is Juanita Castro's Desire

MIAMI (AP) — Her eyes flash and there is passion and fire in her voice when she denounces her brother and all he has wrought.

"He is a monster that must be overthrown," says Juanita Castro of Fidel. "That is the only way we can eradicate communism from Cuba."

Juanita has been in Miami exile since 1964, two years after her brother toppled the Batista dictatorship and came to power.

She helped her brother in his struggle, fighting against him in 1960 and left Cuba.

She went to Washington this spring to tell the Senate Subcommittee held because U.S. officials had announced that a consensus exists for lifting the economic embargo against Cuba.

Miss Castro laments the fact that an interest in her career had dimmed.

"I'm a small dedicated circle of firm anti Communists meeting every Saturday," she says ruefully.

What kind of a woman is Juanita?

She's in her early 40s now, a hard-working businesswoman.

She recently became co-owner of a small pharmacy and discount notions store on the outskirts of Miami's "Little Havana" section.

She dresses fashionably; works a full day at her store; drives a late-model car and lives with a Cuban family in an upper-middle class home.

She has never married and says little of her personal life.

Her father, Angel Castro, a Spaniard, was a well-to-do landowner in Cuba's Oriente province. He died in 1956 while Fidel was in Mexico preparing for his Cuban invasion. His wife died in 1963.

Juanita is Havana home. Juanita left soon for Mexico, blaming Fidel for hastening her mother's demise. She never speaks publicly about Castro.

Juanita has not tempered her harsh judgment of Fidel, who she says "betrayed us all, those of us who believed in a social, humanistic, democratic revolution."

Declining a post in Fidel's new government in 1958, Juanita says she worked instead at establishing hospitals and schools for the poor in the interior of the country.

But it took her only a little more than a year to become disillusioned.

Environmental Influence Makes Boys Better at Math

EDMONTON (CP) — Texas undertaken at the University of Rhodesia show that adolescent boys are better at science and math than science than girls of the same age.

The research was conducted by Dr. Elizabeth Hendrikz, head of the department of education and the country's first woman professor.

Dr. Hendrikz was investigating the factors which influence competence in mathematics and science and everything possible was done to reduce the influence of formal schooling.

The research subjects were secondary school boys and girls, both African and European. The groups included day pupils and boarders from Grades 9 and 11.

They demonstrated a consistent sex difference in the tests. European boys scored top marks. European girls were next highest, followed by African boys and then African girls.

Some interesting facts emerged from the research. The best girls were at least as good as the best boys, but most of the girls were at the rear.

Only a quarter of the European girls had continued with physics and chemistry after Grade 10. The rest had given it up because they were "not good at it."

Such results had to be dependent, especially on their motivation, tend to be linguistically well-developed, but poor at mathematics.

Girls brought up to be independent and solve their own problems tend to be better at maths and science than others. Also girls who can identify with their fathers rather than their mothers and who are tomboys rejecting authority, are more likely to be scientifically and mathematically competent than others.

Dr. Hendrikz says a safe conclusion is that while biological and enetic influences probably contribute to the sex differences in maths and science competence, environmental influence also appears important.

Substantial ethnic differences as well as sex differences were noted during the research. Europeans scored more than Africans and boys more than girls.

African girls usually lead a more circumscribed existence than their brothers and this may have been reflected in their scores.

"The culture in which one is brought up builds up over the years," Dr. Hendrikz said. "a picture of what is and what is masculine behavior and what is feminine."

It is then possible that many girls have been brainwashed into believing that mathematics and science are not their province.

AROUND TOWN
with

(. . . an advertising feature designed to keep you better informed of what's new around town.)

This week is the last week I will be writing this column. It's been a year, and it's been fun. Thanks for reading.

Behind The Words

Today, I intend to be very personal in my remarks. You aren't going to hear about any sales or special features of the members of this column, except through my eyes and my experience with them. After all, it's my last chance. Two of the special people I have come to know and respect in this past year are Clint and Dale Vader of Vader's Car Sales, 21 College St. Behind the advertising for their Datsun dealership are two personalities and men who believe in their product. I do too; I bought a Datsun. This attitude of commitment and service permeates the whole establishment. The Parts and Service Departments, the salesmen and even the Vader wives, all know that what they have to offer and sell you, is really what you need. The slogan, "All You Really Need Is A Datsun", would be pretty empty without dealers such as Vader's.

Pleasant and Reliable

Those are two adjectives which certainly apply to the people at Gord Rabbis Real Estate, 117 North Front St. When you talk to people for a year every week, you find out whether or not all that pleasantness is constant or if reliability is a false claim. So if you're interested in doing business with someone who is reliably pleasant or pleasantly reliable, you know where to go in the real estate field, don't you? I can remember my first conversation with Gord Rabbis when we were beginning this column. I asked him about the safeguards within their own industry which they may have to help you. They are there and they do work. People like Gord Rabbis make those words work. So you can relax, call 968-6475 and get in on some pleasant reliability.

Liking What They're Doing

That phrase is a most apt application to the people at W. Wessancourt and Son Jewellers, 341 Pinnacle St. If ever there was a business in which the owners and staff take great pride and pleasure, it's the Wonnacotts and their friendly staff. In these past few months, you've read about the fine and individualized services you can get from them — help in choosing that gift, helping you with your wedding plans and counsel and help in settings, engravings services, gift-wrapping, and the personalized attention in a manner and atmosphere second to serving you. If it's service you want, then go to the jeweler who lives and breathes this concept. You'll know it as soon as you walk in the door.

A Dining Experience

For the past six months, I've been urging you to visit the Ina On The Bay in Picton, and get a great dining treat in a great dining atmosphere. I have failed in this with my family in the beauties of Prince Edward County. There is so much to see and do in this delightful county, that I've left the Ina On The Bay, and a visit to it, seems to logical an excursion to those who like good and beautiful things. And food is one of those beautiful things. Soon, there will be part of the Inn to enjoy — a pub in the basement under the ballroom. The decor of the pub is reported to be in the finest tradition of mansion and will be a further reason for you to make the journey to Picton any night of the week or drink in all that the Inn can give you. That dinner reservation number is 476-3114.

It's In The Name

Superior TV, 183 Canniffon Rd. is just what its name implies, superior in TV and radio repair service and in the handling of Zenith and Sylvania brand products. This member of our column family came in last January and I knew that I could tell you that Superior would be in with the best when pay was going great guns. Since the new year, this company has opened offices in Madoc and in Napanee. That's what I call a winner! And if you want to be a winner with your TV and radio repairs, then you should jot down this number — 962-9516. It's a winner that's going to have real meaning to you in the next years when you need help in this area. I admire the progress of Superior, and I wish it well — in all its endeavors.

A Lot of Joy and Happiness

It's nice to meet businesses who are involved in the manufacture of Canadian products. One of these proudly is what you say that of The Tropical Gardens Pet Shop, 301½ Front St. The Tropical Gardens sells things which make people happy and which, in turn, make pets happy. Everything in all the paraphernalia you need to do a good job of taking care of your pet is available at the Tropical Gardens. If you're looking for the pet, if you don't know how to care for it. All the things you need to make that pet happy are to be found at Tropical. Make yourself, or someone else happy — a child, an invalid, a friend, a father, an aunt, a grandpa. Visit the Tropical Gardens and add experience to your life. It's a kind of life.

Seeing Through Your Glasses Well

That's a very bad reference to a very good quote. But don't let my bad reference reflect on what I say about Trenton Optical, 124 Dundas St. Trenton Optical is one of the tried and true members of this column who has been with us for the whole year. And it's a company with which I've been proud to associate. Trenton Optical is a family unit of talks service and it's not just talking about either, Trenton Optical has two outlets, one here and one in Belleville. It's a family-owned business, which means it's independent. And this independence is taken very seriously. Trenton buys its frames and lenses and sells its experience to the people of choice. Trenton Optical is very consumer-oriented, and understands that the consumer comes first. Remember that the eyes are the shops for a car or the groceries. Trenton Optical is really worth looking into.

Good Old Charlie

When I use the above term and apply it to my friend — and your friend — Charlie Bristol of Wrays Home Furnishers, 306 Front St., I'm not trying to be condescending to his age — I believe Forbid! But I mean only that when it comes to constancy in the pleasantness department, Charlie Bristol gets the award for this column. In fact I really was tempted to give awards to each of the members of this column, for each is unique in his or her way. But I was not to be swayed from my gift to their heads — especially Charlie's. Wish his good looks, charm and wit were the only reasons for my decision. He's also got a fine furnishings business which can help you decorate as you should with the quality of furniture which will stand the test of style and years. Go in and see Charlie. But for Heaven's sake, don't dare give him a compliment, except on the success of his business.

They've Got It

If someone asked you where you could get a birthday present and card, some fresh fruit, bamburgers, either cooked or ready for you to take home and cook on your barbecue, some flowers for the garden, and you could get all these things in one place at 9 p.m. on any night of the week, you just might be at a loss, if you haven't visited the Sidney Inn, 285 Moira St. W. The Sidney Inn is one of those places which never outlives its welcome, and it keeps right on growing to serve your needs grow. I once said that the next expansion step of Sidney Inn would be to annex Prince Edward County. And Al Whitney Sr. and Jr. could just about do that too! Remember Sidney Inn when you're in a commercial mood and you and you don't know where to get what you need — and they need — quickly. For last minute vacation needs — Sidney Inn has them all. Remember that it's aluminum foil. Sidney Inn is just a great kind of store to have around!

From The Top Of Your Head

There are no fashion edicts in Belleville with me, say that they can provide fashion for your head, i.e. a wig, as well as provide fashions for your arms, legs, back and front at the same time. Well, Studio 231, 221 Front St. can make such a claim. Not only can Studio 231 adorn your body with affordable and fashionable! good looks, but also, it can adorn your head with the latest in easy-care wigs in easy care and upto-date hair styles in the De Kapster's Wig Boutique at the front of the shop. You'll also find some unusual jewellery to adorn your unusual Studio 231 fashion. So for fashionable good looks from the top of your head, visit Studio 231. And don't forget the queen size which Studio 231 also carries.

Dutchman Says Joie de Vivre Sadly Lacking in New Zealand

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — The world has come to expect diplomats always to be the humanity kind. So when the retiring Netherlands ambassador to New Zealand, H. C. Jorissen, had some frank things to say about life in New Zealand, he predictably raised a storm.

In an address at the end of five years in New Zealand, Jorissen said there was no specific reply to the question: Are you an Islander?

Then he said: "But among the reactions I could give would be that I am, even after five years, still as amazed as in the first week by the number of drunks, by promiscuity, by foul language, by slovenliness, the barrenness of houses, the lack of wit, charm and joie de vivre.

"I have often, too often, felt what is depicted as the monotony of existence. I could never get used to the insane preoccupation with sport, which strangely enough includes the activities of the punters (bettors). I can never fully understand the need for so much recreation, not being concerned by it.

"I will not accept the judgment that a man is old and ripe for retirement when he can no longer play Rugby, beat through the bush, or when his golf handicap has reached 36.

"Nor do I accept the dictum of a certain Rotarian who advocated having come to the end of the road when he had reached the age of 70.

"But then again I have felt very much at home with a number of friends. I have admired parts of the landscape. I have at times—mostly away from Wellington—liked the climate. I have enjoyed the company of, and shared the enthusiasm of some collectors and connoisseurs.

"I have admired some painters, enjoyed the work of a few poets and writers, both old and young. I have been captured by Beaglehole (a leading historian and editor of Captain James Cook's voyages). I have felt deeply the great traditions of the Maori people, their art, legends, and songs, and their search to regain their past glories, their standing and their land.

Jorissen said he had enjoyed the frankness of politicians and civil servants.

"To these I wish to add the two essential elements of the New Zealander, of the old and of the future: the Maoris and the farmers.

"To me, the farmers of New Zealand are the true New Zealanders, as true as the Maoris who came before them. Close to the land, with a true conception of their place in society; hard-working, helpful, imaginative, hospitable.

"The memories of being with them will remain with me, retaining their freshness and perhaps, in the end, will make me forget all else."

But the encomiums in the latter part of the quotation have been completely submerged in the comments on the initial criticisms.

Some Dutch settlers, of whom there are many in New Zealand, have upheld Jorissen's comments. Many have criticized them as making life much more difficult for Dutch immigrants seeking to adjust to life in New Zealand.

These critics claim that the ambassador's remarks will heighten prejudices against Dutch as arrogant and hypercritical. Several have said they will write to Queen Juliana protesting against the remarks.

Some New Zealanders have endorsed every criticism made by Jorissen and said the country would be better off if the remarks were heeded. Many have strongly condemned the comments.

New Zealanders who have visited Holland have scathingly commented on life and customs there, with emphasis on drug culture, redlight districts and gangrapes.

Other diplomats have been somewhat adamant. The Polish charge d'affaires, J. Bobkiewicz, said: "I am shocked that a diplomat would say such rude words. It does not true.

"Of course, New Zealanders like sport. I think it is a good healthy thing. And drinking is done everywhere.

"There is a lack of cultural life here, probably because you are so far away from Europe. But I meet polished musicians and good scientists?"

The Hungarian high commissioner, Chan Keng- Howe, said: "The statement lists virtues that may outweigh some non-virtues. The average New Zealander is a decent bloke."

Immigrant's Book Surrealistic Ramble

By JANET FINE
The Canadian Press

Geneva assembled in a surrealistic vision, the novel Canadian Healing Oil, by Juan Butler, certainly does not make comfortable reading.

Pages twirl in his words, sentences and images. Photographs and drawings twist in and out with the story, if there is one, until the novel becomes one with its existential purpose.

The author writes on Canada from his experience. He was born in Hankow, the son of an English father and a Spanish mother. He came to Canada with his family in 1948 and grew up in Toronto.

After travelling in Europe, he settled again in Toronto where he now lives. His first and second novel, The Gargantuan, deal with the theme of his feelings towards his Canadian identity.

But author Butler does not let the reader off easily. One is plucked from his world of French and Spanish phrases, historical proclamations and stories of relevant and irrelevant personalities.

The story of Gerard de Nerval and the literary scene in Paris in the 1830s is interestingly interwoven. But when these fleeting slices of stories are told, they are usually disrupted by other characters popping in and out of the book.

There are lonesco and absurdist characters who resemble figures from Alice in Wonderland, constantly interrupting each other and the narrative being told.

The main character Butler, St. John or the observer-participant floats in and out of situations. His amusing French stories of Montreal are strategically placed to aid tempting definitions of the Canadian identity.

The meaning becomes clearer as the protagonist journeys to the Virgin Islands. There he is given the Canadian healing oil, a "universal liniment" and is overjoyed by its implications and power.

Singing a French song, the mood of the Caribbean exuberantly engulfs him. Religion becomes a strange factor in his reactions. On the final page, a large reprint of his 1925 drawing, The Blessed Canadian Martyrs, is shown.

The book is written in the style of a cosmopolitan, sophisticated artist. Everything is jumbled enough to be clever and often poignant.

In this surrealistic rambling, it often is hard to enjoy the book or even to read the remark. It is not as much healing as it is startling as the author takes us on a lightless tunnel trip through his mind and fantasies, to reach at some message on the state of religion, Canada and the mind.

Canadian Healing Oil, Juan Butler; $8.95; 153 pages; Peter Martin Associates Ltd.

Different Summer Job

Student Tom Ramsey keeps a close eye on the ground as owner Peter Owens (right) takes hot-air balloon up for trial run. Ramsey, a University of Guelph student, had planned to spend the summer landscaping. But an ad in a local newspaper was the first step on his way to spending his summer as a student balloonist. (CP Photo)

Student's Summer Job Flying Hot-air Balloon

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — A university course in fisheries and wildlife is a very down-to-earth occupation for most students.

But not for 25-year-old Tom Ramsey.

The University of Guelph student is spending his summer learning to work off the ground instead of on it—not quite the course he had planned.

Originally, Tom lined up the same job he had held for the last five years, working for a landscaper. Then he saw a newspaper article concerning the Canada Manpower Centre for Students (CMCS) here.

The article in Guelph Mercury mentioned that the centre had a job vacancy for a person to learn to pilot a hot-air balloon.

"We were swamped," said Don Kendrick, associate assistant at the Guelph CMCS. The Centre received more than 200 applications for the job and Don referred about 20 people.

Peter Owens, who owns the balloons, says he settled on Tom easily.

"It's important that he be responsible and able to make fast decisions on your own. You're flying thousands of dollars worth of equipment and you have to decide what to quickly if you're coming up on power lines, so you don't crash up the balloon and get yourself electrocuted."

Having the summer job flying the balloon is something special for Tom. "I've always wanted to fly a balloon since I was a kid and stretch it along the ground. then bumped back into the air. But the sun was starting to heat the air and the winds were picking up. The lesson was over for the day.

Peter, who owns four balloons and makes his own, said there are only 10 people in Canada with balloon licences and only nine balloons.

A balloon pilot is licenced by the department of transport. Tom will have to log 16 hours in the air before he can write the department's test.

If things work out, Tom will get a raise in pay and a job flying the balloon for a year if he wants.

Whatever happens, he has one of the oddest jobs placed through CMCS yet this year. There are 113 centres across Ontario and in years past the centres have placed everything from chicken catchers to clowns, but no balloonists.

Champion Haul

Five tugs, led by the world's largest tug, the M.V. Rotterdam, (second from right), and with a combined pull of 70,000 horsepower, haul Mobil's Beryl "A" oil production platform from a fjord at Stavanger, on its way to the Beryl field, 95 miles south-east of Shetland, in the United Kingdom sector of the North Sea, an ocean-towing distance of about 130 miles. Described as the heaviest towing operation in maritime history, it started July 4, at a speed of about one knot, and reached the open sea about 45 miles from Stavanger late Monday. The giant concrete platform has a true weight of 350,000 tons on the seabed, where it is due later this week. (AP Photo)

Richthofens Prepare To Defend Red Baron

BONN (Reuter) — More than half a century after their illustrious forbear's last sortie in his Fokker triplane, the surviving members of the Richthofen family are acting a new kind of battle.

This time the most likely arena is a West German law court, not the skies over France where Manfred von Richthofen, the Red Baron, fought and died during the First World War.

In the family's view, the good name of Richthofen is at stake. Led by Hartmann Baron von Richthofen, the flyer's nephew, they are out to see it preserved.

The Richthofens' adversaries are fellow Germans, admirers of the debonair fighter ace, who got together in Frankfurt two years ago to form "the Red Baron Flying Club."

Since then the 50 or so club members have given an occasional flying display in appropriately painted biplanes, and minted commemorative medals bearing the Red Baron's profile.

Last April 21, the 57th anniversary of the Baron s last flight, they organized a solemn pilgrimage to his grave outside Amiens in northern France and set up a memorial at a nearby airfield.

Baron von Richthofen, born in 1880, became a legendary figure in the First World War, a hero in his own country and a fearsome name to his enemies. He shot down 79 British planes and one Belgian before 25-year-old Capt. Roy Brown, a native of Carleton Place, Ont., led a patrol of six Sopwith Scouts into a 20-aircraft formation commanded by the German ace.

The young Canadian, who had been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for two years of aerial combat before the encounter, was credited with ending the Red Baron's spectacular career. He died near Stouffville, Ont., in 1945 at the age of 50.

The Richthofen family views the efforts of the newly-organized club on the Baron's behalf with something less than wholehearted enthusiasm.

Hartmann Baron von Richthofen, a 35-year-old casino director, made plain to club president Peter Steinberger that the family was against the club using the Richthofen name. Among other things, it was apparently a question of good taste.

He also argued that the Richthofen tradition was adequately preserved by a squadron of the West German Luftwaffe, which was named after the baron in 1961.

Its commanding officer agreed. He told the club he and his men disapproved of its plan to have the anniversary of the Baron's death proclaimed German Aviation Day.

For his part, Steinberger was unimpressed by the squadron's claim to the right of keeping the Richthofen legend alive. "They do next to nothing," he said.

An attempt to settle the dispute out of court between lawyers for the club and family failed after reports appeared in the West German press. A court case, Steinberger now says, seems likely.

If it does go to court, reference may be made to a legal precedent involving another of German aviation's big names, Baron Zeppelin, the airship builder.

He successfully took a businessman to court 65 years ago for misusing his name—to promote a line of tobacco and snuff.

The German's club's efforts seem modest by comparison with the Richthofen cult in the United States, where the Baron is pitted against Snoopy, the cartoon strip dog, and appears as a trade name for steak houses and long drinks.

Enthusiasts here take a more reverent view, gathering every so often to read from Richthofen's war diaries.

In them, the fighter ace, who habitually posed for photographers holding a walking cane or with one hand in the pocket of his riding breeches, at times seems very much the product of a ruthless era.

In 1917 he wrote: "When I have shot down one Englishman, my passion for the hunt is stilled for the next quarter of an hour. I just can't bring myself to shoot two Englishmen one after another."

Emergency Declared

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Because of a seven-month drought, Haiti's ministers of foreign affairs has declared a national food emergency and asked the United States and other governments for help. The minister said the hardest hit portion of the country is the northwest peninsula where more than 300,000 persons live.

Major Changes in Store for Ambulance Services Says Province

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Some "significant changes" will have to be made to the operations of two ambulance companies serving Belleville, a provincial government spokesman said Wednesday.

Charles Brubacher, director of ambulance services for the ministry of health, said during an interview, a lengthy study of the two companies has been completed and an earlier provincial statement that Belleville is a "... high-cost area" was proven out by the study.

"There will have to be significant changes made," he said, "I don't know about amalgamation," — a prospect considered by provincial study teams as a cost-cutting measure.

Sky Meeks of LaSalle Ambulance and Len Steele of City Ambulance will be called to a meeting with ministry officials July 15 to discuss the study findings.

A study of Belleville's ambulance services was prompted last January with a statement from Mr. Brubacher that action must be taken to "integrate" the companies and lower the cost of the service. According to 1974 budget figures, Belleville ambulance service cost the province approximately $260,000.

The July 15 meeting will be the first chance either owner has had to view the report — a document that its authors say will be made public "eventually".

In an earlier report by this paper it was stated that a major study recommendation will be to centralize all ambulance dispatching — relieving the need for offices in Trenton, Madoc, Napanee and Picton. The central dispatch station will be maintained in Belleville.

Gerry Jackson, author of the study, said during an interview, "amalgamation is implicated in the report as a cost-cutting measure but we're not going to force them (operators) to do anything".

Both companies have submitted their proposed operating budgets for 1975 but neither will receive approval until the study recommendations have been considered, he said.

Commenting on the budgets, Mr. Bahr said: "I think we can trim a few dollars from them if the recommendations are accepted." Exact budget projections for 1975 were not available.

If said his recommendations will include cutbacks in the number of staff on duty and consequently the number employed by each firm.

YMCA Plans Expansion

The YMCA can begin exploring new ways to serve the community now that their capital debt is retired says Dr. Douglas Horne, president of the local organization.

The original plans conceived by Ed Zeigler, the architect of the building, included the addition of a gymnasium.

The centre will utilize the entire 5½-acre Victoria Avenue site.

"We desperately need a gymnasium," said Dr. Horne speaking in an interview. Wednesday. "Which will probably include squash and handball courts and a beakh club."

The outside land would be landscaped for use as a track with the remainder of the area used for tennis, basketball and volleyball courts.

"The people have shown by the response to the campaign that they believe the YMCA is a viable institution," he said.

"The YMCA is alive and now we can start using the fees of the members to offer new programs."

Water Level Plunges

Water dropped suddenly at the public swimming area in the city's riverside park overnight Wednesday.

But the levels are expected to return just as quickly, says Clifford Belch, recreation director.

Reason for the sudden drop was further north along the river where Corby Distilleries Ltd. had to carry out maintenance repairs at the company's dam at Corbyville Tuesday.

Removal of logs released a sudden flow of water which in turn dropped levels at the log control dam which creates the swimming pond at both riverside parks on Camnifton Road.

By Wednesday morning the water level at the beaches had dropped more than two feet.

Lifeguards remained on patrol and the area was still being used by swimmers, although participation had dropped off because of the low water, Mr. Belch believed.

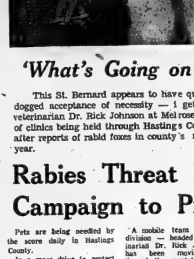
Boats Entered

City police said investigating a series of breakins of four boats docked at Moren's Marina at 25 West Dundas St. early today.

A police spokesman said nothing is believed stolen but intruders wrought some damage before they were scared off by a passerby at about 3 a.m.

The spokesman said a fire extinguisher from one of the boats was used to spray foam on three others. It was left discarded on a dock.

Windows and cabin doors were discovered insecure, window screens ripped and in one case, eight-track tapes were strewn about, he said.



'What's Going on Back There?'

This St. Bernard appears to have quizzical look — or maybe it's just dogged acceptance of necessity — I gets anti-rabies shot from federal veterinarian Dr. Rick Johnson at Melrose Wednesday. It was one in a series of clinics being held through Hastings County to vaccinate household pets after reports of rabid foxes in county's northern townships earlier this year.

Rabies Threat Promps Campaign to Protect Pets

Pets are being needed by the score daily in Hastings County.

In a mass drive to protect pets against rabies, federal veterinarian clinics are being held throughout the county to vaccinate household pets.

The first such project in three years, it was originally prompted by complaints of rabid foxes in the county's northern Township's earlier this year.

Incidents of rabbits were reported in the northern areas of Hastings and Lennox and Addington counties where the carriers are believed to spread from neighboring Renfrew County.

After investigation the federal agriculture department's health of animals division in Belleville organized a series of inoculation clinics throughout Hastings. Immunity will end in Belleville in mid-July.

Alarm Box

Wednesday, July 9, 2:18 p.m. — brush and grass fire at rear of residence at 118 Herchimer Ave., no damage, cause unknown, required only 25 minutes to extinguish.

A mobile team from the division — headed by veterinarian Dr. Rick Johnson — has been moving south through the county's communities holding two clinics a day.

Working in township halls, arenas and garages, they've been immunizing an average of 125 dogs or cats a day, estimates technician George McNeely.

By Tuesday night, more than 2,200 pets had been vaccinated against rabies.

Biggest response has been mainly in northern communities. In Marmoth, there were 380 vaccinations, 311 at Bancroft. Even small hamlets in the hinterland of Hastings drew owners with their domestic animals — 84 in Fort Stewart, 72 in Marlbank.

Other statistics include: Marmora, 225; Tweed 151; Madoc 145; Ivanhoe, 122; Stirling, 175.

Weather in the rural areas may have affected attendance. Farmers now are busy with such chores as hay noted the technician.

But it's a fair response.

The mass safety measure may pay dividends in winter months when the wild carriers of the disease range further afield, he noted.

The clinics now are moving into their last week.

By Friday, Shannonville and Camdiln Areas will be covered.

Monday morning the clinics move to the Tyendinaga Mohawk Reserve and to Prince Trenton during the in the afternoon.

The final round of immunizations will come during two days in Belleville.

Schedule for the city clinics: July 14 East Dundas St. firehall. 9 p.m. — 12 noon and 1 p.m. — 5pm; July 16 West Moira St. firehall, 1 p.m. 5 p.m., 6 p.m. — 8.30 p.m.

Teachers Plan Joint Seminars

Hastings' 1,100 elementary and secondary school teachers will make local history next October when they meet together for the first time during a professional development day.

Acting director of education L. F. Reid said Wednesday one professional day will be held jointly between the elementary and secondary teachers on Oct. 24.

He said plans now are being made to bring in a keynote speaker for the morning session.

Mr. Reid said the professional development day would probably take place at a Belleville secondary school. He said the morning's keynote speaker will be followed by workshops in the afternoon.

The Hastings County Board of Education through the family-of-schools system supports increased co-operation between elementary and secondary school teacher.

There are eight families in the county. A family consists of a secondary school and its nearby elementary schools, usually referred to as feeder schools.

Thurlow Township Ordered To Improve Dump or Close It

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

If Thurlow Township does not operate its waste disposal site according to provincial specifications the ministry of environment will halt all burning.

The warning, in a letter from a senior environmental officer and read to council at its monthly meeting, outlined the poor conditions and operating procedures being followed when a government officer visited the site July 7.

He said flames from the uncontrolled fire were jumping 15 feet into the air and the density of black and white smoke was almost 70 per cent.

There also was no attempt to segregate different types of garbage as is required by law, the letter said.

Council identified immediate procedures to deal with the problem.

The fire department was ordered in to extinguish the flames; garbage separation will be enforced by a town law officer and smoking past a certain point will be prohibited in time the chance of an accidental fire.

Council is also in the process of purchasing a used bulldozer for the waste disposal site for proper compacting of the garbage.

The law officer will also check all people using the site to ensure they live in Thurlow Township as council explained there is a problem with outsiders dumping garbage.

In other business council forwarded a letter to the Hastings County Board of Education, saying it would like to purchase the old Foxboro Public School for use as a community centre.

Land Purchase Okayed

MARMORA — An offer of $15,500 for 1.2 acres was accepted at a general meeting of the Canadian Legion Branch 327 membership Wednesday, paving the way for construction of a 30-unit senior citizens housing project in this village.

Gordon Bennett, first vice-president, said the members voted unanimously to accept Ontario Housing Corporation's offer.

Plans call for construction of 20 one-bedroom units in a two-storey building on the site.

McLauchlan Critical Of Provincial Budget

This week's provincial midbudget gives nickels while the Ontario public taxpayers' pockets of dollars, Carson McLauchlan, New Democratic Party candidate in Quinte riding charges.

Mr. McLauchlan levelled in the criticism in statement today on Monday's mini-budget introduced by Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough.

He said people should enjoy as many as three tax cut benefits offered by the government's budget.

"After the election you're no longer important to the Tory government — as proved by the fact that most of these programs expire after the election.

A provincial election is expected sometime this fall.

Mr. McLauchlan said the budget has produced much-needed revenue for housing — but that's something the NDP has been "saying all along: "... it's about time that but the government's priorities were wrong.

Moira River at Lowest Level in Three Years

These days Jeff Hunter spends his time looking for small bait fish trapped in the tepid pools of the Moira River at Camnifton.

There are plenty of mad pools right now.

Still the 14-year-old youth would sooner do what he and others do during summer holidays — swim around Camnifton dam.

The reason for the mudpools and the lack of swimming is the level of the Moira been shrinking — following the long, dry spell of recent weeks.

A Moira River Conservation Authority (MRCA) official says it's at its lowest level in at least three years.

Lack of rain and evaporation caused by sweltering temperatures are chief reasons for the shrinkage of the waterway.

The solution is plenty of rain, says the MRCA official, an opinion corroborated when he contacted a hydrometrologist the natural resources ministry's conservation authorities branch.

The expert said the low-water problem is compounded by the fact there is little run-off into main streams from surrounding watersheds.

"Heavy rain is needed to have any effect on the river," the official.

Meantime, an eye is also being kept on supply sources — Lingham and Deer Rock Lakes in the northern part of the Quinte district which supply the waterway.

But both lakes also present problems in such weather, members of the MRCA's water control advisory committee noted this week.

One trouble with the storage areas, the committee told a local resident complaining about present river levels, is that most are shallow water bodies. Hence, evaporation is also high at sources.

The MRCA has one solution — construction of a big reservoir in the Bend Bay area of Hamilton Township. So far, the project has not received any senior government approval.

House Up For Bids

STIRLING — A new house with much community effort built into it will be offered for sale by sealed bid July 15 here.

The house, on Highway 33 on the southern limits of this village was a project conceived to raise funds for the new district arena centred here.

Many local suppliers assisted the project by providing material at special prices.

But a major feature of the project was the volunteer labor of area citizens — both men and women — who both starting and finishing the building.

In total, it's estimated about 2,000 people donated 418 hours of labor to the project.

Water Needed

Jeff Hunter seeks fish bait around Camnifton dam, where once, he says, he'd have been swimming. Prolonged dry spell has affected water levels throughout Moira River watershed, say conservation authorities.

Lucas Sentence Raised

TORONTO — Larry Peter Lucas, 26, of 17 Centre St., in Belleville had his sentence imposed for conviction on a charge of assault causing bodily harm with intent to wound in February increased to six months in jail from a 90-day intermittent sentence.

The increase resulted from a successful Crown appeal launched before the Ontario Court of Appeals here.

He was one of five brothers charged in connection with an incident in Belleville's Hillcrest area last summer which involved a street fight in which a city policeman was struck by a wrench.

Landlord-Tenant Problems on Rise Says Centre

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Landlord-tenant disputes are on the increase this year and the trend is for more the tenants at landlords as the major culprits in most cases, says the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre here.

Bert Gerling, a centre staff member, said in a recent interview "we are finding more and more that the real villain is the landlord."

However, he added, it does not mean there are no tenants at fault but pointed out there are more cases this year than ever before with the blame on landlords.

Mr. Gerling said the centre investigated 50 cases during June or 13 per cent of ever-all investigations. During June last year, landlord - tenant problems represented six per cent of the total amount and in June, 1973, the figure was 11 per cent of the entire picture.

Reviewing this year's June cases, Mr. Gerling commented, "it was rather obvious that the tenants never knew what the Landlord and Tenant Act was all about."

Bill Hockley, another centre staff member said, "neither of them know their respective responsibilities and liabilities."

Bill Hockley, another centre staff member said, "neither of them know their respective responsibilities and liabilities."

He said many tenants are quickly scared into submission when confronted by their landlords. "The majority are a frightened group of people," he remarked. "They are easily intimidated by landlords."

Mr. Hockley notes, when tenants join tenant associations to fight landlords, they are usually told to vacate their apartments.

He said many problem landlords are of the absentee version who purchase entire apartment blocks. — doctors, lawyers or respected businessmen — "pillars of the church."

"Things are getting so bad that there's got to be rent control and landlord-tenant tribunals," Mr. Hockley said.

Rents Often Major Factor

TRENTON — Consumer advocate Bill Hockley said Wednesday the provincial government will have to move into rent controls and establishment of tribunals to hear disputes between landlords and tenants.

He was speaking after a meeting of the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre in Trenton. His comments came in an interview after a presentation of a profile of the centre's June case-load.

Mr. Hockley told centre directors landlord-tenant problems last month have increased over May.

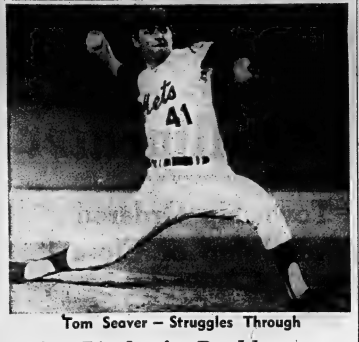
In an interview, he elaborated, saying a large problem in the area is the "rural realeconalion" of rents.

Tenants are finding they are unable to pay higher rents, and coupled with the inability to find other accommodation, are increasingly receiving eviction notices from landlords for non-payment.

"Something is going to have to happen because all these people just cannot be ordered to leave their premises, because they can't afford to pay the rent with no alternative to go to," he said.

Ignorance of the Act

Lack of knowledge of the Landlord and Tenant Act has been a big contributing factor in the increase of landlord-tenant problems in the Bay of Quinte area this year, says the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre. Vera Heimbach (left), chairman of the centre board of directors and Bert Grling of the centre staff peruse sections of the act they say many landlords and tenants do not even know exist.



Tom Seaver – Struggles Through

Met Pitcher's Problems Are Trouble for Braves

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseballs clipped out of Tom Seaver's hand, his shoulder hurt and he couldn't get his curve ball over. He had all kinds of problems pitching to Atlanta Braves.

And the Braves had all kinds of problems hitting him.

Even when he's troubled, the New York Mets' finest pitcher is hard to beat and he proved it Wednesday night with a classy, 3-1 decision over Atlanta in 9 innings.

"He's been pitching great all year," said Rusty Staub, who hit the game-winning homer in the 10th. "If we'd had gotten him a few runs in some other games, he'd have even more victories than he has."

About the slipped baseballs: "At one time, home plate umpire Shag Crawford came out and asked me if the balls were too slick for me."

In the other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals blanked San Francisco Giants 8-0, Houston Astros nipped Montreal Expos 4-3 in 10 innings, Cincinnati Reds whipped Philadelphia Phillies, 9-7, Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 and San Diego Padres tripped Chicago Cubs 5-4.

Staub's game-winning blast, his ninth of the season, came after Max Leon, 1-1, had gotten Dave Cash to hit into a double play. Seaver, 13-4, scattered nine hits to become the National League's second 13-game winner, joined Don Sutton of Los Angeles Dodgers.

Willie Davis and Ron Fairly pounded home runs and Ted Simmons collected four hits, leading St. Louis and John Denny over San Francisco. Backed by a 15-hit attack, Denny coasted to his fourth victory with an eight-hitter.

Oscar Cedeno's run-scoring single in the 10th gave Houston its triumph over Montreal. Trailing 3-0 after 1½ innings, Houston finally caught up when Doug Rader hit his 20th homer of the season with one out in the ninth inning off starter Dennis Blair.

Johnny Bench drilled a game-tying home run and scored the go-ahead run on Hal McRae's single in the sixth as Cincinnati Reds whipped Philadelphia. Bench walloped his 18th homer leading off to pull the Reds into a 5-5 tie.

Cincinnati's Joe Morgan at second base and Dave Concepcion at shortstop complete the infield.

Cincinnati's Johnny Bench, leading NL vote-getter with 3,- 020,147 ballots, will be the starting catcher.

Brock and Concepcion are the only chances from last year's NL starters. Brock replaced Alou time home run king-Hank Aaron, traded to the American League Milwaukee Brewers during the winter, and Concepcion beat out Bowa, last year's starter, for shortstop.

Manager Walt Alston of the Dodgers named a nine-man pitching staff instead of the week—Andy Messersmith, Don Sutton and Mike Marshall from his team. Tom Seaver and Jon Matlack of the New York Mets, Tug McGraw of Philadelphia, Phil Niekro of Atlanta, Randy Jones of San Diego and Dock Ellis of Pittsburgh. He will complete his 25-man roster with reserves to be announced Friday.

The American League starters, for next Tuesday night's game in Milwaukee, will be announced today.

Expo Strategy Backfires; Cesar Delivers for Astros

CESAR CEDENO

HOUSTON (AP) — Montreal pitcher Don DeMola gambled Wednesday with a little bunt—Houston Astros counterfielder Cesar Cedeno—and it blew up in his face in the 10th inning.

At the time, it seemed like a good bet. Cedeno, hitting well below his lifetime average, had gone hitless in four previous at-bats but in the 10th inning he slugged a single to right field to break a 3-3 tie and give the Astros their fourth straight victory, 4-3.

With first base open, Cedeno thought DeMola might intentionally walk him.

"My first thought was that they might walk me to set up the double play," Cedeno said. "But they decided to pitch to me and I could not blame them. Really, I mean it. I had been up four times previously in the game and I didn't do anything. "Twice I had runners in scoring position, but they got me out. But they have to either pitch to me or Bill (Bob Watson). I'm glad they pitched to me. It was a pretty good move for us. I liked the way it turned out.

Astros manager Preston Gomez most liked the way pitcher Ken Forsch turned out. He liked him so much, in fact, Forsch has earned a spot in the starting rotation.

"Ken Forsch will go into the starting rotation," Gomez said. "He's started it. Ken is just retiring the feel of starting after being in the bullpen for two years. He changed speeds well and he's getting better every start."

Forsch pitched a strong eight innings, although he didn't get the victory, yielding all three of the Expos' runs.

Montreal scored the game's first run on Mike Jorgensen's single in the first inning and went ahead 3-0 in the second on Pepe Mangual's two-run double.

The Astros started rallying in the second with one run on Roger Metzger's sacrifice fly.

The Astros got another run in the third on Cedeno's walk and third baseman Doug Rader blasted his sixth homer of the season into the right-field seats in the ninth inning to force the game into extra innings.

Jim Wynn Cracks All-star Lineup

NEW YORK (AP) — A final-week surge of votes has hiked Jim Wynn of Los Angeles Dodgers into the National League's starting lineup for baseball's 1973 all-star game, it was announced Wednesday.

Wynn overtook Del Unser of New York Mets, who was leading for the third starting berth in the outfield. Final vote totals showed, four Cincinnati Reds' starters and three Dodgers among the NL's eight starters.

Wynn joins Pete Rose of Cincinnati and Lou Brock of St. Louis Cardinals in the NL outfield for next Tuesday's game in Milwaukee.

Rose has been playing third base but was listed on the ballot as an outfielder. Brock, who set an all-time record with 118 stolen bases last season, had 1,- 367,460 votes.

Poles Are Hot

TORONTO (CP) — The Polish national soccer team gave a repeat performance Wednesday of its lopsided 8-1 Sunday victory over the Canadian nationals in Montreal when it defeated the Canadian side 4-1 at Varsity Stadium before 14,231 fans.

From the outset, the vastly-superior Polish side controlled play and mounted a 4-1 lead at the half. It coasted with mild substitutes through the final six minutes of pre-Olympic play.

Poland's third-place finishers behind West Germany and the Netherlands in last year's World Cup in Munich, got two goals from Andrzej Szarmach and singles from Jozsef Kwiatkowski and international star Kazimierz Deryna.

Canada's goal was by Chris Bennett of Vancouver.

Angels Shade Orioles 3-2

Brooks Is Hot and Cold

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was poetic justice.

First, Brooks Robinson took advantage of a third-strike wild pitch that would have ended the eighth inning, and delivered a two run single to put Baltimore Orioles in front of California Angels 3-1 in an American League baseball game Wednesday night.

But in the bottom of the eighth, the brilliant Robinson, winner of 15 consecutive Gold Glove awards as the American League's premier fielding third baseman, made a wild throw—only his second error all season—and the Angels promptly rebounded for a 3-2 victory on Dave Collins' two-run pinch triple.

Elsewhere, Boston Red Sox wiped out a seven deficit and edged Minnesota Twins 9-8, Texas Rangers blanked New York Yankees 4-0, Milwaukee Brewers downed Kansas City Royals 6-4, Oakland A's beat Cleveland Indians 5-1 and Detroit Tigers won their eighth in a row, beating Chicago White Sox 6-2.

The Red Sox increased their lead in the East Division to two games over New York and Milwaukee and six other Baltimore while Boston has a seven-game bulge over Kansas City in the AL West.

BROOKS ROBINSON

Robinson's error to start the Angels' eighth was followed by a sacrifice. Doyle Alexander replaced Ross Grimsley with a 2-0 count on Winston Llenas and completed the walk to pinch hitter Joe Lahoud. Collins was then called upon to pinch hit for the first time in his 3½ year pro career and delivered his big triple.

Jim Rice's two-out double in the bottom of the ninth inning scored Doug Griffin with the winning run as Boston beat Minnesota. Boston had tied the game earlier in the ninth on Cecil Cooper's pinch homer.

Don Money hammered two solo home runs and Bobby Darwin hit one for the Brewers in their win over the Royals. Money led off the game with his fourth homer of the season and hit No. 5 in the fifth. Darwin's 10th homer triggered a four-run uprising against Nelson Briles in the second.

Ferguson Jenkins pitched a four-hitter for his first shutout in his win over Cleveland. Bowman, who started the season with the Indians, gave up two hits, both in the fourth, Cleveland didn't score until the sixth.

Bill Freehan hit a three-run homer and Jack Pierce drove in Detroit's other three runs with a single and a grounder. Ray Bare scattered eight hits, including Brian Downing's two-run homer, the first runs off Tiger pitching in 31 innings.

Although they're still in last place, Chicago manager Chuck Tanner said the Tigers "will be right now. They're playing the best ball in the league. If anybody told me we'd only get three runs in the three-game series I wouldn't have believed it."

Wins Title

BAASTAD, Sweden (AP) — Sue Barker of Britain won the women's singles title and $4,000 in the $20,000 Swedish Open tennis championships for the second consecutive year, beating Helga Masthoff of West Germany 6-4, 6-4 Wednesday. Jaast Conners, Newberry and Pam Teeguarden of the U.S. took the doubles title, beating Raquel Giscafre of Argentina and Fiorella Bonicelli of Uruguay 6-3, 6-3. Defending men's singles champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden moved into the second round, defeating South Africa's Ray Moore 8-3, 6-3.

Newmarket Takes Macs In Extra-inning Match

By TOM Gavey
Sports Staff

Fans got what they paid for on Wednesday night when they saw, the Belleville McDonalds play the powerhouse Newmarket Rays.

Mixed into the games were fine defensive plays, strong pitching and some well placed hits. Unfortunately, the Macs still came out losers as Newmarket outscored Belleville 3-1, in Ontario Fastball League action.

Newmarket scored in the top of the eighth when Les Downing (last year's batting champ) brought Derek Kinnersley in on a double.

The Macs came right back in the bottom of that inning, scoring when Carl Boomhower got on base and moved home on Dan Lahey's misplaying of Terry Meagher's well hit single. The run tied the game up and gave Meagher his 88th RBI of the year.

It all fell apart in the ninth though, when pitcher Bill Lunney reached base on a Belleville error. He was brought in along with Kinnersley (who had walked) when Dan Lahey smacked a triple to left field.

Lahey was then scored on a Macs' downfall, as they couldn't come back in the bottom of the ninth. Wayne McTaggart singled with one out but couldn't be advanced any further.

Bob Bibler took the mound duties for Belleville and did a good job on the Newmarket bats, giving up only six hits and striking out seven batters. Only one Ray run was earned.

Bill Lunney struck out 10 Belleville batters to take the win for the Rays.

At the plate Terry Meagher and Wayne McTaggart each had two singles, while Glenn Carleton and Larry Mavety both reached base on safeties once.

Downing had a pair of triples to lead the Newmarket offence.

Paul Goodfellow made one of the defensive gems of the game when he grabbed what looked like a sure single for the third out in the fourth inning.

Jose Pinga of Newmarket made a number of outstanding plays at short including leaping up for a ball which should have gone for a single. Who hit it? Paul Goodfellow.

The next McDonald home game isn't until July 23, when they meet the Toronto Waxman Globals at Alemite Park for a single game.

In OHer OFL action on Wednesday night the Woodstock Warriors came within two games of regaining first place in the East Division, by defeating Oshawa 9-1 in the first game of a doubleheader, and 9-0 by default when Phil Solomon was injured and Oshawa could not field a full team.

In Kitchener the Evergreens defeated the Toronto Waxman Globals 6-1.

Legion's Steve Carr

Twin Victories

Chalk up a pair of wins for Belleville Legion in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association hantam action.

Playing at home Wednesday, Branch 99 shaded Peterborough 5-4 after taking Kingston Lions by a 6-4 count, in Kingston, Tuesday.

Lefty Kerry Rasdaird went the distance to get the Wednesday win, limiting Peterbor rough to six hits while fanning six and walking three. Gord Lewis was the loser. He recorded 12 strikeouts but 13 Belleville hits proved his undoing.

Dafoe each cracked three singles and Kerry Rasdaird a double and single for Legion. Steve McCrory banged two singles.

Joe Lustic had two Peterborough hits, both singles.

Tuesday, Steve Curr got the Legion win, with relief help from Radford. They combined talents for 11 strikeouts while walking two and surrendering 10 base hits.

Ian Stalker went the distance in defeat. He allowed eight hits while fanning eight and walking five.

Bruce Bell's four singles led the Belleville offensive. Radford supplied a pair of singles.

Don Cyr was Kingston's big man with two doubles and a single.

In other Wednesday EOBA hantam action, Kevin Fairfax carried State Farm of Trenton past Kingston, in Trenton, 7-4.

Patrick not only went all the way to get the Trenton win, he powered a pair of homers for the home side. Brian Hanson also smashed a two-run home run for Trenton.

At the peewee level, Belleville Broadcom struck for three runs in the top of the fifth inning on the way to a 6-2 win in Port Hope.

Glenn McQuaid worked the first five innings for Broadcom, givint up both Port Hope runs off three hits and four walks. He fanned five.

Tony Parks finished up, firing two innings of hitless ball while striking out one to nail down the win.

The bulk of the losers' pitching was handled by Bernie Semma who toiled six innings, allowing seven hits while striking out five and walking four, Randy Sutton worked the last frame.

McQuaid doubled and singled for the winners. Parks contributed a pair of singles while Brian Cronkright, John Dent, Stu Emerson, Dave Mortenson and Charlie Doran each singled once.

Shawn Wakely had the losers' big hit, a double.

In a Tuesday night match at Oshawa, Belleville Elliott Motors came up with a 14-6 win.

Robbie Revay was the winning pitcher and took time out to help his cause by hammering a home run. Jim Cook and Bill Harvey each tripled and singled and Robert Boomhower connected for a double and two singles.

victory.

Lockhart's One-hitter Puts Posties on Track

After a series of losses, the Post Office got back on the winning side Wednesday night in Belleville Industrial Softball League action.

The Postmen took a 3-1 victory from the Independents, with Norm Lockhart hurling an excellent one-hitter.

In other league action, The Intelligencer dropped a decision to CNRA 8-3, and UIC defeated Canadian Tire 8-1.

In the Post Office victory Lockhart gave up two walks and blew 11 third strikes by Independent batters.

Greg Bebo threw the loss, giving up seven hits and two walks while striking out six.

Ron Marriott and Lockhart doubled and singled while Steve Cockburn came up with a triple. George Foote doubled for the losers.

CNRA's win over The Intelligencer put them into fourth place in the West.

Brian Plumbe buried the CNRA win, giving up nine hits and no walks while striking out four.

Joey Edwards and Davey Feeney combined for the losers, giving up seven hits and seven walks while striking out nine.

Junior Day powered a round tripper for CNRA, while Plumbe, Warren Hay and Clive Williams doubled.

Fred Slater, Kevin Andrea and Glynn Reynolds hit two singles each for The Intelligencer.

Joe Scalzo and Rick Sullivan combined again, to take UIC to an 8-1 victory over Canadian Tire.

The two gave up five hits and no walks while striking out two batters.

Andy Pradden took the loss, giving up 10 hits and one walk.

Ron Emberry pounded a homer for UIC while Joe Clark and Bob Rohde singled twice.

Prudden singled twice for the losers.

Belleville Broadloom took an easy 21-7 victory from Lakeside Oxygen, to solidify their position in third place in the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League, Wednesday night.

Mary Anne Sills gave up six hits and seven walks while striking out five in the win.

The loss went to Bonnie Goodfellow.

Suzanne Sills singled and tripled for the winners, while Linda Cole came through with a single and a double and Chris Fyke had three singles.

Debbie Ricketts had a triple and Shirley Best had a double for the losers.

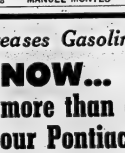
Olympics Big Winners But Lose Coach Montes

Service commitments nearly always have an upsetting effect on Canadian Forces Base teams involved in sports.

That point was brought home in no uncertain terms, Wednesday at Canadian Forces Base Trenton when the service team, forced to go with only nine players for the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association match, was crushed 15-0 by Belleville Olympics.

While Olympics were romping to the one-sided victory, any unrestrained joy some players may have felt in the harvest of goals was curtailed shortly after the mismatch when it was learned Manuel Montes has been forced to surrender the coaching reins.



MANUEL MONTES

Montes, his coaching stint interrupted by his work, will be temporarily replaced by John O'Neill. A new coach will be named following a July 17 meeting of club officials.

In another SOFA Wednesday match, Belleville Parsons, netting goals from George Tsui and Dave Langille, fell to Colonel Fraser of Trenton 4-2.

Chris Johnson was a three-goal shooter for Olympics. O'Neill, Fuszard and Gary Donavan each clicked for a pair with singles for Bob Watson, Chris Hinkle, Gary Roberts, Montes, Bruce Mohr and Kevin Kirby.

Quinte Raceway

Special Features Set

It'll be a big night for race enthusiasts on Friday at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway as two special races will be held.

In the sixth race the Jess Mowerls Memorial Pace will be run, with only "maidens" (horses who have never won a race) or under $500 lifetime winners running in the race.

The race will be well worthwhile for those who are running. With the purse of $300 there a cooler (blanket) and a memorial trophy.

"The horse have never won before, but that doesn't mean anything. It will be a good race, some nice horses are competing" stated one track official.

The feature race in the ninth will be the Mabel R. Fielding Invitational, with a purse of $600. Some of the better horses in the area will be running.

Gallant Mor, driven by Roy LaRush is a fine example of the quality race it will be. Also entered is Charnty Chick, driven by Pat Hunt and Bob Ron Robby, driven by Brian Bellamy, to name three.

The race should be a close one.

On July 18 the Ontario Sires Stakes return to Belleville, this time for the two year old colts, and, as usual, this will be a racing highlight.

Federal Budget Increases Gasoline Prices

NOW... more than ever our Pontiac Astre is really on the mark!

Here's a Stylish, Practical way to offset the constantly increasing cost of motoring

PONTIAC ASTRE — ECONOMY FIRST CLASS.

As standard equipment, all Astres have electronic High-Energy Ignition for quick, sure starts. And front disc brakes for straight-line, fade-resistant stopping. And a fail-safe electric fuel pump. And a coolant recovery system that also helps keep your travelling worry-free. Because of these and many other features, and because you're surrounded by the solid construction of an all-welded unitized body, you drive your Astre with a great feeling of confidence. You know you can depend on your car!

Astre's overhead cam, 2-barrel engine is built for long-distance dependability, with reserve power for passing on the highway and quick response for stop-and-go driving in the city. It delivers good mileage on unleaded or regular gas (should you choose unleaded fuels, Astre is designed to save money by extending some of the regularly-scheduled maintenance intervals).

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF GM'S NEW 60,000 MILE/5 YEAR WARRANTY ON ASTRE'S ENGINE.

Exhibition Games Decided Late

Ottawa, Calgary Learn How to Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa Rough Riders and Calgary Stampeders used late-game heroics Wednesday night to post their first victories of the Canadian Football League exhibition schedule.

At Ottawa, split end Rhome Nixon's diving touchdown catch with 25 seconds left to play gave the Rough Riders a 20-18 Roughriders.

Rookie Gerald Kunyk booted a single wit hone second left in the game to give Calgary Stampeders a 19-18 come-from-behind win over Winnipeg Blue Bomber.

Ottawa's win was its first in three games, having lost previous pre-season encounters 21-20 to Edmonton Eskimos and 41-31 to British Columbia Lions.

The Stampeders win evened their record at 1-1 after losing their first game of the season by a 19-18 score to Montreal Alouettes.

Nixon hauled in the 31-yard pass from rookie quarterback Condredge Holloway for the touchdown set up by a 49-yard pass-and-run by halfback Jim Fley before 17,022 fans.

Saskatchewan had pulled into a 18-13 lead just 20 seconds earlier when wide receiver Gene Maturak caught a Randy Mac tingly pass in the corner of the Ottawa end zone. Ottawa trailed 8-7 going into the final quarter but Gerry Organ kicked field goals of 30 and 11 yards to move Ottawa ahead.

George Reed scored for Saskatchewan on a five-yard plunge in the second quarter and Bruce Berg converted one Saskatchewan touchdown and added an eight-yard field goal in the first quarter.

The crowd of 17,563 at Winnipeg watched Kunyk's single sail into the end zone, followed by a swarm of Calgary tackler . Defender Walt McKee had little chance to return the kick or run it out.

Calgary place-kicker Cyril McFall missed three field goal attempts, but his 40-yarder with two minutes left barely made it through the uprights to tie the game 18-18 and set the stage for Kunyk's game-winning single.

Winnipeg went ahead early in the fourth quarter when Ralph Brock, who replaced Winnipeg starting quarterback Chuck Ealey at the beginning of the final quarter, fired a 19-yard touchdown pass to Tom Scott.

Calgary got 18 first downs to Winnipeg's 20 but the Stampeders had a total offence of 315 yards, compared with 285 by the Bombers.

In the only game tonight, Toronto Argonauts play host to the Alouettes.

The Argonauts announced Wednesday the release of Billy Corbett, a 275-pound offensive tackle who chose the CFL although he was the No. 1 draft choice of Cleveland Browns in 1973.

Corbett, a six-foot-four graduate of Johnson C. Smith College in Charlotte, N.C., was accompanied by considerable publicity when he spurned the National Football League and came to Canada.

Ross Jackson, the Argos' coach, explained that Corbett's inability to switch from tackle to offensive guard, where he plan to use two Americans this season, was the reason for his release.

Course 'Sleeping Giant'

Peter Tames Carnoustie

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — Carnoustie's 7,065-yard, par-72 championship course is a "sleeping giant," says Hale Irwin, the 1974 U.S. Open golf champion.

And anyone hoping to win the British Open title—and the $40,000 that goes with it—must be praying the giant doesn't wake up.

Peter Oosterhuis, the tall British favorite, tamed Carnoustie on Wednesday with a four-under-par 68 to gain the lead in the field of 153.

But Jack Nicklaus, the favorite, also tamed this famed course and stands just one stroke back going into today's second round.

Tied with Nicklaus were Irwin, Australians Jack Newton and Bob Shearer, and South Africans Andries Oosthuizen and David Huish.

Almost without exception, the leaders came in grief on the last hole—a 448-yard, par-four split twice by a looping burn that cuts across the fairway and again just in front of the green.

Nicklaus was five under par at one stage but fired a bogey on the final hole to lose a share of the lead. Also bogeying No. 18 were Oosthuizen and Irwin.

The consensus among the players is that the course was relatively docile Wednesday. But all of them were very about what could happen if the wind—as far scarcely strong enough to ruffle the flags declining the course—should suddenly blow in from the sea.

CPGA Championship

The Serious Play To Begin Today

TORONTO (CP) — Par has been taking a beating in pre-tournament action but a couple of the favorites feel the good times won't last when serious action begins today in the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship.

George Knudson and Ben Kern of Toronto turned in the most recent of the record-breaking rounds Wednesday when they both shot 64, seven under par on the 6,445-yard Bayview Golf and Country Club layout and two under the course record set by Artie McNicole of Sacramento, Calif., when he won the Canadian Open last year.

Earlier, defending champion Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., fired a 66 and Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., a 65 in unofficial practice rounds.

The 64s by Kern and Knudson tied them for first in Wednesday's pro-am event.

Cowan Leader

KITCHENER Ont. (CP) — Gary Cowan of Kitchener has had more than his share of problems with the seventh hole on the Westmount Golf and Country Club course.

Cowan, who leads the Ontario amateur golf tournament going into today's third round, has shot a double-bogey six on the par-four, 445-yard hole for two consecutive days.

"It's my favorite hole," said the 26-year-old, two-time U.S. amateur champion. "It's a par six, isn't it?"

Cowan has a 142 total after two rounds on his home course, shooting a 71 Wednesday after an opening-round 71.

Cowan says he's got a mental block concerning the hole, and can't seem to shake the jinx.

However, that seemed to be his only problem Wednesday as he carded the only sub-par round of the day. Cross-winds, which weren't a factor in the first round, whipped through the trees giving most of the golfers problems.

Mike Meadia of Toronto, the first-round leader, soared to a three-over-par 75, giving him a 145 total and a tie for second place with 19-year-old Rod Spittle of Niagara Falls, who had rounds of 72 and 73.

Sixty-two players made the cut set at 158 for today's round. A further cut to the low 40 and ties will be made after today's round for the final round Friday.

Bolts Paced By Thompson

QUEBEC (CP) — Boston Bolts pulled into a fifth-place tie with Quebec, defeating the Caribous 15-13 in the only National Lacrosse League game Wednesday night.

Brian Thompson scored four goals to pace the Bolts and Chuck Lt. John Allen and Brian Davidson added two each. Brian Evans scored three goals for the losers, while Murray Cawker, Dave Durante, John McDonald and Bruce Murdock had two apiece.

For years, Sam and the guys have been trying to get old Betsy back on the road. So far, the only thing that's gone right is their beer.

Judge Approves Sale of Penguins But What Next?

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A United States judge has approved the sale of the bankrupt Pittsburgh Penguins to a group headed by Columbus, Ohio, businessman Al Savill. But one major question remains to be answered before the $3.8 million transaction is completed.

That is, who will get the National Hockey League's $600,000 franchise fee—the league or the court, which would distribute proceeds from the sale to the Penguins' creditors.

U.S. District Court Judge Hubert I. Teitelbaum left the question unanswered when he approved the sale to Savill and his two partners on Wednesday. The NHL board of governors will take up the issue of the sale Friday in Toronto.

The league contends that the Penguins' franchise ceased to exist when the club went bankrupt, and the new owners must buy a franchise from the NHL.

Lawyers for three guarantors of the club contend, however, that the franchise is a tangible asset of the club, just as players and office equipment are, and should be included in the sale price.

"I'm holding in abeyance whether the $600,000 franchise fee belongs to the club or the league," said Teitelbaum.

He approved the sale on condition that none of the $600,000 could be paid by Savill to the NHL for one year, saying that will give guarantors time to file objections concerning the franchise fee.

The bankrupt club has known debts totalling more than $4.5 million, including $1 million to the NHL, $382,500 to the Internal Revenue Service and $5 million to Equibank.

Lawyers for guarantors said they want to make certain the $600,000 is not a back-door way of paying part of the NHL debt.

Meanwhile, Savill said his partners include Wren Blair, who was general manager of Minnesota North Stars for eight years before he was fired about a year ago, and Otto N. Frenzel, board chairman of the Merchants National Bank and Trust Co. of Indianapolis.

Blair owns Saginaw Gears of the International Hockey League. He also spent seven years with the Boston Bruins organization.

RADIALS ARE THE GREATEST

That's what Radial fans say! They know their money buys safety, long mileage, high performance and gas economy. If all this means more to you than initial low cost, then Radials could be right for you. True, they cost more but users are convinced they deliver more!

Compare Canadian Tire Radial prices and you'll find them considerably less than elsewhere!

If you find immediately after buying and trying our Radials, they don't perform as expected, return them to the store of purchase for refund (service charges excluded). Check for trial-offer terms when you buy.

BIRTHS

ORTENBECK — Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Overton are pleased to announce the birth of their first grandchild, John Christine, 7 lbs., 3 ozs., on Saturday, July 5th, 1975 at the Belleville General Hospital. Proud parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ortenbeck. A niece for Jennie.

LOCKRIDGE — Big brother Johnny is pleased to announce the birth of happy arrival of baby sister Jennifer Lee, 7 lbs., on Friday, June 27, 1975 at Quinte Hospital, Prince Edward County Hospital. Proud parents are John and Mary Lockridge. Special thanks to Dr. Jobber, Dr. Thomsen and nurses.

IN MEMORIAM

MORGAN — In loving memory of a dear father, Burl Morgan, who passed away July 10, 1971.

One year has passed since the end of time.
When one we love and cherish died,
God took him home — It was His will,
Within our hearts he dwells still.
—Ever remembered by daughter Ann and son-in-law Jack Hubbard and family.

MORGAN — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Burl Morgan, who passed away July 10, 1971.

His life was spent with actions kind,
A generous heart and an active mind,
Anxious to please, both in deed,
A loving husband and faithful friend,
To his family he was always dear,
Their memories of him are always near,
The memory of these happy days,
Which we will always treasure.
—Dearly loved by his wife Madeline.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Stanley, who passed away July 10, 1972.

The years may slowly roll by,
But this they will never do,
Dear Dad, we love and miss you.
When we were all gathered together
Always remembered by Mart, Barb and Ron and Sharon.

BRANT — In loving memory of a dear brother Carl Brant, who died in Dearborn, Michigan, who passed away July 10, 1970.

O happy hours we once enjoyed,
Though now they seem so few,
But death has taken one away,
The world can never fill.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by sisters Shirley and Retta and brother Lloyd.

MORGAN — In loving memory of a dear father, Thomas Burl Morgan, who passed away July 10, 1971.

Today recalls memories of the past,
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who knew him best,
Are those who loved him best.
The flowers will fade and die,
The tears we shed will dry,
But the love for him who lies beneath,
Will never fade away.
—Ever remembered by son, daughter and their families.

MORGAN — In loving memory of a dear father, Thomas Burl Morgan, who passed away July 10, 1971.

From the darkness of sorrow,
From the pain of loss,
Comes the memory of a loved one,
Who suffered so much,
Who bore so much,
Who gave so much,
Who was so brave,
Who never deserved what you went through.
Who was not there to see you die,
Who was not there to say goodbye,
But you stood the test and did it well,
And with reverence you went through.
—Sadly but words we had with you.
Ever remembered and loved by son Harold, daughter-in-law Barbara and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our sincere thanks to Dr. Kidner and all the nursing staff, especially R.N.A. and physiotherapist of extended care, all loved for their kindness to our late husband during his stay in hospital and extended care. Also for the many kindnesses shown in beautiful cards and flowers. To Mr. Vanclief and Mr. J. Sheppard of the Belleville Funeral Home, Rev. J. Abbott, Rev. Shaine, Rev. Hamilton, Mr. Ken Hall and Mr. Lloyd Hall for their kind words of comfort. Also to Heart Fund and Gideon Society. To all who sent cards, flowers, prepared lunch and served after the funeral and all who attended the funeral. Thank you one and all, may God bless you.
—Mrs. Ethel Morgan and family.

We wish to thank our many friends, neighbors and relatives for the beautiful gifts, cards and flowers we received for our 50th wedding anniversary. Our thanks also to everyone who in our daughter's absence helped make it a happy occasion. Special thanks to Mary and Ed Howe who looked in any way with the wonderful party.
—George and Reta Albers.

I would like to express my sincere thanks to Father Grainger, Harold Brennan and Dr. Mustard, the nurses and staff on the Intensive Care Unit and 10th floor, Belleville General Hospital, for their kindness and thoughtfulness during my recent illness.
—Sincerely, Mrs. Theresa Jamieson.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to express my sincere thanks to my many friends, relatives and family for lovely flowers, gifts, cards and visits during my recent illness. Special thanks to Drs. Linscott, Tessier, Dr. Pearce and Dr. Williamson, to the nursing staff, doctors and staff on the orthopedic floor for their kindness for my stay in hospital and extended care at Belleville General Hospital and a sincere thank you to all the nursing and other people in the hospital that took part in helping me recover. Their friendship all meant so much to me.
—Sincerely Elaine Evans.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Mason, Coleman, are pleased to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter Sharon Lee to Mr. Gary Lee Bowen, son of Mr. Gerald Bowen, Picton and the late Mrs. Edna M. Bowen. The service of holy Matrimony to take place August 9th, 1975 at St. Andrew's United Church, Colborne.

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Dumelow, 52 Highland Ave., will be at home to all of their friends, on the occasion of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, Saturday, July 12 at 2 p.m. Your presence will be a gift to us and bring very good wishes.

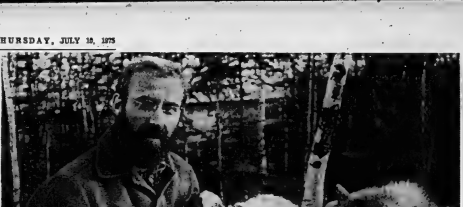
Teams Entered

LONDON (CP) — The Royal Ocean Club has confirmed that a record 19 teams have entered the 630-mile International Admiral's Cup ocean racing series that will begin the beginning of August. Counties now in the event are Switzerland, Hong Kong and Canada.

Eye-catching Moment

HEADCORN, England (CP) — Mary Tasnell felt like a "million dollars" when she wore her new dress out shopping at the store. But she was soon the envy of every shop girl when a crowd of admirers gathered her. "I didn't feel so good when I discovered I was being caught up in the top of my knickers," she said.



Biologist Bill Carpenter is surrounded by purebred Eskimo huskies at his home near Yellowknife, N.W.T. The 25-year-old Calgary native, who estimates there are fewer than 250 purebred Eskimo huskies in Canada, blames snowmobiles and cross-breeding with pet dogs for their shrinking numbers. (CP Photo).

Husky Savior

Biologist Tries to Save Huskies

(CP) — The howling that drifts into Bill Carpenter's living room from the bush and rocks outside is eerie and deathlike. But it's the sound of life.

Mr. Carpenter, a bearded biologist and local kennel owner, is trying to save the purebred Eskimo husky from extinction. And the howling outside his A-frame house on the fringe of this territorial capital is proof.

The 33-year-old Calgary native estimates there are fewer than 250 purebred Eskimo huskies in Canada, a number he termed dangerously low.

Mr. Carpenter has spent the last two years combing the Arctic for purebred huskies left in Canada. Forty of Kenbigo's dogs are pictured and chained up on part of his almost two metres of property.

He bought some of the animals and was given some by Eskimos of the Hudson Bay Arctic, where the husky, pushed to the brink of extinction by the snowmobile and cross-breeding with pet dogs, is making its last stand.

Technically, according to the Canadian Kennel Club records, the Eskimo husky is extinct.

It was among the first breeds recognized by the club 85 years ago, but there hasn't been a husky registered with the club since 1963. Carpenter discovered that the breeding stock in kennels had simply died out.

With no pedigreed Eskimo huskies, there were no dogs officially recognized as having the blood lines of the pure-bred animal.

Despite the optimistic start for his project to re-register the Eskimo husky as a pedigreed animal and return the new generations of dogs to the Eskimo communities and selected southern breeders, Mr. Carpenter is concerned that the future of the animal still isn't assured.

The project could falter if it doesn't receive some help, he says.

Mr. Carpenter has spent $2,500 of his own money and received the support of Pacific Western Airlines, which donated $3,000 worth of freighting and helped to fly some dogs from Resolute Bay to Yellowknife.

The government of the Northwest Territories, where Mr. Carpenter works as a research officer, has also helped out as have smaller northern air carriers such as Northward and Nordair.

But the project's requirements are more basic now.

The dogs need larger pens and are gobbling up $50 worth of food weekly.

"We're in desperate need of some kind of sponsorship until such time as we can have the line registered and the breeders set up," said Mr. Carpenter.

"We've gone this far, but I can't go any further on my own."

Unless he receives some financial help, Mr. Carpenter will have to sell the dogs just to pay his bills.

"I don't want to do that, because that's putting it on a commercial basis."

He expects it will be three to five years before his breeding of the three strains he has collected is completed. Then, with three generations of huskies, he will have sufficient documentation of the dogs' parentage and purity to reinstate them with the Canadian Kennel Club.

Some dogs would then be returned to Eskimo communities interested in breeding purebred huskies. Others will be sent to Eskimo outrange where they can return with their masters to the traditional life-style.

Before any dogs are sent south, Mr. Carpenter will consult with the Eskimos and seek the advice of the Canadian Kennel Club to whom the huskies should be given to.

U.S. Cannons Will Boom Across Abraham Plains

QUEBEC (CP) — American-cloned cannon will boom across the Plains of Abraham in October, marking the 200th anniversary of an American invasion of Canada.

Ceremonial "troops" now are training on both sides of the border for re-enactment of the 1775 assault by American flintlock riflemen on this fortress city during the American Revolution.

But only blanks will be fired as Americans and Canadians dramatize a little-remembered episode of history when Quebec beat back the revolutionary attack with the fate of half a continent hanging in the balance.

The invasion linked such diverse figures as Benedict Arnold, who led one American force in a killing march through the wilds of Maine and Quebec province to the gates of this city, and Benjamin Franklin, who led a fruitless diplomatic mission to a conquered but restless Montreal.

Maj.Gen. Richard Montgomery, the American commander, had come up Lake Champlain and the Richelieu River through Montreal only to die here in a blast of fire that killed his aide-de-camp, Aaron Burr, later vice-president of the United States. Montgomery was succeeded in the American command by Benedict Arnold, later a traitor to the American cause, but even at the end of history's ledger the items of infamy can be confusing.

Arnold's campaign was a miserable winter, many dying of typhus and cold, up to the bleak Dead River Dy, crested during the Klondike gold rush and once so heavily populated by American Indians that July 4 and July 4 were celebrated as one.

Legion Tourney Success

Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 99, having staged its first golf tournament for women, found the experiment so successful, they'll do it again, July 30.

Playing at Bayview Golf Centre the convenient par 3 course just west of the city, Barbara Deenke of Legion scored first low gross while Gloria Beatty, also of Legion, was next in line. Third low gross went to Marilyn McLeod of ANAF.

Prizes for the tournament were donated by Bayview Golf Centre, Black Diamond Cheese, Southern Heating, City Cleaners, Rollie's Sports Centre, Ina Rollins, Adams Furniture, Joe Drummond, Jack Fitzgerald and Branch 99.

Assisting in the organizing of the event were Glen Hale, Dave Feasey, Jeff Miller and Bob Mendelbrite.

The July 26 tournament is open to women from all service clubs.

Girls' Softball

BYBF Wins Two

In the Senior division of the girls Belleville Minor Softball Association BYBF picked up a couple of wins, defeating Avco 35-16 and Mel Marriage 18-7.

SSM defeated Mel Marriage 39-17 and Avco just got by SSM 20-19 in other senior games.

In the intermediate division it was Clayton's 20 and BYBF 8, while the Cosy Grill gave it to the Conductors 42-21.

The Quinte Wire-Inn defeated Tebby's in a close match, 20-26.

In a well-played game, Clayton's defeated Conductors 7-6 while DCZEA defeated Dairy Queen 19-0.

Over in Junior Division Branch 99 outscored Reid's 21-18 and Avco also did much the same thing to BYBF, defeating them 42-15.

Little Misses took on Reid's and defeated them 21-9 but lost to the BYBF 9-2.

Dairy Queen slipped by Dixie Lee 17-15 and they defeated Branch 99 25-14 in other league action.

NAMES CREWS

HAMBURG, West Germany (Reuter) — West Germany named nine crews Wednesday, including Tempest class world champion Uwe Mares, for next week's pre-olympic regatta in Kingston, Ontario. The West German Sailing Association nominated two crews each in the Finn Dinghy, Flying Dutchman, Tornado and Tempest classes and one Solings class.

SIGN MASTERS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League announced Wednesday the signing of 39-year-old defenceman Jamie Masters, their second choice in last month's NHL amateur draft. Masters led all defencemen in scoring in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series last season, picking up 26 goals and 69 assists for 95 points for Ottawa 67's.

EXPOS GET MCMULLEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos have signed outfielder Dale McMullen, their second-round choice in last month's free-agent draft, the National League baseball club said Wednesday. McMullen, 18, a righthanded batter who hit .416 and had 14 home runs with St. Pius High School of Houston this season, is to report to Lethbridge Expos of the rookie Pioneer League.

CORBETT RELEASED

TORONTO (CP) — Billy Corbett, a 275-pound offensive tackle who chose the Canadian Football League although he was the No. 1 draft choice of Cleveland Browns of the National Football League in 1974, was released Wednesday by Toronto Argonauts. Russ Jackson, Argos coach, said Corbett's inability to switch from tackle to offensive guard was the reason for the release.

DISALLOWS PROTESTS

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee MacPhail, president of the National's American League, disallowed Wednesday two protests of games. Cleveland Indians protested a July 1 defeat in Detroit, saying the Tigers' Aurelio Rodriguez interfered with a play between home plate and first base. Minnesota Twins had complained about a game recalled California, saying Astro manager Dick Williams had made excessive visits to the mound to talk with pitcher Nolan Ryan.

NEGOTIATIONS OFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiations between National Basketball Association owners and the players' association were suspended Wednesday, the league announced. Alan Rothenberg, chairman of the NBA labor negotiation committee, blamed "the players' refusal to bargain in good faith about three of the items in the current labor contract negotiations"—college draft, option clause and compensation to a team which loses a player who plays out his option—for the halt.

DELAY ACTION

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House education and labor committee voted Wednesday to delay action on legislation that would modify sex discrimination regulations being proposed by the department of health, education and welfare. The committee voted to send two separate pieces of legislation back to subcommittee—a bill that would allow colleges to use income from revenue-producing sports to cover expenses of those sports, and a resolution that would eliminate provisions requiring colleges to assess compliance with the regulations and set up procedures for alleged violations.

2 Close Fits In SHBL Games

Close games were the story Wednesday night in the South Hastings Baseball League, as both scheduled contests were decided by one run.

Shannonville defeated Read 6-5 with Lenny Marmol picking up the win; he gave up five hits.

Pat McKinney took the loss, allowing six hits.

Bill Barbericsick led the winners with two singles and a double while Jason Jarvis' single drove in three runs.

Deseronto defeated Latta 5-4, with Steve Heffernan picking up the win; he gave up nine hits and one walk while striking out seven.

Dave Bamber went to John Hill and Dale Bamber, who gave up four hits and five walks decided by one run.

Wayne Brant pounded a homer for Deseronto's only runs them to the win.

Number hit two round trippers and a single in the loss.

Minor Softball Roundup

Peewee Squads Busy

Peewee teams have had a busy time of it recently, as quite a number of games have been played in Belleville Minor Softball Association action.

Belleville Kinsmen Squirts did well against Malcolm Brothers, defeating them 27-12.

Doug Bennett and Mike Maher took the win with Dennis Tam powering a homer, a double and a single for Kinsmen.

Richard Ellis defeated Dixie Lee 14-3 with Rusty Downey taking the win, with relief help from Ted Uens.

Branch 99 House League Dart scored 22 runs as they handed a 22-12 loss to Stephen Lieden.

Daryl Brennan hit two homers and a triple, along with a double to help his team to the win.

Richard Ellis was victorious over Westgate Carpet 18-8 as Rusty Downey picked up another win.

Stephen Griffin had five hits for the winners, while Downey had three singles.

Sleepy Hollow Licence gave Westgate Carpet another loss as they scored 16 runs to Westgate's 12.

Mike Bennett and Steve Murray shared the win, with Bennett tallying two four bag shots and a double, Murray had a double and two singles.

In Tyke division play AOCO defeated Town and Cosby 15-8 with the pitchers of Todd Cook who also added four singles and a double to the win.

Brian Clarey took the loss, although he hit two singles and powered a homer.

Fraser and O'Neil had little trouble defeating Sun Luck 20-2 as they won 23-12 with Rick Pickell and Craig Holoway picking up the win.

Victory to the Bantam division, the Belleville Police Association was victorious over Shell Car Wash 21-7.

PUTS OFF DECISION

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — The International Lawn Tennis Federation put off a decision Wednesday on admitting China and expelling South Africa. Derick Hardwick of Britain, new president of the federation, said the motion to admit China in place of Taiwan was withdrawn by sponsors—Pakistan, Sri Lanka and Iran, while South Africa was not discussed because the 80 per cent of delegates necessary to take up the question was not achieved. A decision on both questions thus was put off until the next meeting set for July, 1976.

LAPOINTE SIGNED

DETROIT (AP) — Rick LaPointe, 19, has been signed to a multi-year contract with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, general manager Alec Delvecchio said Tuesday. The 200-pound defenceman from Victoria was Detroit's top draft choice this year. Terms were not announced. LaPointe scored 19 goals and 51 assists last season and spent 177 minutes in the penalty box for Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League.

To Your Good Health

Vinegar Won't Help Dieter to Reduce

By G. C. THORTESEON, MD

Dear Dr. Thoreson: I have tried all kinds of diets in order to lose weight, but none of them has ever worked for me. I have read that if a person drinks vinegar in a glass of water at each meal, it will reduce excess weight, so I tried it.

To my delight it worked. I have lost 15 pounds in just a few months. I drink four tablespoons of apple cider vinegar in a glass of water four times a day.

What I am concerned about is the possible danger to my health. Someone told me that drinking that much vinegar could cause ulcers in the stomach. Is this true? Would you advise me to continue doing this?—Mrs. D. K.

I can't buy the vinegar. It is a rather common idea that it will help lose weight.

You must have reduced your caloric intake in some way to have shed the 15 pounds. Vinegar is a rather weak acid to be in the stomach environment. It might injure your teeth enamel before it would your stomach. If you had an ulcer, you might experience some irritation from this, however.

But I see no point in cooling the vinegar. It has no magic qualities that cause weight reduction, and the whole idea represents a rather silly notion of just how the human body acts.

Dear Dr. Thoreson: You mentioned that there are camps available for diabetic children, where their particular needs can be provided for. Last summer, it was helpful, and the thought put me on the right track in getting my child to a place where he could enjoy summer activity like other youngsters.

Won't you please repeat this information in your column so that other parents can be advised about it?—Mrs. T. E.

I am happy to, and I'm pleased it was useful information for you.

Diabetic camps are available, and parents should be aware of them.

Regular camps usually are not equipped to handle such needs as the control of the matter of special diets or insulin therapy.

For some years now various branches of the Canadian Diabetic Association have been organizing camps, providing medical supervision and proper diets for participation.

If you do not have one in your area, you may be able to get information about the nearest one to you from your local association or from your local medical association.

You can also write for information to the Canadian Diabetic Association headquarters at 1491 Yonge Street, Toronto, Ont.

Exercise, fresh air and the outdoor experience are every bit as valuable to the diabetic child as to others.

If such facilities are not available to you in your area, you could begin now to provide for your youngster. It might be interesting other parents and officials in the idea of having a regular camp set aside a week or two as periods when diabetic children can attend.

Dear Dr. Thoreson: Are there any medical tests to determine if one has osteoporosis?—Mrs. A. J.

This is a lessening of bone density, which is, in part at least, a condition that can be a factor of aging. The condition is readily detected by x-ray, and it is often discovered accidentally in x-rays taken for other reasons.

Dear Dr. Thoreson: Recently, while visiting a friend's home I noticed that there was a wasp's nest in the crib with the baby. Is there any danger in this?—Mrs. V. T. S.

The cat should be kept out of the crib.

Curious cats are cuddly pets and like the warmth of the baby's body. However, I don't think this is a good habit to get wise. If the cat spends any time out of doors, it can carry germs and skin infections that can be transmitted to the baby.

TEMPERATURE RISES

So many trees have been cut in the forests surrounding Coeur-d'Alene, Mexico—the "City of Eternal Spring"—that the temperature has gone up 30 degrees.

Best Job Market in Canada Here? Researchers Uncertain

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

While an independent survey released Thursday shows Belleville as having the most prospective job market in Canada, a spokesman for the polling company says the results are misleading.

The survey revealed that more than 85 per cent of the industries approached here forecast their personnel requirements will increase during the year's third quarter, July, August and September.

Authors of the survey Manpower Temporary Services of Toronto are established authorities in job market evaluation, said the city's industrial commissioner Fred Bemis. This most recent survey marks the 91st such document published by the firm.

Belleville manager for Manpower Temporary Services Shirley Campbell said during an interview Friday: "It (survey) doesn't really give a fair picture. Job placement is great right now but it can be up one minute and down the next."

She said approximately 18 Belleville firms were canvassed, while an average of 40 companies were surveyed in the other communities, which included Brockville, Edmonton, Halifax, Kingston, Toronto, Vancouver, Winnipeg and Peterborough.

Commenting on the unusually optimistic Belleville figures, she said: "I don't want to get a lot of people's hopes up."

With such a large percentage of Belleville employers forecasting increases in staff requirements, Belleville stands alone and apart from the general" Canadian economic picture according to the survey.

"The survey of 1,000 employers across 24 provincial capitals and major urban centres is clearly pessimistic about the immediate future--of Canada's economy," the report stated. On a national scale, 22 per cent of companies surveyed forecast staff increases.

The remainder of the firms responded their requirements would either remain static in the third quarter or decrease.

"Disappointing in the survey results are the findings from Kingston at 12.8 percent forecasting increases -- down from 59.1 percent forecasting increases in the same quarter in 1974," the survey states.

Industrial commissioner Bemis was elated when he discussed the report during an interview with this paper Thursday and said "The whole thing just shows that Belleville's economy is way up. Belleville stands alone from the rest of the country."

Mr. Bemis said it would be difficult to pinpoint why Belleville had such a solid employment picture while other nearby municipalities such as Kingston and Brockville would not.

"We have a great deal of stability through the diversity of industry which has located in the city," he said.

"We have had a lot of new industry come to the city of which is increasing its staff requirements as the new business grows," he said.

"Generally, this survey shows an optimism on the part of Belleville employers that business is on the upswing."

The report states certain areas of industry generally responded more optimistically than others. These areas are beverage producers, bakery companies, public utilities and agricultural implement manufacturers.

Compared to Belleville's 85 per cent staffing, staff requirement increases, the next most optimistic centre was Regina with 68.4 per cent.

June Prices Jump Before Gas Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — Sharply higher food prices, particularly for meat, pushed consumer prices up during June at the fastest rate in more than a year, Statistics Canada reported today.

The 1.5-per-cent rise in the consumer price index was the largest since May, 1974, when the index rose 1.7 per cent, and ended a trend of relatively low monthly increases which started in January.

But the worst is yet to come. Statistics Canada warns the June figures do not fully reflect the 10-cents-a-gallon excise tax on gasoline announced in the May 23 budget. That tax measure alone would add a one-half percentage point in July's consumer price index, Statistics Canada estimates.

The Food Prices Review Board predicts food prices—which accounted for more than 30 per cent of the June index change—will continue to rise later in the year. Beef prices were up an average 18 per cent in early June, bringing their level back to that of about a year ago, Statistics Canada said.

Egg prices are also rising, because of government restrictions on imported eggs.

The rate of increase in food prices, seasonally adjusted over a one-year period, was 19.5 per cent in June. That compared with a 4.8-per-cent rise a month earlier. It was the fastest increase for any month so far this year, but still below the increases for each of the final three months of last year.

However, excluding food, consumed prices were up only about eight-tenths of one per cent, about the same rate of increase as during each of the last six months.

Cost of housing, both owned and rented, were once again a major factor in the over-all rise, accounting for most of the increase in the index excluding food. Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson now has conceded government targets for housing starts will not be met this year. Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. has predicted mortgage rates will rise.

Besides housing, higher prices for dry cleaning and laundry, services, higher inter-city air, rail and bus fares and increased prices for recreation equipment pushed up all the major components of the index in June.

Joanne Baldwin, 18, of RR 6, Belleville, and her children Sanya, seven months old and Laverne, 23 months old, were admitted to Belleville General Hospital today following an early morning, single-car crash on Highway 14 just north of Belleville. The three are listed in satisfactory condition. Mrs. Baldwin is being treated for back and pelvis injuries and both children are under observation for head injuries. Police said the car was southbound when the accident occurred. The car was demolished on impact with guard rails at the side of the road.

Socialists Quit Portugal's Regime

LISBON (CP) — Portugal's largest political party, the Socialists, quit the coalition cabinet today after the country's leftist military rulers took over publication of the party newspaper.

The Popular Democrats, who with the Socialists took two thirds of the votes in the April 25 constitutional assembly elections, were expected to follow the Socialists out of the cabinet, ending the facade of public representation in the military-controlled government.

The two parties each had two ministers in the 16-man cabinet but had no voice in the policy of the military regime. This is set by the officers of the Armed Forces Movement (AFM) who overthrew the fascist dictatorship nearly 15 months ago and its politburo, the Revolutionary Council. The military also controls the government administration.

The Socialists quit after the party newspaper Republica, closed eight weeks ago after its Communist printers occupied the newspaper plant, resumed publication Thursday with an army officer as editor and the printers in control.

A Socialist statement, describing freedom of the press as a crucial issue, said the party's leaders "decided that" cabinet ministers and secretaries of state immediately cease their functions in the government."

Party leader Mario Soares was a minister without portfolio and Francisco Salgado Zenha was justice minister.

The statement said they would not return to the government unless the newspaper was restored to the party's control.

The first edition of Republica under its new management said it was now "an independent newspaper free of party tutelage which will effectively serve the interests of the Portuguese people and the working class in particular."

Hydro's Increase May Be Lowered

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Hydro counsel said today that senior management officials are recommending that the utility's request for a 29.7-per-cent rate increase for 1976 be lowered.

Pierre Genest, utility lawyer, told an Ontario Energy Board hearing dealing with the proposed increase that it will not be known until August what the recommended increase will be.

The move follows protests about the size of the increase, which would amount to between $3 and $4 to the average monthly bill for Metropolitan Toronto residents.

Mr. Genest said the utility will make a submission in August showing a "substantial reduction" in revenue required for 1976.

Wilson Holds Wages Down

LONDON (Reuter) — Prime Minister Wilson announced today that future negotiated wage increases for workers must be kept to a maximum of $11.2 a week in order to curb Britain's inflation.

Those earning $18,720 a year or more will get no increases at all.

Ku Klux Klan Disrobing

GREENWOOD, Ind. (AP) — The Indiana chamber of the Ku Klux Klan has signed the ranks of those fighting to enforce state codes.

The organization's July newsletter complains that too many members are "showing up at rallies without a robe."

"It's just this simple: If you can't afford a robe, you can't afford to belong to the klan," the newsletter warns.

U.S.-Soviet Nuclear Talks Set for Finland July 30

GENEVA (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger says he and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko are making progress in their talks about Soviet-American Nuclear Agreements.

Kissinger also said he and Gromyko support the Canadian proposal to begin the 35-country European security summit conference in Helsinki, Finland, July 30. Malta is now the only country that has not agreed to that date.

The United States diplomat and the Soviet foreign minister met for more than four hours Saturday night, discussing such things as issues blocking a new treaty to limit the stock of offensive nuclear weapons in the two countries and the forward base missiles that can deliver them.

The Russian still is going on, but progress has been made," Kissinger told reporters.

Kissinger declined to say whether Gromyko had brought a detailed proposal to resolve the conflict over which Soviet missiles to count as multiple-warhead missiles (MIRVs).

President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev at their Vladivostok conference last November set a tentative limit for each country of 1,320 such missiles. The U.S. has proposed including all Soviet missiles big enough to carry MIRVs, but the Russians reject this.

This unresolved issue is considered the major obstacle to conclusion of a 10-year treaty in time for Ford and Brezhnev to sign it during the visit the Soviet leader is expected to make to Washington this fall.

A senior U.S. official indicated that the progress was made in connection with the agreement to limit underground nuclear-weapon test explosions to the kilotons, beginning next March.

He said the Soviet Union may be prepared for the first time to allow on-site inspection to determine whether it is complying with the agreement. No conclusion has been reached, but progress is being made, Kissinger said.

The Russians are insisting that there be no ceiling on underground nuclear explosions for peaceful purposes, such as digging canals, diverting rivers and exploiting mines. The U.S. is inclined to agree with this if the Russians agree to inspection of the explosion sites.

Joint Space Shot Readies for Tuesday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Activity quickened at launch sites half a world apart today as Russian technicians began joining a Soyuz spaceship with its booster rocket and American astronauts continued rehearsals for the U.S.-Soviet space mission set for Tuesday.

In a telephone report to his American counterpart at the Houston Space Center, Kosmonautin D. Bushuyev, Apollo-Soyuz technical director for the Soviet Union, said preparations were on schedule at the Baikonur Cosmodrome.

Bushuyev told American technical Director Glynn Lunney that the rocket and spacecraft will be moved to the launch pad on Saturday.

Ford Raises Car Prices

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. indicated today that prices go into cars and light trucks may go up six per cent or about $353 a unit--over comparable 1975 models.

The possible increase is in line with a six-per-cent increase hinted by General Motors Corp. the industry's acknowledged pricing leader.

A Ford official said dealers were notified this week that prices on new cars and light trucks for fleet purchasers will reflect a maximum six-per-cent increase over current prices.

Dealers also were notified of a maximum seven-per-cent increase on heavy-duty trucks.

A Penny a Throw

Most of the games at the YMCA penny carnival were not as easy as they appeared learns Clinton Becker, 9, of Belleville as he tries to knock over a pile of pop cans with a baseball. More than 75 people attended the carnival held at Vanderwalker Park, Thursday, to help finance a party for the day camp.

Discrimination, Rent Hikes Some Landlord-tenant Issues

The Quinte Information and Assistance Centre here has released some examples of the increasing number of landlord — tenant problems it has investigated this year.

Bill Hockley, a centre staff member, said Thursday complaints of eviction notices crop up quite frequently.

In Trenton, Tenant A advised the fire department that each time she touched a switch, she received a shock. After an investigation, the inspector ordered the landlord to make repairs within five days. Such repairs are mandatory under the Landlord and Tenant Act.

However, Tenant A was handed her eviction notice. But the centre found that under the act, no tenant can be evicted for taking action under the legislation.

Although not as frequent, racial discrimination was apparent in another case when a landlord agreed to lease an apartment to perspective Tenant B.

Tenant B returned just prior to moving with her husband, who is black. Immediately upon meeting her husband, the landlord said he had changed his mind No reason was given.

Then there was the landlord who raised the rent of Tenant C twice within six weeks — and the two bedrooms in the apartment had no windows — just solid walls.

The centre advised Tenant C to send a registered letter to the landlord stating he would not pay any rent, let alone the increase and was also told to inform the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

And there was the landlord who, for no discernible reason, turned off the water and hydro to the apartment of Tenant D who was informed by the centre to get an injunction and complain to the Children's Aid Society.

Tenant E rented an $80-a-month apartment and was told by the landlord to hand over post-dated cheques for the next 12 months. Although Tenant E had signed a lease it didn't matter—such cheques are not allowed under the act.

Flag Raising

Since a special ceremony held Dominion Day, a replica of the battle flag of the Hastings Prince Edward Regiment has been flown outside the armory. Daniel Zylmeko, 18, a member of the Summer student Employment Activities Program at the armory has the honor of raising the flag.

Program Aims to Teach Outdoor Skills, Crafts

The streets of Belleville may soon be filled with rugged, barely human individuals if this years outdoor recreation program is successful.

The program, under the auspices of the recreation department and offered to children aged 12-16 years, is intended to allow the urban child to become more independent.

"One pleasant side effect of past programs is the campers develop independence they wouldn't be able to cultivate in city life," says Rob Guay, co-ordinator of the project.

"We want to expose city people to the outdoor experience," he said in an interview.

Each new weekly group of campers arrives at the H. R. Frink Outdoor Education Centre Monday morning and after a short ride from Belleville and campsites are arranged and set up.

The daily programs are discussed and an agenda is decided by the camp occupants.

"The camp is a freestyle organization," said Mr. Guay, "with both campers and staff arranging the program most appealing to everyone."

He said in the winter the H. R. Frink centre is used as an educational tool, an extension of classroom learning.

"Our camp is more oriented for leisure living," he said, "where we offer children a way to have fun without having them sit around and be entertained or do anything illegal."

The program which costs $10 for Belleville residents and $12.50 for non-residents, includes canoeing, swimming and campcrafts with an emphasis on working with natural materials.

The campers are introduced to safety rules about water-related activities where most of the time spent at the camp is, structured around river activities.

The environment also is incorporated into the program at the camp.

Monday walks with no artificial lighting are taken to show the campers there is nothing to fear in the dark once you become familiar with your surroundings.

"The main project for the summer is to build a permanent camp crafts display," he said, "and perhaps include a log cabin which will be constructed by campers from all six sessions."

The group wants to contribute something to the site, he said.

"We want to leave a permanent camp skills display and help the board of education can, if they choose, incorporate into the outdoor education program.

Krogman Faces Seizure Charge

BANCROFT — A 20-year-old Belleville man will appear in provincial court here July 14 to set a date for trial on a charge of forcible seizure in connection with an incident here early Wednesday.

A spokesman for the Crown Attorney's office in Belleville said today George Barry Krogman of 215 Victoria Ave., was released on his own undertaking to appear following a bail hearing in Belleville on Thursday.

Ontario Provincial Police at Bancroft were summoned following the abduction of a 23-year-old North Hastings woman on Highway 500 five miles east of this village at 12:45 a.m.

Krogman was arrested at 1:30 a.m. after a complaint of a car roving its motor in a private driveway on the Dennon Rd. here.

Students Study Watershed To Chart Development

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A student group from the Junior Conservationist Award Program this week arrived in Prince Edward County to prepare a resource inventory report of the Consecon Creek watershed, the major watershed within the boundaries of the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority.

Seven secondary school students, accompanied by group leader Sue Rolff of Orangeville, will spend six weeks in the county working to document the vegetation, water, wildlife and fisheries in the study area. Land use also will be determined.

The group includes Miss Rolff and students Sandra Lucas, Dundas; Andrea Belli, Toronto; Kim Carmichael, Amherstburg; Cathy Walsh, Peterborough; Cathy Remus, Chapleau; Joanne Chisholm, Sault Ste. Marie and Anne Champagne, Tronto. The group is billeted at cottages in Redmerville.

Miss Rolff who with her group visited the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority recreation and education shelter Thursday, says students will establish the land ownership in the proposed dam site areas of Allisonville and Melville. An opinion poll of landowners in the proposed dam sites area will be conducted. Type and purpose of each dam will be clearly outlined.

The Junior Conservationist Award Program is listed under Experience 75 and this summer more than 30K students applied to the ministry of natural resources to join it.

Each student who was accepted for the program is sponsored by a 4-H club, a Conservation Authority, the Girl Guides or other organizations.

Five study teams were selected to work in Ontario this summer.

Miss Rolff notes her group will spend most of its time in Prince Edward County with the exception of a one-week canoe trip to Algonquin Park. A brief orientation period was held for students at Dorset before programs were started.

In Prince Edward County this year, the conservation authority sponsored a local student, John Holdsworth, in the Junior Conservationist Award Program. He now is working with a study group in Essex County.

Miss Rolff observes that students are usually assigned to study groups in counties some distance from their homes.

When all data gathered by the students here this summer is compiled project results will be submitted to the ministry of natural resources for publication. Copies of the study will be forwarded to all conservation authorities.

In Prince Edward County, a main goal of the students' project is to make recommendations on future management practices for the Consecon Creek watershed.

This watershed drains waters from four townships, Ameliasburgh, Sidney and then empties into Weller's Bay.

Students with the Junior Conservationist Award Program this summer will compile data on the Consecon Creek watershed, the major watershed within the boundaries of the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority. Chairman of the PERCA Henry Leavens discusses the study with group leader Sue Rolff.

Vandals Shut off Water At Consecon Dam

CONSECON — Two Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority control dams at Consecon were vandalized Thursday night when water control valves were tampered with.

Community Services Officer with the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, Constable Donald Wall said two locks were broken at the dam sites and valves turned to stop the water flow from the main dam at Highway 33.

A valve used to control water flow at the village dam also was broken off below water level.

A spokesman for the PCRCA today said the water level in the Consecon Mill Dam, newly opened last winter, dropped about six inches, when the valve was shut off at Consecon Lake dam. He observed residents who rely on the waters for bathing and drinking purposes were concerned by its loss.

Police estimate damage to the damsites at approximately $200.

'Black Hell' Awaiting 18 Female Canoeists

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Black Hell, a mile-long prologue between Big Gull Lake and Kashawanaki Lake, is both the highlight and the toughest part of a present 7-month, week-long canoe trip says Heather James.

The 17-year-old "tripper", as she calls herself, is one of two Trenton recreation department supervisor in the town's Out Tripping program, that will see up to 18 Trenton teen-agers canoeing and camping in the wilderness.

Miss James says Thursday the Black Hell will be met by her charges with anticipation: "Everyone is psyched-up for it."

It involves portaging canoes about a mile, over bare rock, bog and just plain bush. The trip must be made three times — from which canoes are packed, and then back to get the boats, and then back again to continue the voyage.

Miss James said, as of Thursday, eight teen-age girls will be making the trek over the Black Hell sometime next week. They leave from Trenton early Sunday for Lake Mazinaw where canoes and other supplies are kept.

The "out tripping" is the third of four week-long trips for town teen-agers organized for the third year by the recreation department.

Assistant recreation department

Assistant recreation director Sharon Gaudaur said Thurday that it has proved to be a popular one, although registrations this year are down.

She attributed the drop to the increasing number of such canoe trips now undertaken by Trenton schools. Trenton High School and several groups of senior elementary schools students have trekked into the bush this year.

Mrs. Gaudaur said places still remain open for the all-girl's trip that begins Sunday. An all-boys trip 'age limit 12 to 17) has six canoe seats unfilled.

Participants bring personal gear such as bed rolls and all else — cooking utensils, food, and tents and canoes — are supplied in the $2,000 summer program. Registration costs are set at $30 per person with less than a comparable program run by a private camping or canoeing group.

And what does one learn? Basic conservation of wildlife, and basic woodland survival skills, say Mrs. Gaudaur.

And that's learnt quickly, says Miss James. Teen-agers learn that "if you want supper, you have to do something to get it, either collect fire wood or cook."

You learn how to share and get along with people, she says. Out-trippers soon learn to work as a single group: "You don't get the chance to be a loner."

Watershed Study Topic

The Consecon Creek watershed in Prince Edward County will be studied this summer by a group of student with the Junior Conservationist Award Program under Experience 75. Chairman of the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority, Henry Leavens, Thursday welcomed the study team to the county and indicated their study area on a map at the PERCA's education centre at Macaulay Mountain.

Trenton Still Waiting For NIP Program Grant

TRENTON — Deputy-clerk Arden Boyce returned from a Toronto fact-finding seminar on the Neighbourhood Improvement Program (NIP) this week wiser but no richer.

The two-day seminar, set up by the provincial ministry of housing, was geared to assisting municipal officials across Ontario with various facets of NIP operation.

Mr. Boyce said Thursday his position was one of an observer, since Trenton has still to receive the $70,000 NIP officials allotted the town earlier this year.

At this point, he said, it is difficult to relate to some of the problems surrounding NIP since Trenton has yet to receive its allocation and begin planning its program.

It was announced several months ago that the town had received $70,000, $40,000 less than requested. However, due to delays in signing a master NIP agreement between the provincial and Central Housing and Mortgage Corp. the funds have not reached town coffers.

Mr. Boyce said seminar participants, some with previous experience with NIP, discuss problems their municipalities faced in implementing the program.

In some cities, public participation in the neighbourhood upgrading program was nil, said Mr. Boyce. Citizens by their lack of participation, indicated they didn't care what was done.

Internally, some objected to the extensive research necessary to satisfy provincial and federal officials.

It is too early to know whether Trenton, once its program is underway, will face the same problems, said the deputy-clerk, "but I don't see why it would be different from anywhere else."

Mr. Boyce said seminar delegates were told the provincial-federal master agreement was before the provincial Cabinet Wednesday for approval.

NIP money will be spread over five years in a program to upgrade older, and deteriorated homes in up to three of five neighborhoods in Trenton. Its council's hands rests the selection of areas and the details of final expenditures.

Monument to Mark Hastings Minerals

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff reporter

BANCROFT — The unique mineral collecting capabilities of the North Hastings and Bancroft area are slated to be commemorated in the village by a major mineral monument says mineralogist Dr. Donald Gorman.

"The Bancroft area is one of the most unique areas in the world for mineral collecting," said Dr. Gorman, who is a professor with the University of Toronto.

Dr. Gorman was speaking this week with the Bancroft municipal council and reporting on a project to mark classic mineral sites in the Bancroft area.

Dr. Gorman is working on a grant from the Canadian Geological Foundation and is picking out locations in the Bancroft area.

Dr. Gorman said the historical sites branch of the provincial government intends to erect a cairn in Bancroft to show the mineralogical uniqueness of the area.

Bancroft municipal council passed a resolution to donate land in the museum park in the village so the province could "erection of a cairn."

According to Councillor Ran Carswell, "This is very much what we need in Bancroft."

"Bancroft is the most natural place in the world for a cairn of this type," said Dr. Gorman." It also is the right place for a mineralogical museum."

Sites on View

Mineralogist Dr. Donald Gorman, Bancroft Reeve Russell Hastie and Chamber of Commerce representative Ivor Macleod discuss the possible location of a mineral cairn for the Bancroft area.

District at a Glance

Licence Now Needed

PICTON — Town council has passed a Transient Traders bylaw requiring new businessmen who have not resided continuously in Picton for at least three months to pay a $250 licence fee before starting trade.

Farmers selling their own produce will pay only $5 for a licence.

Cyclists to Tour County

OUTLET PARK — Bicyclists from across Ontario will visit Outlet Park August 2,3, and 4 to join in a bike tour of Prince Edward County. The tour is co-ordinated by the Ontario Cycling Association and its goal is to introduce the public to the enjoyment of country bicycling.

Many of the bike tourists will camp at Outlet Park while others will stay in nearby hotels and motels.

Beauty Contest Opens

PICTON — Entry blanks for the Miss Gold Cup contests now are available. Participants must be between 18 and 25 years of age, single and residents of Prince Edward County.

The competitions will be held Friday, August 29 at the Elk's Hall. Deadline for entries is August 22.

Rare Berries Found

KALADAR — Grant A. Loyst, of Scarborough, found a patch of albino huckleberries (blueberries) while picking the fruit on the mountain north of the hamlet of Kaladar.

Dance Planned

TAMWORTH — An old time night will be held in the Tamworth Arena on Saturday evening, with local talent providing much of the entertainment with Bill Adams actings as the master of ceremonies.

The Goode Family Band will provide the music for dancing.

Other programs will include organ duet, specialty dances and other features.

A Socialist Canada ? It's Here for the Most Part Under Liberal Government

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

How much socialism does Canada need, or can it stand, won't get the answer from the recently concluded leadership conference of the New Democratic Party.

Their cry for a socialist Canada, heard since the Regina Manifesto, is indeed no longer a cry in the wilderness, though the NDP is light-years away from ever becoming a national government.

Their best proposals for state intervention in the economy, whether it's in the broader payment side, or in the growing use of crown corporations, have long ago been pre-empted by successive Liberal governments.

The crafty Mackenzie King stole them blind, after being elected in 1935 on the declaration that last-minute Conservative welfare measures borrowed from the early CCF, were unconstitutional.

By 1950 such measures as unemployment insurance, the so-called "by-laws" giving big in touchy Quebec where families were largest, other state welfare moves, had placed Canada on the road to social democracy.

In our own time and since his election in June, 1968, Pierre Elliott Trudeau is seen by some as the greatest socialist prime minister we have had. He has socialized the alias and functions of government far beyond Mr. King's era.

The two basic social policies of the Liberals, since he came to power, have been cancelled, and social reform, pensions, health, perhaps the guaranteed annual wage, still in curve, have stolen more politics away from the poor NDP.

In fact the prime minister was once a card-carrying member of the New Democratic Party and came to socialist thought himself in the dictatorial Quebec of the 1950s and early 60s.

What is hard to fathom from successive NDP public events is the party's incessant call for more and more state control of industries and even prices which have failed miserably where socialist governments were taken them over provincially.

I suppose socialists can be just as dumb and hard-headed as their determined opponents in the private sector, seeing our complex and pluralistic society as a division of "them" and "us."

This persuance of the Churchillian wartime dictum, "be that is not with me is against me," is only part of the lingering surfeit of ideas and memories of the 1930s which has influenced Douglas and Davis Lewis but one hopes not the new NDP Leader Ed Broadbent.

Some of these have come from the international socialist community. For a long time many critics of Canadian socialism blamed the whole idea of socialist doctrine in hard-Canadian soil as an ideological input from British intransigents.

The recent leader of the party was indeed not one of these but rather an Eastern European one who brought with him his keen sense of social justice and the British autonomy is in serious difficulty.

—Mr. Diefenbaker's political decision did not change the long established pattern of Canada-U.S. trade, and Mr. Trudeau is unlikely to turn the tide of trade.

—The Europeans have achieved a high degree of economic self-sufficiency, and need us less than we need them. The EEC's conditions for an agreement with Canada might well be too harsh for us to accept.

When the question comes down from lofty prime-ministerial politics to the nitty-gritty of actual trade, the outlook for a mutually satisfactory trade link becomes still more complicated. Consider a couple of examples:

—Ontario has decided, in effect, to discriminate against imported cars by removing its five per cent retail sales tax on most North American cars. West Germany's Volkswagen, which opened up the small-car market here 30 years ago, will be among the hardest hit.

The provincial action clearly runs contrary to the spirit if not the letter of international tariff agreements and could invite retaliation by European countries.

—France has resolutely and successfully fought a trade war in Canada against Canadian grape growers and wine-makers on the basis of a badly drafted 1933 trade agreement between the two countries. As well, it blocked the imports of Canadian and other foreign wines into France earlier this year.

In short, there's a distinct shortage of the positive and motivation, on both sides, that would lead to a successful commercial link between Canada and the EEC.

Orangemen's Parade

Everyone loves a parade. As at least one letter though, indicates, some may have reservations about tomorrow's parade of Orangemen.

King Billy rides again as a far-off victory, in 1690, of the Protestant forces of William of Orange over the Catholic troops of James II at the Battle of the Boyne in Ireland is celebrated.

But why blame the Orangemen exclusively for religious bigotry in Ireland, or the turbulence of the past six years in the north, or for any spillover of such sentiment, however mild, in this country?

A Bellevillan who has watched many a Twelfth of July parade in Belfast recalls not so much as a single unkind word indeed arising from them. A few sore heads maybe, from too much of the strong stuff ,but that was all. The only weapons to be seen: the ceremonial swords and pikes of the marchers. Of all ages they were, men and boys, women and girls. There were the bands, and a spectator of any religious persuasion would be hard put to it not to enjoy the strains of The Sash My Father Wore and others. Indeed, there would be many a Catholic among the crowds. And didn't they have their parades too, sponsored by the Ancient Order of Hibernians?

These people were no rabble, but a well-dressed, disciplined organization standing up for their beliefs. That they have done so for more than 300 years says something for the strength of those beliefs. If some see it as bigotry, then it's not their preserve alone.

As for the horrors perpetrated through civil disturbances in Northern Ireland since 1969, it will be recalled it began with protests by Catholic Civil Rights organizations. Most of their complaints have long since been rectified, but as everyone knows what began as mere protests escalated into violence. The Irish Republican Army, which had been dormant for a number of years, re-emerged and ultimately the Protestants formed their own guerrilla groups. The British army became heavily engaged and direct rule was imposed on Ulster by the Westminster.

As of now there seems to be a lull in hostilities, and it is surely everyone's hope that peace will become a reality there. Meanwhile, it is well not to confuse tomorrow's event in Belleville with the more extreme events in Northern Ireland in recent years.

Contractual Link with EEC Is Less Desirable Perhaps Than Trade with U.S. on Mend

Would a "contractual link" with the European Economic Community (EEC) give a boost to our sagging Canada-U.S. trade?

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau evidently thinks it would. But a close look at the factors affecting Canada-European trade leaves the question in doubt.

Mr. Trudeau, in office since 1968, didn't get around to making an official visit to EEC headquarters in Brussels until this year.

But when he did call on EEC, he brought a vague proposal for a contractual link—apparently some sort of special terms to apply to Canadian-European trade.

Either through a sense of constancy or as an act of faith, most EEC member-countries accepted the proposal without knowing just what it meant.

France was the only dissenter. Now it has changed its mind and supports the contractual link—for a typically French reason. France thinks its former colony is too closely linked to U.S. trade. (Our trade with the United States is about 20 times the size of our trade with EEC countries).

The same reason undoubtedly occurred to Prime Minister Trudeau, as it did to John Diefenbaker when he was prime minister and tried to divert 15 per cent of our trade away from the United States.

Diversification of trade is fine, and putting all your eggs in one basket is foolish, but——The U.S. economy is recovering, interest rates there are [illegible], and distillation is under way. If there were ever a [illegible] to foster our economic ties with the United States, this is it—when our economy is mired in recession and the British economy is in serious difficulty.

—Mr. Diefenbaker's political decision did not change the long established pattern of Canada-U.S. trade, and Mr. Trudeau is unlikely to turn the tide of trade.

—The Europeans have achieved a high degree of economic self-sufficiency, and need us less than we need them. The EEC's conditions for an agreement with Canada might well be too harsh for us to accept.

When the question comes down from lofty prime-ministerial politics to the nitty-gritty of actual trade, the outlook for a mutually satisfactory trade link becomes still more complicated. Consider a couple of examples:

—Ontario has decided, in effect, to discriminate against imported cars by removing its five per cent retail sales tax on most North American cars. West Germany's Volkswagen, which opened up the small-car market here 30 years ago, will be among the hardest hit.

The provincial action clearly runs contrary to the spirit if not the letter of international tariff agreements and could invite retaliation by European countries.

—France has resolutely and successfully fought a trade war in Canada against Canadian grape-growers and wine-makers on the basis of a badly drafted 1933 trade agreement between the two countries. As well, it blocked the imports of Canadian and other foreign wines into France earlier this year.

In short, there's a distinct shortage of the positive and motivation, on both sides, that would lead to a successful commercial link between Canada and the EEC.

Further Gasoline Price Boosts Raise Ire of U.S. Politicians

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — Ripoff.

It's a 1970s word and it's being hurled increasingly with the sudden increase in gasoline prices in the United States.

Gasoline prices rose and stocks fell about 11 months ago, but that was in the midst of the Arab oil embargo and the continuing public wrath was directed at question just who is responsible for. There is no such embargo in force at the moment and the public wrath is being directed at question just who is responsible this time.

And the U.S. oil companies are taking the static.

With presidential elections on the horizon, politicians—not unexpectedly—are beginning to make the most of the situation.

Senator Henry Jackson (Dem., Wash.), with a "Me Too" endorsation from Senator Adlai Stevenson (Dem., Ill.), has announced a special Senate investigation.

Jackson, who tried for the Democratic presidential nomination last time and is having another go at it this time, is head of the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations.

Stevenson is boss of the Senate commerce subcommittee on oil and gas distribution and production.

Jackson and Stevenson have announced they will try to determine whether oil companies purposely cut refinery production in order to raise gasoline prices.

Federal energy officials said last week they expected gasoline prices to take a seasonal leap of five cents a gallon or less this summer—bringing the price for a U.S. gallon of regular into the record range. The U.S. gallon amounts to five-sixths of an imperial, or Canadian, gallon.

Several major oil firms have already announced price increases and they did it just as many Americans were preparing to drive off on the 4th of July Independence Day weekend, probably the most mobile holiday weekend in the U.S. calendar.

"The price of crude oil has dropped because of plentiful supplies built up in this country and abroad, yet, since January, gasoline prices have risen sharply while the refineries have been operating at reduced levels," Jackson and Stevenson said in a statement.

"Clearly," they said, "the oil companies have manufactured a shortage through manipulation of refinery output, so they could raise retail gasoline prices as much as seven cents a gallon during the season vacationing Americans buy more gasoline."

More than one analyst in the U.S. is decrying presidential and congressional action—or lack of it—on this issue.

As one columnist put it, "the rise in gasoline prices announced just before the July 4 weekend provides a model of how the American system works—at very nearly its worst."

Public opinion is confused by suspicion of the big interests, by worries. First the president and then Congress have ducked the issue.

Oil interests, therefore, have indulged their greed in a way that hurts the weakest people "and justifies among the rest of us the suspicion which prevents any policy consensus."

No matter who is responsible or how high the price goes, the motorist who pulls up at the pump is being heard to complain—more and more—that 1970s word "rip - off!"

Shulman Calls it Quits

Dr. Morton Shulman, who some time ago indicated he would not fight in another provincial election, has given up on a more active plan to run against Premier Davis in his Brampton riding.

His decision stems from NDP party leader Stephen Lewis' decision — unfortunately enough — to give no undertaking that Dr. Shulman would become Justice Minister in the event of an NDP victory.

In short, Dr. Shulman's decision — he is the member for High Park, in Toronto — is as it was originally he will not run in the next election.

Had Dr. Shulman entered the fray in Brampton the outcome would have been a disappointment, for Ontario needs both its Bill Davis' and Morton Shulmans. Aside from that, and with Shulman out of the running, his decision gives rise to some intriguing thoughts in the what-might-have been category. Dr. Shulman reportedly did some canvassing in Brampton during the holiday period and he says a survey conducted for him recently showed him ahead of Davis and Liberal leader Robert Nixon, in that order.

Certainly an Ontario legislature without Morton Shulman will be a less colorful and probably less effective instrument of government. Even if his political philosophies and methods were not everyone's cup of tea, he exhibited a keen social conscience. As an Opposition member, he prodded the Government relentlessly.

The one-time Toronto coroner and political maverick, it will be recalled, was ill briefly a few years ago, which turned out to be a case of exhaustion from overwork and after a short break in Mexico he was back to Queen's Park.

Later it seemed he was going through a period of disillusionment with provincial politics and there came the announcement he would not seek re-election.

Then came the possibility of a contest in Brampton — under conditions which proved unacceptable to party leader Lewis.

Shulman himself summed it up appropriately when he said: "... things go on. Parties change and leaders change."

Book on Ancestry

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I am writing a book "How to trace your ancestors in Canada" and need much appreciate the co-operation of your readers.

The Registration of Births, Marriages and Deaths has been compulsory in the Province of Ontario since 1869, but before that the ancestor hunter has to depend on church records. These are widely scattered and some in the National or Provincial Archives, some in local churches, some in local libraries, and some in private hands. There is no central record of these locations and so, if any of your readers have knowledge of the whereabouts of church registers prior to 1880 I would be happy to have their help.

I would also like to "know the score" about the old graveyards and burial grounds which were in use before the above date.

If any of your readers can send me information on the above subjects I will be very grateful.

Participatory Democracy at Work on Immigration But Not on Law and Order

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There is a distance contradiction in the basic political philosophy of Prime Minister Trudeau's government.

It has surfaced in an exchange of correspondence between Justice Minister Otto Lang and Conservative MP John Reynolds.

Both men are westerners, Lang of Saskatchewan, Reynolds of British Columbia. And both hold strong and conflicting views.

They have been arguing, in an exchange of letters, about immigration, and crime and punishment.

Both have aroused intense public interest and so involve severe political voltage.

The government, if the current of public opinion runs strong enough, could suffer a shock with either of them, even if the next election now seems a long time away.

The increasingly strong charge of political electricity humming through the circuits of public opinion could be just that long lasting.

For the hot controversial issues of crime and punishment — especially capital punishment — and immigration have little chance of quick settlement and almost none of unanimous public acceptance.

Regardless of what decisions the government and Parliament make — and the Liberal majority in the Commons will have its way — there will be many thousands of dissatisfied. If not altogether disbelieved and resentful Canadians.

There seems little middle ground, both issues are emotional, and are polarizing the voters.

On one side are the hardliners. On the other are the bleeding hearts.

Bleeding hearts?

A perfectly proper and very acceptable term, that.

For it was initially used in parliament by Prime Minister Trudeau himself when he spoke of those who were outraged by the use of the sword to cut in crushing the Quebec terrorists of a few years ago as being "bleeding hearts."

Immigration and capital punishment are now such hot political issues that they have cracked and broken the government's basic political policy — its very philosophy, as this Prime Minister has called it, of "participatory democracy."

John Reynolds, a strong law-and-order advocate, had written Justice Minister Lang asking why, if the public is being consulted on immigration policy, it is being ignored on the capital punishment issue.

Both are very special interest fields of wide public concern.

And it was a good question.

Justice Minister Lang, in his reply, blandly dismissed public or public involvement in the decision to be made later — if not for the third time — on capital punishment.

National opinion polls have established beyond argument that the vast majority of Canadians, disturbed over the soaring crime and killing rate, favor a return to the death penalty.

Politicians urging it and carrying hundreds of thousands of names have reached Parliament.

Police and prison personnel are in an uproar about the "computerized communitarian," as Nova Scotia Conservative MP Patrick Nowlan phrases it, of dead sentences of the killers of law officers.

Yes, the Justice Minister writes to John Reynolds, he has directs the execution of such murderers if he can be convinced he can be persuaded to soften the penalty by improvement, working out to 10 years with time off for good behavior, weekend and holiday passes, and other prison privileges.

That's being the law, the Justice Minister infers, in ignoring the question of public involvement, it is the business and responsibility of the courts and the cabinet alone.

But on immigration?

That is where "participatory democracy" comes in.

"It is the opinion, indeed the measure of responsible government, to solicit the views of its electorate prior to formulating final policy," writes Mr. Lang.

"The Green Paper on immigration was designed to promote public discussion of this issue and to provide the government with different points of view so that future policy will have the benefit of public involvement.

But on capital punishment, the public can but out. The government has its mind made, and who wants to bother with public involvement?

Little Chance

OTTAWA (CP) — A labor official said Thursday he believes there is little chance for action on the Economic Council of Canada report recommending no new taxes and free trade as a way gaining at least five per cent in national output.

Won't Commit Funds

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario told the federal government Thursday it will not commit funds at this time to build access roads to the proposed federal airport at Pickering, Ont.

Transport Minister Robert Nixon called the move "blatant electioneering."

Further In Debt

OTTAWA (CP) — The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority dropped $18.65 million further into debt in 1974, bringing its total debt to the federal government to $196.4 million, it was disclosed Thursday.

The information was contained in the seaway's 1974 annual report, tabled in the Commons by Transport Minister Jean Marchand.

Approves Coins

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons is expected to approve today a bill authorizing the minting of a 1976 Olympic gold coin. All-party agreement to remove debate on the bill was reached Thursday.

Workers Defy Union Advice

TORONTO (CP) — Steelworkers at the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Inco) plant in Sudbury defied advice from their union that they return to work at midnight Thursday night and remained off the job.

However, workers at Inco's Port Colborne plant reported on their regular shifts.

Norm Carriere, vice-president Local 6500, United Steelworkers of America (USWA), said said he wanted the 12,0 0 Sudbury members back on the job after a tentative contract agreement had been reached early Thursday by union negotiators.

Membership meetings will be held Friday through Wednesday to explain the terms of the settlement. A ratification vote will be held next Friday.

Workers, upset over the secrecy surrounding the negotiations and the company's last-minute offer, held an impromptu membership meeting attended by 800.

Elliott, Fisher Sentenced

HAMILTON (CP) — The Hamilton Harbor affair came to an end Thursday with Kenneth Elliott, former harbor commissioner, sentenced in Ontario Supreme Court to six years in prison and businessman Hal Fisher to three years.

The two were convicted July 4 on 10 counts of conspiracy, fraud and uttering forged documents after a lengthy trial concerning kickbacks and payoffs on dredging and construction work in the Hamilton Harbor commission.

In sentencing the pair, Mr. Justice Thomas Callen said he felt Elliott, 42, "would stop at anything to satisfy his insatiable greed for money."

He also said he believed Elliott brought Fisher, 42, into the $230,000 scheme to defraud the harbor commission because of the man's banking experience.

The charge included five of conspiracy, three of uttering forged documents and two of fraud. The Crown had asked Mr. Justice Callen to sentence the men to a consecutive term on each transaction.

He said he regretted calling Amin a village tyrant and had offered him a written apology.

Hills said he had been happy in Uganda and would like to return. He also said he hoped his manuscript, The White Pumpkin, would be published. "I might like to revise part of it."

A resident of Uganda for 10 years, Hills taught at Makerere University in Kampala until several years ago. He left an estate in Germany, wife and two sons in Uganda.

Callaghan said the treatment during his three months in custody was "perfectly correct according to the rules of imprisonment." He doubt, are much the same all over the world. It would be really unfair of me to make any complaints."

About 700 Britons are still in Uganda, a former British colony that still is a member of the Commonwealth. Many officers left in 1972 after Amin expelled 60,000 Asians with British citizenship and nationalized British firms.

Costs Double For Olympics

QUEBEC (CP) — Estimates for total cost of the 1976 Montreal Summer Olympic Games have risen by $700 million to $210 million in 1972, a committee of the Quebec national assembly said Thursday.

The standing committee on municipal affairs, studying budget estimates for the Games, agreed on the total despite initial reluctance from Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau. Mr. rapeau had said the cost estimate would not pass the $4 cost of the Games at $714 million.

Estimates do not include the $71 million village being built to house the athletes. City officials hope to recover the investment through sale of the village as condominium units.

An agreement to reimburse federal legislation to permit issuing of gold Olympic coins in 1976 commemorations reached late Thursday after Drapeau made a rush visit to Ottawa.

The coins could add another $60 million to estimated revenues of $481 million but even so the Games face a possible deficit of at least $27 million.

Sources of revenue for the Games include sales of commemorative silver coins, stamps and lottery tickets.

Last January, Montreal officials revised cost estimate to $310 million, blaming inflation, labor modifications, technical difficulties and strikes for the increased costs.

Committee member Claude Charron (PQ-St. Jacques) said extra costs promised by Montreal last January had failed to materialize.

"If we suggest, for instance, that the large standards could be replaced by others that would be less luxurious, we're accused of destroying the Olympic spirit."

Britain Makes No Promises to Amin

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Secretary James Callaghan says he made no concessions to Ugandan President Idi Amin to win freedom for Denis Hills.

Returning from Africa with the British teacher Amin had condemned to death, Callaghan thanked the Ugandan military dictator for his "magnanimity."

Hills, 51, was sentenced in June to face a firing squad for calling Amin a village tyrant in an unpublished manuscript.

Callaghan said Hills now will be "a period of long convalescence in Britain's relations with Uganda. This release forshadows an improvement."

"President Amin told me that he wishes the British community to stay there, that he values their presence and that he would like more Britons to go out to work there."

Hills said an airport news conference "I am a little bit bewildered at this sudden change in my fortune. I should quite like time for framing all this trouble."

Trudeau Blames Grossman

TORONTO (CP) — It was beneath the dignity of the prime minister's office to allow Trudeau to blame him for allowing the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) mission to Canada, Allan Grossman, Ontario secretary of resource development, said Thursday.

"I am shocked that the prime minister should stoop so low as to look for a scapegoat in the absence of his own ability to ever appear decisive."

Mr. Grossman was commenting on a statement by Mr. Trudeau in the Commons Thursday during discussion of the community's responsibility. He may attend a UN conference on crime here in September.

"It was Mr. Grossman who "stuck his head out and invited the Palestinians to set up shop in the first place," Mr. Trudeau stated.

Mr. Grossman said Mr. Trudeau had personally decided to blame the presence of the PLO in Canada on him either because he is Jewish or an Ontario cabinet minister.

Commons Approves New Oil Company

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave final approval Thursday to a bill establishing the country's first national petroleum company.

Third reading, the last major hurdle to parliamentary passage, came as the Commons adjourned for the day in her sticky weather.

Debate droned at the end but produced one flare-up when Fisheries Minister Donald Macdonald called Peter Bawden (PC—Calgary South) "a bit of a fool."

Progressive Conservative MPs, led by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, left the House en masse in a brief protest but returned moments later for the final vote. The bill carried 152 to 80.

Senate approval and routine royal assent are required before the bill becomes law.

Conservative MPs were joined by Jean-Robert Roy (L—Timmins) in opposing the bill.

NDP and Social Credit MPs voted with the government.

Mr. Roy was not available for comment on why he voted against his party.

The corporation, to be known as Petro-Canada, was first proposed in 1973 when the then-minority Liberal government was under heavy pressure from the new Democratic Party to move into the foreign-dominated petroleum industry on a massive scale.

Reintroduced after the 1974 election, the bill retains the original powers it was given when drafted originally.

But in practice the corporation will be only a shadow of what the NDP demanded.

It will not give the government powers to move into all aspects of the industry or to nationalize such giants as Imperial Oil and Shell Canada.

But, as Mr. Macdonald made clear in the debate, the bill's powers are provisionary and may even be used.

Cabinet's Power to Commute Executions in Jeopardy

OTTAWA (CP) — The first moves to limit the cabinet's ability to commute death sentences came in the Commons this week in the form of two private members' bills.

The effect of both bills would be to limit one of the rights to grant mercy from the cabinet to the trial jury.

A bill drafted by John Reynolds (PC—Richmond-Wolfe Delta) would enable the cabinet to commute only when at least one of the 12 jurors recommends clemency.

Former diplomat Donald Munro (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich) introduced a bill to limit the cabinet to commuting in cases when a majority of the jury—more than six—recommend clemency.

The federal cabinet increasingly has leaned on jury recommendations to justify commutations. Prime Minister Trudeau recently told the opposition that it had not, in the last death penalty debate in 1973, made any move to limit the cabinet's power to commute.

Since 1968, the death penalty has existed in law only for killers of on-duty policemen and prison employees, but no one has been hanged since 1962. There are indications that the government soon will try to abolish all capital punishment.

The cabinet has commuted five death sentences since 1968. In three of them, all jurors recommended clemency. In the other two, the jurors made no recommendation.

If the Reynolds or Munro resolutions became law, the cabinet would have been unable to commute in the latter two cases.

Nine men now are appeals or awaiting a cabinet decision on their death sentences.

If the Munro bill was law, the cabinet would be unable to intervene in six of the nine cases. The Reynolds bill would mean the rope for five of the nine.

Both Mr. Munro and Mr. Reynolds interpret no recommendation as a recommendation against clemency.

What they are telling the government is that they don't want to recommend mercy," says Mr. Reynolds, who has presented to Parliament a 200,-000-name petition asking for the use of the death penalty.

"If the Munro bill was law, the cabinet would be unable to intervene in six of the nine cases. The Reynolds bill would mean

Immigrant Students May Have Problems

OTTAWA (CP) — A presentation showing that immigrant school children have special problems revealed mixed reactions Thursday from the special parliamentary immigration committee.

Progressive Conservative Barney Danson (Surrey-White Rock) said he does not agree that the children suffer more stress than other children.

"How would you like to go through school with a name like Benno Friesen?" he asked. "I did and I survived."

Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West), the only black MP, said Mr. Friesen might have had a tougher time if "your name was Benno Friesen and you also happened to be black."

The committee came during presentation of a Toronto school board brief on multiculturalism in the special Commons-Senate committee on immigration.

Board chairman Gordon Cressy said more than 50 per cent of Toronto school students come from immigrant families,

CITY OF BELLEVILLE — LOCAL IMPROVEMENT NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE THAT:

1. The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville intends to construct as a local improvement the following watermain, with private water service connections where required by an individual owner and intends to specially assess a part of the cost upon the lands abutting the work and the balance against the Corporation at large as follows:

Street	From	To	Est. Cost	Corporation Share	Owner Share	Est. Cost Per Foot Frontage of Watermain	Est. Annual Cost Per Foot Frontage of Watermain	Est. Rate Per Service Connection	Est. Annual Payment Per Service Connection
Un-named	Existing 16" Dia. Watermain on Centre St.	249.5 ft. Easterly	$8,462.00	$4,697.37	$3,764.63	$12.0501	$1.59471	$215.00	$26.380267

EXAMPLE: (Watermain Only)
Lot with 50 ft. frontage would be assessed as follows:
50 ft. x $13.0501 = $652.51
If paid over 15 years at 8½% per annum
the annual cost would be 50 ft. x $1.59471 = $79.74

2. The special assessment is to be paid in 15 equal annual instalments.

3. Application will be made by the Corporation to the Ontario Municipal Board for its approval of the undertaking of the said work, and any owner may within 21 days after the first publication of the Notice, file with the Clerk of the Municipality his objection to the said work being undertaken.

4. The said Board may approve the said work being undertaken, but before doing so may appoint a time and place when objections to the said work will be considered.

Cumberland Pottery:

Hard Work Brings Rewards for Wilton Couple

Husband-and-wife potters — the Codys, the Cavelands, the Davies — have been part of the Quinte crafts scene for some time. In the tiny village of Wilton, 35 miles east of Belleville, there's yet another potting couple who are making a name for themselves.

Ken and Diane Cumberland have been in Wilton five years now, and have established themselves as potters who sell their work in nearby Kingston as well as in Toronto and Ottawa. Like many other married craftspeople, the Cumberlands have diverging approaches, and produce distinctively different pieces.

Diane's specialty is porcelain, using smooth, delicately-shaded glazes on seemingly fragile vases, bowls, and goblets. Ken, however, devotes himself to stoneware. He creates hanging pots, lamp bases, coffee mugs — functional items with strong lines and natural, earthy colors.

"My basic premise is that people should have pots and use them," says Ken Cumberland. "I'm not elevating my craft to an art, but I'm making pots so that lots of people can buy something handmade by some clown who lives in the country."

The Cumberland's method of working is an "all or nothing" approach that gives them two months off in the winter for a Florida holiday, in return for incredible perseverence during other months.

"I consider a day in which I've made fewer than 300 pots a disaster," says Ken. "I work daily from 8 a.m. to 1 a.m. for two months, and then collapse. When I sit down to pot, I have to be productive, since I only work one day in 10 to make enough to support us.

"Like other potters in this area, that's our main problem — making enough through our pottery to take care of all our costs."

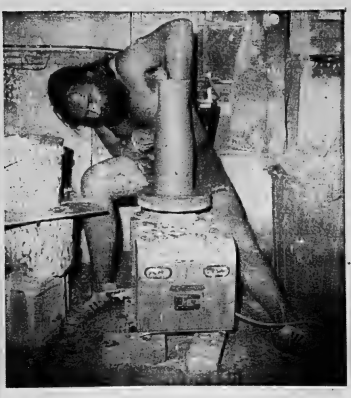
The Cumberlands' expenses include heating the old schoolhouse in which they live and work. Their propane bill for their transitive walk-in kiln, in which they fire up to 700 pots each time, is as high as $250 a week.

Diane and Ken have spent time as well as money renovating and adding on to their old stone schoolhouse, making a studio and showroom on the ground floor, and a three-floor living area at the back of the building. The post-and-plaster simplicity of their home says a lot about the relaxed kind of lifestyle they have chosen.

Ken, who had studied sociology, and Diane, who had been at the Ontario College of Art, both attended Sheridan College before leaving Dreville life behind. Now they are bent on becoming as self-sufficient as possible, and have planted a huge garden behind the schoolhouse.

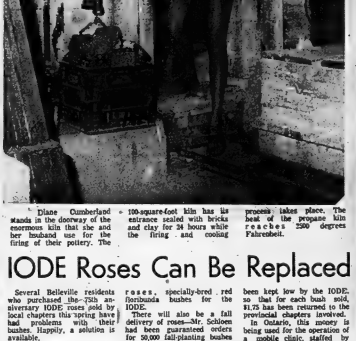
Fruit bushes and trees, rows of vegetables and berries testify that hard work is paying off, and that the Cumberland's have put down their own roots. In the summer months, besides gardening and tending their pottery showroom, they find time for swimming and horseback riding, as part of their "work hard, play hard" philosophy.

Visitors to the Cumberland pottery will most often find the potters at home, willing to stop and explain their pottery-making process, or to chat about their garden.



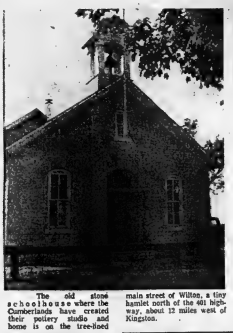
Ken Cumberland throws a vase at his potter's wheel for his own enjoyment, since this is not his "heavy working" season. Although he produces a large volume of pottery, he prefers the kick wheel to an electric one, because of the rhythm set up between himself and the clay.

Spending a cool moment in the Cumberland showroom is the family Afghan hound Kaolin, named after a type of clay used in the making of pottery. Some of Diane's and Ken's work is on view in the background.



Diane Cumberland stands in the doorway of the enormous kiln that she and her husband use for the firing of their pottery. The 100-square-foot kiln has its entrance sealed with bricks and clay for 24 hours while the firing and cooling process takes place. The heat of the propane kiln reaches 2500 degrees Fahrenheit.

Story and Photos by Isabel Huggan



The old stone schoolhouse where the Cumberlands have created their pottery studio and home is on the tree-lined main street of Wilton, a tiny hamlet north of the 401 highway, about 12 miles west of Kingston.

IODE Roses Can Be Replaced

Several Belleville residents who purchased the 75th anniversary IODE roses sold by local chapters this spring have had problems with their bushes. Happily, a solution is available.

Inquiries and complaints should be addressed to John Schloen, Ellesmere Nurdseries, RR 1, Brooklin, Ontario. Mr. Schloen has guaranteed replacement of rose bushes that did not grow by July 1 at no cost to the recipient except postage.

When the bushes were first mailed in May, unseasonably hot weather and rotating mail strikes caused some bushes to arrive in poor condition. Because of this, the Ellesmere Nurseries will replace the roses, specially-bred red floribunda bushes for the IODE.

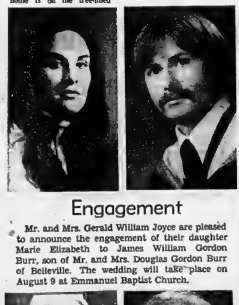
There will also be a fall delivery of roses—Mr. Schloen had been guaranteed orders for 50,000 fall-planting bushes by March 20, and between then and April 1, he received 14,000 more orders. He has promised to fill these orders, and offers the same replacement guarantee for these bushes as for the spring planting.

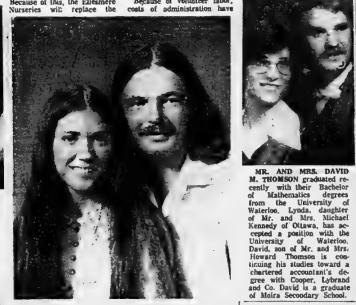
The Belleville Parks Department had excellent results from the fall planting they made in 1974, and these bushes are now in city parks.

Because of volunteer labor, costs of administration have been kept low by the IODE, so that for each bush sold, $1.75 has been returned to the provincial chapters involved.

In Ontario, this money is being used for the operation of a mobile clinic, staffed by four specialists in the field of genetic research. The clinic will go to isolated areas of the province, where the specialists will provide information and counselling.

In Belleville, co - chairman of the rose committee have been Loreen Ellis of St. Julien chapter, and Stella Milroy of Argyll chapter.





MR. AND MRS. DAVID M. THOMSON graduated recently with their Bachelor of Mathematics degrees from the University of Waterloo. Lynda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kennedy of Ottawa, has accepted a position with the University of Waterloo. David, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Thomson is continuing his studies toward a chartered accountant's degree with Cooper, Lybrand and Co. David is a graduate of Moira Secondary School.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald William Joyce are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Marie Elizabeth to James William Gordon Burr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Gordon Burr of Belleville. The wedding will take place on August 9 at Emmanuel Baptist Church.

DENNA JONES, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Jones of RR 2, Trenton graduated June 27 from Humber College Nursing Diploma Program at Orier Campus in Toronto. She is a graduate of Centennial Secondary School. She has accepted a position at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

JOHN PHILLIPS graduated from Queen's University with a Bachelor of Commerce with honors. John is a former student of Centennial Secondary School and will enter Queen's Law School in the fall. He is the son of Bob Phillips and the late Mary Phillips.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. McQuaid are pleased to announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Cynthia Ann to Kevin D. Betts, son of Mrs. Fern Betts and the late N. Betts. The marriage will take place in Bridge Street United Church Saturday August 9, at 3 p.m.

Photographer and Subject—Electricity Must Flow

NEW YORK (AP) — Francesco Scavullo, the photographer who does those sensuous Cosmopolitan covers says he needs sexual electricity flowing between himself and his subject to make a beautiful photo.

"You have to break down all the insecurities a woman may feel. You have to make her feel good," said Scavullo bubbled his Hannibal eyebrows, murmuring, "beautiful, sexy," in a seductively-posturing model.

Scavullo's studio is peppered with his magazine cover photos as well as his huge black and white of stars Lisa Minnelli, Janis Joplin, Gloria Grooper, Barbra Streisand, Kirk Douglas and Mick Jagger. He's also the photographer who shot Burt Reynolds in the raw, startling the rugs for nude male centrefolds.

His talent with shutter and lens has elicited a stream of compliments from greatful subjects. And Scavullo—a calm, stiffly, gentle man of 46, smartly fashionable—owes it to the lady killer—enjoys talking about the kudos.

He says TV personality Barbara Walters said she was so hacky to have found him. Dr. Joyce Brothers, psychologist and advice columnist, told him she'd never looked so good, even when she was young. Gloria Collins in appreciation for her current photographic session and a armful of roses to "an exphotographer and an exquisite man."

"I have a passion for my work," Scavullo says. "I love people and get turned on by looking at them through my camera. I like women to look their best. And I try to take pictures of what I think they should look like."

For a photo session, he provides the makeup, the hairdo and the latest clothes. He like retouching the person instead of the photo—though he does a lot of that, too.

A talented trio hired by Scavullo went to work on the makeup, hairdo and clothes of Martha Mitchell, ex-wife of former U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell. As Scavullo's photo for the cover of New York Magazine, she looked like a sultry, young Lana Turner.

When people complimented her, Mrs. Mitchell's reaction, according to Scavullo, was: "What's all the fuss about? I've always been a very beautiful woman."

Scavullo changed actress Angie Dickinson's image for Redbook.

"I slicked her hair back, took away those false eyelashes, used very subtle makeup and dressed her in white. That's the way she should be," he said.

Scavullo has steal stars such as Lorna Luft to his skin doctor for treatment and to constantly amazed at what terrific transformations some facelifted beauties have.

"Hey — you're very nervous," he says "I had to spend a whole afternoon just talking to Barbra Streisand. But Raquel Welch never trusted the people around me, and I don't think I ever photographed her successfully."

But—even mere models—if they have the money—can get snappy passport photos by Scavullo. His fee is $2.00 for a half-day sitting, plus $75 an hour each for the makeup, hair and clothes stylists.

Ann Landers

Husband Dies – But Not Alone

Dear Ann Landers: About three months ago my husband was killed in a terrible accident. The car went over a steep incline and caught fire. That was bad enough, but when the police came to my home to tell me what had happened, they informed me in the presence of my three children at ages 12, 10 and 121 that their father was not alone. With him was an 18-year-old girl who worked in the same office.

I was not aware that he was seeing anyone, and I still have no proof that he was unfaithful. The accident occurred at 5 p.m. and he usually came home about 6:45.

Many friends have asked me questions about "the young woman." I don't know what to say to them. Their inquiries are very painful about I know what they are thinking.

Losing a wonderful mate after 20 years of marriage was a cruel blow, but the added grief because of the circumstances makes the sorrow almost unbearable. Please explain the young girl to my children and friends and save my lives? — Heartsick and Alone

Dear Friend: Thousands of married men give office colleagues a lift from work almost every day. Why do you feel this act of friendship needs explaining?

Those who question you about the young passenger are just being nosy. They are busybodies and gossip-mongers. You would do dignity their question by offering any information. As for your children — the simple explanation that Dad was giving the girl a ride home from the office should be sufficient.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 14 who does babysitting. I have been warned against telling strangers who telephone that the family is not at home. What should I say if the person I am sitting says he is a relative?

Some girls who babysit would like an answer to this question also. Thanks kindly. — Need to Know

Dear Need: Never take a chance. Say to whomever calls: I'm sorry but Mr. or Mrs. So-And-So is busy and unable to come to the phone. Please leave your name and number and I will ask him (or her) to return your call."

Beauty Care – a Must for Models

TORONTO (CP) — There are few moments in the life of a top fashion model when she isn't aware of the state of her make-up, her skin, her hair, or forgets to stand or sit composed.

So says Yanka VanderKolk, one of Canada's top models who works in Toronto.

She is a driver, never satisfied, always working.

"I know my own weaknesses very well," she said. "I can wear anything but it has to be a valid thing in my own head. I have to have confidence in the garment and fluidity and shape."

No girl turns up at a fashion show and refuses to wear the clothes.

"But you develop a knack for knowing what looks attractive to your build, and it is in the client's interest for you to look your best. That's why they are paying you for."

Yanka's high fashion models earn as much as $45 an hour, but rarely make more than $15,000 a year. Yet they have to pay for trade their lives—as they say—for anybody else's.

With their images in newspapers, magazines and on television models are seen as the ideal in female beauty. Women who are not to be talked to, the spacious kitchen needs the uncurtained plant-filled windows "bring the outdoors in."

Gregg's art immersion began at the age of three, and weeks when he was bookpacked to the Museum of Modern Art in New York. Recently he "thoroughly" enjoyed the Electric Exhibition at the RAW Art Gallery, his mother says.

"The women's committee of the RAW Art Gallery was the first organization I joined when I arrived in Waterloo. This gallery has delightful and important artists and is well-worth supporting."

Mrs. Theobald also belongs to the Art Gallery of Hamilton, in Toronto and Women's Place, Waterloo.

"I firmly believe that if a man can continue his life's work after marriage, so can a woman, with certain adjustments when starting a family."

But before embarking on community work on a career, it's important to have tranquillity and serenity in the home."

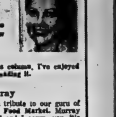
AROUND TOWN
with LANA ROBINSON

(. . . an advertising feature designed to keep you better informed of what's now around town.)



Today is the last time I will write this column. I've enjoyed doing it and I hope you have enjoyed reading it.

Our Man Murray

I just had to begin this column with a tribute to our guru of Front st., Murray Atkinson of Murray's Food Market. Murray has been in the column since it started and I mean since. It's never been dull. Every week, when I would commence my calls to see what's around with everybody, I could never predict just what Murray might want to say. Here are some of the highlights: Remember Murray's suggestion that we have a canary? Remember Murray's successful campaign to help the senior citizens with their meat purchases? And the time Murray gave her Murray's first anniversary sale? I remember these things, and the fun I had writing about them. I also will remember Murray as a credit to the business and citizen community of this city.

True To Their Word

Last week, I told you that I was going to go to Gibbs and Son, 27 Albion St. and get myself a reconditioned vacuum for the P.U. again. I went and I did! And I defy any of you to tell me I didn't get a vacuum that looks just like new. It was a pleasure to clean my cottage, knowing I had the great help of my Protector-Lewyt vacuum. Gibbs and Son have been selling for months about the value of their reconditioned vacuums; the problem was their location. Now that they're here, they'll assure me that this time they have a fair stock around. When they told me, I believed them; I wouldn't have passed it on to you, if I hadn't But NOW I KNOW! And you will too. For a new vacuum, a reconditioned one, or having yours serviced — it'll be back in like-new operating order, call Gibbs and Son at 968-5844.

If Not Now, Later

Highland Construction's Home Improvement Centre, 257 North Front St., is a great place to keep in mind for helping you with the home improvements you will eventually do. And it's a great place to go and visit to get ideas and suggestions. Even if you're better yet, as a matter of fact, to see quality kitchen cupboards that you can have delivered and installed, get your home like it look like the colourage says they will For rec room or bathroom panelling that you can install yourself, tile samples and even that great bathroom redecorator, Marble Ore, which makes your bathroom look like a million dollars without the fuss and mess of tiles. Highland is also a place for hardy and enduring vinyl siding so that you can see the Home Improvement Centre is well-named. And you're well advised to remember that.

A Great Place To Go

One of the treat of the last six months since this column has been the accumulation with the Cameron Gallery, 315 miles west at Bridgewater. As Bridgewater has no art gallery, the Gallery features the work of three Camerons — Donnah, her husband Alan and their daughter Donnah Cameron Finnigan, who is a potter as well as a painter. Watercolours, pottery and ink drawings, prints, stationery & pottery — you have from all this to choose, when you take yourself and your friends to the Cameron Gallery. As a wedding gift, a retirement present, a gift of remembrance for someone who is moving, you really couldn't give another better, or more appreciated than a Cameron gift. And I mean that.

Always Something special

Tuesday night was a special night for me, some sadness, some gladness. I was delivering my last Thursday 'Around Town' column and that was rather a sad thing. But also, some very special people came to visit and that was the gladness part. So, what did we do to counter my dichotomy of mood? We went to the Terrace Dining Room of the Inn of the Seasons and ordered Chateaubriand. We listened to the music, absorbed the atmosphere, felt pampered by all the attentions of waiters and waitresses went down to the Mad Mechanic afterwards and watched the live entertainment and the dancers and I wasn't sad any longer! We're very lucky to have a hotel such as the Inn of the Seasons around to help us out in times like these — or just any time when you feel like good food and well-served. Keep it in mind, no matter what your mood.

Let A Privilege To Talk About

There's a problem in writing this kind of column, one which I have been fortunate enough to avoid. That's the problem of telling you about something I really don't believe in. The greatest strength of this column has been, from my point of view, at any rate, that I haven't had to tell you about anything that I wouldn't buy or investigate myself. And Jen Smith's West Wind Beauty Salon is no exception. I was a skeptic when I first wrote about, I like good clothes and I like good things, period. If you're like me, you're not going to spend money on a visit to Jean's. Her gift boutique has unusual items from all over the world, some beautiful and exotic jewellery, her cosmetics and there's another local business citizen which is really doing its job in addition. All you have to do is call 962-9111, and you will have access to the fleet of Chrysler products maintained by Holiday, Holiday is a Belleville concern which exists to serve you providing the best service in this area that is possibly can. And it's not that I'm afraid I'll miss the boat. We've had the best Moira and North Front. And you shouldn't miss it either!

Turning On The Lights

If you're not happy with what you have when you turn on the lights at your house, you should go and see the selection of every kind of light at Ridley Electric's Consumers Store at 281 Coleman St. But they can make a lot of other improvements in your home for you, too. Ridley will air conditioning, heating and cooking unit method which brings cooking into the 21st century, home vacuum systems, portable heating systems for cottage or recreation room, a whole line of Moffat appliances and whole bunch of surprises. And that's just what I've discovered in new items since my last column. Ridley's celebrates their 25th anniversary this year and I'm sure they have some great ideas. Why don't you drop in and see what's new? Or call them at 962-2931. Ridley's is another original member of this column which has been with us for the whole year. And so it's one I've got to know quite well. As its name implies, Belleview is in business in two product areas: glass and mirror. And this means aluminum and steel storm doors and windows. The invention of aluminum windows and screen has been one of the greatest boons to home-owners, and if there is such a thing as a Home-owners Hall of Fame, then I hope that aluminum home products get their due. And if you're one of those people who is still puking on and taking off storm windows, then don't you think you really should get in this modern civilization and call Belleview Glass and Mirror? I do. Or if you're redecorating, don't forget what mirror can do. And don't forget Belleview Glass and Mirror. I won't.

Bye.

Paintings Never Wear Out, And May Double in Value

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Some people spend thousands of dollars for rugs but hesitate to spend $200 for an original painting.

"Rugs wear out. A painting doesn't," says art gallery owner Sharon Theobald of Waterloo and Brighton, Ont. "Some works of art increase or double in price."

Mrs. Theobald, director of a summer art gallery in Manitoulin, feels strongly "that people should buy what they like in painting—it should be an original."

"Years ago, art was reserved for museums, art galleries and the upper class. I don't feel it is that way today. Original art paintings are affordable to the average person.

"There's no profit and little pleasure in a mass-produced copy," she says Mrs. Theobald, whose husband is chairman of the department of recreation at University of Waterloo.

Art has long been the centre of the William Theobalds' lives. They have been acquiring work since their marriage 12 years ago. The growth of their own collection is what led them to open a summer art gallery.

When the family moved from New York last year, Mrs. Theobald agonized whether to give up the art gallery. "It had been such a part of my life for five years. I found it [work]," says the mother of two, five-year-old Gregg and Amanda, 9.

"My own hands did much of the physical work in converting the 1870 carriage house to an art gallery."

This was its second conversion. Originally, it had been the first location of the town newspaper.

The contemporary summer art gallery holds a collection of paintings, water colors, sculpture, lithography, etchings in copper and zinc, and photographs.

Mrs. Theobald says she spends a busy three months at the gallery. "The children and I leave early in June and my husband joins us in August."

Dr. Theobald is a fellow of two International Appraisal Societies, the American Society and the International Society of Appraisers. His specialty is appraising contemporary fine art for estates and individuals.

"Many people assume I'm an artist because I'm director of an art gallery," Mrs. Theobald, who holds a master's degree in English from Hofstra University, Hempstead, N.Y.

"I'd say I'm a competent whole experience manager for artists. The only way an artist can continue painting is if his paintings are sold. I communicate their ideas through my words. I help them paint-ing time."

This year she has been busy preparing for two major exhibitions of the Brigden art gallery. The Showghegan School of Art and painters of New York City and Skowhegan, Me., will lend works of art from its collection for the July 4-25 presentation.

An exhibition showing Women in Art, Aug. 1-31, will show the work of Canadian and Canadian women painters, printmakers, sculptors and photographers.

She thought this would be appropriate for International Women's Year." Mrs. Theobald explains.

Mrs. Theobald has a deep appreciation for contemporary art collectors and likes to meet people who have fallen with them.

An expert in framing pictures, she advises that framing is a highly specialized in care and preservation of works of art as well as adding to their beauty. Proper lighting adds to the decor and highlights paintings.

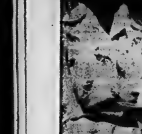
Some advice she gives is to explore styles and add dimension to the work of art at home.

"Today's look is one large room rather than a grouping," she says.

Mrs. Theobald says prospective buyers should visit museums and art galleries—art is in the seeing, she emphasizes.

The Theobald home reflects this with innumerable pieces of valuable art and a tasteful blending to create a spacious comfortable home.

The Experts Say



Sharon Theobald and her five-year-old son Gregg recover an art newsletter while husband, William, and daughter Amanda, absorbed themselves in another story in their Kitchener home. Mrs.Theobald, who is active in many facets of the art field, says, "That's what should buy what they like in a painting but it should be an original." (CP Photo)

Irvine Promises Sewer Tax Relief for Hillcrest Ratepayers

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Hillcrest householder's high-payment protests over new city services has reached the Ontario government's ministerial level.

Housing Minister Donald Irvine late Thursday followed up city hall submissions with an on-the-spot survey of the northend suburb, a centre of discontent since property owners discovered the cost of sanitary sewers and water line bills rocketing.

Immediately after, Mr. Irvine indicated he would consider action on these fronts:

(1) Inform the environment ministry about the possibility of grants and loans in an attempt to ease the high local improvement costs blasting Hillcrest tax bills where sewers have now been installed.

(2) Consider legislation prompting housing starts in the neighborhood, through provincial programs. This not only would benefit the new housing for the city: It would eventually decrease the controversial improvement costs since there would be more homeowners to share the expense of service installations.

(3) Promote wider use of the province's home renewal program (HREP) under which the city administers provincial loans and grants. This would help Hillcrest householders with installation of domestic facilities using the city sewer services.

Mr. Irvine described the talks — and tour — as exploratory.

But he hoped to initiate action as swiftly as possible as indicated answers should be forthcoming "in a few weeks to months at the most as far as I'm concerned."

"I came down with the idea of trying to resolve a difficult situation. And I hope I'm leaving the impression — in the area that the situation is not one that cannot be resolved.

But Ken Brooks, president of Hillcrest Ratepayers Association whose protest to council two weeks ago precipitated the ministerial visit, indicated his group wants solutions — not promises.

"We don't want to get snowballed up here," he said. "We don't want this issue to prolong itself after the next provincial election (expected in fall). We want some action. These people here need financial assistance and we can't let things delay for long."

Mr. Brooks joined Mayor Robin Jeffrey and city manager Wilbert Purcell at the city hall meeting scheduled after it was discovered Mr. Irvine was passing through the Belleville area.

Mayor Jeffrey said a major thrust of the city's appeal on behalf of Hillcrest was that subsidies should be sought from the environment ministry.

A brief prepared by the city manager noted the disparity in local improvement charges by that ministry proposed for an adjacent sector of Thurlow Township when sewer and water services are extended there at about $130 for a front-foot.

Hillcrest's problem to now has been large urban frontages — a singularity dated from its 1956 annexation as a rural suburb into the city. Shortly after, residential development was frozen — a restriction just relaxed — and local improvement charges amounted slightly in excess of $17 a frontage foot. In some cases this has almost doubled, tripled some tax bills.

Mayor Jeffrey said it was emphasized to Mr. Irvine that it "seems unfair" that Hillcrest property owners of Thurlow were allowed to borrow at low interest Highway #2 should be assessed so heavily because it now was a city zone.

Full documentation on the issue will now be forwarded the minister's office, she said, extension sought.

But his following inspection of Hillcrest — with its cul-de-sacs — also obviously caught Mr. Irvine's attention as potential for new residential homes.

He said he would examine the possibilities of arranging development loans for them through the Ontario Housing Action Plan (OHAP). Under OHAP the province makes loans to local agencies to build homes for families with incomes from $11,000 — $20,000 with preferred interest rate.

It with possible also OHAP could provide interest — free loans to the city for 15 years to finance sewer and water extensions, thus reducing stallation charges.

At one point, Mr. Brooks claimed the minister told him: "I didn't realize areas like this had been developed." But Mr. Brooks said he took the comment as reference to housing developments in which an underdeveloped area since annexation in 1961.

Water Shortage Brings Short-term Measures

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Short term solutions to mounting water shortage problems were all Noramco Corp. offered to residents of Quinte Heights subdivision Thursday, say spokesman for the pro-vince's ministry of the environment.

Historically, the 55-home subdivision near Bayside Secondary School has had summer water shortage problems. The issue came to a head this week at Sidney Township council when a group of residents demanded action.

Residents claimed that during the past week there had been no water pressure leaving toilets, showers and most taps inoperable. The township responded by trucking water to subdivision wells.

Thursday, officials of the ministry, the township, Noramco and a group of residents met to determine who is responsible for the water and what should be done.

Noramco Corp., general manager H.R. Ledingham said: "We don't guarantee to supply water for life in unlimited quantities to the subdivision."

He said other wells on the property have water but that because of high costs of connecting them to the system, "we have no intention of paying for the hookup."

As an alternative to permanent hook up Mr. Ledingham said his firm will install a two-inch plastic pipe to connect the existing wells with unused wells 1,200 feet away if residents are prepared to obtain and operate a gasoline pump. In this fashion, system wells could be re-charged faster through the use of the more remote wells.

In addition, Mr. Ledingham — at the request of the ministry — said he will have specialists re-adjust the mechanical aspects of the system to maximize pressure.

Lavern Hatcher, spokesman for the residents, said they are filing a brief recess in the proceedings: "We will hold a meeting to decide on initiation of a temporary pump and to consider further legal action." After the meeting Mr. Hatcher said legal advice may be sought to determine who is responsible for water delivery to the development.

Bob Wilson engineer with the ministry of the environment, said at present the water supply is only a third of what it should be. He added 10 dems are with health problems.

"The solutions proposed by Noramco won't solve the problems but they will help a bit," said Mr. Watson.

Fish Must Be Biting

Someone apparently couldn't wait to go fishing.

A county police spokesman said today R. J. Hodgkinson of 17 Pine St. here reported the theft of fishing poles, reels, lures and tackle box from the rear of his half-ton truck some time during the past two days.

Total value of the stolen items is about $100.

And in another incident involving vandalism, a West Bridge St. grocetaria had a plate glass window valued at $75 broken at about 7 a.m. today.

Parker Charged With Rape

A 21-year-old Belleville man has been charged by city police with two counts of rape following an incident involving a 22-year-old Chatham woman late Thursday afternoon in a wooded area of the city.

A police spokesman identified the man as Lynn William Parker of 1 West Moira St.. He was to appear before a bail hearing today at 1:30 p.m. at the county courthouse here.

The spokesman said the arrest was made by Constable Dave Jones in a wooded area between Tracey St. and Bell Blvd.

He added that Constable Leavey at 7:30 special detail in this area in plain clothes" saw the car in question Wednesday in which an indecent act was performed by a male person.

The spokesman said the man was charged at Belleville General Hospital.

Minister on Spot

Ontario Housing Minister Donald Irvine (right) took a tour of Hillcrest after city hall meeting over high cost of sanitary sewer installations in the north-end suburb. Ken Brooks, Hillcrest Ratepayers' Association president, who guided the minister around area, said he hopes problem can be resolved without too much delay.

Jewelry Stolen From Two Homes

City police are investigating the theft of $1,900 worth of valuables from two city homes Thursday.

A police spokesman said today Mrs. C. A. Haight of 77 Pine St. reported the theft of a white gold ring with seven diamonds, one loose birthstone ring, one gold watch and chain and a gold wedding band and necklace from a dresser drawer in her bedroom. Total value is $700.

And in a similar incident, J. W. Sherry of 154 Queen St. advised police of the theft of a large antique, oval-shaped light brown cameo brooch and a diamond solitaire antique ring worth $700 plus other pieces of jewelry with no set value, also from a bedroom dresser drawer, the spokesman said.

Hasty Pee Battle Flag Now Decorates Lawn

A replica of the battle flag of the Hastings Prince Edward regiment that accompanied the unit into combat is now flying on a flagpole on the front lawn of the armory.

The smaller, original battle flag has been retired to the sergeant's mess where it will stay, only to be used if the unit fights again.

Effective July 1, Canada Day, the flag was raised in a short military ceremony with honor guard, said Chief Warrant Officer William Vallance.

"We decided to make use of the new flagpole in front of the armory," he said, the regimental flag was stolen several years ago.

The flags were being stolen so often special measures had to be taken to prevent it, he said.

"People were taking flags during daylight so we had to raise the toggle holding the flag so it could only be reached by ladder," said Vallance.

"In addition we ran barbed wire around the bottom half of the pole to discourage people from climbing it."

Queen's Follows Loyalist Pet Ban

Queen's University in Kingston should have followed the lead of Loyalist College here.

Loyalist, since its inception in the mid-sixties has banned all animals from campus buildings except for those rabbits and guinea pigs in the early childhood education program which delight children and blind students' seeing-eye dogs.

Queen's just recently adopted the same policy — but only after fumigation of Theological Hall for fleas proved the last straw for university officials.

Gerald Christopher, Loyalist director of plant responsible for maintenance and general upkeep, said Thursday, "we won't allow cats and dogs at all. If you allow them in a building like this, they run wild."

A formal notice has been issued at Queen's barring pets and citing health hazards of "excrement, bites and disease transmission through fleas."

Mr. Christopher said the Loyalist regulation is not posted. "It's a more or less unwritten law but it's a pretty well understood thing."

He recalled when the college was under construction a cat which wandered around the area eventually found its way between the walls. "You can imagine the trouble we had getting it out."

Township Gets Grant

A $2,200 provincial grant has made it possible for Thurlow Township to have a summer recreational program this year.

Participation "71 will run Tuesday through Thursday mornings 9 a.m. - 12 noon until August 21.

"Without the grant from the ministry of community and social services the program would not have been possible," says Kay Saunderson, member of the township recreational committee.

The program will be held at six sites throughout Thurlow Township including schools, playgrounds, churches and private homes.

Clinic Collects 375 Pints

Suddenly, Thursday made it look like 1975 could be a year of change.

Local Red Cross officials staged their summer clinic with crossed fingers.

A cast of 175 units was set for the clinic held at Centennial Secondary School.

By the time it closed officials counted 375 donors — not included 54 rejected for various reasons.

As a result donations for the year now stand at 1,981 units of blood — with one more clinic to go in October.

In 1974 the total blood donations was 1,550.

"It was wonderful for this time of year," enthused clinic chairman Merritt Hackett.

"Particularly since blood transfusions are so badly needed this time of year."

Home at Last

Pam Murray, 14 of Centennial Secondary School, steps down train after a two-week visit with a Quebec family. The project, part of an exchange program sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, continues this week with 17 French-Canadian students visiting the Quinte area.

Quebec Students Arrive in City

More than 50 people Thursday met the longest passenger train to go through Belleville (this year.

Parents and friends of Quinte-area students who were returning to Belleville from Quebec with their hosts, were greeted by enthusiastic crowds.

Keith Allison, Rotary Club member and organizer of the two-week reciprocal visit by the French-Canadian students, accompanied by representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and Belleville Garden Club formally welcomed the group.

The Garden Club representative, Mrs. Gardiner, presented each of the visitors with a corsage. They also received a briefcase filled with information about Belleville from the chamber representative.

The students will be in the Quinte area for two weeks as part of an exchange program sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews.

The two-week program will be highlighted by a meeting with Mayor Robin Jeffrey at City Hall, July 14, and a public swim barbecue on July 22.

No End in Sight To Month-long Strike

There is still no end in sight to the strike that has crippled International Harvester for the past month.

The 320-member local of the International Union of Moulders and Allied Workers overwhelmingly to strike against the company June 12 in support of demands which centred on wages and cost of living clauses.

The union has demanded a 75 per cent increase in cost and unlimited cost of living benefits for both years of a two-year contract.

In return, the company's negotiating team offered a complete package including cost of living and wages that would give workers an increase of about 36 per cent.

Ray Ryan, chairman of the union negotiating committee, said during an interview Wednesday: "There is nothing new at all."

Company president D. C. Boyd confirmed that negotiations had not been renewed and said, "The union left the negotiating table. We're waiting for them to come back with an offer.

"We're hoping they show some sense and accept this exceptional offer," said Mr. Boyd.

Mr. Ryan said spirits are "high" on the picket line and that an increasing number of workers have found part time jobs that are helping them through the labor action. In addition, Mr. Ryan said a number of staff are leaving the Coleman St. plant for good, after finding "better jobs".

Mr. Boyd said the company does not have extensive stockpiles of products to maintain deliveries to buyers and "that we're getting some cancellations".

Dog Attacks 11-year-old

PICTON — An 11-year-old Picton boy was admitted to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital Thursday afternoon after he was attacked by a German shepherd dog while walking on Mary St.

Michael Lickers, 18 Ontario St., was bitten severely on the leg and tenderloin stitches were required to close the wounds.

Dr. George Wright of the Picton police department said the dog, owned by a Spring St. resident, is being held in quarantine.

Donors Respond

Red Cross blood clinic drew unexpectedly high response Thursday producing 375 units of blood — besting donations to date this year well over whole of 1974. Steady stream of donors at Centennial Secondary School hudzied Judith Stakenbruine, of Belleville, is having blood sampled by Red Cross technician Anne Roberts.

Cattle Deaths Traced to Toxic Fluid Used as Cure

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Two months after a warning that industry tainted meat might unwittingly be in possession of a highly-toxic fluid, there have been no new discoveries of the poison, a provincial food and agriculture ministry spokesman says.

The warning was issued in early May after it was found a farmer's cattle had been poisoned by tri-cresyl phosphate.

The phosphate was contained in some waste oil and drums in a load designated for dumping by a Belleville chemical company more than a year ago. But the oil inadvertently got into farmers' feed supplies without any of the parties involved suspecting it might contain the tri-cresyl phosphate, said a ministry veterinarian.

"It certainly was an accidental thing," said Dr. R. J. Julian, head of the ministry's veterinary services laboratory at Brighton.

"As far as we know we have this fully cleaned up," he said Thursday. "It should never have got out into the hands of people at all. . . People handling it didn't realize what it was."

Those who later came in possession of the waste oil had been using it for farmyard chores, such as machine lubrication, he indicated. One farmer was using it to burn brush. Some empty drums were found as far north as Wesleymoon Lake.

But the phosphate's presence came to light after a Roslin area farmer rubbed the oil on cattle as a treatment for ringworm in February.

The farmer, in an interview with his Intelligencer asked that he remain anonymous, said a number of cattle had been destroyed after they had by the phosphate.

He said he'd purchased the oil at a sale.

After the discovery, local ministry officials embarked on a search for any more oil or even empty drums that might contain the phosphate residue, said Dr. Julian.

"We checked everybody we found had the stuff. We picked it up and it was properly disposed of."

The phosphate was contained in hydraulic fluid used in Trans-Canada Pipeline pumping stations, he said. It was shipped to Dussek Bros. (Canada) Ltd. for reclaiming — a project a company spokesman said Dussek ceased about three years ago.

The phosphate, it is presence had been realized should normally be disposed of at a provincial industrial incineration centre, said Dr. Julian.

Most of the waste oil and drums handed over by Dussek for disposal were "perfectly safe." There was, however, an "occasional" barrel containing the toxic residue.

The stockpile of metal drums, some empty, some containing waste oil, was given over to McInroy — Construction for disposal.

Gord McInroy, construction company president, said most of the drums were dumped at Belleville's Waste disposal site in Sidney Township.

Dr. Julian said cattle have been poisoned by the phosphate in other provinces and in the United States, while there have been instances where it was toxic to humans "in other countries."

Douglas Tupper, the ministry's agricultural representatives in Hastings, described the phosphate as "a pretty dangerous thing" which had killed many in Algeria some years ago when sold off in cooking oil.

"When we finally pinpointed it we got pretty concerned."

The poison caused brain, liver and kidney damage in cattle. The meat had to be held in cold storage for several months until it was cleared for human consumption, he said.

He believed the situation had been cleared up, but suggested any one with suspicions of containers or their contents should contact his office at 395-2393.

The warning issued by Dr. Julian in May gave the trade name of the hydraulic fluid as Fyrquel. It asked that anyone in possession of either full or empty drums marked with that label or the names of Dussek Bros., Acolleco Mallenico or Fyrquel Yasso be reported to ministry officials at Stirling.

Up and Away For the Tigers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit Tigers have certainly had their ups and downs this season. Right now, they're up.

The Tigers, who couldn't win a game for the longest time, now can't lose and Thursday night defeated Kansas City Royals 3-2 for their seventh consecutive American League baseball victory.

"There's really no answer for our slump and now our winning streak," said Detroit manager Ralph Houk. "It's how baseball goes. We were playing real close ball games in the slump. We were in all the games but we couldn't get the hit at the right time."

Before the record consecutive the Tigers had suffered through losing streaks of four, six and five games.

In other American League games, Boston Red Sox nipped Texas Rangers 4-3, Minnesota Twins stopped New York Yankees 5-3, and Baltimore Orioles downed California Angels 5-3.

Vern Ruhle teamed with Bob Reynolds for an eight-hitter and Mayo Smith batted a home run to help the Tigers beat the Royals.

"Now our young pitchers are doing real well," said Ruhle, a real fine pitcher. He's always been a pretty good hitter around the plate."

Cecil Cooper's run-scoring single in the bottom of the ninth gifted Texas Rangers a home run victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The Rangers had tied it 7-7 with two outs in the top of the ninth when Toby Harrah tied Jim Spencer singled and Jeff Burroughs hit a full-count pitch past Cleveland's 5-6, over the left field wall for his 17th home run of the season.

Tony Oliva ripped four hits, one of them a home run, and triggered three rallies, leading Minnesota over New York. It was the 27th career four-hit game for the 13-year veteran.

Oliva's big night extended his latest batting spree to eight consecutive games.

Elrod Hendricks led Baltimore's extra-base hit assault with two doubles and a triple and Mike Cuellar scattered nine hits as the Orioles beat California.

The Orioles batted out nine extra base hits — five doubles, two triples and a pair of home runs — to belting Cuellar his record to 7-4.

Teams Are Falling By the Wayside

VANCOUVER (CP) — St. John's, Nfld., was the second team eliminated from the Canadian senior baseball championships, losing 1-0 Thursday to Vancouver All-Stars.

It was Vancouver's first victory of the double-knockout tournament and advanced the All-Stars to another game late Thursday against Saskatchewan.

The only run was scored in the first inning when second baseman Bert Haas of Vancouver doubled and scored on a single by first baseman Don Archer.

Right-hander Bill Bazaluk and relief Bob Jones combined to pitch a five-hit shutout. Bazaluk struck out seven before being replaced by Elliott with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Losing pitcher Bill Hudson of St. John's also gave up only five hits.

Montreal, representing Quebec, advanced by beating Nova Scotia 7-4. That was eliminated the Halifax team which lost 12-3 to British Columbia Tuesday night.

Gaetan Plouffe pitched the complete game for Quebec, despite giving up 14 Nova Scotia hits. Nova Scotia left nine on base.

Starter Bob Gillis was the loser pitcher.

Richard Milo hit a two-run double in the second inning of the game and his single in the third drove in Montreal's third run.

Vancouver All-Stars eliminated Kenora Red Sox by defeating the Saskatchewan representative 4-3 and then they bombed 19 hits off three Regina pitchers.

The winners were ahead 6-0 but Saskatchewan closed the gap with several rallies in the fifth and sixth innings. Vancouver went ahead 7-4 in the top of the seventh and Saskatchewan had a chance to get back in the game in the bottom of the inning when they loaded the bases with one out.

However, relief pitcher Brent Wagg struck out Jim Saba and Ron Mosmon and third baseman Craig Neilles of the Yankees, all named to the starting lineup for the first time, and Oakland's first baseman Gene Tenace, shortstop Bert Campaneris and outfielders Joe Rudi and Reggie Jackson.

Dark previously had named an eight-man starting staff composed of Catfish Hunter of the Yankees, Vida Blue and Rollie Fingers of Oakland, Steve Busby of Kansas City, Jim Palmer of Baltimore, Nolan Ryan of California and Rich Gossage and Goose Gossage of the White Sox.

The only rookie named to the All team was Lynn, who is 9-1 and 1.413.84 write-in votes in the fan balloting.

Dark Adds 12

NEW YORK (AAP) — Hank Aaron heads a list of 13 players selected Thursday by manager Alvin Dark of Oakland A's to complete the American League all-stars team for next Tuesday night's baseball game against the National League in Milwaukee's County Stadium.

Aaron, the former all-star home run leader, was named to his 25th All-Star squad and his first one for the AL. He played in 23 games for the National League and was traded to the Milwaukee Brewers by Atlanta Braves last winter after shattering Babe Ruth's 714 home run record last season.

If he plays Tuesday night, he will tie the record for most appearances shared by Willie Mays and Stan Musial.

Aaron and first baseman George Scott will represent the Brewers. Besides Aaron, Dark's bench will include Boston teammates Carl Yastrzemski and Fred Lynn; California third baseman Dave Chalk; shortstop Bucky Dent and second baseman Jim Fregosi of Chicago White Sox; outfielder George Hendrick of Cleveland; Detroit catcher Bill Freehan; outfielder Hal McRae of Kansas City; Oakland outfielder Claudell Washington; and Texas first baseman Mike Hargrove.

They will back up a starting lineup dominated by Oakland and New York Yankees, who took seven of the eight starting berths. Minnesota second baseman Rod Carew, who led all players with 3,116,645 votes in fan balloting, is the only starter not Oakland or New York.

Other starters are outfielder Bobby Bonds, catcher Thurman Munson and third baseman Graig Nettles of the Yankees, all named to the starting nine for the first time, and Oakland first baseman Gene Tenace, shortstop Bert Campaneris and outfielders Joe Rudi and Reggie Jackson.

Dark previously had named an eight-man starting staff composed of Catfish Hunter of the Yankees, Vida Blue and Rollie Fingers of Oakland, Steve Busby of Kansas City, Jim Palmer of Baltimore, Nolan Ryan of California and Rich Gossage and Goose Gossage of the White Sox.

The only rookie named to the All team was Lynn, who is 9-1 and 1.413.84 write-in votes in the fan balloting.

3 Phils Selected

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three Philadelphia Phils, two Pittsburgh Pirates and one player from each of six other National League clubs were named today to manager Walt Alston as National League all-star reserves for Tuesday's game against the American League all-stars at Milwaukee.

Philadelphia selections were outfielder Greg Luzinski, the league leader in home runs and runs batted in, and the second base-shortstop combination of Dave Cash and Larry Bowa.

Manny Sanguillen was named backup for starting catcher Johnny Bench of Cincinnati and outfielder Al Oliver is Pittsburgh's other reserve player.

The remaining six reserves are Terry Perez, Cincinnati, and Bob Watson, Houston, first base; Bill Madlock, Chicago, third base; and outfielders Reggie Smith of St. Louis, Bobby Murcer of San Francisco and Cary Carter of Montreal.

In addition to Bench, the Reds have second baseman Joe Morgan, shortstop Dave Concepcion and outfielder Pete Rose in a starting lineup that includes St. Louis outfielder Lou Brock and Chris of Atlanta Los Angeles Dodgers.

Starters for the Dodgers, who also have three men on the All-American pitching staff, are Steve Garvey at first, Ron Cey at third and Jimmy Wynn, outfield.

Move Over, Joe Here's Willie

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

No offence, Joe DiMaggio—it was just another night's work for Willie Stargell.

"Milestones are to be enjoyed once your career is over," Stargell said after his 24th career homer tied him with DiMaggio for 34th place on the all-time major league list and secured the Pittsburgh Pirates' 6-1 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers in a National League baseball game Thursday night.

In the only other game in the National League, Chicago Cubs defeated San Diego Padres 3-1. The Montreal-Atlanta game was postponed by rain.

"I knew I've got two games tomorrow and that milestones aren't going to be much help," Stargell said after the Pirate victory.

"When you're playing you just have to grind it out," he added.

Stargell ground it out against the Dodgers with a run-scoring single that broke a 1-1 tie and a two-run homerun homer off Dodger reliever Mike Marshall. The victory was the 99th in 13 games for the Pirates, who moved six games ahead of idle Philadelphia Phillies in the National League East. The Dodgers dropped 10 games behind the first-place Cincinnati Reds in the West.

Ray Burris stopped San Diego on eight hits and Chicago scored a pair of unearned runs in the second inning en route to victory over the Padres.

With two out in the second inning, Manny Trillo walked and Burris batter doubled. Burris then grounded to shortstop Dave Hernandez, who threw wild past first as both runners scored.

Burris had a three-hit shutout going until there were two out in the ninth inning. Bobby Tolan led off with a single, both singled and Dave Winfield followed with a run-scoring double.

Robinson Rates The Men in Blue

OAKLAND (AP) — Manager Frank Robinson of Cleveland Indians, who recently said some umpires "don't belong in baseball," were being discriminatory in their calls, says he feels 10 do an adequate job.

He listed as "real bad" umpires Larry Barnett, Nestor Chylak, Bill Haggerty, Don Denkinger, Jim Evans, Richard Cargia and Lou Marsi.

"Jerry McKean can be good but he's in with a bad crew. Ed Sudol of St. Louis, Bobby Mercer of San Francisco and Cary Carter of Montreal.

In addition to Bench, the Reds have second baseman Joe Morgan, shortstop Dave Concepcion and outfielder Pete Rose in a starting lineup that includes St. Louis outfielder Lou Brock and Chris of Atlanta Los Angeles Dodgers.

Starters for the Dodgers, who also have three men on the All-American pitching staff, are Steve Garvey at first, Ron Cey at third and Jimmy Wynn, outfield.

"I'm not saying I think they're prejudiced because I'm black," he said. "But I am saying they are so aware of my situation with all the hoopla that goes with it, that they are determined to not let me get away with anything; to keep me in my place."

Segui said he would talk with president Lee MacPhail and director of umpires Dick Butler during the all-star break.

Robinson, baseball's first black manager, said Tuesday it's umpires were discriminating against him.

"I've been many managers give many more heated arguments than Frank has given. They never couldn't seem to be the stress put on the others or the reactions toward the others that there is to Frank."

He would not mention specific umpires.

Segui said he would not file a formal complaint with league officials but would talk with

ENTRY REJECTED

LONDON (Reuter) — The Royal Ocean Racing Club announced Thursday that Monaco's entry for the admiral's cup, regarded as the world championship of ocean yacht racing, has been rejected. It said the Cup's management committee was not satisfied the entry was truly representative.

Balint's Four-hitter Stops Toronto Team

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Dick Balint pitched a four-hitter Thursday as St. Catharines Mr. Jockers defeated Toronto Globtik 3-1 in an Ontario Fastball League game.

The St. Catharines right-hander struck out eight and walked two. The loser was John Young, who gave up seven hits and struck out three.

Toronto scored a run in the top of the first inning but St. Catharines tied the game in the bottom of the first and added single runs in the second and the seventh.

Barry Robertson homered for the winners and Don Hill debuted had a triple and a single. Lee Goold doubled for Toronto.

Munros And Chiefs Score

Other games scheduled for Thursday—London at Newmarket and doubleheader with Kitchener at Burlington—were rained out. No reached-ed dates were set.

Brady Bryan scored six goals, leading Peterborough Gray-Metters to a 21-12 victory over Reade Warriors in Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A action Thursday.

In the only other league game Mississauga Chiefs downed Oshawa Gaels 20-17.

At Peterborough, Steve Byers, Dan Green, Mark Vitarelli, Bob Wasson and Dave Plunkett with two goals each. Greg Lacy, Paul Evans, Ken Byers, Dan Eastman and Moe Jodoin added one each.

Rendale's top scorers were Steve Self and Brian Legree with three goals each. Dave Huntley banged in two more and Wally Chester, Bill Bolibie, Dan Sabadash and Mike Fisher rounded out the scoring.

The Grays led 8-4 at the end of the first period and 13-4 at the end of the second.

In Oshawa, Sergie Chandler led Mississauga with four goals and three assists as the Chiefs took period leads of 7-2 and 15-6.

Some BQSA Entries Letting Others Down

All of a sudden, the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association has a number of teams developing growth troubles.

Trouble is, the negligence of some clubs is hurting the others.

I'm referring of course, to the unwillingness of association teams Canadian Forces Base Trenton, Wartworth, Brighton and Cobourg to call in at least the scores from their league games.

I said it before and it bears repeating.

It's got to be 100 percent co-operation or this department doesn't have the time to bother with any league.

In other seasons, it was no trick to check up on teams who neglected to report games. A call to association president Peter Cowie usually produced the desired results.

Since Peter relieved many of the pressures, he knew the score at least and more often than not, could fill a fellow in on the details.

Such is not the case this time around. And it certainly is not Cowie's fault.

It's tough on people like Kevin Kirby Belleville Olympics); Dudley Hiller (Belleville Parents); Joe Iasenza (Italo Canadians); Quinte Helenic and Citizens Finance of Trenton who were always willing to get us the results.

They have a legitimate beef.

But it's not with me and I hope they realize that.

Some individuals are trying their best to bring the attending clubs around to my way of thinking. I hope their efforts are not in vain. The soccer group deserves coverage.

Perhaps within a few days, things will be back to normal and regular BQSA reports and standings will be a feature of the sports pages.

SLICES — Belleville will be represented in the Royal Canadian Legion peewee baseball playoffs at the District level when the defending champion Peterborough squad plays host to the event, Saturday.

No word on who Belleville Branch 99 plays first. Trenton Branch 110 is another entry.

Paul Bedard believes in giving credit where it is due.

When a co-worker at Wilson Sports Equipment scored a hole in one Wednesday, Bedard took it on himself to report the feat when his friend appeared hesitant to do so.

Bruce Symons of Belleville scored the ace on the 165-yard par 3 second hole at Oak Hills Golf Course. He used an eight iron.

Golfing with Bruce were Bob Bailey and Ray Ryan.

Leading assistance to the Quinte Adult Sport Club's ambitious dusk 'til dawn rally, Saturday night and Sunday, will be members of the Tri-Boro Radio Club who will be manning the checks points.

First car out on the 195-mile jaunt will leave Quinte Mall at 10:01 p.m. Saturday.

Entry fee is $4 per car. Registrations will be taken from 8:30 - 9:30 p.m.

California has produced nearly three times as many National Baseball League players as its nearest rival, Texas. There are 60 California players and 21 Texans.

Make it a point to take in that Softball Tournament, Saturday. These little guys produce some entertaining action. Games are scheduled for Queen Victoria Public School and Elizabeth Public School and Alemite Park.

Our own Belleville Kinsmen team will be aiming for a championship.

Opening games are set for 9 a.m. A full schedule appears in today's sports calendar.

The Pitching Staff

Bobby Turner, Allan Thompson and Angelo Lemiel (left to right) will be sharing the pitching duties for Belleville Kinsmen, Saturday when Belleville plays host to 14-team McDonald's Squirt Softball Tournament. Action in the tournament starts at 9 a.m. Championship games are set for 6 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

14 Squirt Teams Here Saturday

Kinsmen Tournament Hosts

Belleville's Kinsmen Squirts are getting in plenty of action while lining up for Saturday's annual Belleville Minor Softball Association McDonald's Tournament.

The club hasn't been blasting its opponents. In fact Kinsmen have dropped their last two outings. But that's what getting ready for an important tournament is all about. Obviously the emphasis is on preparation and not on making sure to post wins in practice games.

Playing in Marmora, Thursday, Kinsmen were edged 7-6 by Springbrook. Winning pitcher Gary Fitch struck out 12. Angelo Lemiel took the loss, fanning six.

Scott Terrion blasted a pair of home runs and zapped a single to the winners' attack. Lemiel helped his own cause with three singles. John Ramsey whacked a Belleville homer and singled while Stephen Smith and Warren Lawlor each singled twice.

Earlier in the week, Kinsmen fell to Napanee Ryan's in another road game, 7-5.

Ramsay slammed a triple and Bobby Turner had a double in defeat. Tops for the winners was Dave Price with two singles.

Kevin MacDonald was the winning pitcher with nine strikeouts in relief. Allan Thompson fanned eight while taking the loss.

Springbrook and Napanee are part of the 14-team tournament here Saturday.

Yardmen Midgets Are 4 - 3 Winners

The Belleville Yardmen Midgets had to work hard for their Prince Edward North Shore Softball League victory over Carrying Place, Thursday, scoring two runs in the bottom of the seventh to take the game 4-3.

In the other league game, Bayview Orchard won 7-6 over Consecon.

Danny Vance hurled the Yardmen victory, giving up eight hits. He walked five and came up with 10 third strikes.

Chris Allin took the loss, giving up nine hits and a walk while gaining five strikeouts.

Scott Bowes had three singles for the winners while Marty Lowery had two safeties.

Dan Wannamaker singled three times for the losers, while Pat Irvine and Mike Irvine each had two singles.

Don Boxter took the win for Bayview.

Boxter gave up four hits and two walks while striking out four batters in the shutout.

Wayne Clarke was the loser, giving up six hits and three walks while striking out three.

It was a team effort for Bayview, as the hits were spread out among the team.

Broadloom Ties Purinaettes 7-7

Belleville Broadloom and the Purinaettes played to a 7-7 tie, in Belleville and 11-11 Friel Ladies Softball League on Thursday night.

Sue Fobert and Sandra Fleming pitched well and neither team could gain an edge.

In the other league game Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund defeated Mobil Chemical 12-2.

Fleming allowed 11 hits for the Purinaettes, giving up a walk and striking out five batters.

Fobert gave up 14 hits and a walk while striking out one batter for Broadloom.

Chris Fyke had two singles and a double for Broadloom. Pam Smith pounded a triple and a single, while Norma May contributed two singles to the offence.

For Madoc, Jane Bailey pounded a homer and a triple while Bonnie Jones tripled and Bonnie Thompson had two singles and a triple.

Sue Morton took an easy win for BYBF striking out nine Mobil batters in the 15-2 win. She gave up just six hits in five innings. She walked none.

Sue Shannon and Aileen Barr shared the Mobil loot.

Sharon Alexander had a triple, a double and two singles in the victory, while Donna Preston tripled, doubled and singled.

Sprackett Over Swan In Duel of Pitchers

Two of the top pitchers in the Quinte Baseball League met on Thursday night at the Alemite.

John Sprackett and Bob Swan, of the Elks Juniors and Angers Mens Wear, respectively, put on a good pitching show for fans.

When the smoke had cleared the Elks Juniors came out ahead 1-0, although they had only two safeties off Swan.

The only run of the game came in the seventh inning when Steve Campbell doubled and moved to third on a passed ball. Bruce Sutherland hit a towering sacrifice fly which scored Campbell.

In the other QPL game, Barden Supplies defeated Devolin Motors 7-3.

Sprackett gave up just three hits for the Juniors, and walked one, he also struck out two batters. He depended mostly on just keeping the batters off balance for most of the game.

Swan gave up just two hits and a walk. Swan struck out nine Junior batters.

Bob Campbell joined his brother Steve to account for the only two Junior hits. Steve had a double while Bob singled.

All three Angers hits were singles coming from Joe Theroault, Darryl Kramp and Jamie Hunter.

LINESCORE:

Angers Men's Wear	000	000	000	0	2	0

The second game was more of a hitters match.

Earl Foster threw the Barden win, giving up five hits and no walks while sending six batters down on third strikes.

Don Holoway took the loss, giving up six of the runs on seven hits, one walk and one strikeout.

Larry Griffo came in for four innings of relief and gave up two hits and a walk, while blowing nine strikeouts by Devolin batters.

Ted Walkwark was stops at the plate for Barden, with a single and a double, while Marv Stacey singled twice and Bill Foster had all singles from Ken Denlis, Rob Wallwork, Warren Ostrander, Denis Neron and Carl Stacey.

Gary Goyer led the Devolin batters with a single and a triple, while John Burnside, Rick Rossbach and Gary Johnson singled.

Fight Postponed

MILAN, Italy (AP) — The world mini-flyweight championship fight between Italian title holder Franco Udella and challenger Rafael Lovera of Paraguay has been postponed until December because the champion needs medical checkup. The fight was originally scheduled July 31 in the Adriatic Sea resort of Lignano Sabbiador.

Thurlow, Legion 99 Tie 3-3

Belleville Legion 99 and Thurlow Chisholm's of Roslin didn't prove a thing in an Eastern Ontario Baseball Association fastpitch match Thursday, at Canifton.

When Belleville lefty Steve Carr and Thurlow's Gary Radgley had finished trading pitches, the teams were tied 3-3.

Carr finished with a two-hitter while fanning eight and walking three.

Radgley struck out five and walked five on the way to a four-hitter.

Silk Stockings Wins

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Silk Stockings, driven by Preston Burris, Jr., shattered the Yonkers Raceway track record for 3-year-old pacing fillies when she defeated Tarport Hap by four lengths in 1:58 3-5 in Thursday night's feature $53,494 New York Sires Stakes. The daughter of Most Happy Fella owned by Claire and Kenneth Masik, Bear, Delaware, paid $2.40, $2.10 and $2.10 in pleasing her seventh straight victory. The previous mark was held by Amrocs Dream and Saucy Wave who both clocked a 1:58 3-5

Bantam Softball Team Records Two Victories

The Belleville Downtown Merchants slipped by Napanee 10-9 in the East Central Ontario Bantam Softball League, Thursday.

Rick Tripp came up with the victory, giving up 10 hits and two walks, while striking out four batters. He went all seven innings for Belleville.

Mike Martin took the loss, giving up 11 hits and three walks while striking out just one.

Andy Rosait hit a homer and a single while driving in three Belleville runs.

Jim Mills hit a homer and a single for the losers.

In previous league action Belleville defeated Picton 15-12, on the pitching talents of Ward Morton and Tripp.

Ted Hedges was Belleville's leader that game with a homer and three singles.

Black Diamond Squad On a Hitting Spree

Black Diamond went out to hit on Thursday night in the Belleville Industrial Softball League, and they met with success.

The Black Diamond squad cracked in hits off the Leaders to win 15-1.

Ron Andrews took the victory, driving in five hits and one walk while striking out three batters.

The loss went to Wayne Marr, who walked four and gained six strikeouts.

eGoe Francis had a single, a double and a triple for Black Diamond. Jack Francis had a single, two triples and cracked a homerun.

Bob Hikes doubled for the losers.

Ho-hum! B. C. 4-0 Over Argos

Teams So Nowhere on Greasy Turf

TORONTO (CP) — A second-quarter field goal from 26 yards by Eric Guthrie and a fourth-quarter single scored when Argo quarterback Ivy went wide provided all the scoring as British Columbia Lions shut out Toronto Argonauts 4-0 in the only Canadian Football League exhibition game Thursday night.

The game, played before 32,134 fans on a field made sticky by an early-evening rain storm, was an exercise in futility for both clubs as neither was able to move the ball as far as the Argo 30-yard line all night. The closest the Lions came to scoring was in the fourth quarter when Pete Liske, who played the entire game at quarterback, passed 30 yards to Randy Ragan at the Toronto 11-yard line after an incomplete pass. Liske was sacked at the 20 and Guthrie's wide field-goal attempt rolled to the dead-ball line for a single.

The Argos, who used rookie Rick Worley at quarterback in the first half and holdover Mike Eben in the second, threatened only once. Peter Muller caught a Rae pass in the fourth quarter and ran to the B.C. 11 before fumbling. Rocky Long recovered the ball in the air and returned it to the B.C. 28.

Zenon Andrusyshyn had three chances to put the Argos on the scoreboard, but was either wide or short on field goal attempts from 44, 47 and 37 yards. Guthrie missed on two of his three tries, one of which was deflected.

Andrusyshyn's inability to handle a high Ivy centre snap in the second quarter set the stage for the Lions' field goal. Guthrie the Lions had possession in Toronto territory.

But Liske, after passing to Tony Moro for four yards and fumbling off on an 11-yard drive to Lou Harris which moved the ball to the 19, missed on two passes, and had to settle for Guthrie's field goal at 6:46.

Forbes' Trial Continues

Didn't See Blow Struck Explains Game Timekeeper

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A penalty timekeeper testified Thursday he didn't see Dave Forbes of Boston Bruins threaten to shove his hockey stick down the throat of former Minnesota North Stars player Henry Boucha.

On cross-examination, however, the official said he did not see Forbes strike Boucha with his stick during a National Hockey League game June 4 in Bloomington, Minn.

Forbes, 26, is on trial in Hennepin County district court charged with aggravated assault with a dangerous weapon in the first U.S. prosecution of a professional athlete on a criminal charge for actions that occurred during a sports contest.

The first case of this kind occurred in Ottawa in 1970 when Ted Green, then a defenceman with the Boston Bruins, was acquitted of a charge of common assault arising from an attack on Wayne Maki of St. Louis Blues during a National Hockey League exhibition game in that city on Sept. 21, 1969.

The penalty timekeeper, Donald W. Wheeler of Bloomington, said he heard Forbes threaten Boucha when the two were in the penalty box in the first period.

Wheeler, a Minneapolis postal worker, said he heard Forbes tell Boucha: "I'm going to get you. I'm going to shove my stick down your throat."

He said he saw Forbes "make a jabbing motion with his hockey stick in the direction of Mr. Boucha's head."

On cross-examination by defence counsel Ron Meshbesher, Wheeler said he couldn't see whether Forbes's hockey stick struck Boucha during the ensuing fracas when the two returned to the ice.

He testified that he gave little thought to what Forbes yelled at Boucha in the penalty box because it wasn't a particularly unusual occurrence and because he was taking information from the officials so he could record the penalty time in his official book and on the scoreboard.

Boucha, 24, needed 36 stitches to close the wound near his eye and eventually had to undergo surgery to correct double vision. He missed several weeks of the season, and since has signed with the Minnesota Fighting Saints.

Bobby Cole's 66 a Course Record

Huish the Leader at Carnoustie

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — There are more than a few differences between a weekend golfer and a top tournament professional. One of them is that the pro likes a course to be tough enough to challenge him.

And that is what Carnoustie, the sprawling 7,065-yard, par-72 course on the edge of the North Sea, has not done in the 1975 British Open playoffs.

After the first two rounds, the field of 153 is led by David Huish, a tough, unknown Scot who followed his first-round 69 with what would have been a course record 67 in Thursday's second round.

That put him at 136, eight under par and two strokes ahead of Tom Watson of the United States, Britain's Peter Oosterhuis—the first-round leader—South African Andries Oosthuizen and Bobby Cole.

Carnoustie, described by Hale Irwin of the U.S. as a "sleeping giant," was still sleeping as the second round finished, and after rain had broken a five-week drought it was playing quietly. In fact, Ben Hogan's 23-year-old course record of 68 was broken by five players.

Cole's 66 is the course record and it put him into strong contention. But he is two strokes behind Huish. It is a machine Scottish pro who delighted the countryside in the gallery of 16,000. The last Scottish-born player to win this crown was Tommy Armour in 1931, and by then he was a U.S. citizen.

Some of the U.S. players like Irwin are apprehensive. "I go out fearing for my life, but nothing happens," said the man who stands at 139 and is sixth.

Others, like Watson and John Mahaffey, who is tied with Irwin at 138, are unimpressed. "I haven't seen Carnoustie play as I've been told it does," Mahaffey said. "Jack Nicklaus was telling me about it and it certainly is easier than he said."

"I'd like to see Carnoustie blow its teeth a bit," said Watson. "I came here expecting wind and cold—and sort of challenge—and all I get is the weather you get on U.S. courses."

The 153 starters were cut to 66 for today's third round, with 149 as the cut-off point.

Twice during the second round the course record, which Oosterhuis had equalled in Wednesday's first round, was tied, first by Graham Marsh of Australia with 67 then by Cole's 66. And three other players—Huish, Watson and Britain's Bernard Gallacher—also broke it.

For the first 36 holes, par was equalled or beaten 30 times. For those who like their courses tough, the villain was the three-shot penalty with only an faint breeze. The vicious winds that can make this course the curse and which led Jack Nicklaus to describe the course as "the toughest I know in normal conditions" have been absent so far.

Nicklaus, who won the Open twice years ago, is poised at 140 along with Johnny Miller. Tom Weiskopf and Peter Oosterhuis are at 141 and Arnold Palmer and Australia's defending champion Gary Player at 146.

CPGA Championship Play

Wright Gets It All Together

TORONTO (CP) — The formbook of golfers can change quickly as demonstrated Thursday by Bill Wright of Edmonton, Dan Halldorson of Brandon, Man., and Michel Boyer of Montreal.

Wright emerged with the lead in the first round of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship on the 6,445-yard, par-71 Bayview Golf and Country Club course.

The Edmonton veteran shot a 66, equalling the course record, and had a one-stroke lead over Halldorson and Bill Tape of Woodbridge, Ont., formerly of Kitchener.

Boyer, taking a four-stroke penalty for having too many clubs in his bag, shot an 80.

It was a complete reversal from a month ago when the 53-year-old Boyer won the Ontario Open by six strokes at Barrie, Ont. In that tournament Wright missed the cut and Halldorson finished after the first two rounds, unable to continue because of a virus infection that had bothered him for almost six weeks.

Wright said he has been working hard, making some changes on my long game and was happy to "get it all together" in Thursday's first round of this $35,000, 72-hole tournament.

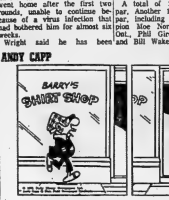
Halldorson said he is still not fully recovered from the infection that kept him at home for the last month.

Boyer, who inadvertently left an extra one-iron in his bag and didn't notice it until the fifth hole, took the maximum four-stroke penalty and said he will try to make the cut for the final round.

Still in the running for the $7,000 first prize is George Knudson of Toronto, two strokes back at three-under 68 along with Gaz Hamilton of Toronto.

Among the group of nine at 69 were Bill Collins of Winnipeg and Bob Rose of Hamilton while Will Hemenway of Winnipeg was among 10 players at 70.

A total of 20 golfers broke par. Another 11 were at even par, including defending champion Moe Norman of Guilford, Phil Cowan of Montreal and Bill Wakeham of Duncan, B.C.



Cowan in Charge in Amateur Tourney

Slow Play, Not Weather, a Problem

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Gary Cowan of Kitchener, leader after three rounds of the Ontario amateur golf tournament, had to deal with high winds, rain and lightning on his way to a two-under-par 70 Thursday at Westmount Golf and Country Club.

Later, he said the adverse weather conditions weren't his biggest problem.

Cowan and his playing partners, Rod Spittle of Port Erie and Wayne Kimura of Toronto, they often as much as two holes behind the group they followed.

"We were slow today," the defending tournament champion said. "It's disappointing that slow. We were four hours and 30 minutes playing that round and that's ridiculous.

"Those guys just seem to diddle-diddle around. Maybe they watch too much pro golf on TV."

Cowan and his group were the last threesome to go out and played with the threat of rain the whole round. They started in the rain but it let up after they finished the first hole.

The lightning began when they hit the 16th hole and each time it's been about the highest I could have been," he said. "Some of those short putts just have to start dropping."

Cowan's 213 total is four strokes ahead of 20-year-old Mike Mralla of Toronto, his only real challenger for the crown, who scrambled to an even-par 72 and a 217 total.

Mralla said he wasn't concerned, that was better than his three-over-par 75 Wednesday.

Leafs Sign Ashby

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs announced Thursday that centre Don Ashby, the National Hockey League club's No. 1 amateur draft last month, has signed a multi-year contract.

Ashby, a 20-year-old native of Kamloops, B.C., was selected to trim training camp with the club last year after playing with Calgary Centennials of the Western Canada seasons, completing the 1974-75 campaign with 32 goals and 68 assists for 100 points.

Calgary Cowboys, formerly Vancouver Blazers, of the World Hockey Association made substantial offer for Ashby's services.

"I suppose I was leaning heavily towards the NHL from the start because from the time I was very young I've been watching the games on television," Ashby said.

No terms or length of the contract were revealed.

NHL Players' Association Backs Proposed Changes

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League Players' Association has endorsed proposed rule changes that might speed up games and stiffen penalties against violent participants.

In final final sessions between players' representatives and league owners Thursday, a recommendation was approved eliminating the position of team alternate captains.

If the NHL rules committee approves the recommendation, a player will be allowed to dispute a game call only on the decision of the referee, and that invitation will be extended only to the team captain.

Players and owners also approved a recommendation of immediate and mandatory suspension of any player penalized for attempting to injure another player, pending the usual league inquiry.

Also approved was a decision to trim training camps by one week in the 1976-77 season to 21 days from the present 28. Exhibition games will be cut to eight from the present 10.

In another matter, Greg Neeld's attempts to play in the NHL received brief consideration. The association supports Neeld's bid to play as long as he accepts the risk of injury to his remaining eye.

Earlier, league board of governors rejected use of a helmet designed to protect Neeld's good eye. He has been drafted by Buffalo Sabres of the NHL.

A Rookie Senior Is in Command

CALGARY (CP) — John Poyen, 39-year-old computer expert in the Royal Canadian Golf Association senior championship, managed a five-over-par 75 on his home course Thursday for a one-stroke lead after 3 holes of the 54-hole event.

Poyen, president of the Canadian Petroleum Association and former Alberta Willingdon Cup team member, totalled 149 for the first two rounds, one ahead of clubmates Art Davis and Galloway Mansbridge and Bill Simmons of Richmond, B.C., and two ahead of Bob Monahan of Calgary.

Dr. Basil of Prince Albert was three shots away. Paired at 153 were B.C. senior champion Bill Thompson and Vic Palmer, Calgary.

Thompson had a four-over-par 79 Thursday's second-best score. A three-over 73 was posted to by Gordon Verley of Victoria, grouped at 157, eight shots off the lead.

Four shots leader Henry Mitchell of Vancouver faced to a tie for ninth place, shooting 81. Mitchell, 1971 champion, was joined at 154 by Jack Nash of London, Ont., winner in 1970, Erdis Butler of Penticton, B.C., and Peter Hedgewick of Windsor, Ont.

Nash had 81 while Butler and Hedgewick each shot 78.

Myers, wife of Fort Colborne, Ont., runnerup last year, shot 79 for a five-way tie at 155.

Adamson Second

No New Leaders

CALEDON, Ont. (CP) — Lavelle Lessard of Lorettville, Que., and Wayne Pullen of Dorchester, Ont., continue to lead the standings after Thursday's action on the Canadian amateur championship.

Miss Lessard has opened up a 40-point spread over Juliette Rochon, of Val d'or, Que., who had a 532 round Thursday.

In the men's division, Pullen has a nine-point edge over Ron Lippert of Kitchener, Ont. Daniel Desnoyers of Lorettville is in third place and defending champion Don Warren of Hussey, B.C., shot 1,090 to move to within eight points of Desnoyers.

All four men's leaders shot over-par rounds to maintain record. Pullen gets credit for the round of the day with his previous mark of 1,065 points set last year.

Kevin Teitge of Victoria has the junior men's title secured with 2,136 points after three rounds. Clinton Shewchuk of Olds was in second with 2,078.

Calgary's Nancy Lou has assured herself of the junior girls' championship with a score of 1,136. In second spot is Linda Adamson of Belleville with 1,220.

IN MEMORIAM

HUFFMAN — In loving memory of dear sister June Francis who passed away July 4, 1971.

Sadly the leaves of memory fall,
Gently we gather, treasure them all,
Some may forget now that you've gone,
We will remember no matter how long.

Lovingly missed by sisters Eva and Pearl, brothers-in-law Harry and Dean.

HUFFMAN — In loving memory of our mother and grandmother who passed away one year ago today, July 4, 1971.

Sweet keepsake we watched her suffer
We saw her fade away,
Our hearts were almost broken,
She fought so hard to stay.
Her pain was more than anything,
So peacefully now from suffering,
We could not wish you back,
To suffer so again.
Our hearts still ache with sadness,
And tears flow down our face,
For what we'd have you more,
No one will ever know,
You suffered so much, your pleasures few,
You never deserved what you went through,
You stood the test, you stood it well,
Now that you suffered no one can tell,
You left us quietly, your thoughts unknown,
But you left us a memory we are proud to own.
Lovingly remembered, sadly missed,
By daughter Linda, son Gerry, Jr. and Lindsay.

MORGAN — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Thomas Morgan who passed away on July 5, 1971.

A silent thought, a secret tear,
Flows for him now and ever dear,
Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memories bring back the pain.

Sadly missed by his daughters Dorothy, Edna and son Larry and families.

SHORT, Priscilla Stacey — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather who passed away July 11, 1970. Quietly and sincerely through the years.

With silent thoughts and unshed tears.
Life goes on, time heals our loss,
But for the same since we told you.

Lovingly remembered and missed by for Kathleen and family, son Leon and family.

Making Faces

These youngsters look like victims of a disaster as they wait for face masks to dry at a National Film Board of Canada project in Toronto. The Green Door Project features art, dance, crafts and films for children. When the masks dried, the youngsters removed them, applied more material and then painted them. (CP Photo)

Multilingual Station on Air

WINNIPEG (CP) — "Maybe the Canadian Radio-(CRTC) got sick and tired of my applications and gave me the Winnipeg radio frequency to get rid of me."

That's Casimir Stanczykowski light-heartedly assessing the reason the government regulatory agency approved his request to establish CKJS, Winnipeg's first multilingual station. The 24-hour operation began broadcasting in 15 languages on March.

Cas, as he is universally known, is not bitter that it took him nine years and six applications before he could hit the Winnipeg airwaves.

The 68-year-old Montrealer likes to think his "Scottish-Polish persistence" paid off. As one of the CRTC's perennial applicants, he's learned to be patient.

It took almost six years before he was given the go-ahead in 1966 for CFMB Montreal, which paved the way for ethnic broadcasting in Canada. And without batting an eye, Cas confesses that he has been badgering the decision-makers for almost seven years now to add a frequency modulation (FM) side to CFMB.

He would have made a perfect study for one of Horatio Alger's rags-to-riches, adversity-to-honor novels.

Cas arrived in Montreal as an 18-year-old immigrant in 1927 from Poland, via Scotland, with barely the clothes on his back and a "Scottish burr on top of broken English."

Born in Warsaw, at 14 he was already a veteran of the Polish underground army. That led to a concentration camp in 1944 in Germany, from which he eventually escaped to Scotland.

The concentration camp experience had reduced his weight to about 100 pounds — stretched over a tall, large-boned frame.

However, a few months of Scottish cooking and he was up to a more respectable 170 pounds. This respectability has been enhanced even more.

In 1950, a friend bet him 25 quarters and prosperity notwithstanding, he often breakfasts on the familiar Scottish porridge "thick enough to stand a spoon in."

Cas held down as many as six jobs at a time in Montreal — anything to make a buck — ranging from writing for a Polish-American newspaper to selling real estate. At the same time he held down a full-time mail clerk's job at Eaton's and took night classes at university.

In 1950, a friend bet him 25 cents that Cas couldn't arrange a Polish radio program in Montreal. Three weeks later the friend lost the wager and Cas was off and running with a 15-minute program on then-defunct CHLP.

Ironically, in 1962 Cas opened CFMB using the same frequency held by CHLP before it had closed five years earlier.

Now, in the best Alger tradition, Cas finds himself mixing in all levels of society. He's one of the few young immigrants to be made a member of the Order of Canada, and in 1972 was granted an honorary doctor of laws degree from Montreal's Sir George Williams University.

As president of the Canadian Citizenship Federation he travels constantly across Canada preaching citizenship to the ethnic community at large, as well as pushing for changes in immigration laws.

One of his successful battles was to have the wording changed on Canadian passports to eliminate reference to whether the holder was Canadian-born or naturalized.

Even so, his almost bursting pride in being a Canadian doesn't keep for one second the Polish in him. The ethnic radio stations are simply the tip of his total commitment to preserving the cultural heritage of all Canadians whose origins are other than English or French.

There's hardly an area of ethnic life in Canada that hasn't felt his influence at one time or another.

Cas was one of the founders — and first president — of the Quebec Folk Arts Council, the first of its kind in Canada. He's also into such things as ethnic sports and a multitude of community activities.

His main hobby also follows the ethnic commitment. He describes one of his main joys in life as possessing possibly the largest collection of Polish artifacts and documents outside Poland itself.

He exhibits across Canada and senior Polish officials have travelled to Montreal for a more detailed look at the collection.

Cas says he has the proof in his collection that the mother of Bonnie Prince Charlie was Polish.

One of his dreams is to be able to donate the collection to a national ethnic museum, which he eagerly wants to see established by the federal government in Ottawa, perhaps as part of the National Museum of Canada.

Of the nine languages he speaks fluently, Cas considers English the most exotic because he can't seem to shake his Polish accent.

Charity Sang First at Five

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Charity Brown doesn't think "there was ever a time when I didn't want to be a singer."

The 24-year-old Kitchener native, who has had a couple of name changes in the eight years that she has been performing professionally, recalled in an interview that as a child she "imitated everybody that was ever in a musical."

She was Phyllis Belts when at age five, on the first day of school, she alone put up her hand when the teacher asked who could sing God Save The Queen. She had been taught the anthem by her sister and she sang it then, but it wasn't a case, however, of instant thrills at being in the spotlight.

"I was so embarrassed I started to cry half way through it. I didn't want to sing in front of those kids."

Her principal ambition when she entered high school was "to be in musicals," but fate determined otherwise.

Some guys at the school were getting a rock band together and were looking for a girl singer who could sound like Grace Slick of Jefferson Airplane."

"I wasn't that much into rock, and I really didn't think I was good enough, they gave me Grace Slick's White Rabbit and said if I could sing it I could join their band."

The outcome was that she became the lone female and lead vocalist in the five-member band called Rain.

While with the group, she changed her surname to Brown. Charity is a recent replacement for Phyllis which came about because there was a singer in the United States who also was using the name Phyllis Brewer.

"It was a bit ironic that after changing her name, the other Brown also dropped Phyllis, in favor of Polly."

She was a nominee [illegible] spring for the Canadian music industry's Juno Award in the category of [illegible] promising new female artist.

With her own back-up band of four male musicians, she's been drawing large crowds in nightclub engagements in Kitchener, Cambridge and Toronto, with other early-summer club dates scheduled for Ottawa and Sarnia. Her first album, Rock Me, was released in late June.

The mother of a young son, Charity feels both a family and a career are necessary to her life.

"I really want to be a star. It's a lifelong ambition. But I won't risk my sanity for money or for fame, because singing for me is a big part of my emotional security."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, July 12

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Strive to do essential talks in the a.m. Afternoon will find you unproductive. You'll erroneously feel ill (and are sucked against you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A self-centered outlook today drives you to be extravagant with your resources as well as those of others. This could prove costly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Use the morning hours to recharge your energies. You tend to be argumentative and will be better company for yourself than for the family.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do-it-yourself projects should be avoided—you'll probably hit your thumb with a hammer. Relax. Have friends in. Instead.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Try to keep low on finances today. A large expenditure is unrealistic when you tally the cost. you'll find it wasn't worth it.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Be realistic in your evaluation of family members' abilities. You tend to expect more than they are able to give.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's not a good day for you to travel. You're restless, easily bored and the tensions of traffic will unduly irritate you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could be led astray financially by your mate or a friend who talks you into a situation costing more than you can afford.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be expecting credit for as accomplishment before you've earned it. Avoid hurting feelings by posturing around the house—alone.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 20) You'll have high hopes in the morning and feel deflated in the afternoon. Don't be put out, it just wasn't your day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Financial dealings are low interest today for you to feel comfortable around others. Seek outside. Avoid disappointment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You imagine others place too many burdens on your shoulders today. Keep yourself busy and your personal expends. till the mood passes.

To Your Good Health

Sleeper Chokes, Remedy Sought

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thomson: During the last three years I have awakened during the night choking or strangling. At first I seem unable to draw even a breath. Do you have any explanation for this?

I am 68 years old. I have a mitral heartbeat. Could this be anything to do with my condition? Also, during the night I have mucus in my throat. What can I do?—Mrs. D. A. F.,

Investigators have recently described a new syndrome. It's called sleep apnea, is associated with insomnia, and the symptoms you describe seem to match it. Apnea means the transient cessation of breathing, or more commonly of the breathing impulse. It has been found to occur in about 10 per cent of the population during sleep.

The Stanford University medical school researchers who studied it report that it is associated with a temporary disturbance in the movement of the diaphragm or with an obstruction in the breathing apparatus, or a combination of both. The exact cause of the diaphragm problem is unsure, although it could be symptomatic of a hidden, neurological disorder.

The breathing obstruction is more easily understood, perhaps caused by defects in the nose or throat, or to excessive mucus in the bronchial system. Overweight may be a factor also. Other factors such as excessive smoking, a dusty atmosphere or an allergy may also come into play.

You mention a hiatal hernia. It is possible that some reflux, a backing-up of digestive juices into the throat, could occur, especially when you are reclining.

What can you do if it continues? Obviously, factors must be corrected, if necessary. You can elevate your head while sleeping if the hiatal hernia is a factor. This would alleviate the reflux problem. If you are overweight, reduce. And you are a heavy smoker, cut down or quit altogether.

You should have a thorough examination for your throat and throat, as well as a chest x-ray.

There always may be brief interruptions in the normal breathing during sleep, but one as apparently severe as yours, which causes arousals from sleep, calls for further investigation.

Such disturbances have been the subject of growing interest in recent years, and they may be a principal factor in many cases of insomnia which up to now have defied diagnosis.

Dear Dr. Thomson: What are the harmful effects, if any, of chewing tobacco?—T. E. A.

Opinion varies on this subject. One report indicates that cancer of the mouth and tongue can occur. Another, from the University of Tennessee College of Medicine, concludes that chewing tobacco is not carcinogenic (cancer-producing).

Chewing tobacco can irritate the membranes of the mouth and gums, however, while white growth, called leukoplakia, can result, and this may be precancerous. Notice that I say "may be."

Nicoline swallowed can quicken the heart rate and increase the flow of stomach acid.

Dear Dr. Thomson: I'm taking iron tablets and vitamin C every day.

I'm curious as to whether these provide any calories?—T. Y.

They don't.

Equestrian Diploma Offered

OLIVER, B.C. (CP) — The symptoms of strinphait — the difficulty between passage and pirouette are all part of a day's instruction in the equestrian diploma course at Okanagan College.

The program, which runs just over two months, prepares students for careers as professional riding instructors. Students must bring their own horses and are responsible for their care.

Prospective students are screened before being admitted to the program. Knowledge of riding and basic horse care are required for entrance. Enrolment is limited to those over 18, and 60 credit hours must be put in for a diploma.

The principal section is the horsemanship and riding instructors' course where horse care, stable management, dressage, jumping, cross-country riding, training young and spoiled horses, first aid and veterinary care is taught.

Students are prepared for examination by the Professional Horsemen's Association (PHA) under the direction of Michael Herbert, who came to Canada in 1948 and has trained horses and riders for international and Olympic competition. He has been with the British Three Day Event Team and twice with the Canadian Three Day Event team.

Two graduates who have put their training to practical use are Margaret Ames and Eileen Redmond of Vancouver. Miss Ames works at a Duncanburn dairy farm while Miss Redmond teaches at a higher level of riding and is on the same farm. Miss Ames says the course was too demanding and left her plenty of free time.

"In the mornings we would get up and do the horses then have a lecture. Then riding lessons, three groups of about eight people, then another lecture. We usually finished around 17:30 or 1 p.m.

"After dinner we'd go riding up in the hills. It's real horse country up there."

The four-year-old program has attracted students from as far east as Saskatchewan and through the Northwest United States.

After getting the PHA certificate—equivalent of novice instructor—and teaching for two years, students can return and take their instructor's certificate. The instructor's certificate may be taken after two more years of teaching.

During the course, students live in trailers on the same site the Oliver riding stables. The instructors are sent to the Oliver International Horse Show each May. It attracts top riders from Canada and the western states.

South wanted to know why North had given him a free raise to two spades. North replied, "It was a pretty bad hand but it seemed a good idea at the time. Anyway, what was wrong with my raising to game?"

You will be just unlucky to find everything wrong.

North's free bid was really a good one. She was missing the bottom ace and his spade support almost nothing. However, four spades would be cold if he reached anyway since South had enough strength to bid it by himself.

Perfect defence would beat four spades. West would have to lead a heart at trick two, but West cashed three hearts before leading a heart.

At the first South went wrong. He couldn't resist the temptation to finesse the queen of hearts. East took the king and led the suit back to knock out dummy's ace and kill an entry.

South should have played dummy's nine of hearts. East would have won, but would not have been able to lead a second heart. South would cash two trumps; play king, ace and another club; enter dummy with the nine of trumps; lead another club; enter dummy with the ace of hearts, and discard his last heart on the fifth club.

Raise him to two spades. If he has what it takes to game he will bring home the bacon. Anything else is conjecture.

Eye Exercise

China's Latest Health Program

VANCOUVER (CP) — The eyes have it as far as physical fitness is concerned in the People's Republic of China.

Barbara Chinn, a University of British Columbia student who recently visited China, says eye exercise is the latest development in physical fitness by the Chinese.

"It's a type of facial massaging method to the eyes," she says. "Special music is played and they do it twice a day in the schools.

"This is very good for the eyes. You notice that very few people wear glasses, not like here or Hong Kong."

Miss Chinn, 21, said eye exercise was just recently added to the physical fitness program. Only part of the Chinese student or worker's daily routine.

Miss Chinn, who spent three weeks in China with 18 other Canadian college instructors and students examining sport and education, also noticed that Chinese children appeared to be better at sports than Canadian children the same age.

"Children start activity much younger. Even in primary school they are, very well co-ordinated and agile."

Arlene MacLean, 20, another student, agreed. She said adults also appear to be more fit than a majority of Canadians because it is a requirement of their ideology.

"Physical activity is promoted at a very young age, and adults are better at it as are geared into spare-time sports school to improve what ability they have and come out fantastic athletes."

Both said they believed the Chinese youngsters' success rate is due to become competition is downgraded.

"They don't look on competition in the way we do," said Miss Chinn. "It's friends before competition.

"Competition is meeting new friends and that's how you improve skills—by sharing others and learning from them. I don't like this competition aspect. That's why many kids get turned off sports before they get to high school because they're not good enough."

Alarm Developed

STOCKHOLM (AP) — An electronic fire-alarm system transmitting an alarm directly to firemen and key points in the area has been developed by Lad Ericsson Telematariet. The new system can sound alarms over large indicators up to 12 miles from the source of the fire.

Rifles Turned In

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Peel regional police say they will destroy 100 rifles, shotgun and other firearms next Wednesday, some of which have been turned in by residents following the fatal shootings of three persons in May at a high school in this town just west of Toronto. Police said some of the guns were confiscated at Toronto International Airport while others were used in crimes.

Search Reveals Nothing

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A surprise security sweep of federal prisons Friday turned up "nothing of consequence" in Ontario, says Henry Neufeld, deputy regional director of penitentiaries. The sweep had been ordered to take place in all federal prisons within 10 days or so but some already had been searched.

Trudeau Pool Ready

OTTAWA (CP) — After several recent plunges into political hot water over construction of his backyard swimming hole, Prime Minister Trudeau will be able to dive into his swimming pool next weekend. Completion of cosmetic details in the pool house is the only thing preventing a prime ministerial plunge in the 20 by 40 foot pool, built over the last six months — at a cost of more than $200,000 — at 24 Sussex Drive.

28 Cases Solved

MONTREAL (CP) — Twenty eight cases of Quebec children born with defects caused by the drug thalidomide which their mothers took during pregnancy have been settled, lawyers representing the children said Friday.

Receive Spouse Benefits

OTTAWA (CP) — Old age pensioners will receive forms to apply for spouse benefits with their September cheques, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Friday in the Commons. The forms also will be available at old age security offices. The Commons is debating legislation to extend pension benefits to many pensioners' spouses between the ages of 60 and 64. Old age security payments now are available only to those 65 and over.

Calls for Inquiry

HAMILTON (CP) — Reports of schoolyard assaults, increasing vandalism and disorderliness have resulted in the Hamilton board of education calling for a closed inquiry.

Parks Get Cops

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario has added riot control trained officers to the staff of its provincial parks, Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier said Friday.

Asks for Apology

TORONTO (CP) — Allan Grossman, Ontario secretary for resource development, Friday demanded a public apology from Prime Minister Trudeau for a comment in the House of Commons linking Mr. Grossman to the problem of allowing the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) entry to Canada.

Student Swims Lake

NIAGARA ON THE LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Angela Kondrak was reported about half way across Lake Ontario today some 10 hours after she began a try to become the youngest swimmer to overcome the challenge. The 15 year old Toronto high school student waded into the lake from a cove at Youngstown, N.Y., at 11:08 p.m. Friday.

Hope for Bald Men

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty people in Toronto have regrown hair in the last nine months, raising hopes that baldness may be a thing of the past.

The Globe and Mail says in a copyright story that Dr. Howard Dosaky, head of dermatology at Toronto General Hospital, reported on the cases at the Canadian Dermatological Association meeting in Banff, Alta., last week.

Midnight Mishap Kills 4 Persons

By NAN WHITLAW and ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporters

BANCROFT — Two 18-year-old western Ontario youths were two of four persons killed in a one-car accident on the South Baptiste Rd. about 18 miles northwest of this village early today.

Ontario Provincial Police at Bancroft identified two of the victims as Andrew McDonald Hunter of London and Allan D. Watson of Guelph.

Names of the other two occupants of the car are being withheld pending notification of next of kin, a police spokesman said.

According to police, the late-model car, which received extensive damage, was westbound on the paved tourist road about six miles in from Highway 62 when it went out of control for an undetermined reason.

Police said the car flipped over and rolled sideways down an embankment where it came to rest on its roof in a pile of rocks. None of the victims were thrown from the vehicle.

There were heavy fog patches in the area at the time, police noted. The road runs through a lightly populated area and it is not known how long the car lay unnoticed before police were notified at 12:47 a.m.

South Baptiste Rd. connects Highway 62 to Highway 25 at Highland Grove. It runs just past the village of Baptiste.

Bancroft OPP said the accident is the worst fatality they have investigated this year.

CBC Applies For French TV At Belleville

OTTAWA (CP) — A CBC application for French-language programming in Kingston and Belleville, Ont., is among several license applications to be considered by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission here Sept. 9.

The stations would operate on channels 44, 32, and 13 respectively carrying the programs of CBLFT Toronto.

CBC also seeks licences for French-language FM stations in Kingston and Belleville to rebroadcast the CBC French AM network service of CJBC Toronto.

Also sought are licences for television stations at Cambridge Bay and Coppermine N.W.T. to broadcast the CBC northern service received by satellite.

In addition CBC wants licences for FM radio stations at Cambridge Bay and Coppermine. The Coppermine station would carry the CBC English network from CFYK Yellowknife. Cambridge Bay would broadcast English and native-language service received by satellite.

Lisbon Defence Leaders Declare Low-key Alert

LISBON (AP) — Portugal's military leaders declared a low-level military alert today following the withdrawal of the Socialist party from the government.

A spokesman for the Continental Defence Command (Copcon) said the alert was a "state of vigilance."

He said it was called because the military had reports that "reactionary forces" were planning to instigate incidents mentioned a scheduled meeting of small shopkeepers in the resort of Cascais.

Earlier today, the military gave Premier Vasco Goncalves free rein to replace the Socialists who defected from the coalition cabinet.

The shopkeepers are reported to have called off the meeting at Cascais, 15 miles west of Lisbon.

The Copcon spokesman said some units were confined to quarters but he declined to say how many troops were involved.

The alert, the first since the governmental crisis bubbled up last week and the first acknowledged one since a March 11 counter-coup against the leftist leaders failed, followed newspaper reports of "new manoeuvres by reactionary elements."

A communique early today by the ruling Revolutionary Council said the Socialist withdrawal from the government opened the door to "counter-revolutionary forces."

Brushing aside the Socialist withdrawal, the council today gave Communist-backed Premier Goncalves free rein to replace the Socialists in the cabinet with what it called "competent and patriotic elements."

Peron Dismisses Welfare Minister

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Isabel Peron, yielding to labor pressure, has dismissed conservative Welfare Minister Jose Lopez Rega but included three of his closest allies in a reconstituted cabinet.

But it was not clear whether the shuffle would satisfy widespread demands for changes in Argentina's top leadership.

All members of Mrs. Peron's old cabinet submitted their resignations last weekend in a futile effort to head off a general strike threatened by labor leaders.

The strike went ahead, but ended early after Mrs. Peron rescinded a limit on wage increases to which labor objected. It also was reported she agreed then to reshuffle the cabinet.

While most members of the cabinet were retained, with old or new portfolios, Lopez Rega was not among them. Mrs. Peron accepted his resignation.

Lopez Rega said Friday he offered his resignation "to secure the pacification of the disturbed spirits" we have had.

"Some names have changed, but not the orientation," said a spokesman for the Radical party, the chief opposition group.

There was no immediate indication what role Lopez Rega, 58, might play in Argentine politics.

It was presumed he will keep his private position as Mrs. Peron's personal secretary.

Lopez Rega, a former policeman who rose to power under the late Juan Peron, was described as welfare minister by Carlos Villone, a staff aide, and as presidential secretary by Julio Gonzalez, another of his confidants.

Talks May Produce Peace

BONN (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin held talks today near this West German capital that could lead to an interim Sinai settlement or dampen U.S.-Israeli relations.

Earlier, Kissinger held a working breakfast with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher where the focus was on the Middle East.

Despite Mercy Supplies Kidnappers Hold Officer

BEIRUT (AP) — The fate of a kidnapped U.S. colonel remained uncertain today after tons of food were rushed to slum dwellers in this capital of Lebanon in an apparent bid to save his life.

Kidnappers of Col. Ernest Morgan, 42, of Petersburg, Va., set a deadline of 9 p.m. today — 2 p.m. EDT — for the U.S. embassy to give away hundreds of tons of rice, sugar, flour, margarine and other foodstuffs plus clothing and building materials in the Slaughterhouse District.

The kidnappers had extended the deadline from Wednesday.

Lebanese government relief trucks began distributing about 10 tons of food with Italian markings Friday afternoon. The amount was far short of the kidnappers' demands.

U.S. officials in Washington gave no indication they were deviating from government policy to refuse kidnappers' demands. A U.S. embassy official said the food distribution was "purely a Lebanese affair."

Negotiations for Morgan's release were left to the Lebanese government, which secured help — mostly promises — from Palestinian guerrilla groups in a search for the kidnappers.

A spokesman for Lebanon's relief agency said the food had been purchased by Premier Rashid Karami's government in accordance with its vow to help areas ravaged in last month's battles for control between right-wing Christians and radical Palestinian guerrillas supported by leftist Lebanese Moslems.

Morgan was seized almost 29 while on an overnight stopover on his way back to Turkey. A group calling itself the Socialist Revolutionary Action Organization claimed responsibility.

The Palestine Liberation Organization said the kidnappers were using a cover name for dissident splinter groups and accused the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command and the Popular Front Struggle of involvement. Both groups deny the charge.

Towering Inferno?

TORONTO (CP) — Fire broke out above the 1,000-foot level of the CN Tower early today for the second time in less than a week.

The fire was out an hour and a half after it was discovered in the observation section of the restaurant pod. There were no injuries.

The cause and amount of damage were not yet known.

On Tuesday, a fire broke out while workmen were installing wire proofing material 150 feet above the observation pod nearly 1,350 feet up the 1,815-foot tower, largest free-standing structure in the world.

The men scrambled up the tower to escape. Damage was $1,000.

The new blaze brought criticism from firemen. About 40 minutes after they arrived, one was heard to say on the fire department radio:

"The trouble is no one down here knows where anything is. They're still trying to find the buttons to turn on the auxiliary water supply."

Firemen used extinguishers until they could get water.

District Fire Chief Herbert Moores criticized CN Tower officials for not keeping the fire department informed of the tower's fire equipment.

He said firefighters did not know where to find switches to turn on auxiliary power to pump water to the fire from the 600-foot level. Normal pressure cannot pump beyond that. Switches in th pod turn on auxiliary pumps to pump it from there.

Malcolm Grant, director of design and construction, said he could not undo stand why there would be a mix-up in getting water.

Truck Rams Bank

Tilk Bank of Montreal at North Front and College Streets had an unusual after-hours customer Friday evening.

Police Chief Douglas Cross bie said today a flat-bed tractor-trailer owned by Donald A. Foley Ltd. of Storrington, Ont., ruind across College St. from a service station let into the brick wall of the bank, causing a hole and damaging a steel upright.

He said it is not known if the vehicle was occupied. Considerable damage was done to the cab's front end and the wall but no estimates are available.

ANAF Lounge Closed Until Structural Survey Complete

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The second floor Tartan Lounge of the Army, Navy Air Force club will be closed for a month while engineers study structural damage believed caused by blasting operations next door at the Century Place project.

President Bill Ford said today during an interview with The Intelligencer "there has been extensive damage to the building's washrooms."

The men's downstairs washroom exterior wall is bulged out — window casing and all," said Mr. Ford.

He said a meeting had been held in the Tartan Lounge Friday to discuss the liability for the damage and that Century Place contractors Eastern Construction Ltd. "will pay for the damage."

The lounge is normally used for banquet and wedding purposes. "We'll lose a number of weddings this summer as we wait for the report," he said. "Anything I say now, I think you'll have to talk to 'our lawyer'."

John Miller, former city solicitor and club president, said he had no information about the wall and could not say knowledge of a meeting Friday, said Mr. Miller.

"There's just no comment," said Mr. Miller.

Defending against any possible weakness in the wall, contractors for the past month weeks have shored up the wall with massive timbers.

Allen Devries, superintendent on the Century Place project, said recently the wall does not present a safety problem for his workers — particularly with the braces in place. "The braces are just a safety measure and it doesn't mean the wall will fall in when the timbers are removed," he said.

He said Century Place will be built up against the club building wall.

City spokesman Jo Angelo said today "the city's building inspection department had been keeping an eye on the wall and that inspectors did not feel it was unsafe."

The question of safety was raised Friday when it was rumored construction workers would not work near the wall in fear it might collapse.

Colin Bruce

Builder Says It's Safe

Whether or not the wall of the Army, Navy and Air Force Club, Duke of Edinburgh Unit is safe, the beams will be left in place until the Century Place wall is built against it. Allen Devries, in charge of Century Place construction, said safety men have checked the supports and that there is no danger. The multi million dollar retail and office space complex is expected to be completed by next July.

Closed Meetings

Backward Step

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

A ministry of education spokesman now is claiming boards of education may conduct all business in camera at least that's the word from information officer John Gillies.

He may be a good information officer but he sure isn't a good lawyer. His interpretation of the Education Act is far too liberal and his comments may have set public meetings back 10 years.

The actual wording of the Education Act on meetings has appeared in this column many times before and does not bear repeating. However, no one in his or her right mind could interpret this section to imply boards of education have the right to conduct all their business behind closed doors.

The act, if read and interpreted in a fair and intelligent manner, intends boards of education to do as much of their business in open session as is legally possible. This means that, short of firings and land transactions, everything should be in open sessions.

For example, in recent months the Hastings County Board of Education has been making an honest effort to comply with the intention of the act in fact, the policy committee is currently studying its own policy on meetings in order to keep faith with the act.

The Hastings board has all but eliminated the closed session after each meeting. Many of the fears associated with opening meetings to the public have disappeared among trustees. In fact, many trustees have learned that if they exhibit responsibility the press can also reciprocate.

Obviously, there are some instances involving the sale and tendering of property and buildings which, by law, must be kept secret. And in some cases delicate matters of personnel should be kept in closed sessions.

When boards of education constantly go behind closed doors they are merely seeking a shield from the public eye. They can better serve their political masters in this fashion.

The Hastings - Prince Edward County Separate School Board has yet to deal adequately with this problem even though they revamped their policy on closed meetings to comply with the Education Act. This board continues to hold an hour closed session prior to each open meeting.

There is no committee of the whole agenda printed and there are no minutes of the committee of the whole released after the meeting. Not only does the public miss individual comments but it has no idea of what is going on.

Nevertheless the ministry of education has only compounded the problem by taking a very liberal approach to the legislation.

Goodman Dead at 62

Local businessman Samuel Goodman died in his suite of rooms of Sun Valley Motor Inn Friday in his 62nd year.

Mr. Goodman had been an active businessman with Goodman's Mens Wear, a long-established Front St. shop. He also had business dealings in the retail line in Kingston.

As well as ownership of the motor inn, Mr. Goodman owned several tracts of land in the city and dealt in several forms of housing.

He never married and is survived by his niece Donna Kaplan of Toronto and nephew Henry Goodman also of Toronto.

The funeral for Mr. Goodman will be held in Park Memorial Funeral Home, 310 Spadina Ave., Toronto, Sunday, July 13 at 12 noon. Burial will take place in Toronto.

Arthritis Society Opens Booth to Explain Work

PICTON — An information booth and film showing at the Armory Mall here sponsored by the Prince Edward Chapter of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, drew a large crowd Friday night.

Purpose of the information centre, said campaign chairman Robert Renaud, was to provide public information about arthritis and rheumatism. He said that in the past the society has not been too successful in fund raising, and it is hoped that through the booth interested people would form a fund-raising committee.

Gordon Bell, regional representative of the Society said he is especially appreciative of the Armory Mall, the Prince Edward Heights Workshop and a local grocery store for assistance they gave in making the booth a success. Four youths who also assisted in the showing were Kevin Merchant, Chris Woodward, Michele Dousett and Christine Dousett.

More Furniture Sought

Donations of used furniture to the Central Volunteer Bureau for furniture exchange have increased but still more articles are required to fill requests.

Bev. Haley, student in charge of the program, said during an interview about a dozen families have volunteered beds and household articles on the result of a story in The Intelligencer last week.

"We still have a lot of requests that cannot yet be filled," said Miss Haley.

She said the service particularly needs beds and dressers.

The furniture exchange program is housed in the William St. offices of the United Community Services and has a pickup service to collect donated furniture.

For further information contact Miss Haley during business hours at 962-1353.

Group Home Management Course
For those planning to open a group home, Loyalist College is offering an intensive, two-week summer course in Group Home Management.
Group homes are today's alternative to the training school for the juvenile offender, the psychiatric ward for the emotionally disturbed, the hospital-school for the mentally retarded. There is a growing demand for professionally trained directors to manage these homes.
Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Ridley, directors of Wingfield, developed and will teach this course, and have offered their facilities as its setting. Students will have a unique opportunity to consider all aspects of group home management with experienced instructors, in a realistic environment. Morning seminars at Wingfield College will be supplemented with afternoon practicums at the home.

Caterpillar Epidemic Alarms Manitobans

WINNIPEG (CP) — Last year, two men from Alonsa, Man., walked into the office of Environment Minister Sidney Green carrying a plastic bag full of slithering green forest tent caterpillars, demanding action on a problem that reaches epidemic proportions in some parts of the province every year.

Although the men were appeased by the minister's staff, their dramatic appeal for help exemplified the growing concern of Manitobans toward the annual infestation of insects and the problems associated with controlling the menace.

Early in June, a horde of ravenous caterpillars invaded the community of Lac du Bonnet, about 60 miles east of Winnipeg, and methodically stripped the leaves from thousands of trees. Last year, residents were engulfed with swarms of the insects that crawled through homes, lawns and parklands, posing a serious threat to the area's tourist industry.

Residents have continually urged the government to embark on a comprehensive system of chemical spraying to control the insect, but provincial officials insist the responsibility lies with either municipal governments or individuals.

Although insecticides are clearly wanted by residents in areas such as Lac du Bonnet and Alonsa, the use of the chemical methoxychlor in Winnipeg to control the annual infestation of cankerworms has recently drawn severe criticism.

Irene Stein, who heads a citizen's group called Citizens Against Slow Poisoning (CASP), has charged that the central figure in the campaign to persuade the city to stop using the chemical. She says methoxychlor represents a serious threat to health due to its close chemical similarity to DDT, banned from Canada in 1969.

She says she became aware of the problem when her two children became nauseated after trees near their school were sprayed with the chemical.

In a letter recently to Mayor Stephen Juba, Mrs. Stein asked why the Manitoba Clean Environment Commission allowing the city to use methoxychlor in its insect-abatement program. Mrs. Stein said the chemical has not been proven safe.

Dr. Frank La Bella, a pharmacist at University of Manitoba, says the use of any chemical to control insects without determining the long-range effects is "criminal and suicidal."

"Everything produces effects. The problem is relating the application to the effect."

And Dr. Carlos Huerto, a Winnipeg physician, says methoxychlor has been medically linked to cancer.

"We know that and it's been said before."

But Dr. Roy Ellis, the only entomologist employed full time by any city in Canada, says any chemical used by the city is sufficiently diluted to prevent any potential harmful effects on humans.

Gardening Column

Plan Now For Insects

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

It has been an early year for roses. That May heat wave forced them into bloom a little ahead of their time. And so in many gardens the first wave of bloom is finishing or over. And with this decline there's a tendency towards neglect, forgetting that there's much more to come, especially if your rose garden includes floribundas and grandifloras.

Hybrid teas bloom in waves, in early summer and fall, and intermittently in between. Floribundas and grandifloras put on a continual show. But progressive flowering of all three types depends on a number of factors: 1) pruning, 2) Spraying for insects and fungus, 3) feeding, 4) watering.

Proper pruning is important. Once blossoms are spent, prune the cane ¼" above the first 5-leaved floret below the blossom or cluster of blossoms. It is from this point that the new blossom-bearing stem will emerge.

—And the insect population is at its horrendous best this year. And roses have a host of enemies in the bug department, especially:

Aphids: Those little ⅛ inch pear-shaped bugs that come in colors of green, grey, brown, red or even lavender. They love new growth and their presence will be shown by curled or puckered leaves or buds. In addition, they secrete a substance called honey dew, which is why ants herd them and still them like cattle. But the honey dew is also a germinating ground for a black sooty fungus which doesn't do your roses any good either.

Spider Mites: Tiny, microscopic insects in red, green or yellow. They themselves are almost invisible but their damage is not. In sucking the sap, they'll turn the leaves with tiny white spots and hang them with tiny white cobwebs.

The Beetles: The brownish Rose Chafer, the greyish-brown Fuller Rose Beetle and the red long-nosed Rose Curculio. It's their larvae that do the damage, chewing on the underside of the leaves and if left unchecked will reduce your rose shrubs to skeletons in short order.

Leaf Hoppers: Those little wedge-shaped bugs that go sideways and seem to vanish when you touch them. But when they're standing still, they work on the underside of the leaves, crystling white stippled effects on the tops and causing the edges to curl.

In the fungus department, Rust and Mildew are two of the months when powdery mildew and black spot flourish. The former appears as a white or greyish slippery coating on buds canes and leaf buds. Leaves develop a bonded appearance, turn dry and fall — buds are deformed and twisted and fail to blossom. Best treatment — preventative spraying. And the same treatment is desirable for the deadly black spot — the rose's worst enemy. I hope you never see it, but if you do, black spot looks like this. A black spot appears as leaves and the tissue surrounding the spot turns bright yellow and the leaf dies and falls. In a very short time it can almost wipe out a rose bed — so believe me — it's nothing to fool with.

Of course the best lines of defence against garden pests and diseases that attack roses are good health and housekeeping. Well fed, well watered roses in a garden free of weeds, dead leaves and other debris is less open to attack, and if trouble comes, are far more capable of handling it, as compared with roses that are underfed and up to their buds in weeds.

Look for the Seal

The provincial ministry of agriculture and food licenses 365 meat packing plants in Ontario which provide custom-kill services cutting, wrapping and fast-freezing for the home freezer and retail outlets. Inspection and approval of the meat starts while the animal is still alive and only concludes when the meat leaves the packing house. Meat is inspected by meat inspectors under veterinary supervision for wholesomeness, sanitary handling and proper cooling and storage. The stamp is "Ontario Approved".

Dodds Setting Good Example

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A farm believer in flower power, horticulturalist Philip Dodds of Cherry Valley, this week received formal recognition from town council for his efforts toward beautifying town parks.

The retired navy editor received a thank you note for all the big bouquets of roses, petunias of petunias and gay geranium pots he has planted for the enjoyment of tourists and local residents.

Mr. Dodds has systematically weeded out dozens of ugly unattractive corners of the town by planting colorful annuals.

At the Picton fire hall a small plot of earth near the weight scales was beautified by a trellis and a rambler rose.

Picton Public Library now has window boxes filled with bright geranium blooms and the war memorial is planted with colorful beds of summer flowers.

By serving his community through his many small gardens Mr. Dodds has demonstrated the posey power of a single "flower child."

Town council and Picton merchants well might follow his example in improving local eyesores through planting flowers and shrubs.

The Queen Elizabeth Park overlooking Picton Harbor offers possibly the most scenic view in town but except for a few benches it is bare.

The small fountain there is pretty when its functional but for some unknown reason it is turned off most of the time.

A few small trees have been started in the park but it lacks the landscaping that could make it the prettiest spot in town. Shrubs and flowers should be added to bring this park into its own.

Public buildings in Picton, such as Shire Hall and the town offices could be made more attractive by outdoor planters filled with dwarf shrubs or geraniums. Even the old Prince Edward County court house might be "spruced up" with a colorful flower bed.

Trenton also ordered a second shaft (#150) in the event the other one of the two in the drive mechanism breaks. It's a good policy. Prepare for the worst, and hope for the best.

But that preparation is costly. The town is going to be "nickle and dimed to death unless that span is soon levelled and a new one built. The phrase catches the sense of the situation but not the truth.

Nickels are $100 bills and dimes are $1,000 bills.

And their slow, steady flow from the town treasury is going to continue. The bridge, without a doubt, will have another hernia, making it near immobile and in need of repair.

New Bridge Best Choice

By AL SABAS
Staff Reporter

Trenton last week took another step down the road to war, a war of attrition whose unwilling prize is the taxpayer's dollar.

And what was the war over this time? The Dundas St. bridge. Without the clash of cymbals, and without the roll of drums, with no ceremony at all, the rusty old span literally ground to a halt.

It malfunctioned. A shaft in the drive mechanism, twisted with age, snapped. Much like a stale pretzel, one assumes.

To say that as a result the swing section of the bridge was unusable is not true. It can be swung, but only with a touch of spittle applied to the rabbit's foot.

It's just too bad that rabbit's foot, or another one lead to a lucky rabbit, hadn't been buried deep in the taxpayer's purse, more commonly known as the town treasury. If that had been the case, perhaps the town would not have been forced to spend big money to repair the rusty-bolt bearing span.

But there was no lucky charm and Trenton had to pay. Due to overtime wages and the rush nature of the job, the Trenton company that produced the replacement shaft had to be paid $1,500.

And this is where the war of attrition enters the picture.

That $1,500 is a small portion of what it will end up paying before it gets a new bridge linking the two halves of Dundas St.

It's a Cosy Enough Life in Ottawa—Thanks to Taxpayer and Federal Payroll

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There may be a recession in the rest of the country, but here in the National Capital the economy sails along serenely on an even keel.

This is not being written to arouse your passions against the ever-prospering bureaucracy, but to acknowledge your contribution — taxes, remember — to the Capital's continuing well-being.

It's not so much that Ottawa-Hull — officially now, proclaims the government, a "two-city capital" — is booming.

It isn't.

It is just that it is not hurting. The most up-to-date statistic indicative of the Capital's economic stability is that for total value of department store sales.

It is up by 19 per cent, which, offsetting the same percentage of the inflation rate, leaves business as good this year as last.

Which is pretty good.

Insulation from the woes of the rest of the country is the Capital's economic safeguard.

This being almost a wholly-owned government town, the federal payroll provides the insulation.

It is strong and steady — people don't get laid off from the public service.

It is more than that in fact — it's a growth industry.

At two-way growth. The size of the public itself increases and its salary rates rise.

In fact — and you won't like the late bit — economic difficulties in the rest of the country contributes to the continuing growth of the public service, even stimulate it.

More civil servants are needed to supervise unemployment insurance, more are required to process industrial incentive grants, to assess LIP and OFY programs, to analyze economic problems and search out possible solutions. So must the think tanks, and now the departmental dream-books in which inventive mandarins conjure up new ways to spend more public money.

All these people live in Ottawa, get paid in Ottawa, and spend their money in Ottawa — except when they are working down to Montreal for a high-life weekend — generating steady economic activity in the region.

Other — no problem of rural industries in the capital establish here because they wait to sell to the federal government or are receiving DREE grants to help in developing technology.

While all this makes for economic stability for residents of the Capital, it doesn't do much for the economic difficulties of those living in other parts of the country.

For it makes it more of a problem for the federal government economic policy-makers to realize the severity of the recession when it doesn't stare them in the face every day.

It only figures that when things are cozy here — and they always are — a recession elsewhere seems to lack the reality of immediacy.

Perhaps the feds would be more concerned with the problems of recession if every day they saw firms in trouble, talked with businessmen struggling to cope with declining sales, and talked with people who had just been laid off from secure.

The basic economic policies of the feds might not change all that much.

But at least it might persuade the Bank of Canada and the Finance Department that a recession is something more than "a period of negative growth."

The last time the fat cat Capital experienced the economic like-it-is in recession was way back in the days of former Conservative Prime Minister Richard Bedford Bennett.

As the depression deepened with the years entering the "Dirty Thirties," R.B. Bennett, seeking to get a measure of bell-tightening, shut down an entire federal agency on the old Department of the Interior — firing the staff out of hand.

The legacy he left still haunts the Conservatives here where public servants, with long memories, routinely vote Liberal.

Funny thing, though, despite the prosperity here, times are hard for collective agents.

Public service salaries can't be garnished for unpaid debts.

So John Morrison, National Capital regional manager of Collection Agency Limited, is able to rail:

"These deadbeat government people are just about impossible to collect from — they know where they work, they're from garnishee, and they stand firmly."

Human Nature's Quirks

What's in it — or not in it — for me? This is a familiar attitude. More so perhaps today than ever before.

The ideal of Brotherhood too is more of a pipe dream than reality, even though we may pay lip service one week in the year.

Nor do so-called Gentlemen's agreements count for much these days.

A local man has had some experience of this in recent months. He cites two examples involving auto collisions in which the damage was minor but nevertheless costly enough in terms of repair work.

In the first, his car was sideswiped by a vehicle backing up at the Liquor Store, a witness being his small daughter who was visiting in the car. The driver of the other car kept on going.

In the other incident, six months of trying to collect from a driver who stopped abruptly in downtown Belleville one winter's evening, last December, backed up and buckled the bumper and hood of his import, has come to nought.

A verbal agreement had been reached early in the year, the other driver to pay. There was a time and place, but he never showed up. A solicitors' letter was ignored, and when a subsequent attempt to collect through the other's insurance, he replied saying, in effect: "the other party ran into me."

As the insurance company explained in effect: "Without witnesses, how to prove otherwise . . . It's his word against yours."

Maybe times have changed. More than a decade has passed, says this citizen, since one day after work in another city he found the rear windshield of his car smashed. On the car was the name and address and insurance company in the United States of a truck driver who, looking up, had caused the damage.

Today it's a case of "I'm all right, Jack . . . who cares what happens to the other guy?"

Government is Stingy With Research Money

By F. W. GROVER

OTTAWA — Just about the time that R. Keith Dawney and Dr. Balder Stefanson were being hailed by the Royal Society of Canada as outstanding Canadians for the achievements in rapeseed development, the fates of the eight families of agriculture and the three veterinary colleges lambasted the federal government for being stingy with money for research.

It is an old complaint. It is about any yardstick you choose. Canadian expenditure on research and development are low. When gauged against our affluent standard of living they are miniscule. The reasons for many and they have been discussed ad infinitum by inquiries and by academic and journalistic.

The major reason is that most of the major industries in Canada are foreign owned and the R and D is done in the parent country. Anyone who has watched what a Canadian writer does to an automobile can make a good argument for moving some of the Detroit's research facilities north of the border.[1] There is also, unfortunately, a hardwood mentality in Canada that feels there is something ridiculous about the research scientist whose life is his laboratory.

The Universities complained that Agriculture Canada spends over $80 million a year on research while they, the universities, have to share less than $16 million. What annoys them more is that over 70 per cent of Agriculture Canada's research funds are spent in the universities for contracted work.

Dr. Downey made the question in a speech at the ceremony where he and Dr. Stefanson accepted their $50,000 prize. For a public servant it was an outspoken statement.

Canadian investment in research and development falls far short of what other developed nations consider essential for their survival . . . Canada only invests 1.3 to 1.4 per cent of our GNP in research . . . only about 4 per cent of U.S. efforts . . ." the Senate Committee recommended that by 1980 we should be investing 2.5 per cent of GNP.

He suggested a Peter Principle for Canadian Science policy: "There is a direct relationship between the rate of knowledge accumulated in a particular field of endeavour and the degree of bureaucratic intensification."

But Dr. Downey did not go along entirely with the University dean's statement. He said they were making the right play but they were aiming it in the wrong direction.

To begin with, $90 million a year is not too generous when we consider the problems of the research stations spread across Canada to deal with the varied crops and climatic conditions. Dr. Downey argued that Canada's research effort is the bare minimum required to keep ahead of disease and to give farmers the knowledge to keep up productivity in the face of continued urban migration.

There is plenty of research work the universities can and should be doing but the money will have to come from one level of government or another. It is unrealistic, however, to cut it out of the National Research budget of Agriculture Canada.

Dr. Downey said valuable time had been lost in the seven-year debate on scientific priorities. What he presented to see that food was given top priority was that every dollar, the short-term package type of financing and the new science policy was not suited to agriculture.

Ontario heard the pitch. Agriculture Minister William Stewart added $3 million to research spending and much of it will be contracted out. There is no evidence yet that anyone in Ottawa was listening.

Law and Condominium Ownership

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Because of the high cost and continuing shortage of single-family homes increasing numbers of Canadian families are turning to condominiums as an alternative.

Not all purchasers know what condominium ownership is all about. The concept is relatively new in most parts of Canada, and misunderstandings are common.

"Condominium" means a certain type of property ownership. Any type of living accommodation — highrise apartments, townhouses or whatever—can qualify.

The essential characteristic of condominium ownership is that your unit belongs to you, and common property is shared with your co-owners.

Typically, the common property would be the ground, parking area, recreational amenities and — in an apartment type condominium—lobby, corridors and elevators.

Then there are "limited common elements" such as the individual's balcony, parking spot and storage space. The use of these is restricted to the unit owner, but they belong to the condominium corporation.

It's important for prospective condominium buyers to understand the distinction. If the exterior wall belongs to the unit, for example, the owner has to pay for window-washing.

The guidance of a lawyer is just as essential in buying a condominium as in buying any other piece of real property.

Your lawyer should ensure that you receive from the developer or condominium corporation such documents as description of the unit, the declaration and bylaws of the corporation, the common trust agreement, a management contract if there is one, and a statement as to recreational facilities.

In most cases, management agencies run condominiums. "Attempts at self-management by the co-owners have been sufficient than professional management," says Ontario's ministry of consumer and corporate relations in his newly-published booklet, Buying a Condominium.

Note that the condominium manager is entitled to enter your unit if necessary in order to carry out his work, whether the owner is present or not.

When you buy a condominium, you will need enough cash for down payment, land transfer tax, lawyer's fees and other miscellaneous items.

As a condominium owner, you will be required to pay regular mortgage and interest instalments, property taxes, a monthly condominium maintenance fee and contribution to a reserve fund for emergency repairs, and utility bills.

The primary advantage of condominium ownership is financial. The old rule about economies of scale means that it is cheaper for several people to buy ownership of a given property than for individuals to buy property independently.

Another advantage, as with apartment living, is the reduction or elimination of household chores — grass cutting, snow clearing, and maintenance of exterior.

Disadvantages? Much the same as in any form of multi-family dwelling. Inadequate physical control is one of the most common annoyances.

And even though you own your unit and have capital tied up in it, your freedom to do as you wish and your property is restricted by the condominium agreement. You may be able to persuade your fellow-owners to change a particular bylaw, but it's seldom easy.

If you are considering the purchase of a unit in a condominium that's already in operation, be sure to talk to the people living there and get their opinion of the management, maintenance, noise and so on.

If new condominiums are thinking about is a new one, check the neighborhood carefully and try to assess its future possibilities.

'Dog' Days of Summer

It was Arnold Palmer, as we recall, who said a man must be fit to play professional golf in weather such as we are experiencing now.

There is little pleasure in these arid, airless days, unless you are a youngster and there is a pool handy. Even the fole over at Switch Island, with a bit of a breeze from the bay, seem to drag their feet.

Dennis T. Patrick Sears, whose first novel, The Lark in Band Plays On

It is gratifying to learn that any misunderstanding over the continuance of the Belleville Yardmen Drum and Bugle Corps has been cleared up.

A letter from a citizen, received before the issue was resolved, reflected the feelings of many in the community.

"As a father," the letter said in part, "I believe this Corps is in need of our full support. It has given to each and every person in the Corps, in one way or the other. It has helped keep our kids off the street, and in this day and age we need more of this type of activity, not less."

Good luck to the Yardmen and more power to the drum and bugle corps; it's a credit to its members and to Belleville.

The Clear Air, was a Canadian best seller, says in his Kingston newspaper column that these are "dog days" — after the Roman theory about the dog star, Sirius, rising with the sun.

Sears says he retreats in such weather to the shrubbery, avoids those who talk about what a lovely day it is, lest he be tempted to push them, and he observes, with truth, that "ours is a harsh and frightful climate."

We recall a summer such as this in another community along the St. Lawrence. It hung on right into early September; then suddenly, one afternoon, the temperature dropped. The sun, enervating and loosened its grip.

Bring on September, all too swiftly gone though it always is. Winter is aggravation of another kind, but at least one feels alive in that season of the year.

His recent inclusion in the Queen's birthday honor list as a Commander of the Order of the British Empire saluted the fact that there is a way back; that society is prepared to recognize genuine contrition.

Teachers' Salaries

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The recent rejection by Northumberland-Newcastle Secondary teachers of the school board's last offer to settle the salary dispute into sharp focus once again. The main issue is money. Where Thom is indicating the teachers rejected a 26 per cent increase, the fact is, if one wishes to know just how director Thom arrived at the figure. If the 26 per cent includes increments which I am reliably informed it does — then the salary increase would be 11 per cent compared between 20 and 22 per cent. Although this seems adequate, and is in fact greater than the Consumer Price Index figure for the year the last year, this amount must be considered in terms of the teachers of this area Northumberland-Newcastle, Hastings County Prince Edward — being at least 20 per cent behind the inflation rate, which has risen about 40 per cent over the last year. If the board's offer contains a cost of living protection COLA clause tied to the C.P.I and a full rolled in clause effective at the end of the agreement's term, the teachers were absolutely correct to demand a just increase for their professional services. No other profession has had its collective buying power so effectively eroded over the recent years as have teachers laboring under the Mulroney-Grossly. It is time teachers took a militant stand for quality education.

U.S. Ties in Both Asia and Europe are Slackening in Wake of Recent Events

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Are the allies of the United States around the world slipping away from their long American association and making their own new alignments and security plans?

Since the fall of Saigon this spring many nations, especially a number of so-called "client states" of the U.S. in Asia, have indicated their desire to loosen ties with Washington.

Most prominent are Thailand and the Philippine Republic in South East Asia where American power has waned the most with the fall of Cambodia and South of Vietnam.

Both countries have established full diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China, the heads of both nations going to Peking to sign the agreement of recognition.

Both President Marcos of the Philippines and Thailand's prime minister have asked the Americans ultimately to remove their bases and in the short term to remove actual bomber and fighter aircraft.

Thailand was of course, a major bomber base for U.S. sweeps against Laos, North Vietnam and the Communist controlled patches of South Vietnam during the late and early 70s.

The Philippines were more critical. U.S. bases have existed in that unsettled country since the Spanish-American War of 1898.

The Cavite naval base and the famous island of Corregidor, where U.S. forces in the Philippines held out against the invading Japanese for three months in early 1942, are ever-remembered in American history. So should be the American-Philippine connection.

But there are mixed times for sentiment. The defence of Corregidor and Bataan against Japanese alliance in guerrilla warfare which followed it, are far back in history now.

Taiwan, that strongest of American allies in Asia, may develop its own nuclear bomb by 1980, a step it will rely on its own not inconsiderable technology for protection against the avowed enemy of Communist China, and the latter's technology came from the U.S.

And the American strategic jet fighters, currently the F-4s, have been withdrawn from that island continually from the American air ability to hit mainland China, except for the first time since the long-ago Korean War.

In Western Europe, there are strong signs of weakness in the close German-American association, made during the cold war of the late 40s and by the US Air Force counting of the Berlin Airlift of 1948-49.

The strength of West Germany's connection with the United States has also been a result of the activities of U.S. multi-national corporations in the once-booming German economy, as well as of the huge little, old German international firms in the American economy.

These important economic relations have been in jeopardy, not because of events in Vietnam, but because of world recession and mounting attacks against multi-national concerns and their operations.

A post-war West German generation of youths has not only grown up in prosperity, not the best generation of Germans, both far removed from memories of the cold war.

Sebaceous Cysts Easily Removed

By C. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thompson: I have a sebaceous cyst which protrudes right smack in the centre of my forehead. It is about a half-inch in diameter and very noticeable.

I have had it for several years and always thought it would disappear, dissolve by itself, but I guess I was mistaken. I have now become very conscious of this ugly blemish. Can you advise a remedy or treatment to eradicate it?—A. J.

Large sebaceous cysts, if that is what you have, may occur on any part of the body except on the soles or palms.

They can range in size from tiny specks (whiteheads are sebaceous cysts) to those the size you describe, or even larger. They are called sebaceous cysts because they are caused by excessive secretion of the tiny sebaceous glands in the skin.

Surgical removal would seem to be the only answer for you, and this is generally a minor procedure that can be done in the physician's office. Since yours is located in such a prominent spot, and you are sensitive about it, I suggest you visit a dermatologist who could advise you on your specific case. Incidentally, they are benign.

Dear Dr. Thompson: I am a male, 24 years old. All of my life I have been healthy. Recently, however, I was suddenly shaken with a bad heartburn and my heart started beating rapidly and pounding. This lasted for 15 or 20 minutes.

I have had a number of these incidents lately. My doctor gave me some pills for it, which have helped.

What is the cause of these spells? What is the cure? Is this a danger sign of heart trouble? Can a fast beat be fatal? Should a person have tests run in a hospital?—A. P.

I'll take each question in the order asked.

Such spells can be caused by anxiety, fatigue, or excessive use of such things as tobacco, coffee, tea, etc.

Treatment usually involves use of sedatives at bedtime or medication to combat the heartburn distress.

Usually, there is no underlying heart disease. Nonetheless, this rhythm disturbance can occur with heart trouble, and an electrocardiogram and blood-pressure tests are in order as well as one for thyroid function.

Such conditions are rarely fatal. If there is an underlying heart disease, then that is a different matter, and I assume from your letter that you have been checked and found normal in that respect.

Most evaluation of heart-rhythm irregularities can be done in the doctor's office. Special chemical tests for thyroid function are more efficiently in a laboratory for such purposes, or in a hospital.

Egnarts Still Mystery to INTOR

Y ALLEN SPRAGGETT. ..
What's the "Egnarts"?

For one thing it's the word "Strange" spelled backwards. It's a term adopted by a group called the International Fortean Organization (INFORI, for any of the thousands of oddities they collect which don't fit in anywhere.

Fish-falls from the sky? That's an egnarts.

Dozens of live frogs plummet from somewhere into somebody's swimming pool? That's an egnarts.

Something leaves weird marks in the snow for a distance of a hundred miles and the marks resemble those of neither man nor beast? That's an egnarts.

The Forteans are a bunch of open-minded sleuths who take their name from one Charles Fort, a brilliant, eccentric connoisseur of the unexplained and the bizarre who especially enjoyed poking fun at establishment science. Fort collected voluminous data from around the world (published in a string of books) describing weird things — and then laughed at science's contradictory attempts to explain them.

Modern Forteans are equally irreverent. From their headquarters in Arlington, Virginia, they tirelessly look for the things that embarrass science, the things that defy classifying.

Here's a collection of some fairly recent egnarts.

On January 23, 1974, the villagers in Llandrillo, Wales, in a rather desolate part of the country, were startled by a brilliant blue and green light in the sky and a huge explosion.

The popular theory was that a meteorite had hit the side of a nearby hill. The impact was sufficient to send out shock waves severe enough to be considered by scientists "an earth tremor" or minor earthquake.

But in spite of intensive investigation, no trace of a meteorite or evidence of its impact could be found. The entire area was combed by military personnel.

Result: Nothing.

Whatever in up the sky blinding green and shook dishes off shelves for miles around was an egnarts.

On August, 31, 1974, the wolves ran amok in the northwest corner of Spain. News reports said that local villagers had shot more than 40 of the animals in a week.

There were accounts of sheep, calves and dogs being devoured by the wolves and farmers chased up trees.

This is very un-wolfine behavior. It's against all the rules, said the animal experts, for wolves to even approach human settlements in summer.

From Darwin, Australia, came reports in February, 1974, that fish fell from the sky. Hundreds of small fish — usually perch — rained down on farmers' fields 200 miles from the sea in Australia's Northern Territory.

Some scientists theorized that the fish had been sucked into the ocean by a tornado and blown inland, then dumped. They, however, said they didn't believe a tornado could carry anything 200 miles.

Besides, the fish-falls occurred three times in two weeks.

One scientist said: "Rains of fish have been reported from all over the world from time to time, but no convincing explanation has been given."

Exactly.

Fish - falls are an egnarts.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Bluegrass guitarist Lester Flatt underwent almost five hours of open-heart surgery Thursday, while scores town funeral services were being conducted for country music artist George Morgan.

Flatt, 61, was reported resting comfortably in hospital following the operation, which con-stated of implanting bypasses to three arteries, doctors reported good blood flow in all grafts following the operation.

Morgan, 50, a headliner at the Grand Ole Opry for 27 years, died earlier in the week of complications resulting from similar surgery.

The funeral mass for Morgan, 50, was attended by many country music people, including singers Johnny Cash and his wife June Carter Cash.

Although 30th Century Fox and Columbia are sending short documentary films for unofficial showing, the American Motion Picture Association declined the formal invitation on financial grounds, a Soviet cinema official said last Monday.

The Consumer — Sharon Airhart

Getting Your Money's Worth

If consumers often don't get what they pay for, is the converse also true? Have you ever gotten more than your money's worth?

One woman — a fellow worker here at the paper! — got more than her money's worth last week when she picked up a pair of knee-high nylon stockings for 99 cents at a supermarket chain store. She got about three feet more than her money's worth. Her "knee-highs" were just about armpit high.

The question is, did she get what she paid for?

Getting more than you paid for can be irritating. After paying $2.50 a person to see "Blazing Saddles" at the drive-in recently, I got more than I paid for when, between features, two automobile advertisements were thrown on the screen. I confess it's been a long time since I've been to a drive-in — they seem to be the preserve of teen-agers and parents with tiny children — so I found the advertisements a little shocking. I could be wrong, but once I've paid for the entertainment in cash I don't want to have it again by being the captive and unwilling audience for advertisements.

After all, television has always been "free" because sponsors pay for your attention while they hawk their products. But since you're already paying for the entertainment, why should you have to watch advertisements at the drive-in?

(For what it's worth, I think it's fair to point out that in Britain, movie theatres regularly screen as much as 15 minutes of advertisements between features.

Camping season brings with it the need for common sense application of safety rules by side or near the tent. Tents are a textile article and are flammable. Children's cotton tents will ignite and burn within a few minutes and the paraffin treatment some tents have as waterproofing make them even more flammable.

It's a good idea to buy some flame retardent tents but remember even they will burn.

Be sure to build camp fires several yards and downwind from the tent. Don't use open flames in or near the tent, including cooking utensils. Have a plan of action in case of fire and be sure children are aware of special fire dangers inside tents.

Saving Sealers Won't Make You Rich

Unless you've got an old-fashioned canning jar sporting a beaver facing left, don't plan to make a lot of money on the sale of the sealers in your basement or attic.

In fact, the sealers are probably more valuable to a home canners than to collectors who are very selective in the jars they buy.

Ruth and John Huffman, antique dealers with a shop next to their home east of Belleville on Highway 2, explain that they get two or three telephone calls a week from hopeful sealer sellers who've decided they have a gold mine in the basement.

"When you tell them only a very few are worth anything, they won't believe you," John Huffman says.

Calls come into the shop — and most likely other antique shops in the area — from the city and surrounding rural areas.

"Most often they come from someone who has seen a sealer sold for a lot of money at an auction and believes he has dozens of similar sealers packed away," Mrs. Huffman says. "But in fact they just look alike to the untrained eye."

What distinguishes the valuable sealer from the ordinary is, of course, rarity.

"There are valuable sealers, good sealers," Ruth Huffman says. "But, for example, there were 27 different kinds of [illegible]-n sealers made and only three or four have any value."

Saleable sealers are small mouthed with a tall narrow crown or have no dota around the crown, or feature a crown with a bulge or a crown with a ring.

"Even those certainly won't make you rich," she explains. Mrs. Huffman said she goes through 300 sealers before finding a saleable one.

The most common sealers are mason, crown, corona and ball. Some are popular with tourists from the United States because they often say "made in Canada."

What about sealers which were produced by other manufacturers?

Well, any amber sealer might be worth something; an amber left-handed beaver is currently valued at about $400.

Others you might be able to sell to a collector include sealers with a picture of King Edward, with a beehive or the words "pansy" or "star" or "rose" on them, "Darling" or "dexter" sealers are also collectable.

As for the rest of the sealers in the basement or attic, the only way you're likely to make any money on them is to clean them up, fill them with food and put them on next winter's grocery bills.

Husband 'Shunned' by Wife

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) — Farmer Robert Bear says he last saw his wife in February, but she refused to speak to him.

"I said, 'Good morning,' and she took her picture. She did like that," says Bear, who has been excommunicated from the Reform Mennonite Church and is the subject of a church practice called "shunning," where he is avoided by all church members, including his family.

Bear, 46, also told reporters Tuesday he tried to see his six children last fall, but went to his in-laws' home in Camp Hill. "My wife's father met me at the door," the Carlisle farmer said. "Wife said it made my wife so nervous she took the children away."

Bear, married for 13 years, says he was living an idyllic life on his corn and potato farm with his family when he decided to speak out against Reform Mennonite doctrine that claimed the Church was the only pure faith.

He said his attacks resulted in his excommunication and shunning. His wife moved the couple's children out of their farmhouse.

Bear tried unsuccessfully to sue the church in the local courts, The case was not heard. But on Monday the state Supreme Court, ruling that marriage may be governed by the state and not entirely by the church, ordered the Cumberland County court to hear the case.

"I would think we will follow this until it is finished. I want my wife and children back," Bear says.

Will his wife return if the courts decide shunning is unconstitutional? Bear says he has not been available to answer.

"But I'm hoping that she realizes she has done wrong," Bear says. "She is a victim of her culture. They believe that if they are excommunicated they are damned to hell. That's what my wife and children believe, and I am damned to hell."

Bear says he knew his wife, Ruth Ann, was a pretty girl after. They both grew up near there and were raised in the Reform Mennonite Church, probably the most stringent of 20 Mennonite sects.

Books By And About Women

THE MYSTERY OF EMILY DICKINSON By Laura Benet.

The author, a poet herself —Bridge of a Single Hair" — has delved deeply into the character and the mystery that forever hovered over this 19th century poet.

Some years ago Miss Benet wrote a novel about Emily Dickinson; evidently the ties were too strong to be broken for this new biography brings a fresh appraisal of this delightful personality. Reared in a stern, New England household. Emily never lost her own individuality. Through some of her letters to family and friends, we uncovers her sensitivity for others, her deep affection; also, her search for some less frightening approach to religion from those harsh doctrines of eternal punishment set forth in her father's church.

A forerunner of the modern poet, she was admonished by her critics to use the accepted forms of that day; that her verse was "too different" for publication. Even though she sought criticism of her work, she never followed suggestions for change. "When my thought is undressed, I can make the distinction: but when I put them in the gown, they look alike and numb."

Though shy as a girl, she was endowed with a charming wit. She left Amherst for occasional trips to Philadelphia but this tendency to withdraw increased with the years. As her many interests centered at home: her writing, her music, flowers to attend, her big companionable dog, her family and friends — but when she met the "man of destiny" in Philadelphia and renounced that love, she wrote: "Oh, dear! I have my own society — Then shuts the door." She did shut that door and became more and more of a recluse. The identity of "The man" is firmly established and unravels this mystery.

To read this biography is to more fully appreciate Emily Dickinson's talents as a woman, as a friend, and as a writer.

Eskimos Cancer Prone

OTTAWA (CP) — Eskimos are twice as prone to cancer as other Canadians and this may be caused by their acceptance of North American lifestyles, says an Edmonton doctor.

Heavy smoking, chronic bronchitis, potentially cancerous air pollutants and radiation from above-ground nuclear testing may all be causes of their unusually high cancer rate, says Dr. Oliver Schaefer of the northern medical research unit of Charles Camsell Hospital.

Writing in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, he says a study of Eskimo medical records from 1974 to 1964 shows a sharp increase in the rate of cancer as the Eskimos came in contact with, and adopt, white culture.

The most startling findings were that Eskimos have 72 times and women 181 times the chance of dying of cancer of the salivary glands and 155 and 51 times as much chance of dying of cancer of the nose and throat.

"The excess in cancer mortality is greatest at ages 45 to 64 years, and the second highest age group in the central Arctic is the rate second highest only for all Canadians," he said.

Eskimo women, according to his study, have twice the chance of dying of cervical cancer as Canadian women and Dr. Schaefer thinks their shift to city living has encouraged promiscuity and the chance of infection in the infections which some doctors blame for cancer of the cervix.

Breast cancer, on the other hand, is only seen as an occasion in Eskimo women. Dr. Schaefer feels this may be because they breast feed their children longer.

Lung cancer claims twice as many Eskimo men and 13 times as many Eskimo women. Dr. Schaefer says, are linked to smoking and bronchial problems, which is the normal mechanism for removing potentially cancerous air pollutants.

Dr. Schaefer also speculated that above-ground nuclear testing may have put fallout in lichen, a plant eaten by caribou, which is the favorite meat of the Eskimo. The increase in mixed cancer deaths may make them more cancer prone, he said.

The Experts Say

Novice Canners—Start with Fruit

OTTAWA (CP) — The wave of popularity in home gardening due to the higher cost of grocery bills is prompting many Canadians to preserve the luscious produce out of their gardens.

Leonce Newman, home economist in the food advisory services, Agriculture Canada, provides some recommendations for canning produce, with tips especially useful for the novice in the home preserving field.

"For those who are inexperienced in the art of preserving food at home, it would be wise to start with fruits," she suggested, because "fruits are easy to can."

Miss Newman said all that is required is freshly picked fruit and a boiling water bath in which to process it.

"Use almost any large kettle with a rack and a tight-fitting lid," she said, "so long as it is deep enough to allow a rack and a tight-fitting lid. It must be deep enough to allow at least two inches of boiling water over the tops of the 'sealed' containers."

This method is what she said, is recommended for fruits and tomatoes, "because of their natural acidity." The temperature reached in a boiling bath is high enough to destroy spoilage organisms.

Miss Newman said that with vegetables, home canning is a little more complex.

"Except for tomatoes which can be processed in a boiling water bath," she said, "all other vegetables need to be processed in a pressure canner."

She added: "Most vegetables contain little acid and need the high temperature that can only be obtained in a pressure canner to destroy bacteria, yeasts and moulds that are present in the air, water and soil.

Miss Newman warned against using the open-kettle method in which food is cooked for a few minutes but not given further processing after sealing.

"There is a chance of contamination when the jars are being filled," she said.

It is she, the home economist said, to buy airtight canning jars to keep out spoilage organisms after processing.

"A danger of food poisoning and spoilage organisms exists is improperly processed low-acid vegetables in sealed containers," she said. "As a safety precaution, canned vegetables, except tomatoes should be boiled 10 minutes before tasting."

She cautioned that any home-canned food that looks abnormal, foams, spurts or has an offodor should be destroyed in such a way that it cannot be picked up by children or animals.

Nursing in the Park 'Indecent' Behaviour Charged

MIAMI (AP) — Three mothers have been tossed out of a public park for allegedly violating the city's decency ordinance by breast-feeding their infants.

Leanne Penney Watt and June Donally said Sunday they were asked to leave a city park last Thursday by a ranger who told them he had received complaints about the breast-feeding.

The mothers said they are enlisting the support of local women's rights leaders in their fight against the ban.

"What we do when we nurse a child is anything but indecent," said Mrs. Recicar. "It doesn't involve removing any clothing and we are very discreet about it.

"I've nursed at church with no problems and in restaurants, too," she said. "The people who complained, if anyone did, probably raise their kids to think that breasts aren't for anything other than display in Playboy Magazine."

Mayor Maurice Ferre said he had no objections to the public nursing.

Ann Landers

Frank Has a Hang-up

Dear Ann Landers: When you spoke in Racine, Wis., you said 20 years of writing the column has made you positively shock-proof. I hope so. My story is unusual, to say the least.

Frank (made-up name) and I have been married three years. He is 28. I am 23. I know he loves me and I am crazy about him, but he has a peculiar hang-up about making love. Frank simply cannot perform in bed, like a normal person. It has to be on the front porch, the back yard, on the roof, on a beach, or in the woods. Several times, driving home from a party, Frank has asked me to undress in the car and walk into the house nude. We live in a residential area.

I have always complied with his wishes but I'm scared to death the neighbors might see me. I think Frank's requests are unnatural and childish. I try hard to please him because I love the guy but he is becoming more demanding and I don't know what do to about it. Can you help? — S.O.S.

Dear S.O.S.: If the police see you walking nude from the car to the house, you could be arrested.

Tell Frank no more indecent exposure in public. The guy sounds bananas. Anyone who needs the element of high risk mixed in with his sexual gratification also needs counseling.

Dear Ann: This is for the 13-year-old who couldn't get up on the morning for school, but was wide-eyed at midnight.

Years ago, when I returned to the working world, I ate little or no breakfast, a light lunch and a heavy meal in the evening. Before supper I was exhausted. Less than an hour after I ATE I was so revved up I could work until midnight. When morning came I was tired.

Last year my husband had to leave on an early-morning business trip. He suggested I eat a big breakfast with him at the airport. That day I had a light lunch and a light supper. By 9 o'clock I was ready for bed. The next morning I was rarin' to go. I've been on that same eating schedule ever since and am never tired.

Now I realize my body wasn't getting enough nourishment in the morning to carry me through the day. I'll bet if that 13-year-old will eat a big breakfast and a light lunch and supper, he'll be able to sleep at night and jump out of bed in the morning ready to go.—Dixie.

Dear Dixie: Many people wrote to suggest a change in diet — especially that "ol' Sleeph Head" lay off carbonated drinks after supper

The one-piece swim-suit and the brief bikini are what fashion experts say women of Britain will wear to summer beaches. One-piece swim-suits with front plunges and cutaway bras, are also part of a complete co-ordinated beach wardrobe by Slix. (CP Photo)

One-piece Swim Suits Make New Come Back

LONDON (CP) — Bathing suits for this season in Britain feature a come-back for the one-piece swim-suit and more ultra brief bikinis.

The one-piece suit highlights brilliant colorings, fine lustrous fabrics, exciting cut-outs and daring shapes.

The fabrics saved on the bikini are being used for co-ordinates and cover-ups with the tiny bikinis.

The bikini itself, called a tanga, has briefs cut away to a G-string and the bra reduced to the tiniest of triangular cups. Some bikinis have the cups parted away at the sides and pierced at centre. Slide-along bra styles are set on narrow straps and some two-pieces are triangles of fabric based on the loin-cloth style of Latin American bikinis.

Bare shouldered tops are back on the beach, with bras that have tuck-away straps when swimming in the water. Bra shapes are soft, relying on a single dart or cut for shape.

For more cover on the beach, one can buy two-pieces, just like Betty Grable used to wear before the bikini was invented. The two-piece has the halter-neck bra with boxer shorts. More women will be able to wear the style because of its deeper cut pants and cup sizing for bikini bra tops.

The one-piece swim-suit, with daring front plunges and cut-away bras with bare backs and sides, often are part of a complete co-ordinated beach wardrobe. There are matching wraps, skirts, tops and long dresses for after-swim and dining and dancing, with necklines matching the swim-suit underneath.

High shine tricot fabrics with Lycra, give a smooth, lustrous look to the suit this season with colors ranging from orange, lemon and lime to violet and fuschia.

The British night-wear company Kayser is moving into beach and cruise-wear for the first time. It features Playmates, a beach-wear in luxury, plain and printed toweling and Leisure Life, cruise-wear styles in simple fabrics.

There are brief tops teamed with long wrap skirts, backless "terrace" dresses, bikini sets with matching hats and coordinated halter neck dresses, both short and ankle length.

Bretties, another English manufacturer, makes a St. Tropez-style "curtain" bra bikini, a slip of material over the breasts with a brief bikini. They also feature one-piece suits this summer in ultra-fine nylon jersey, with a draped bodice and halter neckline bras and clip-front fastening, teamed with buckled, belted "little boy" boxer briefs.

McGibbon Still 'Raring to Go' As Lieutenant-Governor

TORONTO (CP) — After 14 months as Ontario's first woman lieutenant-governor, Pauline McGibbon says she's raring to go.

After 59 trips, 53 receptions, 31 media interviews, 11,275 persons entertained and 13,412 documents signed, only three things have shocked her—the amount of work necessary for security and the fact her friends no longer know how to be out for a drink.

But she has managed to adjust to the workload and the security provided by the Ontario Provincial Police. Even her private social life, though narrower, is more normal.

"I just tell them (friends) to invite my husband, Dr. and tell him to bring his girlfriend. Then they and I both hope he brings me."

She says her husband, whom [illegible] years ago at a Sarnia winner roast, also has adjusted well. He recently retired as treasurer of Imperial Oil Ltd. to back her up during her five-year tenure, but retained his position on the board of regents of Victoria College and directorship of a Toronto trust company.

"Last year was very hectic and I thought 1975 would be lighter, I forgot, however, that this was International Women's Year and I've been blitzed with invitations."

One of her most popular speeches deals with the role of the lieutenant-governor, since many, including herself before she was appointed, have absolutely no idea what the job entails.

Her workday runs from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. with lunch at her desk examining speaking invitations. She says she has relative freedom to choose her invitations, although some are "musts."

Before her investiture, she says she was not looking forward to the rigorous protocol—rules such as one that says the lieutenant-governor is last in and first out at functions.

"Good Lord, you have to be flexible about these things. I've spent too many years on the other side of the fence . . . waiting to be introduced to a lieutenant-governor, nervous and tongue-tied. It's funny, now that I'm in this position, I don't know why people are so intimidated by it," she says.

She and her husband still live in their Toronto penthouse apartment, but after talking to neighbors on the same floor, police locked off the elevator at the floor below, and residents now need special keys to reach apartments.

She says the highlight of the year was meeting the Queen.

Mother, who when they met, said simply: "I hear you're the first."

She is determined to make good in a job traditionally filled by men.

"The pressure is always there. If I do well, then some other woman might get a chance . . . I so much don't want to let womanhood down."

Lots of sleep, vitamins, a good sense of humor and especially a love of people are her ingredients for success, she says.

"All people, we ones and tall ones. You simply have to love them or you could never survive in this job. And, as for a sense of humor, it's a must.

New Bishop of Nova Scotia Seeks to Shun Holy Huddle

HALIFAX (CP)—Rt. Rev. George F. Arnold, who in September will become bishop of the eastern diocese of the Anglican Church in Canada, is a man who concedes that the episcopate is "not a job most persons would covet because of its responsibilities."

The 59-year-old coadjutor of the Diocese of Nova Scotia has strong ideas on his coming role in the church, chiefly with a view to retaining spiritual and administrative control.

Bishop Arnold, a native of Medgreve, N.S., was elected coadjutor at the 102rd synod of the diocese and Sept. 1 will succeed Most Rev. W. W. Davis, 10th Bishop of Nova Scotia and Metropolitan of the Ecclesiastical Province of Canada since 1972.

Each individual brings "his own inclination" to the episcopate, Bishop Arnold said in an interview. His predecessor had been noted for his pastoral attributes and the 9th bishop had "most able talents in administration."

It was vitally important for the clergy and laity to be willing to share the responsibilities of the diocese-something that made the sometimes lonely duties of the episcopate "bearable and possible."

"In my own judgment, you can't strip the Mantle of his administrative function," he said.

There was a relationship between the two elements of pastoral and administrative concerns "which are complementary as well as sometimes divisive."

He once told a church committee the only office he could hope to be elected to by clergyman was the bishopric, since no one would want him, at his age, as a parish priest.

He smiled as he mused as to why the diocese would want "a dawdling old chap of 59 as coadjutor."

But his constituents, Anglicans from Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, both lay and clergy, voted overwhelmingly in his favor. In fact his selection was the first time in the history of the diocese that a bishop had been chosen on the first ballot.

He is not new to a bishop's world. His pressures he will have to assume the diocesan lead without a suffragan, a position he had held since 1967, until sometime in his term.

He was responsible for episcopal duties and programs such as education and community work—"a difficult combination. One that I feel shoving the other hat off the head."

"You can't combine these two."

Bishop Arnold will be elevated at what he calls a very interesting stage of the diocese, with work continuing on untangling some of the bureaucratic management of the church. He would like to "free up our structures so that we can function better as a community of faith."

But he believes that "good relations are more important than structures" and good relationships can bind structures were.

Bishop Arnold, grandson of an Anglican priest and son of Ven. F. G. Arnold, archdeacon of Cape Breton, has been a key ecclesiastical harmony within the church. He served all parishes of the 1960s and those who have looked forward, searching, since that time.

He hopes both elements can be kept in focus and that the church prevents itself from becoming "a holy huddle."

He looks forward to his work but can't help recalling the words of a friend with a sense of retributive justice who once told him:

"Anyone who wants to be a bishop, deserves to be a bishop."

Shepherd's Life Key To Interpreting Psalm

By
Dr. GORDON C. SMYTH

The 23rd Psalm is one of the most beautiful parts of the Bible. It is to be interpreted by reference to the shepherd life, just such a life as David lived from his youth up to 1015 B.C.

The Psalm is best interpreted by reference to the ministry of Jesus and to his role recorded in the 10th chapter of John's Gospel. Early Christians covered walls at Roman catacombs with the figure of a Shepherd.

"The Lord is my shepherd. I shall not want." God can supply a vast universe and at the same time germinate a single seed. He is a living, personal God.

"He maketh me lie down in green pastures. He leads me beside still waters. He restores my soul." In the land of the Bible, a shepherd goes ahead of his flock. One marvels at the exercise and poise of some shepherds. Their open secret is in daily prayer and daily meditation on the inner devotional literature.

"He leads me in paths of righteousness for his name's sake." The shepherd's reputation has always been at stake in the handling of his sheep. Modern values tend to be distorted by the pathological reaction to Puritanism and by the mingling of different cultures. While Jesus was an Oriental, his Gospel has had a universal appeal.

He can lead us better than anybody else.

"Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I fear no evil; for thou art with me . ." A certain spot in the Holy Land is actually called such a valley. It is a treacherous defile. But who has not had a strong feeling at times that his life possessed a providential, guarding Providence? Think back. Be grateful.

On that basis, let us, with the Psalmist, contemplate the future with confidence. "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I shall dwell in the house of the Lord for ever."

Dr. Leslie D. Weatherhead tells of a little girl who was asked to recite the 23rd Psalm. The words were not memory. But in her error was a truth. She began: "The Lord is my shepherd, that's all I want."

When you and I can truly say that, both in present experience and anticipation, we "dwell in the house of the Lord" . . . all we desire or need is there. For we are the people of God's pasture . . . and the sheep of Christ's hand.

We're Pro Sex Say Mormons

NEW YORK (AP) — Mormons esteem rules in the regard is sex but they also esteem sex. In fact they maintain that upholding chaste disciplines about it enhances the goodness of sexual union itself and constitutes a particularly private stand.

"You bet, we're pro-sex," says Ruth Funk, a spokesman for the president of the Young Women of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. "Mormon" supervises a vigorous wide-ranging campaign for the single, young women.

"Sex is one of the most beautiful aspects of life, the ultimate expression of human love in its spiritual dimension," she says. "It's a sacred act, the divine purpose of our existence that magnifies our capabilities beyond self."

However, Mormons hold that to give it that special value demands agreement, commitment, marriage; and also the avoidance of premarital sex that puts less significant on it and consequently downgrades it.

To use it in such casually slighting ways is to rob it of its true meaning, Mrs. Funk said. In an interview. She said that a spreading modern pattern among youth of "free sex" without commitment to marriage and family is cheapening sex as basically anti-sex and destructive of its values.

"Much of the world is coming to feel that it's just another biological, physical function without its moral, spiritual, psychological and emotional effects," she said. "That's where the tragedy lies. It's making for an unhealthy society and lower standards. It's taking one of the joys and purposes of life, one of the greatest ties to the Divine, and putting it on a mere physiological, almost animalistic base."

To Mormons, however, the sexual union of man and woman through marriage and children has such exceiling worth that it nurtures out of this life on earth but potentially a future life in heaven. Weddings in Mormon temples are for all eternity.

"When you see marriage for eternity, you look at it through different eyes," said Mrs. Funk, of Salt Lake City, who directs a year-round program for young women of character building, leadership training and development of talents.

The objective is "self-mastery and self-discipline and the self-respect that comes through these disciplines," she said.

Throughout the process, the church standard forbids premarital sex, but encourages the courtship that, not only in social settings, but in work and various types of experiences. At the church's Brigham Young University, premarital sex is considered a serious problem. Studies indicate Mormon training curtails sex for comparatively fewer cases of it. Also, the most recent annual figures for Utah show a divorce rate for the general population of 4.66 per cent but only 1.46 per cent for marriages sealed in Mormon temples. A form of marriage increasing among members.

Mrs. Funk, a mother of four and onetime high school choral director, said the modern trend toward abandoning standards of premarital chastity is undermining the moral fibre of the marriage covenant. "Many young people are seeking instant gratification," she said. "But it's hollow and 'can only cause serious wounds. These agonizing feelings, hidden deep in people, can break out again, long after a marriage, and destroy a relationship."

Spot Secretive

CARP, Ont. (CP) — The Diefenbunker has been called one of the most secret spots in the country, 11 miles west of Ottawa. The large $20 million underground complex was built in the 1960s to house former prime minister Diefenbaker if nuclear war broke out. The complex still operates but not under the previous maximum security.

Government Concerts

TORONTO (CP) — Queen's Park, home of Ontario's provincial legislature, will come alive this summer each Wednesday night with concerts on the front lawn. Minister of Culture and Recreation Robert Welch said: "The summer program is designed to allow families to gather and picnic on Ontario's front lawn while enjoying what we hope will be pleasant and relaxing entertainment after work."

Kiwanians Pick Peas

PICTON — Picton Kiwanians this month harvested 14 acres of peas for sale as a fund raising project.

The pea crop yield weighed in at 36,000 pounds and is a first in fund raising for Kiwanians here.

The project was spearheaded by Christopher Lockyer of Picton who assisted in planting and harvesting the peas.

Township Gets Grant

PICTON — South Marysburg Township will receive a supplementary subsidy of $4,300 to assist with the cost of rebuilding of certain roads and the the paving of a three-quarter mile stretch of road.

Announcement of the subsidy was made this week by James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox, from his office in Picton Park.

Fashion Big Business

PICTON — There will be new windows on Main Street this summer as two more women's clothing shops open in Picton.

The Orient Boutique managed by Ved Sethi opened in the Armory Mall in May. The shop specializing in Indian clothing, will move to Main Street in August filling a vacant store near the Pro Hardware centre.

The Fashion Gallery, a women's wear shop to be operated by Herman and Betty Zelling of Picton also will open in August in a renovated shop near the Salvation Army Citadel on Main Street.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Saturday, July 13, 1:37 a.m. — false alarm of reported car fire on University Ave., cause of mistake was overheated radiator.

Vandals Go on Window Smashing Spree

Vandals were out in force in the city overnight, inflicting unwanted damage at a fried chicken outlet, two homes and a gas stop, police said today.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said homes at 18 and 48 Dunbar St. had rocks thrown through windows within a 40-minute span Friday evening.

And at 1:52 a.m. today, someone smashed a pane of glass at a new bus stop on the corner of Haig Rd. and East Bridge St.

Finally, while on patrol at 6:07 a.m. today, a patrolman discovered a front window broken at the Blue Barn Restaurant on West College St. at a value of $150. Total damage is estimated at $228.

Chief Crosbie said acts of vandalism have been increasing over the years. He said 25 years ago, there were only three reported cases in th city but last year there were just over 700. "It seems to be a social problem . . . why are these people doing it," he commented.

Harbor Officials Back Yacht Basin Suggestion

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The possibility of creating a yacht basin and docking facility for small boats east of the city's harbour was presented Belleville Harbour Commission Friday.

The idea is included among tentative suggestions in the interim Quinte Bayfront Study now being circulated among community agencies for comment.

The study — calling for a long-range recreational development plan for the Bay of Quinte waterfront in the Belleville area — was commissioned by the Moira River Conservation Authority (MRCA).

The interim report — containing suggestions for development to be studied by various municipal and community groups — was presented Tuesday to the MRCA's water control advisory committee.

The area involved extends from Thurlow Township to the Aiken's Road area of Sidney Township, with Belleville's waterfront facilities as a centrepiece.

The interim report is to spark discussion of development possibilities which will be considered before the final study is drafted later this year.

The harbor commission was the first local organization to view the proposals since their introduction to the MRCA committee by Toronto consultant Ralph Cyrsler.

The suggestions stress the need for more docking space in the city of Belleville.

They include possible creation of a yacht facility in the basin east of the present government dock. The area now is used mainly for commercial shipping.

Harbor Master Don Barrett said the commission appeared "quite impressed" and seemed favorable to such a possible development.

Another suggestion — for creating dockage at West Zwick's Park Island — raised objections from commission members who felt it might clash with greenbelt usage of the shoreline park, said Mr. Barrett.

Picton Youth Get Centre To Fill Summer Months

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A youth activities centre for Prince Edward County students will open Monday evening, July 14, at Picton fairgrounds.

Co-sponsored by the Picton recreation committee and the ministry of culture and recreation, recreation and sports buread the centre will remain open several nights each week.

The centre, run through the Experience '72 program, offers a wide variety of games, sports and other activities for teens and pre-teens.

Program co-ordinator Connie Trumble said Friday the activities are divided into three categories, community and social, sports and fitness and social outings.

A building at the Picton fairgrounds has been opened as headquarters for the activity centre and here students are invited to play cards, chess or checkers and ping pong. Outdoor activities include "contre" hockey and croquinole.

Three Prince Edward County students, Miss Trumble, Donna McNeil and Joe Hache are in charge of the youth centre programs.

While Miss Trumble coordinates events, Donna McNeil plans for day camps and other outings. Joe Hache is in charge of sports.

Several special events are planned this summer including a roller skate-a-thon, a bay ride and a dance for elementary school students.

When proceeds from the roller skate-a-thon are collected half of the money will be donated to the community swimming pool fund and the balance used to sponsor a teen dance.

Board Meets Monday

BLOOMFIELD — The Prince Edward County Board of Education will meet Monday, July 14 at 8 p.m. in the board offices here.

A report by the director of education, John McNeil, a business administrator's report and a maintenance supervisor's report are included on the agenda for this regular monthly meeting of trustees.

Crane Damaged

Damage might run as high as $5,000 to the motor of a mobile crane owned by Noble Crane Rental Ltd., at 68 West Dundas St. here after it was discovered a radiator hose sometime Thursday night or Friday morning.

City police said today the crane was found with the hose cut of the city early Friday when it overheated and the cause was found.

Charges Laid In Shooting

BANCROFT — A 19-year-old Trenton youth has been charged with criminal negligence and with the dangerous use of fire-arms in connection with the shooting death of a 17-year-old Bancroft youth last Monday.

Ontario Provincial Police at Bancroft have identified the youth charged as Steven Hall. He was charged following a crown attorney's investigation Friday. No trial date has been set.

A police spokesman said George Vincent Lake Jr. was struck in the head by a bullet from a 22-calibre rifle while he was in a shed behind his father's home here during a target practice. He died Wednesday in Bancroft Red Cross Hospital.

Parker In Court Monday

Lynn William Parker, 21, of 230½ West Moira St. in Belleville, charged in connection with the rape of a 22-year-old Chatham woman here Thursday, will appear in provincial court here Monday.

A spokesman for the Crown attorney's office here said Parker is in custody as a result of the bail hearing held at the county courthouse here Friday.

The spokesman said Parker has been charged with one count of rape. City police originally said Friday he had been charged with two counts.

The incident occurred at about 3 p.m. near a foot path in a wooded area between Tracey St. and Bell Blvd.

The Work's Dangerous But the Pay's Good

For Toronto construction worker Michele Melaragno, going to work means 100 feet straight up.

One step at a time, Michele can be as called by fellow workers, clambers up 100 steps to a cubicle at the summit of the tower crane poised at the centre of the Century Place project.

From his perch he controls the arm of the metal monster as it swings construction materials about the 65 million construction site.

At one time Michele worked on the ground as a carpenter but said Friday he's been working on cranes for the past seven years.

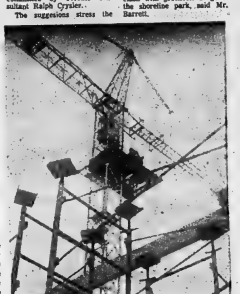
"It's a dangerous job," he said. "Not for me but for the men on the ground.

"Because of that, I don't like the job that much," said the operator.

Asked why he continued in his position, Michele grinned and said "the money's good — $9.60 an hour."

He said a time for working is when there's a wind, he said. "The cables begin to blow around and there isn't much you can do to control it."

"I've never been involved in an accident but it still bothers me," said Michele.



Project Workhorse

The tower crane that moves materials to any point on the Century Place construction project has been termed the "workhorse" of the site. But for Michele Melaragno, his operator's perch nearly 100 feet straight up, is home for 10 hours a day.

Enthroned!

Capricious Steven Webster sits on the lap of Claudia Scuccitis, 11, during the Trenton playground program day-long outing in Hanna Park Friday. The five-year-old is one of 260 children to register in five town playgrounds for the six-week summer program. Over 120 children attended the outing yesterday.

District at a Glance

Water Levels Low

MADOC — This village has issued an urgent notice asking residents to curtail watering of lawns and gardens. Reason for the request is the warm, dry weather.

Housing Survey Set

MADOC — Council here has approved a request to the Ontario housing ministry for a survey on more senior citizens' units in the village. Recently completed accommodation for the elderly is nearly all occupied. It is expected that Huntingdon, Madoc, Tudor and Cashel township would participate with the village in a new project.

Committee Formed

DESERONTO — A liaison committee from town council has been set up to increase local government contact with the waterfront program carried under the environment ministry. The mains are to be installed starting this month. Mayor Peter Dickinson, Deputy Reeve Terry Whalen, clerk-treasurer Sam Knapp and a number of the utilities commission.

Calls Still Cost

STIRLING — Long-distance telephone calls between here and the Belleville area are to the council of this village that, because of company budget restrictions it now cannot promise when toll-free calls will be available between here, Belleville and Frankford. The community has been seeking such a service for some time.

Church Marks Birthday

BOULTER — One of the oldest churches in North Hastings County is presently observed its centennial. The 100th anniversary celebration centred on Carlow United Church in the community in Carlow township northeast of Bancroft.

Wells Heads Chamber

TRENTON — Downtown businessman Lloyd Wells has taken over as president of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, filling a vacancy created with the transfer of the Quaker Oats company manager Bob Prentice to Peterborough. Mr. Wells is also president of the Trenton Retail Merchants Association.

Rebate No Reason to Buy New Car Most Agree

In response to the federal budget announced June 23, the Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough this week introduced a budget shuffle of $178-million in provincial government spending. About $66-million of the $178-million is to bolster the housing and automobile industries.

For the automobile industries, the government is offering a rebate of the five-per cent provincial sales tax on new North American-built cars and station wagons. New car buyers will average a savings of $175 on 1973 models in inventory and new 1974 models. Excluded from eligible rebates are large luxury cars; models with engine displacements of 400 cubic inches or more; vans; ambulances; hearses; trucks; buses; sport and other work vehicles and all-terrain vehicles; used cars and automobiles acquired by lease or rental.

In an informal survey, Quinte residents gave their response to the question: Will this new measure prompt you to buy a new car this year? Here are some of their replies.

LOIS HARRINGTON

A 39-year-old housewife from Bloomfield, Lois Harrington, said the rebate will not affect herself.

"It would be tremendous if you're going to buy. We just bought a truck last week and the rebate does not apply to trucks," Mrs. Harrington said.

Mrs. Harrington said, "If you have to buy it, you have to pay for it," regardless whether there was a rebate or not.

WAYNE ROWE

Wayne Rowe, a 28-year-old truck driver from New Lowell, said the rebate will not have a great effect.

"It won't help the average guy buying a new car, if they want to help they should lower the tax on gasoline," said Mr. Rowe.

Having just bought a car earlier this year, Mr. Rowe said he would "never buy a big car again. I'd look for a smaller one."

RON PHILLIPS

The first reaction of Ron Phillips, a 23-year-old teacher from Oshawa, was "obviously not."

"The rebate still wouldn't be enough. Five per cent is absolutely nothing," said Mr. Phillips.

Mr. Phillips said, "It is not particularly an incentive to buy a new car."

He said he feels the rebate is a political ploy.

DAN HAMILTON

Dan Hamilton said the tax rebate will not prompt him to buy a new car.

"A rebate on the large gas consuming cars? The way gas is today? No way," said the 21-year-old university student.

Mr. Hamilton said, "North American cars are notorious for their mileage."

Mr. Hamilton said he feels the rebate "will have a limited effect."

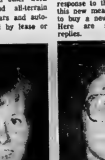
BETSY FOX

Betsy Fox, a 20-year-old housewife from Wooler, said she felt the rebate might help but it won't prompt her to buy.

"We just don't need a new car," said Mrs. Fox.

"If people need a new car, this might entice them to buy."

"Everything these days seems to be a rebate. This rebate is not 'that' it might help," Mrs. Fox said.



ELSIE KEILTY

A computer operator from Trenton, Elsie Keilty, 37, said the rebate will not affect her.

"The price of a car is still five per cent is nothing."

"Even though sales may increase, there is no guarantee that the number of jobs will increase," said Mrs. Keilty.

"I don't want to see more unemployment, but if we had a real auto industry and not just a subsidiary of the U.S., it might help," said Mrs. Keilty.

Another Battle with Lake

Angela Gets a Boost From Strong Current

NIAGARA - ON - THE - LAKE, Ont. (CP) — A strong current from the Niagara River helped Angela Koudelka get off to a strong start this morning in her bid to swim the 33 miles across Lake Ontario.

But while the current helped the 15-year-old Toronto high school swimmer average more than two miles an hour in the early going, observers said it also pushed her off course.

By 2:46 EDT this morning, she had swum eight miles, but was 2½ miles off course. She was scheduled to come ashore at Ontario Place at between two and four this afternoon.

She was averaging a mile every 30 minutes and maintained an average of 68 strokes a minute from the start.

Angela's second bid to cross the lake began at 11:05 EST Friday night when she dove off a life raft into the Niagara River.

The swim began in a small cove about 300 yards from the United States Coast Guard pier in Youngstown, N.Y., after she was refused permission to land out from the pier.

"I feel better, confident this year than last summer because I had another year of practice," she said.

Last fall, 19 her mother ordered her pulled from the lake about 1½ miles from the Toronto waterfront. She was confused and delirious after 26 hours and 17 minutes of fighting sweltering waves which sometimes reached eight feet.

This time her mother won't be on the spot to make the decision. She decided not to cross the lake with her daughter because she became seasick last year.

Her father was in one of the boats surrounding Miss Koudelka.

Wind Helps Sluggers

Red Sox Bats Boom In Defeat of Rangers

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As if they aren't tough enough in the cramped confines of Fenway Park, the Boston Red Sox had the wind on their sides Friday night.

The hard-hitting Red Sox took advantage of the favorable breeze to produce all the runs they needed as they defeated the Texas Rangers 11-8 in an abbreviated American League game.

"You can see the way the wind was blowing," said Boston manager Darrell Johnson. "You just get the fat part of the bat on the ball and it goes."

BERNIE CARBO

One of those aided by the elements was Bernie Carbo, whose three-run homer in the sixth put the Red Sox ahead for good 7-5. Another was Carl Yastrzemski, who got the two hits including a two-run single in Boston's fourrun eighth.

In Friday's other American League games, Cleveland left-hander Vida Blue, 12-7, defeated Baltimore rookie Mike Cuellar 4-3 in 10 innings, Chicago White Sox downed Kansas City 5-3, Detroit edged Oakland 4-3, Chicago Cubs topped Cincinnati 5-3, Kansas City tripped Detroit Tigers 5-2 and Minnesota Twins routed New York Yankees 11-1 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second 4-3.

"You can't get enough runs in a game in this ballpark," said Yastrzemski, "Particularly not when the wind has been blowing out lately.

"But everyone seems to be hitting the ball so now. That's how we're winning."

The victory was the fifth in a row for the Red Sox, leaders in the American League East.

Carbo hit his first homer of the season into the screen in left-center off Dan Thomas, 4-2, after singles by Bob Heise and Tim Blackwell with one out in the sixth. Then Boston put the game away with its four runs in the eighth inning, two apiece on singles by Reggie Smith and Yastrzemski.

The wind was kind to the Rangers as well as the Red Sox. They walloped 10 hits, including home runs by Jeff Burroughs, Mike Cubbage and Toby Harrah.

Rick Manning's inside-the-park home run with a man on base capped a three-run rally in the seventh inning, lifting Cleveland over California.

With two out, Manning hit a line drive to left. Both left-fielder Dave Collins and centerfielder Mickey Rivers went after the ball and collided together. Collins fallin on the grass.

Rivers momentarily stopped to aid his prone team-mate and by the time he got the ball he was still in play, Manning had completed his trip around the bases.

Willie Torres pitched a four-hitter, leading Baltimore over Oakland. Torres, 2-4 on the season high of nine strikeouts while second baseman Ted Sizemore had two RBIs.

Jerry Hairston's double with two on in the ninth inning scored two runs and moved Chicago past Kansas City.

Buck Martinez' sacrifice fly scored the only fourth-inning rally that lifted Kansas City past Detroit and broke the Tigers' nine-game winning streak.

Tony Oliva and Johnny Briggs hit home runs to back Bert Blyleven's six-hitter as Minnesota beat New York in its opener of a doubleheader. A winning single in the fifth inning gave New York its triumph in the second game.

All-star Pitchers Will Rest

NEW YORK (AP) — American League baseball managers agreed Friday to hold out their all-star game pitchers from Sunday's action in order to give stronger Alvin Dark a fresh supply of arms for Tuesday night's all-star clash with the National League in Milwaukee County Stadium.

In addition to the eight pitchers chosen for the all-star team, each of the six clubs not supplying all-star hurlers have been asked to hold back one pitcher on Sunday to maintain competitive balance.

For example, Detroit had no pitchers chosen for the AL team. But the Tigers will have one hurler, perhaps Mickey Lolich or Joe Coleman, held back from Sunday's game against Kansas City because the Royals' Steve Busby was tabbed for the AL team and will not pitch that day.

AL president Lee MacPhail made the same request of his teams last year when he pledged an all-out effort to win the all-star game. The American fans lost that one 7-5 on their 11th all-star loss in the last 12 seasons.

During the game, he hit two singles, a double and a decisive home run to lead the Phillies to a 3-1 win over the Astros.

Friday's performance gave Luzinski 34 homers and 76 runs batted in, both tops in the major leagues, and a .305 batting average but he was overlooked by fans in the voting to select a starting lineup.

After the game, Luzinski argued that "A lot of people have been hurt by the all-star voting." then said with a shrug:

"There's much you can do about the voting system.

"Don't get me wrong," he added. "But other people have been hurt by the voting, too. Richie Zisk of Pittsburgh had a good year last year and didn't go. That wasn't right."

In Friday's other National League games, Pittsburgh Pirates sweet San Diego Padres 4-3 and 5-3, Cincinnati Reds swept New York Mets 4-3 and 4-1, Chicago Cubs beat San Francisco Giants 8-6, Los Angeles Dodgers edged St. Louis Cardinals 6-5 and Atlanta Braves beat Montreal Expos 2-1 in 10 innings.

Luzinski hit his homer deep into the left field seats, giving the Phillies a 2-1 lead and enabling Larry Christenson to beat the Astros with a five-hitter.

Pittsburgh's John Candelaria went the distance in the opener with a four-hitter for his fourth successive victory and his first shutout in the nightcap to give the Pirates their sweep of the San Diego and permit them to widen their East Division lead to 4½ games over the Phillies.

He got all the backing he needed from Willie Stargell, who drove in three runs with a homer and two singles, and Ed Kirpatrick, who hit a two-run homer. Richie Hebner also doubled and tripled and scored two runs in the opening-game victory.

Pete Rose's single wrapped up a three-run sixth inning that gave the Reds their first-game of a twinbill, then Johnny Bench's two-run homer in the first inning started Cincinnati on its way to the second Mets' loss.

With the two victories, the Reds, opened a 10½-game margin over the Dodgers in the West.

Glenn shortstop Chris Speier, who drove in three runs, two on a seventh-inning homer to help the Giants take a 6-3 lead, threw wildly past first base in the eighth inning to let Pete Lacock score the winning run in the nightcap.

Bill Buckner's two-run single in the seventh inning, his third hit of the game, moved the Dodgers past St. Louis.

Errors Spell Expos' Defeat

ATLANTA (AP) — "Our relief pitching is about all we've got going for us lately," said Atlanta Braves manager Clyde King after his club snagged a four-game sweep of Montreal baseball losing string Friday night with a 2-1 shutout victory over the Montreal Expos.

King failed to mention, however, the six Montreal errors — four in the first two innings— which helped the Braves along in the Expos downfall.

The Braves got into the 10th when Marty Perez walked with one out and relieved Dale Murray, 3-3, and moved to third on a single by Dusty Baker and an error by right-fielder Gary Carter.

Earl Williams then blooped a single over first for the winning run.

"He jammed me with a pitch that was high and inside and he was just lucky to hit it," said Williams.

Aided by the Expos shoddy play, the Braves had taken the lead in the first inning when Perez walked and scored on Larvell Blanks' single to left.

Knuckleballer Phil Niekro scattered three Expos hits in seven innings and allowed their only run when Larry Parrish broke up the scoreless duel with a run-scoring single. Reliever Carl Morton was the winner in relief.

Relieving Niekro with two outs in the seventh was the victim of his club's leaky defense, allowed only three hits, walked four and struck out nine before he was removed for a pinch-hitter in the 10th.

Young Linebacker

From Calgary To Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — Linebacker Octavus Morgan, part of last year's championship team at Calgary, will be on the other side of the fence in Hamilton when the Stampede's play Hamilton Tiger-Cats tonight in a Canadian Football League exhibition game.

Hamilton acquired the 22-year-old University of Illinois graduate from Calgary earlier in the week.

Morgan will play the strong side linebacker position in the middle, his position with the Stampeders. He became available when he failed to develop as a middle linebacker and newcomer Larry Carr was impressive at the position with Calgary.

"In university, Morgan played middle and," Calgary coach Jim Wood said Friday, "he never adjusted to middle linebacker very well."

Bob Kemp of Kenyon worked out well for Wood. He kicked a single in Calgary's 19-16 win over Winnipeg Blue Bombers on Wednesday. The quarterback is understudy to McKay, last year's punter.

Calgary also has quarterback Ozell Collier and offensive lineman Jim Bond out of tonight's Calgary lineup.

Collir, who was facing stiff opposition at his position from newcomer Vernon Robertson, is out for the season while Bond, a Canadian, will be out three to four weeks.

Forbes' Trial

Eyewitnesses Describe Attack

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — "It's from a distance of about 10 an unwritten rule of hockey that feet.

a stick is a cheap-shot instrument," an amateur hockey player testified Friday in the assault trial of Boston Bruins player Dave Forbes.

"You don't have very good leverage on skates so you can't do much damage to anyone fighting with your hands," added Mark Zelenovich, 25, of Minneapolis.

He said he began playing youth hockey when he was in parochial school, played on his high school team and currently plays in Minneapolis recreational leagues.

Forbes is charged with aggravated assault for allegedly jabbing Henry Boucha of Minnesota North Stars in the eye with a hockey stick Jan. 4 in a National Hockey League game at Bloomington, Minn.

Witnesses Friday said they saw Forbes charge Boucha as the two players left the penalty box, strike the Minnesota player with his stick and continue attacking him with his fists.

Robert Utecht, the public address announcer for the North Stars, said he saw the incident

"Forbes jabbed his stick at Henry's eye and Henry put up his bayonet," said Utecht. He said Forbes then "hammered" at Boucha's head with his stick until several Minnesota players pulled him off.

Utecht and two other witnesses said Forbes was congratulated when he returned to the Boston bench after the incident.

"I saw the coach (Bston) Don Cherry! put his arm around Forbes and pat him on the back," said Utecht.

Zelenovich said he saw a Boston player hand Forbes a stick. Forbes' hand when he returned to the bench.

Ready and Rarin' to Go Back at Same Old Stand

Kind of dove back at you yesterday with no warning, after a long pause between columns. Didn't mean to shock anyone or catch people unaware. But did the shop have to lose my head?

I mean, the standing head at the top of this piece. Well, must have got out I'd sworn off columns, or something. Reason when it came time to make up Friday's page, there it was . . . gone!

Didn't create much of a stir, really. Then shop got the job done with the help of the girls in the photography department. And there it was . . . back!

Why the delay between columns for the past little while?

No, it wasn't the annual holiday.

To me, it was more important. And probably just as many good than those two weeks off will do when they come up later on.

We all have our problems. So I won't bore you with mine.

Just wanted to point out that I've had a refresher course on the realization that for every dod one runs across in this business and all the others, there are 10 great people who make him pale by comparison.

And if we were to confront 10 such dudes, just a single encounter with encouragement from those other individuals mentioned, would suffice.

At any rate, personal commitments made keeping up the column on a regular basis impossible. Thanks to those in charge here, I wasn't pressured on the subject. Except for a gentle reminder, always very most encouraging and understanding.

Today's effort makes it two straight and I'm on the comeback trail. I look forward hopefully to daily appearances here, except for vacation and Mike Bradshaw takes up the pen.

Readers will be glad to learn Mike should be back on the job next week. He's recovering rapidly from surgery and things should be back to normal around here.

Sailing . . . Hope you enjoy the odd patter thrown in here on the National Baseball League, American League fans may find it a trifle much at times but the fact is, the A. L. doesn't supply press releases.

The N.L. does, and I find much of the information supplied makes for good reading. That's why I pass it on to you. . . .

As a for instance:

It has been 27 years since the shortstop and second baseman from one team both hit over .300 but 1975 may be the year that the feat of former Boston Braves Eddie Stanky (.259) and Alvin Dark (.301) is finally equalled.

Philadelphia's Larry Bowa and Dave Cash have the best shot at the record established in 1948. They'll each cover the 154-mark heading for the All-Star Game break.

Pitcher and Player of the Month honors National League selections for June have been announced.

Pitcher of the month is New York Mets' Tom Seaver who had a 4-0 record during June. His earned run average was 0.51 and he struck out 43 batters in 51-whothing innings pitched.

Player of the month, Cincinnati Reds' Joe Morgan (his second such selection this year) who raced out Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski.

Montreal Expos have a seven-day tryout camp scheduled for Toronto's Talbot Park, Saturday until Sunday, July 19-20.

The Expos are cutting back on these camps and Belleville may be by-passed this year.

The camp at Toronto will be open to all comers and will mid afternoon each day.

Prospects in the 16-20 age bracket are invited to attend.

Coordinator of Canadian Scouting, Bill MacKenzie will direct proceedings.

You Win a Few And Lose Some

The Bantam division of the Association proved you can have it both ways, this week.

The Kinsmen lost their first game 8-7 and then took their second 22-3.

Mulroney's Saxons took a close victory from the Kinsmen, with Ian McCutcheon gaining the win on a four-hitter, McCutcheon walked four and struck out no less than 18 batters.

Mark Pearson took the loss, giving up seven hits and seven walks while striking out four.

In the other Bantam match the Kinsmen took out their anger on Gagne Masonry, defeating them 22-3.

Mark Preston took the win, striking out five batters.

The loss went to Don Maracle who struck out eight.

John Taylor hit a homer, a double and a single in the win.

In Peewee play, Richard Ellis defeated Mel Barriage 14-11. Steve Goulah and Les Bradley took the win.

The loss went to Lyle Kelleher.

Dan McGaih and John Brader had homers for the winners.

Kelleher hit three singles in the close loss.

Bob's Sports trounced Ellis Printing 27-13, with Steve Taylor taking the win.

The loss went to Al Thompkins.

Larry Mavety led the winners with two homers, a triple and a double in the victory.

Tyke action saw Belleville Broadmore beat Bob Sullivan 26-14, David Shanque took the win.

The loss went to Darryn Kelly and Randy Hill.

Shanque had two homers to lead his team to the win.

Kelly smacked a four bagger for his losers.

In Tadpole action Trudeau Motors just got by Belleville Conductors 13-11.

Robert Jones took the win pitching relief for Jim Wright.

The loss was shared by Rod Murray and Mike Pineapple.

The Kinsmen and Legion House Dart League came up with an 8-8 tie, with Bob Dafoe and Jim Kinsmen and Mark Chapman throwing for Legion.

Legion in a close game, 11-9, with Trudeau Motors defeated Legion in a close game, 11-9, with Jim Wright taking the win.

Bob Dafoe was saddled with the loss.

Jim Wright hit two homers and a single in the victory.

Mark Chapman led the losers at the plate with a four-bagger.

Gerald Robinson Brings Perry Home in Front

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

"They're off and pacing," called race announcer Gary Stewart as each race began, and one of the best in the racing year, the Maurice Rollins Invitational, was worth watching. Friday at Quinte Exhibition Raceway.

The winner, Perry, took the track in 2:06.1 with second place finisher Rob Ron Roddie putting on a good sprint at the end to almost catch up.

Gerald Robinson drives the four-year-old gelding to the pace purse and Maurice Rollins cooler (blanket).

The favorite, Rob Ron Roddie, driven by Brian Bellamy, came in second while Charity Chick finished third, with Pat Hanover relns.

The eighth race was one of the most exciting of the evening as three horses went down to the wire.

The winner went to Darn Frosty in 2:16, with Carl Finlay driving. The exacta paid off big for the combination of the winner and Possible Johnny, which was driven by Ross Brewa.

A Hamilton's Texaco cooler (blanket) was presented with the $300 purse.

Second place went to Hilltop Bimbo, driven by Brian Bellamy.

The big payoff of the evening came in the 10th when Lady Gem took the win in 2:15.4, with Kelly's Own completing second. The exacta of 4-3 paid off $104.

Tops in the drivers' standings is Bill Gay Lidlum, who brought his total up to 16 wins on night when driving a Trenton stable.

Hill's timmy hit followed a Simmons' single. Simmons stole second and scampered all the way home on the hill safety.

It was a particulary tough blow, for Trenton pitcher Dennis Baril who came on in relief starter Brian Hanson with one out in the second. Baril pitched solid ball a fair eight inning-plus stint.

Marty Kemp, Peter Walsh and Joe Lusic shared the winners' pitching.

Peterborough held a 12-11 edge in the hitting department.

Tops at the plate for the winners was Hill who went five for six. Simmons and Gord Lewis each had a pair of singles.

Hanson crashed a bases loaded triple to spark the Trenton attack. He also had a single. Danny Hamilton and Chris Walsh each singled twice.

HAS SEVENTH LOSS

QUEBEC (CP) — Metros starter Larry Gura of Stratford, Ont., suffered his seventh loss in 11 decisions as Bristol Red Sox downed Quebec 4-2 in an Eastern League baseb all game Friday night.

Brooke Bond, UIC Win

A pair of close scores in the Belleville Industrial Softball League lend interest exciting at the Alemite Park, for the leagues' doubleheader Friday night.

Brooke Bond defeated Post Office 3-1 and UIC took the intelligencer by the same score.

Tom St. Jules took the victory for Brooke Bond, giving up six hits and one walk while sending six batters to the bench on third strikes.

Norm Lockhart was saddled with the loss, although he gave up only three runs.

The other two came in on Post Office errors. Lockhart struck out 10 batters while giving up eight hits and three walks.

Not only did the pitchers put on a good show on the mound, but they both led their teams at bat.

St. Jules had a single and a double, while Dave Middleton doubled for the winners.

Tatham Sent Home

HALIFAX (CP) — Pat Tatham of Kitchener, Ont., a centre on Canada's national women's basketball team for four years, has been sent home for treatment of a serious back injury, team coach Brian Heaney said Friday. He said the six-foot Tatham's injury has recurred for more than a year and was "seriously hampering her physical and mental attitude to compete effectively," but hoped she could return in time for the world championships in September.

Lockhart cracked a single and a triple for the losers while Jim Middleton and Ian Allen were all singles.

UIC put a better lock on first place by defeating The Intelligencer.

the win went to Rick Sullivon on a three-hitter.

The loss was charged to Ron Colleden, who gave up only five hits.

Tops at the plate for UIC was Bob Robb with two safeties, while Joe Clark, Al Walker and Rick Sullivan also supplied hits.

For the Intelligencer the hits went to Maurice Switzer, Tony Conceiares and Colledge.

Bantams Romp Past Stirling

The Belleville Downtown Merchants pushed 20 runs across the plate against Stirling to defeat them 20-1 in East Central Ontario Bantam Softball League action Friday night.

Tim Soule pitched the win, giving up just one Stirling hit. He had 12 strikeouts and walked two. He got relief help on Eastern League baseb all game Friday night.

The loss went to Bruce Myers and Rod McKeown, who had seven strikeouts between them.

Tripp led the team at the plate, as he hit a grand slam homer and single to help the Belleville cause. Doug Campbell scored and singled while Clarence Brockema also connected for a line hit, which went for a home run

Quebecois' Davis Hot

MONTREAL (CP) — John Davis scored three goals and added five assists to pace Montreal Quebecois to a 19-12 win over Boston Beltz in the only National Lacrosse League game Friday night.

Davis' performance gave hime the league scoring leadership with 82 goals and 98 assists for 180 points, three more than Doug Hayes of Long Island Jamaharas.

The win moved the Quebecois into a tie for first place at 38 points with the idle Toronto Hawks. Long Island has two games in hand. Boston remained last with Quebec Cribrous for fifth place, 14 behind

Ontario Amateur Championship

Cowan's Title Never in Doubt

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Gary Cowan's fifth Ontario amateur championship at the Westmount Golf and Country Club Friday was never in doubt.

The 30-year-old Kitchener resident shot an even par 70 to win the tournament and a spot on the Willingdon Cup team with a 285 total.

Cowan who took a four shot lead into the final round, fired a late charge by Mike Mesalia of Toronto but took it in stride to finish one stroke ahead of Mesalia's 286 total.

He was tied for third place after the first round Tuesday but he never let it bother him. He kept his poise most of the tournament and only Friday did he face any real problems.

Cowan had three birdies and three bogeys and spent most of the day in trees than lines. The 6,981-yard Westmount course.

Mesalia, who shot an even par 36 on the front nine, birdied four of the first five holes on the back nine.

As Cowan teed off on the 444-yard par-4 16th hole Mesalia, one shot behind Cowan, teed off on the 152-yard par-3 17th hole.

Cowan reached the 16th in regulation but three-putted from 30-feet for a bogey. But, Mesalia's tee shot on 17 landed in a back bunker, and he shot a bogey four on the hole.

Cowan and Mesalia finished with pars to give Cowan, a two-time United States amateur champion, the Ontario title.

"My putting was bad and it affected my game," Cowan said after the tournament. "I kept thinking here we go again.

"I was exasperated with myself. I fought it hard all week I just didn't want to throw it away on the last day.

"After three-putting the 16th no one was around three would have been a tree wearing golf club."

The top four finishers won a spot on the Willingdon team to represent Ontario in inter-provincial competition at the Canadian amateur championship in Saint John, N.B., August 4-10.

Mesalia and Rod Spittle of Fort Erie, who shot a closing day 70 for a 289 total and third place, and fourth place holder Greg Patterson of Mount Hope who finished with a 291 total complete the Ontario team.

Mesalia, although he was four shots behind Cowan going into the final round, felt he had a chance to win the tournament.

"I felt if I was even par after nine I would make the team (Willingdon) and could take a shot at Gary," he said.

"But that bogie on 17 really hurt. I would have rather lost by two shots instead of one."

The final round was played under ideal conditions, bright sun and a light breeze. The players face none of the problems—rain, high winds and third round Thursday.

Bruce Brewer bogied the 18th hole and lost his spot on the Willingdon team to Patterson. Brewer's one-under-par 71 gave him a total 288 fifth place.

Veteran Nick Weslock of Burlington, who has won the championship eight times, shot four-over-par 76 for a 300 total to tie for ninth place.

British Open Is Up for Grabs

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland- (AP) — The 104th British Open has turned into a "big fight" and Johnny Miller, for one, has no idea who'll wind up on top after today's fourth and final round.

But Miller does have two predictions to offer—the course record will probably be broken for the fourth time and the result will probably be decided on the final four holes.

Miller turned in a 66 to equal the record for the 7,065-yard, par-72 Carnoustie links in the third round Friday and jumped over Jack Nicklaus as a firm 11-to-4 favorite in the betting.

Miller finished in third place after the third round, two strokes behind Bobby Cole of South Africa, who birdied the dreaded 18th hole to take a 13-under-par 204. Jack Newton, an unknown Australian, came one stroke behind Cole.

There came a group from the United States—Miller at 206, Tom Watson one stroke behind him, Jack Nicklaus, Hale Irwin, John Mahaffey and Alan Tapie, all at 208. Also at 208 were Harries Oosthuizen, the South African youngster playing at Hilpen, and Neil Coles from Britain.

Which means the final round today begins with four strokes separating the top 10 players, and, as Miller said, "no name the right guy would be crazy."

"The final result could depend on the last four holes," Miller said. "On these, you've got to have a lot of guts and enough experience to pull out the good shots."

Most dangerous of the lot is the 18th, a brute of a par four with a stream called the burn turns looping round from the start of the fairway to finish just in front of some sand traps and the green.

The 18th was the graveyard for many hopes in the first three rounds—last year's champion Gary Player landed in the burn every time he played the hole and finished up well out of contention with 313.

Both first-and second-round leaders—Peter Oosterhuis of Britain and David Huish, virtually an unknown from Scotland—faded in the third round Friday. Oosterhuis finished the last at 212, seven ahead of par on 280, but still 11th in the final field.

Huish, a club pro who raised horseshoes hopes with a 69-67—136 after two rounds, faded with a 76 Friday to drop well down the list at 212.

Dan Halldorson Leader in CPGA

TORONTO (CP) — Dan Halldorson came here just to see how he would stand up to four rounds of competitive golf after suffering through more than two months with a virus infection.

Today, the 23-year-old from Brandon, Man., carries the lead into the third round of the $50,000 Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship at the Bayview Golf and Country Club.

"This was just going to be a trial run to see how I could play and how well I would get through a tournament," Halldorson said after shooting a 70 to take a one-stroke lead with a five-under-par total of 137 on the 6,445-yard Bayview layout.

Halldorson, who spent the last month resting at home, said doctors told him before he came here that he was only 50 per cent recovered from the virus which they still have not identified.

"I'm still underweight and weak. I'd like to practise more but I'm still not well.

Should Halldorson falter, there are several players lurking within close range, including three former champions.

Moe Norman, the defending title holder from Gilford, Ont., and three-time former champ George Knudson of Toronto are both three strokes behind and Vic Hornbeck of Winnipeg, a two-time former winner, is four strokes off the pace.

One stroke behind Halldorson are Gar Hamilton of Toronto and Bill Tape of Woodbridge, Ont., formerly of Kitchener, Ont., with Bob Breen of Brampton, Ont., another stroke back.

Hamilton and Breen shot 70s and Tape a 72.

Normand and Bill Wakeham of Duncan, B.C., both shot 69s to reach the joint fourth standing. Knudson, who had a 72.

Hornbeck shot a one-under-par 70 for his 141 where he was tied with Wm. McQueen of Kitchener, Jack Kay and Gary Cheeseman of Toronto and Dave Garner of Woodbridge, Ont.

First-round leader Bill Wright of Montreal soared from an opening 66 to a 78 and was well back at 144.

Wright was not the only one to suffer from changed pin and tee positions and a brisk wind that made the course much more difficult than it was for Thursday's opening round when 126 players broke par.

Carol Mann Is Sharp In the Opening Round

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Carol Mann broke one Ladies Professional Golf Association record and tied another en route to a six-under-par 66 Friday for the first-round lead in a $65,000 tournament.

Shoving aside the pressures of the LPGA presidency, the six-foot-three blonde fired seven birdies in a row for a back-nine total of 29, seven under par on the Riviera Country Club course.

Gerda Boykin, one of two pros tied for third place at 68, had the previous LPGA record with six successive birdies in 1968 at Caldwell, Colo.

Miss Mann's nine-hole performance matched the tour mark of 29 Marlene Hagge set in 1967 for a 72 total.

four years ago in the Columbus tournament.

Pam Higgins, alone in second at 67, was not surprised she was one shot behind.

"Carol plays well with things on her mind," said the runner-up, who had four birdies in a row.

Sandra Haynie also had a 68 with front and back nines of 34. Tied for fifth place with 69s were Judy Rankin, Jane Blalock, Penny Pulz, Diane Patterson and Marg Masters.

Sandra Post, formerly o Oakville, Ont., is five strokes off the pace with a 36-35—71.

Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., had nines of 35 and

GREAT NEWS FROM GENERAL MOTORS FOR SMALL CAR BUYERS

60,000-MILE ENGINE GUARANTEE

Until now, in the 1975 model year, the toughest engine guarantee you could get on imported or North American cars covered either three years or 50,000 miles, or one year with unlimited mileage. Well, General Motors has just gone all the rest of them one tougher, with a 60,000 mile or five year engine guarantee (whichever comes first), on new 1975 Chevrolet Vegas, and Chevrolet Monzas equipped with a 140 cubic inch 4-cylinder engine delivered on or after June 25, 1975.

General Motors guarantees to the owners of 1975 vehicles equipped with a 140 cubic inch 4-cylinder engine that any authorized General Motors dealer will make repairs, without charge to the owner, during the term of the guarantee, to the cylinder block, cylinder head, all internal engine parts, the intake and exhaust manifolds and water-pump made necessary because of defects in material or workmanship.

This guarantee is in addition to the New Vehicle Warranty but does not apply to repairs required because of misuse, negligence, accident or lack of reasonable or proper maintenance.

This guarantee is available to earlier purchasers of 1975 Chevrolet Vegas and 4-cylinder Chevrolet Monzas at extra cost through any General Motors dealer before October 1, 1975.

A 60,000 mile engine guarantee! Don't make any deals until you see Trudeau's.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to express my appreciation and thanks to all my friends and relatives for their visits, gifts, cards and telephone calls while I was a patient in Belleville Hospital. Also thanks to Dr. Hall and the nursing staff. Carrie to visit me. Special thanks to Drs. P. Nott, Allen and Sorry. Also to nurses on 2N 2nd floor and Queen's Self Care who were involved in my care.

Ella Brennan.

We, and Mrs. Reginald W. Carver would like to express our most sincere thanks to Dr. W. Seward for the safe arrival of their daughter, Martha Lou, on June 28, 1973. Special thanks to Nurse Hamilton, Nurse Ann and Nurse Harris, all of the delivery staff who worked along side with Dr. Seward, to the nursery staff, and all others on the 2N floor who helped to make it so pleasant.

BIRTHS

CHRISTOPHER — Mr. and Mrs. Merle Christopher (nee Jean Dee) are pleased to announce the safe arrival of their first child, a daughter, Lisa Anne, born on June 29th, 1973 in Montreal Hospital. Proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Christopher, Hull, Q. Barkwell and Mrs. Wm. Dee, Belleville, Ont. Mrs. Wm. Dee, Belleville, Ont.

WALSH — Ron and Elizabeth (nee Hamilton) are pleased to announce the arrival of their daughter Nichola Elizabeth, weight 7 lbs. 14 ozs. on July 7, 1973 at the Belleville General Hospital. Proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Walsh of Lake Taken from your sons and daughters, Never could we do not mind. But our mother often told us.

BOLDRICK — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Ada Jane Boldrick, who left us July 13, 1972.

And our loss is deeply felt.
But His God who has taken us,
He can all our sorrows heal.

Taken from your sons and daughters,
Taken from a world of care.
Taken from your sons and daughters,
Never could we do not mind.
But our mother often told us,
That we'd meet in Heaven above.
So they say that a meet for her,
In the land beyond the sun.
Farewell mother, dearest mother,
Since on earth we meet no more,
We will all meet in God's home
Just beyond the golden door.
—Ever loving husband, Stanley, Helen, Mary and Ronald.

HAYES — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Hayes, who passed away July 13, 1972.

Our lips cannot tell how we miss her,
Our hearts cannot tell what to say,
Our memories will always keep her,
In the land to treasure today.
—Always remembered by son Calvin, daughter-in-law Karen and grandson Scott.

HAYES — In loving memory of a dear wife Marion Hayes who passed away July 13, 1972.

The duties of sorrow I cannot not,
The depths of my loss to tell,
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep,
Her memory I shall always keep.
—Ever loved by husband Stanley.

HAYES — In loving memory of a dear mother Marion who passed away July 13, 1972.

Our hearts still hold you,
And always will.
God alone knows how we miss her,
He has a lovely home in Heaven,
—Ever loved by sons Garry, Wayne, Brian, Lovely, Nicky, daughters Sandra, Beverly, Brenda.

HAYES — In loving remembrance of a dear mother Marion who passed away July 13, 1972.

The dearest mother,
The truest friend,
One of the best whom God could lend,
Loving thoughts will linger still,
Memories of a loving act true.
—Love, Wayne, Sandra.

WESTERFELT — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Hank, who passed away on July 13, 1972.

Kiss in the face we loved so dear,
Clasp the hand we held in vain,
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach,
Loved to remember him who once was here.
Sorrow though absent is just as dear,
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Doris, son-in-law Ron, grandchildren Donna and Patsy, son Ken, daughter-in-law Helen, grandchildren Steven, Paul and Scott.

WESTERFELT — In loving memory of a dear friend, Hank, who passed away on July 13, 1972.

Memories are the eyes do not see,
And my face is not always wet,
There is never a night I pray
That I do not think of the love we had today.
For in our heart I still love and miss you.
—Always remembered by wife Ginny.

FOX — In loving memory of a dear brother Robert Fox who passed away July 13th, 1972.

Gone is the face I cannot see,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach,
Loved to remember him who once was here.
Sorrow though absent, is just as dear.
—Sadly missed by sister Rhonda and family.

FOX — In loving memory of a dear brother Robert Fox who passed away July 13th, 1972.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, July 13

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your wanderlust is misting today. You'll be happier at home, working on a hobby or puttering around the yard.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You communicate well with people today. Your special forte is creating unique activities for social events that will be fun for all.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll have doubts about making a major expenditure for the home. You shouldn't. The purchase will serve you both labor and money.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Work done for a relative who needs help will earn you thanks and a warm sense of personal pride when the job's done.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Where yesterday you were overly idyllic with your mate, today you're supercautious. You'll have a good but inexpensive time visiting a shut-in.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A day when you'll finally be able to relax and put all thoughts of work out of mind. You'll enjoy socializing with friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll accept the praises heaped on you today with dignified reserve, but you'll be bursting with pride inwardly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're keen in competitive sports today. A high degree of luck will add to your skill to help you win the cup.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The recognition you've been seeking will come to you today, provided you've done the job to the best of your ability.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) You won't consider it an intrusion if a friend drops in and asks you to share in an activity. You'll find harmony in tandem.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Creative methods you'll discover in pursuing a hobby will revitalize your thinking and provide continued interest.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're a lover, not a fighter today, so don't resist the urge to be romantic with your mate or special friend.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Monday, July 14

Organization is your strong suit today. Get together with friends or associates. Plan activities for the week ahead.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You can combine your creative talents with practical considerations to accomplish a great deal. Your judgment is excellent.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A fun day with the guys or gals, when you'll get out of the house for a shopping spree or a friendly knock break.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll appreciate your home today and enjoy expressing yourself doing something around the yard, kitchen or workbench.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Fulfillment of a secret desire is in store for you, away from home or job. Could be tennis or golf, or even a rendezvous.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll invest some money in home entertainment today. This may seem frivolous, but it will provide fun for family and friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Outside activity is the key to a good time today. You'll enjoy most being with friends, perusing lighthearted pleasure.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll achieve a secret ambition that will bring you great personal satisfaction, recognition and financial gain.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Employing yourself with people can be profitable today. You could get a hot tip on the golf course or at poolside.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A satisfying day. You'll be able to work out an agreement that's been hangin' fire in a way to please both parties.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) You have a flair for organizing large group activities today, probably because you're in a cycle where you have a strong desire to serve others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Getting the job done will not be perfect with your having a good time. You handle others' resources or property well today.

Raises Money

LONDON (CP) — After scrimping for years, Robert Crabtree and his wife raised the money to buy a new car from out of the army. But the army refused on the grounds that Bandsman Crabtree was the only solo trombone player in the regimental band and was essential. A member of Parliament interceded, but the army insists he must stay in uniform until a replacement can be found.

In general, a free bid merely says that you would have made the same bid cheerfully if there had been noninterference. When the interference shuts out your normal action you should strain a bit. A bid any time your hand is unbalanced, but tend to underbid when your hand is balanced.

South's vulnerable two-dia bid was one of those bids based on a stout heart and a few high cards. It is not recommended and when you see what happened to South you will know why.

With no side forces West passed, North made and the partnership would bid to three spades but passed there, overcall. East made the brilliant action to double.

The slaughter was terrific indeed. West led a heart and a trick two. East took one high heart and the queen of spades. Then he led a club. West cashed two clubs and his last high spade on which East threw his last club. Then he led a second heart. East won, led the heart jack and South's eight of spades fell to West's nine. His last club was led and ruffed. Back came a fourth heart and when the smoke of battle had cleared away South had made just five tricks.

There was just no way the defence could shut out his ace and king of trumps.

Ask the Jacobys

Today's question comes from New York and asks us how we stand on the subject of four-and five-card major openings.

The answer is that we try to avoid opening four-card majors, but do open them when we just can't find another bid. Thus, we open one spade with ♠ A K Q 9 ♥ 4 3 3 ♦ Q 7 5 ♣ 8 2 or one heart with:

♠ 8 3 2 ♥ K Q J 9 ♦ Q 7 6 ♣ 9 4 3

Plant Under Study

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau indicated move Thursday that the federal opposition toward a proposed enriched uranium plant in Dow Chemical Canada Bay power, has softened if not changed.

Answering questions in the Commons, the prime minister said a preliminary study of the project indicates the case against it is not as clear-cut as opponents have made out. Energy Minister Donald Macdonald told look a similar softer line last week.

Freezes Construction

TORONTO (CP) — A freeze has been placed on construction of new schools or additions to schools proposed by the Toronto Separate School Board, the board legislature Thursday.

He said Toronto public and separate school boards are being urged to share existing space.

Travel Industry Confused

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's travel industry will be in a state of confusion Tuesday when new provincial legislation requiring registration and bonding of all agencies and wholesalers comes into effect, Douglas Caven, registrar under the act, said Friday.

Only five of the 1,300 provincial operators have been approved to date and only 50 have submitted applications for registration, he said.

While the remainder will be technically operating outside the new law, "we're going to start prosecuting on the 15th, that's for sure," he said in an interview.

The registrar said he understands that rather than any deliberate attempt by the industry to ignore the legislation they opposed when it was first introduced Dec. 5, 1974, agents have run into difficulty in receiving quick approval from bonding firms.

Applications for registration, to be returned with confirmation of the required $5,000 bond, were mailed out June 8.

But Mr. Caven urged agents who have not returned applications to submit them with a covering letter which indicates their intention to comply with the bonding requirements.

Up the Pole

KETTERING, England (CP) — A shock awaited Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Ager when they returned from a week's holiday. They found that a 20-foot telegraph pole had been put in front of their home, just five feet away from the window. The pole, blocking their view, was placed there by the post office, who say that although there are no immediate plans to connect telephone wires to the pole, it must stay there.

Fencing for Wembley

LONDON (CP) — To stop the crowd scenes which followed the Cup Final and the England-Scotland international football season recently, the Football Association has decided to erect fencing at Wembley Stadium. Ted Croker, secretary said: "The aim is to get Wembley back to its old dignity and I am sure it is what all the people want."

Shulman Polls Candidate

TORONTO (CP) — Members of the legislature and nominated candidates for the next election are being polled by Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member for Toronto High Park, to see whether they want a pay raise.

Dr. Shulman said he wants to give everybody a chance to put themselves on the record because "bumping salaries the day after the election is immoral."

He said his questionnaire asks whether candidates and members are prepared to serve on their present salary and tax-free allowance of $22,500 a year and whether they would oppose or support any move to raise it.

Dr. Shulman, who has said he will not run again, has 30 replies so far and plans to make the results of the poll public.

Hydro to Comply

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro will comply with a provincial government request made in the mini-budget to cut costs, Pierre Genest, Hydro lawyer, said Friday.

Mr. Genest told the Ontario Energy Board, reviewing a Hydro rate increase, that the utility will make substantial reductions in expenditures for 1976 to conform with government policy.

Miners Strike

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Picket lines were still up today and main operations in International Nickel Co. of Canada (Inco), the world's largest producer of nickel, were halted during the third day of a strike which began at midnight Wednesday night.

White House Fertilizer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The agriculture department and the National Capital Parks had plans to deliver 20 tons of treated sewage to the White House Friday to improve the lawn, but someone said, "No thanks."

Finds Parrot

CAIRO (Reuter)—A missing parrot was reunited with his master Friday after a relative heard the bird calling the owner's name in a Cairo pet shop.

The parrot, belonging to General Mohamed Fawzi, a former war minister, disappeared two months ago.

The general's son-in-law was passing the pet shop in the centre of Cairo when he heard the bird calling "General Fawzi, General Fawzi."

Carpenters on Strike

TORONTO (CP) — About 4,000 carpenters will go on strike building projects in Toronto Monday to back demands for large wage increases similar to those recently given other trades, the business manager of the Toronto District Council of the Carpenter's Union said Friday.

Prices Down

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Sour cherry prices have dropped $118.40 a ton this year to $302.10, down from $421.50 last year, and Niagara Peninsula growers say they won't make enough to cover cost of production. Keith Maillie, secretary-manager of the Ontario Tender Fruit Marketing Board, said Friday the board has asked for federal government aid. Imports and a larger harvest are blamed for driving the price down.

Requests Crime Study

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General John Clement has rejected yet another request by Morton Shulman (NDP-High Park) for a royal commission on organized crime.

Mr. Shulman based his latest demand in the legislature Friday on his belief that Jack Hovey, whom he described as a Toronto loan shark, had been murdered and that the woman with whom Hovey was living was told she is marked for death.

He said Mr. Hovey disappeared four months ago after telling the woman he was going out to buy a newspaper and he would be back in five minutes. He said the man was a big operator who was becoming serious competition for two men who control loan sharking in Toronto.

Wife Can't Believe Winner

TORONTO (CP) — Maria Moreira went right on working at her job in a shoe factory Friday, refusing to believe her husband Manuel had won $100,000 in the Wintario draw Thursday.

"They (Wintario officials) will have to tell her, for she won't believe me," her husband said as he discussed what the money will mean to the family.

"She's going to quit her job," he said. "I'll pays about $100 a week but she's going to stay home with our children, (Manuel, 5, and Doreen, 7,) from now on."

Mr. Moreira, 31, who works as a chicken packer for $182 a week, has no intention of quitting his job but he's sure life will be more pleasant from now on.

For instance, he's going to start house hunting immediately so he and his family can move out of their flat. And he's going to buy a car.

The Moreira family come to Canada from Portugal about two years ago but doesn't intend to spend any of its money to return for a visit.

Companies Still Smart Despite Recession End

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite high hopes for an end to the recession, the first big flow of second-quarter corporate earnings the past week forced one more look at some of the financial damage.

General Electric Co., for instance, still smarting from the steep drop in consumer demand for appliances and electricity, showed a profit drop of 13 per cent in the period. International Paper Co.'s earnings fell 27 per cent.

International Business Machines Corp. had a profit drop. New York Corp. had an earnings rise of 31 per cent in the second quarter, and Citicorp's rose 18 per cent.

But two other things rose this past week: Sugar prices and a key commercial bank's prime lending rate.

Amstar Corp. led major sugar refiners in raising wholesale granulated sugar prices another nickel a pound. The refiners also boosted industrial sugar products used for soft drinks, baked goods and other consumer goods. The makers of those goods and the grocery chains that sell them will decide whether to pass the higher costs on to consumers.

Meanwhile, First National City Bank increased its prime rate ½-point to 7½ per cent. It was the second straight weekly prime rate rise by the bank, and apparently came in response to moves by the Federal Reserve to slow the growth of the nation's money supply as an anti-inflationary precaution.

The Civil Aeronautics Board in the past week announced plans for an experiment that would de-regulate some airline fares and routes, which might mean forced price competition and lower rates for the air traveler.

Airline spokesmen indicated the experiment, which CAB won't start until Congress, air-lines and the public are heard from, might be an opportunity for the industry to prove once and for all that some routes, and indeed some airlines, need government regulatory protection to survive.

Space Flight Holds Prestige for Countries

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Five years ago it was considered humdrum, a dream. But on Tuesday, American astronauts and Soviet cosmonauts are to rocket into orbit to start a joint space flight, apparently designed for a mission of "high flying detente."

Much symbolism and prestige will be involved on this first international flight of the world's leading spacefaring countries, since keen rivals in space exploration until United States astronauts landed on the moon. Neither wants to fall in the global spotlight that will follow every moment.

It won't be just a "handshake in the sky," say the astronauts and cosmonauts, but a mission that historians will look to future co-operative flights in large space stations away from hops to the planets.

The flight is scheduled to start at 8:20 a.m. EDT Tuesday with the launching of the two cosmonauts in a Soyuz spacecraft from the Baikonur Cosmodrome on the edge of a central Soviet desert.

If there are no problems, three Apollo astronauts will ride Apollo spacecraft away from Cape Canaveral 7½ hours later, at 3:50 p.m.

With the more sophisticated Apollo craft, the actual docking of the critical manoeuvres, the astronauts will pursue the Soyuz through the skies for two days, moving in for a linkup at 12:15 p.m. Thursday, 140 miles above West Germany.

Three hours later, both ends of an airlock tunnel connecting the vehicles will be opened and the American commander, air force brig.-Gen. Thomas Stafford, and the Soviet commander, air force Col. Alexei Leonov, will shake hands.

It will be a moment of high emotion, not only for its symbolism but because these two men have become fast friends during two years of training. They believe that through flights like this, high in space, their two countries can achieve detente on earth.

Stafford, 44, is a veteran of three space trips, including a flight around the moon. He is an expert at flying orbital rendezvous missions.

Leonov, 40, is an extrovert, hooked on flying as a boy when he saw a movie about Soviet military pilots. Ten years ago he became the first man to "walk" in space.

Israeli Planes Strike Amid Peace Hopes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli planes attacked a Palestinian refugee camp in Lebanon today, and four persons were reported killed and 22 wounded. Several hours later, rockets from southern Lebanon hit the Israeli town of Nahariya, slightly wounding two women, an Israeli command announced.

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin reported to the Israeli cabinet on his meeting with U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger. A communique said the government would continue "the process of clarification and negotiations with the purpose of reaching a positive conclusion."

The Palestine guerrillas said their missile and gun crews hit two of the Israeli Phantom jets that rocketed and strafed the Ein Helweh refugee camp near Sidon, 30 miles south of Beirut, Sunday.

The Lebanese defence ministry said one of the jets crashed in flames into the Mediterranean. But the Israeli command said: "All our planes returned safely to base."

Residents of the camp said the first attack lasted 20 minutes, and the second attack came 20 minutes later.

The rockets destroyed a guerrilla radio station and damaged a number of huts and a mosque.

The Israelis said a plant manufacturing war materials for guerrillas was among the targets, but residents of the camp denied that such a plant existed.

Palestinian sources said those killed were a woman, a farm worker and two guerrillas.

The Israeli command also announced that an Israeli navy ship supplied fuel to a Lebanese freighter Saturday that was drifting 20 miles northwest of the Sinai coast. The Lebanese captain thanked the Israelis for the "superb treatment," the announcement said.

Rabin on his return from his meeting with Kissinger said he was "more optimistic" about chances for an agreement with Egypt. But cabinet spokesman Gershon Avner said Simcha Dinitz, the Israeli ambassador to the U.S., would return to Washington to work with the state department on the latter clarifications sought by the cabinet.

Meanwhile, the Cairo newspaper Al Ahram accuses Israel of "procrastinating maneuvres" and says Egypt would demand resumption of the Geneva conference if this kept up.

Informed sources in Beirut said Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Syria and Kuwait are cracking down on a small terror group known as the Arab Communist Organization.

Residents Reject Self-help

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Residents of Quinte Heights subdivision have refused to make any improvements to their water system despite claims that they can neither shower nor flush.

Three weeks ago residents filled Sidney Township council chambers attempting action to upgrade the water system that has been termed "inadequate" by representatives of the province's ministry of the environment. That meeting adjourned until last Thursday when council and residents met with Norameco — the developer of the housing project.

At that meeting, Norameco officials said they would run temporary pipes from other wells on the project site to water system wells so that the system would recharge more quickly and provide more water pressure.

In return, the residents would make provisions to rent a pump that would bring the water down from the remote wells to the system wells.

Lavern Hatcher, spokesman for the group, said during an interview: "We have decided not to improve Norameco's system at our expense."

He said the residents are seeking legal advice.

"We want to find out the details and strength of agreements between Sidney Township and Norameco — particularly that portion of the agreement which states if the work on the subdivision is not satisfactory that township may have the work done and the bills will be sent to Norameco," said Mr. Hatcher.

At present the residents of the 55-home development are on a water austerity program. No water is being used for lawns or outside uses and most families are taking their laundry to commercial laundromats rather than using household water, said Mr. Hatcher.

It was estimated by Norameco that necessary modifications to the system would cost approximately $45,000 — a bill the firm says it is not going to pay.

"Somebody . . . the township, the province or the developer . . . is responsible for this," said Mr. Hatcher. "Something has to be done."

Joint Space Shot Ends 18-year Race

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts, cosmonauts, spaceships and rockets are ready for the joint United States-Soviet space mission that gets under way Tuesday, ending the space race that began 18 years ago with the launching of Sputnik.

Countdowns ticked away smoothly on two continents today for the launchings that will propel the U.S. Apollo and Soviet Soyuz spacecraft into orbit for a historic linkup Thursday.

The Soyuz, guided by cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov, is blast off at 8:20 a.m. EDT from the Baikonur Cosmodrome on the edge of a central Russian desert 1,100 miles southeast of Moscow.

Apollo astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton will take off from Cape Canaveral 7½ hours later at 1:50 p.m. to begin a celestial chase that will end with the two ships joined together 140 miles above West Germany at 12:15 p.m. Thursday.

Three hours later, a tunnel connecting the vehicles will open and U.S. commander Stafford and Soviet commander Leonov will shake hands.

The two space veterans have become close friends during two years of training for this mission. Both believe their mission can speed detente between the Soviet Union and the U.S.

The two commanders spoke by long distance telephone Sunday.

Stafford said Leonov and Kubasov told him "that everything was real fine in the Soviet cosmodrome" and he told the cosmonauts that things were good at the Cape, except for "sweating out" the weather.

Meteorologists say the afternoon thunderstorms that have swept the Cape daily are a matter for concern, but the amount of rain predicted locally is expected to decrease by Tuesday.

President Ford, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, other diplomats and James Fletcher, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), plan to watch televised coverage of the Soviet launching, at the state department auditorium. Dobrynin and Fletcher will then fly to Cape Canaveral to see the Apollo launch.

Ford Has New Oil Plan To Lift Price Ceilings

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford sent to Congress today what he called a "compromise oil decontrol plan" that would lift present petroleum price ceilings during the next 2½ years.

Ford estimated his blueprint, if accepted by Congress, would add seven cents to the price of a gallon of gasoline by 1977 and reduce demand for imported oil by 300,000 barrels a day in the same period.

The oil that would be decontrolled under the president's proposal would be that coming from domestic wells that went into production before mid-1975. Under present regulations, such oil is subject to a ceiling price of about $5.25 a barrel. By contrast, domestic oil coming from more recent wells is uncontrolled and sells for about $13.

Under the Ford plan, the present controls on so-called old oil gradually would be removed over a 30-month period starting August 1 and ending in January, 1978.

New Killings Weaken Ceasefire With Protestants and Catholics

LONDON (AP) — The fragile, five-month-old ceasefire between Protestants and Roman Catholics in Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland looked ever more feeble today, with fears new killings and a resulting stance by diehard Protestant leaders.

Meanwhile, police in England were quoted as saying they had details of a plan by the Provisional wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) to renew planting bombs in British cities and to shoot prominent Britons if the truce fails.

Police in the English port city of Liverpool, where many Irish live, arrested IRA gunman Sean Kinsella, who broke jail with 38 other IRA men in the Irish Republic last August. Several of these men could be in Britain, police believe.

Liverpool police said the arms and explosives seized in a raid there last week in the biggest IRA arms cache ever uncovered in Britain, "are definitely bound for the mainland."

Sunday Press newspaper says parliamentary bursed documents found in the raid described an IRA plan to bomb London and English Midlands cities if sectarian conflict bursts out again in Northern Ireland.

The Sun says the British police have details of IRA plans to shoot British judges and policemen. It suggests seven shootings of policemen, one of them fatal, in English cities since Christmas have involved the IRA, and claims a buildup for the projected violence in Britain has been going on for months.

Chief Clamps Down On City Vandalism

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Increased police patrols, public appeals and a proposed educational program will be brought into action here in reports of vandalism, Chief Bellevile Police Chief Douglas Crosbie.

Chief Crosbie said Saturday there were only three reported cases of vandalism 25 years ago in the city but there were slightly over 300 cases in 1974.

"We're going to increase patrols, call on the public to assist us and use unmarked cars on some of our patrols," he said.

"We're planning in September to sit down with the education people to see what input we can get from the public school system, Chief Crosbie added.

He explained the current program by which safety officers visit schools might be revamped and become similar to a system in the United States where school resources officers carry on intensive programs throughout the school year.

Vandalism would be one of the subjects taught in significant detail, he said.

Chief Crosbie said his department recently obtained a short film on vandalism aimed at children under 14 years of age "and it has a simple message to it. We would be pleased to provide it to any interested group."

He pointed out vandals "are getting younger all the time." He said the age spread is currently between 10-20 years.

Light penalties imposed by the courts on those convicted of vandalism are only part of the problem, Chief Crosbie commented. "If it's a social problem, such as lack of proper upbringing, then the courts are only a part of it," he said.

"The courts are after the fact," he noted. "We want to stop it before it gets started."

Ford Has New Oil Plan To Lift Price Ceilings

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford sent to Congress today what he called a "compromise oil decontrol plan" that would lift present petroleum price ceilings during the next 2½ years.

Ford estimated his blueprint, if accepted by Congress, would add seven cents to the price of a gallon of gasoline by 1977 and reduce demand for imported oil by 300,000 barrels a day in the same period.

The oil that would be decontrolled under the president's proposal would be that coming from domestic wells that went into production before mid-1975. Under present regulations, such oil is subject to a ceiling price of about $5.25 a barrel. By contrast, domestic oil coming from more recent wells is uncontrolled and sells for about $13.

Under the Ford plan, the present controls on so-called old oil gradually would be removed over a 30-month period starting August 1 and ending in January, 1978.

A member of Trinity Anglican Church at Shannonville, he was a self-employed commercial fisherman.

Cyclist Injured

BRIGHTON — A Burlington youth fractured a collarbone when he was thrown from his motorcycle Sunday on Highway 401, northeast of here.

A Trenton hospital spokesman said the youth was treated Sunday and released from hospital. Hurt was Richard Arsenault, 18, of Lakeshore Rd., Burlington.

Brighton provincial police said the motorcycle wheels dropped from the roadway onto the gravel shoulder, throwing the youth from the vehicle. The motorcycle, rigged several times, causing an estimated $270 damage.

Challenge Landlords Centre Tells Tenants

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The Quinte Information and Assistance Centre here has some tips for both landlords and tenants from the Landlord and Tenant Act in light of the increasing number of tenant problems which the centre is investigating.

Bill Hockley, a centre staff member, said that tenants in disregard lawyer's letters written on behalf of the landlord.

He explained Friday some people treat such letters as court notifications due to the language and legal terms in them. "Consider them just as lawyer's letters and throw them in the garbage because that's all they are," he commended.

Landlords who raise rent — to either force undesirable tenants out or for any other reason — are another sources of concern.

Bert Gerling, another centre staff member, says in most cases the landlord's case is in such a way that he can make an additional profit and not just to cover rising costs.

"It's up to the tenant to serve in resist paying it (an increase)," he said.

Mr. Gerling said if the tenant resists payments and the landlord files a formal eviction notice, the tenant can file a dispute which sets a court judge "who would probably add the landlord to justify each dollar of the increase" and if not satisfied, would likely cancel the eviction and order the rent lowered.

Mr. Hockley pointed out a tenant can dispute a legal eviction in court for any reason so if he feels the eviction is not justified.

"Dispute a case in court," he noted. "Because you don't need a lawyer to do it. The tenant should not leave," he added.

Whether there is a lease involved or not, when a tenant has to leave partway through a month, "the landlord must minimize loss" if he imposes an extra month or more rent or forces the tenant to pay rent for the remainder of the month," Mr. Hockley said.

He said for example if a tenant has to leave midway through a month and has paid a full month's rent — and the apartment is immediately rented again — the landlord must return to the former tenant a half month's rent.

Regarding landlords who enter apartments when the tenant is absent, he prohibited "except by requesting permission in writing 24 hours in advance or by written agreement or in the event of a real emergency." Mr. Hockley said.

Mr. Gerling said there are "gray areas" not covered under the act which can also be disputed in court and whereby legal precedents might be established such as in the cases of, restrictions on children, common law or personal habits of apartment seekers — which have not really been challenged in court yet."

Car Hits Tree

BRIGHTON —A Brighton woman, Gladys Smart, 64, of 27 Harbor St., was treated for minor injuries and released from Trenton Hospital Sunday after the vehicle she was driving crashed into a tree here.

Brighton OPP said the Smart vehicle went out of control and hit the tree at the intersection of Harbor and Cedar St. Damage was estimated at $800.

Damage Extensive

TWEED — A 26-year-old Tweed man was charged with careless driving following an accident four miles east of the intersection of Highways 37 and 7, Sunday, July 13, at 2:48 a.m.

Ernest Cronkright, 26, of Tweed Prov. Rt., Belleville, alone at the time, was unscathed when his car hit a patch of rocks causing the vehicle to spin around landing on the shoulder. He was not injured. Damage was estimated at $1,800.

Cruiser Entered

City police report damage at about $80 after a 36-foot cruiser was forcibly entered sometime during the weekend in Belleville harbor.

Police said a fire hunting knife and pliers were stolen from the boat.

Woman Knocked Unconscious

AMELIASBURG — A Belleville woman was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital Sunday afternoon after she fell from her bibycle on Fingerboard Hill on County Road 18 in Ameliasburg.

Nancy Priebs, 19, Sidney St., was cycling on the hill when she fell from her 10-speed machine, striking the road head-first.

She was knocked unconscious by the fall and taken to hospital by ambulance for treatment.

Sack Full of Enthusiasm

Pickles just aren't any fun unless there's a sack race — especially when first prize is a dollar. More than 600 members of the Quinte Rallo Canadian Club gathered Sunday at the Meaford Beach, Shannonville for an ethnic picnic, the first of its kind to be held by the club. Proceeds from the picnic will be forwarded to charities said club executive member Dante Pace.

Thurlow Officials to Queen's Park

Members of the Thurlow Township Council will be in Queen's Park Tuesday to exert pressure on provincial authorities to speed up progress on two local water projects.

In an afternoon session the council will meet with Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources to discuss the water level in the Moira River.

Council has been attempting to have the Moira River Conservation Authority (MRCA) repair two dams in Thurlow Township, saying water loss is too great at the sites.

The two dams, Canniton and Latta, are both privately owned and the conservation authority has refused to repair them, saying they are not responsible for private property.

In a meeting arranged by MPP Clarke Rollins, Reeve Horace Casey and representatives of the Point Anne water plant project will meet William Newman, minister of Environment, to try to gain new funding for the project.

At a recent council meeting Peter Anderson, an engineer for the consulting firm of Greer, Galloway and Associates, informed the council cost had spiraled to $80,000 from the original estimate of $38,000.

Protestants Mark Victory With Downtown Parade

King Billy led nearly 1,000 Orangemen through the streets of downtown Belleville Saturday — the first such parade to be held here in more than 20 years.

The march of the Protestants marks the anniversary of King William of Orange's defeat of Catholic troops at the Battle of the Boyne in 1690.

A far cry from the 1933 Orange parade in Toronto when 25,000 filled the parade's ranks, the Belleville walk nevertheless had all the necessary ingredients.

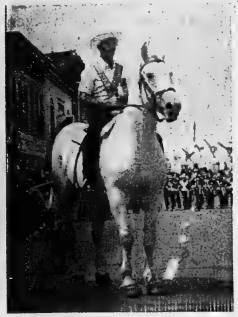
Old and young drummers marched time for marchers as they wound along a three-mile route. Fifers played valiantly to be heard above the beat of the drum.

At the same time a special 20-man squad of Belleville policemen tried to hurry the parade through the business section and back to the fairgrounds with the least interruption to heavy, Saturday afternoon traffic.

Some 45 Orange Lodges from Eastern Ontario were represented at the parade.

Lynn Jones, parade marshall, says the lodge is changing its identity and becoming more of a service group.

"We're not as militant as the Orangemen in Ireland" — homeland of all true Orangemen, he said. A local lodge is working on construction of a 100-room senior citizen housing project for Frankford — an indication of our service work" said Mr. Jones.



Rape Not Major Problem

Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie says the number of reported rape incidents in the city over the last few years has not increased "to any appreciable degree" and does not necessitate a special program to deal with rape here.

Chief Crosbie was commenting Saturday on a Friday news item which reported Metropolitan Toronto Police are considering setting up a special rape squad as a result of a 15-per-cent increase in the number of rapes in Toronto this year.

He said the problem in Belleville, as in all places, is that "many rapes are never reported."

He explained victims fear the current court practice which allows a victim's character to be questioned by defense lawyers and said he applauded the Canadian Law Reform Commission's studies at present which will discover a way to eliminate this practice from court proceedings involving rape.

Missing Pickers Found

MADOC — Four people — including two children — were reported safe early today after they were reported lost in bush-country north of here late Sunday night.

Provincial police said the group had gone picking blueberries early Sunday and when they failed to return an alert was issued.

The were Harold Prest, 33, RR 1 Corbyville, his sister, Mrs. Thelma Goodfellow, of Roslin, and her two children.

They were found in the Cooper area of Madoc Township about 10 miles northeast of here.

Fife and Drum Popular

Whistling out a tuneful tune, James Smith of Kingston provides the music while Ward Smallwood of Roblin keeps time on a bass drum during Orange Day festivities at the Belleville fair grounds Saturday. Nearly 1,000 turned out to parade through downtown Belleville.

Billy Rides Again

On a prancing, off-white horse, King Billy led his 1,000 Protestants through the streets of Belleville Saturday commemorating the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. Some 45 lodges from eastern Ontario were represented in the parade. King Billy was portrayed by Finley Elmy of Marysville.

Police Get EMO Radio

Belleville Police Commission has accepted an offer from Col. Angus Duffy of the nearby Quinte Emergency Measures Organization to have the QEMO base radio installed at the communications centre in the city police building.

Bus Tire Catches Fire

A near tire on a Voyageur bus went flat and caught fire on West Dundas St. near Albert College Sunday night.

City firemen were called to the scene but reported there was little damage.

The radio is currently located in QEMO headquarters at Ben Bleecker Auditorium.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said following the commission's Saturday meeting the transfer, which includes a radio tower, "should give two-county coverage" in the event of an emergency.

He said city police would maintain close co-operation with the Tri-County Radio Club which would provide a network in any emergency.

Splash for Cancer

Lee-Ann Evans, Linda Werden and Iris Sievewright anticipate the splash during a watery version of the ring-toss game at the Wilson residence at 32 Elvins St. Saturday. It was all part of a penny carnival which raised about $30 for the Canadian Cancer Society.

Aid for New Church Doubtful Say Officials

St. Thomas' Anglican Church officials are operating on the supposition they will have to go it alone in raising money towards the restoration of the burned-out, 120-year-old sanctuary, says the chairman of the church's building committee.

Harold Carruthers said in a weekend interview no word has been received from Ontario Heritage Foundation officially to which an application was sent for funds shortly after the church burned on April 26.

Mr. Carruthers said the foundation has not made an outright rejection but he added officials were advised in a verbal manner "we were not going to get any great amount."

"We're going on the basis we've got to do it ourselves," he commented.

Mr. Carruthers was asked to comment on a suggestion made by an Intelligencer reader in a May letter in which she said the Anglican city should adopt St. Thomas' restoration as a Centennial project.

He indicated this might be considered only as a last resort. "That would be great if the congregation can't swing this itself with a hard, honest-to-goodness campaign," he said.

During the last congregational meeting almost three weeks ago, the building committee was instructed to pare off non-essential items from a preliminary architect's drawing of the new church with an initial price tag of $836,000.

Church officials have been eyeing a more realistic figure of $65,000.00.

Newsmaker

At the final meeting of the season, the Quinte White Cane Club elected the new executive of Frank Deacon, president; Floyd Reid, vice-president; Pat Bazerjack, secretary; and Helen Wardhaugh as treasurer. Bowling trophies were awarded to the top teams in the blind bowlers league by the Kinettes.

Hasty Pee Guard of Honor May Mark End of Red Beret

By COLIN BRUCE

When the Hasty Pees march into Peterborough Tuesday forming a special honor guard for Ontario LL-Gov. Pauline McGibbon it might mark the last wearing of the red berets.

In recent weeks the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment has been notified it is to — hand in the red beret in exchange for the standard green cap, — a directive that has not yet caught the regiment's fancy.

It has been rumored that some of the high ranking leaders of the militia will be attending the Peterborough parade where the question of red or green will come to a head.

"I don't know what's going happen — we'll have to wait and see," said Warrant Officer Carl Ward in charge of the summer training course for the militia here.

"We've been told not to wear them but I guess we're going to wear them on the Peterborough parade," he said. "I don't know if it was a direct order but I know it has been mentioned."

Armed Women a First

For the first time, women members of the Hasty Pees will carry weapons on parade when the unit forms an 80-member honor guard for Ontario LL-Gov. Pauline McGibbon in Peterborough Tuesday.

This summer some 20 female high school students are training with the regiment in its summer employment program. A total of more than 80 students have been hired.

"It's the first time I can ever remember women marching with weapons," said course training officer Warrant Officer Carl Ward. "They're just as good as the men."

Warrant Officer Ward said: "This is the most important thing these people will do all summer.

Prosecutor Delayed

The Belleville court system was in line to receive its first civilian prosecutor to be hired by the province this year but the plight of the economy has delayed the appointment, says City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie.

He told the Belleville Police Commission meeting Saturday, "it had been indicated our court was up for consideration to receive one this year but due to cutbacks we won't be getting one."

City Police to Get New Radio System

Belleville's police department will soon receive a new radio system courtesy of a provincial capital program.

The city police commission Saturday perused a copy of a debenture bylaw which will go before the next city council meeting asking aldermen to approve a five-year debenture of $30,000 for the system.

The amount is only one-quarter of the total cost. The provinces is funding the other 75 per cent.

Total city share including debenture interest will be $40,200. It will cost taxpayers $8,118 per year. Following council approval, the bylaw must receive the sanction of the Ontario Municipal Board.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said following the meeting the move is "part of the province-wide updating of police radio systems".

It will provide a common radio frequency with all police departments in Ontario, he explained.

Bakery Robbed

City police today are seeking two young suspects after a quantity of old bread and cakes were stolen from Canada Bread at 176 East College St. Saturday night.

Police said two young people believed aged eight to 11 years were seen leaving the building around 9 p.m.

Entry was gained to the premises by smashing a window pane.

Group Home Management Course
For those planning to open a group home, Loyalist College is offering an intensive, two-week summer course in Group Home Management.
Group homes are today's alternative to the training school for the juvenile offender, the psychiatric ward for the emotionally disturbed, the hospital-school for the mentally retarded. There is a growing demand for professionally trained directors to manage these homes.
Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Ridley, directors of Wingfield, developed and will teach this course, and have offered their facilities as its setting. Students will have a unique opportunity to consider all aspects of group home management with experienced instructors, in a realistic environment. Morning seminars at Wingfield College will be supplemented with afternoon practicums at the home.
COURSE COMMENCES: August 4, 2 p.m. —Orientation
August 5th - 15th, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. plus 2 evenings.

Latin American States Remain Divided On Issue of Ending Cuban Sanctions

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The Organization of American States (OAS) meets again in San Jose, Costa Rica on July 16 to discuss the major thorn in the weak body politic of that troubled and divided organization.

The subject is again Cuba and how to end the 11-year-old OAS sanctions against Fidel Castro's revolutionary regime.

The issue is complicated by the fact nine of the 21 OAS members, including Venezuela, the country which called for sanctions against Cuba in the first place in 1964, have diplomatic and trade relations with Havana.

Against these is a relatively new clique of hard-line, right-wing military states, Brazil, Chile, Uruguay and Paraguay, who are opposed to the ending of the sanctions" with Marxist Cuba.

Though both Brazil and Paraguay were right-wing military states in 1964, Chile and Uruguay at that time were working social democracies which had great reservations about any OAS sanctions against Havana.

Since then, democracy in Chile and Uruguay has been destroyed by strongly anti-Communist military regimes.

But the real complication in any termination of economic and diplomatic sanctions against Cuba by the OAS is the structure of the Inter-American Treaty of Reciprocal Assistance, called the Rio Treaty signed in 1947, and which forms the basis of the OAS.

Under that treaty and in particular its Article 17, a two-thirds majority vote of member states is required both to bring sanctions against a member state, and also to end them.

Since the Rio Treaty was primarily one of hemispheric security, the embargo against Cuba in 1964 was made because of that country's interference in Venezuelan domestic affairs through support of the then-powerful Venezuelan pro-Marxist guerrillas.

The OAS meeting in San Jose will not, therefore, be a meeting of existing member states per se, but a "conference of plenipotentiaries" that is of those member states of the OAS who signed the original Rio Treaty.

This means that OAS member nations formed since 1947 like Jamaica, which reached statehood in 1962 and joined the OAS in 1971, will not be represented.

The purpose of the OAS San Jose conference is to have the 1947 Rio Treaty signatory nations agree a majority vote will almost articles of the treaty instead of the present two thirds majority.

Twelve of the 21 OAS states voted last April in Quito, Ecuador, to end sanctions against Cuba. But under the two thirds rule, it wasn't enough to bring that about.

Under the proposed majority vote rule, 12 votes out of 21 would have brought Cuba back into the fold of the OAS.

Paradoxically, Cuba has not been elected to an OAS membership state since that is not called for in the Rio Treaty. In fact, long before Castro and his Marxist revolution appeared on the scene, Cuba herself was and remains a signatory of the 1947 hemispheric security treaty maintaining countries against external political threats, like Communism.

Nor can the new military clique of states, pledged to continued isolation of Marxist Cuba, be sure of their grouping. Big and booming Brazil, seeking leadership in the hemisphere in place of the United States may decide under the majority vote, if approved at San Jose, to end the sanctions against Havana.

This does not mean that Brazil's capitalistically-oriented ruling generals will also commence trade and diplomatic relations with Castro.

But such a Brazilian move could force the United States also to vote against continued OAS sanctions against Cuba even while Washington has very strong doubts about early U.S. Communist recognition of Castro.

The United States was the first hemispheric country to break relations with Cuba in January, 1961, and is diametrically outside the OAS.

Brazil might decide to vote in support of majority vote, thereby giving the impression she still respects the decisions of the OAS as a hemispheric international organization, which the U.S. has so often ignored.

City Sees Progress

There have been any number of municipal plans, or suggestions from consultants, that have never materialized, in this and other communities, in recent times.

Those that do come to something invariably prove to be plants of slow growth. Still, there has been no shortage of ideas for a bigger and brighter Belleville, and there are some good ones for the Bay of Quinte waterfront in preliminary recommendations of Toronto consulting engineer Ralph E. Cryder.

Some time ago, in the wake of the demise of the Canada Cement LaFarge plant at Point Anne, and recalling a similar, among other sporting activities in its halycon days as a company village, we had some thoughts on its future.

The idea centered on Point Anne as an ideal place for sportsmen. It is easy to imagine it as a centre for a variety of outdoor activities, from tennis to boating to horseback riding and trail walking.

The consultants report has some ideas for the area too: including the possibility of shifting commercial shipping operations from Belleville to the deeper waters of Point Anne and creation of a conservation area in a marshy area west of the community.

There are other suggestions for the waterfront, including yacht and small boat basins, docks and waterfront walkways to link with riverside parks. It is noted that facilities for walking and cycling are lacking, although the wooded area between Lodge and Bell Boulevard beside the Mall, could be considered an exception. The Kitchener-Waterloo area incidentally, is one which was mentioned recently as having provided bike trails.

In any event, this airing of community and regional potential is a further step in the right direction. In what has been accomplished thus far with industry, expansion of harbor facilities, and at East Zwicky Island, Belleville can point to real progress, and the promise of more to come.

It is one of the best summers in years. It has been hot enough, so what better way to enjoy it in comfort than in the park and in the shade and with the sun playing upon the flower beds. Here a mother and her daughter discover and relish the perfection of this season at Corby Park.

Ottawa Striptease

One of the young Mounties keeping a close eye on things on Parliament Hill recently had a mustache and the look of a Charlie Chaplin in his heyday.

It is doubtful though if the young officer and a colleague saw the humor of the situation when model Michelle d'Orsay, sporting only a Canadian flag around her waist, and glitter boots, tried to perform a striptease.

The object of the exercise reportedly was to pose for the centrefold of a Montreal magazine.

Where there was more of Miss d'Orsay's body showing than there was flag, one of the Mounties said "O.K., that's it." The brunette was bundled up in raincoats and taken away for questioning.

Now a question that comes to mind straightaway is, where were the lady cops . . . the fledgling women members of the RCMP, that is? Couldn't Miss d'Orsay have objected to being pushed around by male police?

Other arguments might be presented, for the attention of the guardians of Canada's morality. After all, for a country which tolerates the most dubious of sex titillation in books and magazines not to mention the most revealing of magazine centrefolds, what's a striptease act on Parliament Hill?

Looking at a two-year-old Globe and Mail front page, the other day one was also indicative of our mixed-up sense of what is decent or otherwise. Here were five youngsters, 4 and 5 years olds, three boys and two girls on a field day from their kindergarten class at exclusive Bishop Strachan school in Toronto. It was hot and they romped into the shallows of the Don River where it ran through a park. All five were stark naked.

Or consider that one can walk along Front Street in downtown Belleville and see in a window display advertising films a picture of a young woman in water up to her waist — and from there on up nary a stitch of clothing.

So many contradictions . . . and so much unconscious humor in it all — from the caper of the police up there on Parliament Hill to the creaky tenets of the federal statute book when it comes to upholding public morality.

Chretien Taking Hard Line on Public Service Strikes—and There May be More

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA —It looks like the year of the hard-liner.

The federal government on one side, the public service on the other, and in the middle, being bowled over here, there and by the taxpayer.

The scenario is simple, even familiar, except that this time, both sides — the government and the staff — have come out all with the formal declaration that is their contention you are to be the victim.

Treasury Board President Jean Chretien, the man in the Trudeau cabinet charged with curbing government spending, has declared that the days of overstaffed pay increases in the public service are finished.

The government, pledges Chretien, will resist excessive demands.

After years of reckless federal spending, with public service salaries leading the inflationary pay parade, this sounds almost too businesslike to be true.

But Jean Chretien is one of the few "toughies" of the cabinet — and when he says something, it turns out that usually he means it.

He means it this time, too, he swears, and warns that the taxpayers better be prepared for what he calls "some inconveniences."

That, of course, will occur when there are public service strikes called to enforce "demands" Treasury Board may consider excessive.

And you know how inconvenient that can be, with the mails stopping, the airports closed, the food inspectors off the job, and key sectors of the private economy grinding slowly down.

Many, perhaps most, of the federal staff could go on strike and you would never miss them.

But there are some, strategically placed, who can, like the surgery in hospitals.

Even the workers at the mint and the ever concerned they had the clout — can toss a monkey wrench in the delicate mechanism of the economy.

They did it last year — you remember the shortage of silver with nickels, dimes and quarters vanishing from short supply that the banks and supermarkets here to have to switch of paper money?

Well, that is Treasury Board's side of it.

Now for the public service position.

The alliance, representing 120,000 federal workers, the largest single group in the 200,000-member public service, has learned how profitable a strike can be, except, of course, for the taxpayers.

So it has formed a special committee to study ways of making the strike even more powerful and profitable.

The basic idea is to make the strike hurt.

Hurt the public, that is — scare the government, and, of course, bring quick and easy compliance with demands, excessive or not.

Alliance leaders, during last winter and spring's round of federal laborers and tradesmen, tried to co-ordinate their strike timing to shut down sections of the public service, where the public would feel it most.

The public felt it, reacted, and the government took fast from sides. Airport maintenance workers, postal machine mechanics, grain weighers and surveyors felt their pinch.

Everyone from the farms where grain backed up, through rail and air transport system, to people in the urban centres without regular mail or air service, felt it.

The alliance is prepared to use as a bludgeon, in order to pay the lives of members convicted of unlawful activities in the course of strikes, legal and illegal.

So far the positions have hardened.

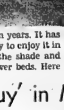
Federal public servants are prepared to twist the public's arm.

The Treasury Board appears reconciled to a mauling by the public squirm.

And the paying public, as usual, can do little — it being between electives — but suffer.

Public is 'Fall Guy' in Marketing-Pricing Squeeze

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs
Analyst
Thomson News Service



Consistency finishes last, when the federal government is dealing with consumers.

The term "marketing" is generally understood to have something to do with salesmanship, but some of the government's numerous marketing boards are busy keeping products off the market so that consumers will have to pay more.

—The finance minister has told the government intends to fight inflation, yet it has taken steps to increase sharply the prices of gasoline, heating oil, unemployment insurance and eggs.

—John Turner also declared that Canada opposed restrictive international practices, while Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan imports of lower-priced eggs from the United States.

Worse, in the case of egg "marketing," the government imposed his quotas on U.S. eggs with virtually no explanation, and on a Friday afternoon when it was too late for the parliamentary opposition to press for answers.

The agriculture minister's uncharacteristically evasive statement merely said that the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency would assure consumers of ample supplies at reasonable prices.

"Reasonable" is a highly relative and subjective term. Its immediate meaning in Ontario was a price hike of six cents a dozen.

Just since the beginning of June, consumers have seen the price of extra-A large foods climb by 22 per cent. That's inflation like Mother used to make.

Because consumers don't have access to any information about the CEMA operation, says Margot Brechin of the Consumers Association of Canada, "they are unable to make decisions about how reasonable are the egg prices that CEMA sets."

Granted, the government has a responsibility to support our agriculture. But the Americans have been dumping their eggs in Canada and undercutting the market of Canadian producers, then Mr. Whelan's course might have been justified.

But nobody on the government side nor on the producers' side has charged U.S. egg exporters with dumping.

A more likely explanation is that CEMA is being run by egg producers primarily for their own benefit. With Mr. Whelan's firm support, they are apparently bent on creating a shortage of eggs so as to "stabilize" that is, increase their selling prices.

The history of CEMA is marked with examples of bungling and something bordering on contempt for consumers.

But the government, clearly, will not tolerate a truly free market.

At the very least, then, Ottawa should require CEMA to implement the recommendations of the parliamentary committee that has investigated the agency's operations, or else explain the delay.

It should make public CEMA's figures on the cost of egg production and also its uniform pricing formula, so that consumers can judge whether egg prices are reasonable.

And it should put an end to the secrecy surrounding CEMA's operations and procedures. As long as that secrecy continues, shoppers will suspect that they are being gouged.

We do owe something to our food producers—just as we do to those who meet our needs in health, energy, transportation and so on.

But that debt is not unlimited, despite what Mr. Whelan thinks.

Let's have less secrecy and protectionism, more competition and consideration for the concerns of the hard-pressed consumer.

Sexism - Even At the Zoo

Letter to
The Globe and Mail

I am dismayed to find that, during International Women's Year, when women are supposedly doing away with sexrotes, the Metropolitan Toronto Zoo is at present showing an advertisement on TV running: "Daddy is going to take us to the zoo tomorrow."

(1) It once again makes Daddy into the person that takes the children on special outings.

(2) It makes it extremely difficult for the many sole-support mothers to explain to their children why their Daddy is not about to take them to the zoo tomorrow. (3) Who, but the specially privileged, can afford to take their children to the zoo?

Believe me, I speak from experience, I am a sole-support mother, with a large family. I would love to take my children to the zoo tomorrow, but I'll be working at Interval House, which happens to be a shelter for battered women, specifically intended for sole-support mothers and their children whose "Daddies" are not about to take their children to the zoo tomorrow, either.

Mrs. Peron Backs Down

Montreal Gazette

Peronism and Mrs. Peron have come full circle several times in separate ways. The quarrel, as in so many uneasy marriages, was over money. Mrs. Peron has backed down from her tough line on wage increases, and the General Confederation of Workers has called off its general strike, but it should not underestimate things can scarcely be the same.

Mrs. Peron exercised her presidential authority and her popularity as head of Peron's political heir against the militantly conservative labor movement that was his chief support, and she lost. She has the handsome figure head.

Political assassinations — about 500 since Juan Peron died — have been a feature highlight the news from Argentina, but the economy has been Mrs. Peron's main problem. Its inflation rate is the worst easily not of her making. Argentina, like Australia, New Zealand, Cuba or the Montreal Olympics, has coasted along on the oil, cold and grain boom of recent months to make silk purses out of sows' ears.

As a result, the country is almost bankrupt. Its natural resources to pay off large foreign loans, and it is bedeviled by an inflation rate of close to 200 per cent annually. Cattle exports, long a major source of earning, are at present at their lowest level in a century.

Faced with all that, Mrs. Peron at the end of last month launched into the old populist formula in favor of austerity. She devalued the peso by 50 per cent, allowed the price of petrol, particularly oil, to rise sharply, and put a relatively limited wage increases to 50 per cent now and 40 per cent later in the year. The unions, which recently had negotiated raises of as much as 130 per cent, not unexpectedly refused to buy it.

Report Shows Sexual Crimes On the Increase in Trenton

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Rape and other sexual offences more than doubled in 1974 amid a general increase in criminal activity in Trenton, a police report released this weekend reveals.

The report breaks down the nature of 11,723 occurances investigated by Trenton's 25-man police force in 1974 and -notes a five per cent rise in offenses covered by Canada's Criminal Code.

Criminal offenses, states the report, rose by 27 to 1,616 last year. Among them was an attempted murder and 13 robberies, up from three in 1974.

Four rape cases were recorded in 1973 figures. Sexual offenses totalled 16 last year compared to nine in 1973.

Car thefts numbered 81 last year and all but two vehicles were recovered in owners.

Although break and entry offenses remained stable at 189, thefts rose 13 per cent to 357 last year over 1973.

The value of stolen property was estimated at $152,000 A high percentage ($112,000) of stolen goodi was returned to owners.

Chief Saunders writes that of the detectives' 460 cases, 185 people investigated were either directly involved or associated with illegal drugs.

He notes that 84 charges were laid in drug related investigations.

"The major investigation," he says, "was due to intelligence reports that drug trafficking was becoming prevalent in Trenton, and underc- cover operations were maintained for--it's months".

Raids April 8th last year of five Trenton residences netted police seven people who were subsequently charged with conspiracy to traffic in marijuana, trafficking in marijuana, possession and hashish

Dinner for 700 Hectic Business

TRENTON — In one of the hot summer kitchens at CFB Trenton, students plunge their arms to their elbows in dishwasher.

Grills with a dexterous hand dozens of hamburger patties on a grill. Or serve meals to cadets from steam tables in the other ranks' mess.

It's all part of the job. Twenty-nine students, three o- them women, are working at the base for six to eight weeks this summer.

And base food services officer, Capt. Tommy Robinson, is pleased with them.

She calls them eager, interested reliable an din possession of "enough energy to do the job."

The work the students do is taking the place part of a brigade of 60 people hired during the summer to feed an extra 700 meals daily. Of those meals, about 230 belong to the cadets at Test City.

Those 60 people, added to the usual kitchen and mess staff, are divided unequally between the officers' mess (17) and the other ranks' mess (43), where the cadets eat.

That influx of staff presents problems, according to Capt. Robinson.

Of her regular staff, only 34 are military and are there fore supervisors. She says she is forced to stretch her supervisory staff over the civilian staff, it makes for more work, and harder work.

Meals, still "good and substantial," are not as varied. Because of the number of months to feed and the mealtime deadlines the kitchens have, the choices are restricted.

Sailboat Hits Shoal

LONG POINT — A Weston, Ont., couple, their daughter and a family friend were rescued Saturday from the shoals of Gull Point near here after their sailboat ran aground.

Peter Jarvis, his wife Beverley, their daughter Nancy and friend Mary Zambon, Toronto, were sailing east, when their boat hit a shoal off Gull Point at 10.30 am.

The sailboat was freed from the shoal by Art Minaker of Cherry Valley, who smailed Mr. Jarvis in pulling the vessel off the rocks.

AMELIASBURGH — A Doo Mills man has been charged with possession of stolen goods following recovery of tires reported missing in Amelisburgh last September.

Anthony John Robi- was charged after Donald Dutmage, of Amelisburgh, owner of the tires reported seeing them in the fourth concession of Amelisburgh, this weekend.

Value of the tires was estimated at $100.

Cadets Set Sail

BIG ISLAND — It was anchors aweigh this weekend as 12 members of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Quinte set sail from Belleville FriDday and made the eight-mile trip to Bayerest Marina, Big Island. The 12 cadets, most of whom were 13 years of age, arrived at the marina in three petrels and one whaler for a weekend camping expedition.

Purpose of the trip said Commanding Officer Barry Bevvan of Belleville, was to try out the new petrels.

Mr. Bevvan said that the Quinte Sea Cadet Corps functions throughout the year in an effort to instruct the members in seamanship and leadership.

One member, Peter Beninger, Belleville, described the Sea Cadets as "a bit of fun and very educational."

"We have to write exams," said Peter, "and we learn a considerable amount about the different parts of a boat, how to tie knots and the history of the navy."

Mishaps On Rise

TRENTON — Motor vehicle mishaps and personal injuries are on the rise here according to the 1974 annual report released by the Trenton police department this weekend.

Personal injury in the 315 collisions in Trenton in 1974 jumped by 12.5 per cent from 1973. In all, 151 people required some form of treatment for injuries sustained in car collisions.

Only one fatality was recorded last year the same as in 1973.

There were 491 collisions in 1974 up from 364 in 1973. Of these, 166 were classed as "non-reportable", a collision in which damage is less than $200, no one is injured, and no property, other than the vehicles, is damaged.

Non-reportable accidents fell 218 in 1973 while reportable collisions more than doubled to 315, from 154 in 1973.

Unbaked cookies sound like a great idea for hot weather treats, Sharon Crawford makes these, as did her mother and her mother's mother and they're popular with husband Gord, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford and 18-month-old Chad live on the Old Kingston Road. Camping and snowmobiling are their hobbies.

Unbaked Cookies

three cups oatmeal
one cup shredded coconut
½ cup butter
¼ cup milk
two cups sugar
five tbsp cocoa vanilla

In a large bowl, mix oatmeal and coconut. Place butter, milk, sugar and cocoa in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Boil hard exactly two minutes. Remove from heat and add vanilla to taste. Pour liquid over coconut and oatmeal mixture and then drop by teaspoons on waxed paper. Cool.

Kuntze — Reid

On June 14, at Eastminister United Church, Margaret Anne Edith Reid and Richard John Kuntze exchanged wedding vows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Reid of RR 2 Belleville and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kuntze.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown with a salt molded bodice appliqued around the neckline. The stand-up collar was edged with Alencon lace in a V design and the long sleeves were caught up at the wrist with matching lace. The full skirt fell in soft folds into a chapel train. A headpiece of satin flowers and chiffon petals held a four-tier scalloped shoulder-length veil, and the bouquet was red roses and pink daisy mums.

The matron of honor, Karen Bittle, wore a pink silk gown, a wide-brimmed hat trimmed with daisy mums, and carried matching bouquet in pink and blue flowers.

The bride's attendants, her sister Helen Sills and her sister-in-law Lynn Reid wore matching gowns of blue silk in a floral design and wide-brimmed hats with daisy trim. They each carried bouquets of pink and blue mums.

The best man was Robert Lodolph with Douglas Reid the bride's brother, and Donald Kuntze the groom's brother, serving as ushers.

The reception was held at the Elk's Lodge with a dinner and dance.

The couple travelled to Florida and on their return will reside at 131 Bridge St. E.

Pill Attacked

TORONTO (CP) — Joan Harrington of Calgary, a part-time marriage counsellor, said Sunday that women, especially those 30 years old and younger, are being exploited by men.

Speaking to a weekend conference at Birthright, an organization with chesters in Canada and the United States which describes itself as offering an alternative to abortion, Mr. Harrington said that "these young girls are being put on the pill and the IUD, and it is all being given to them in the name of freedom."

Mr. Harrington, a father of seven, predicted that girls advised to go on the pill are going to come back in 20 years and they will "become very angry at the medical profession for having sold them out."

Members of Birthright serve as volunteer counselors to pregnant girls and women in need of shelter and moral support while waiting the birth of reals. their babies.

BRIAN EDWARD RUTTER graduated May 21 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Mathematics at Queen's University, Kingston. He will take his masters of Business Administration at Queen's University, Kingston September.

RIVER VALLEY W I

Marion Richardson was hostess for the July meeting of the River Valley Women's Institute at the centre, Wendy Neale, recreation director for Sidney Townships was guest speaker.

June Wood and five members of the girls' 4-H Club gave a demonstration of food, and Florence MacMullen displayed several items of literature from Abbott Leigh, England. The English Women's Institutes are celebrating their 60th anniversary this year, since they were first organized by a visiting Canadian, Mrs. Alfred Watts, in 1915.

Protein Extracted

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — In the continuing quest for new sources of protein, a University of Wisconsin chemist has developed a method of extracting protein from oats. The new mixture yields a layer of more than 50-per-cent protein, which can be used to fortify snack foods, bread and breakfast cereals.

Orangewomen on the March

Nearly 1,000 Orangemen paraded triumphantly through downtown Belleville Saturday, celebrating the Protestant plunder of Catholic forces at the 1690 Battle of the Boyne. Also on parade were the women's affiliate of the Orange Lodge, Ladies Orange Benevolent Association. It was the first such parade to be held in Belleville in more than 20 years.

Sandercock — Weese

The June 21 wedding of Cynthia Kim Weese and George Donald Sandercock took place in Grace United Church in Trenton. Rev. Frank Hobbs officiated at the service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Weese of RR3, Belleville and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sandercock of RR3, Trenton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin gown trimmed with white daisies, with a long flowing veil also trimmed with daisies. She carried red sweetheart roses with ivy and baby's breath.

The bride's sister, Debra Weese, was the maid of honor in a blue floral gown. She wore a large floppy hat to match and carried mums and carnations.

Bridesmaids were Joanne Wetherall, Karen Dawson, and Cathy Ladrew, in gowns the same as the maid of honor's but in yellow, pink and beige respectively. They carried similar flowers and wore similar hats.

Rodney May was the groom's best man, and his ushers were Richard Cunningham, Lee Sandercock and Jim Sandercock.

After a cold buffet at the Trenton Country Club, the newly-married couple travelled west on their honeymoon. They now live at 62 Edward Street, in Trenton.

Art Exhibit Features Women's Work

TORONTO (CP) — The brightly-lit, spacious Shaw-Rimmington Gallery is filled this summer with art works in different mediums at a special show.

One factor is distinct about the exhibit—all the artists are women.

Originally scheduled for a two-week exhibit in recognition of International Women's Year, the 25-woman artist show has been extended throughout the summer.

"It's the first time so many women artists are under the same roof in such a space," said Marie Shaw-Rimmington, owner of the gallery.

"We didn't do it for material gain. We did it to promote women artists."

The gallery, located on a small city side-street, houses three rooms, a sculpture garden and a tea floor.

The exhibit spreads throughout the gallery. Wall hangings, ceramic pottery, lithographs, large paintings, jewelry, quilting and sculptures all blend together.

Some artists volunteered to participate from out-of-town.

Marjon Kastanyol, a well-known sculptor, is exhibiting pieces. Several British Columbia artists are also participating.

Rita Forrest, who founded The Print Gallery in Victoria, is exhibiting water colors. Mary Valkichumo, a former stage actress from Vancouver now living in Toronto, is showing appliqued wall hangings and Gwen Curry from Brentwood Bay displays etchings in the gallery.

Most of the artists have exhibited in other galleries and some of their works are in museums, hospitals and other locations.

Colee Fester, exhibiting woven hangings, said she just completed an International Women's Year arts collective show.

"Not only are we getting publicity for women artists," she said. "But we are getting attention as artists.

"Once all this focus on women is over, and some are weeded out, I think we'll have an increase of talented artists known."

Several of the artists demonstrated their craft at the gallery yesterday.

The Ontario Hooking Craft, Guild demonstrated rug hooking. Selma Gilpin showed jewelry making and Didy Erb with Rev Guy gave a culinary arts lesson.

Tracy Maclachlan, dressed in a handmade robe she made, sat at a large loom demonstrating weaving techniques. Directly across from her, Elsie Simon cut glass and showed patterns for stained glass masks and mobiles.

A multi-medium art exhibition by 26 women artists at Shaw-Rimmington Gallery in Toronto began as a two-week showing in recognition of International Women's Years. But public response was so great that the exhibition has been extended throughout the season. Sculptor Frances Gage, whose works are presently on exhibit at Shaw-Rimmington Gallery, works on a new piece at her Toronto studio. (CP Photo)

Television's Female Stars Warm and Not Threatening

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What does television have that motion pictures don't? A flock of female superstars.

Women like Mary Tyler Moore, Carol Burnett, Valerie Harper, Cher, Beatrice Arthur, Angie Dickinson, Elizabeth Montgomery, Lucille Ball. They draw huge TV audiences.

There are star actresses in films, certainly, but only one, Barbra Streisand, is considered a heavyweight today in terms of boxoffice drawing power.

Why the disparity?

There are several reasons, including the number and type of films being made these days, but the main reason arises from a basic difference between the two mediums: movies, for most people, tend to be special events while television is a daily fixture.

Movies, with their enormous screens, tend to be bigger than life in both stories and characters. Television material, both in subject matter and treatment, tends to be scaled down to a much more "ordinary" level for the small screen.

The result, contends Ethel Winant, head of casting and talent for CBS, is that women do television can emphasize warmth and vivaciousness rather than glamour and eccentricity, which the big screen seems to demand.

Of the female powerhouses on television, she observes:

"They're all easy to know. They come into your living room as guests and you could conceive of meeting them and sitting down to coffee."

What it boils down to, she believes, is that these women are not threatening to the viewers at home — women or men. She illustrates the difference between female movie stars and female television stars for the average woman in the audience this way:

"If Elizabeth Taylor or Barbra Streisand was coming over for dinner, she'd feel like she had to go out and buy a new dress, get her hair done, run next door to borrow a friend's jewelry and get someone else to cook dinner.

"But if Mary or Carol or Bea were coming over, she'd say come as you are, bring your own cocktail or meeting them and sitting down to coffee."

What it boils down to, she believes, is that these women are

Ann Landers

Son Starts School Soon

Dear Ann Landers: I hope all those people who think living together is as good as, or better than, getting married will read this letter—and think again. I am in such a trap and I don't know what to do.

G. and I decided we were in love. He didn't want to get married again after two divorces ("once was a real mess"), and I was OK with me. That was quite all right with me.

Our five-year-old son starts school in the fall. His name is the same as mine, I will have to go to school with him and write on the registration blank, "Mother of John L. and G. O. How will it look?

Should I mention marriage, G. says, "I couldn't think of anything that if you were my legal wife. Let's not spoil our beautiful relationship by getting married. I did that twice."

He really treats me royally, and I do crazy about the boy. "Tell me what to do.—No-Ring Woman

Dear Woman: Give G. 10 days to make up his mind. Either you get a ring on your finger and that piece of paper in your hand, or it's goodbye. And make it stick.

If he loves you and the boy as much as you say, he'll marry you. If not, it's better that you know it now.

Dear Ann Landers: My brother telephoned me last night, quite upset. He said he had just received a note from the principal of his son's school saying Jerry, who is six years old and in the first grade, is known for picking on the other kids and makes a general nuisance of himself. The principal warned him that if Jerry hasn't settled down by the time school starts in the fall, he will be expelled.

Is it possible to expel a first grader? How can Jerry be helped? Concerned Uncle

Dear Uncle: A child whose anti-social behavior disrupts the classroom can be expelled no matter what the age.

Obviously your nephew needs counselling and so do his parents. Children who cannot get along with others and misbehave constantly are troubled. They seek attention outside the home because there are so few rewards IN the home.

It would be helpful if you could establish a close relationship with Jerry so when he feels the need for help he can holler "Uncle!"

Dear Ann Landers: I am very fond of a young man who needs psychiatric help. He has moods that are frightening. Sometimes he becomes so depressed I'm afraid he might take his life. Other times he is euphoric beyond description.

His temper is unpredictable. I never know before we meet whether he is going to be cheerful and affectionate, or glum and rejecting.

I've begged him to seek professional help (he can well afford the best) but he refuses. What can I do?—Plenty Worried

Dear P. L.: Nothing. Unless a person recognizes the need and wants to avail himself of it, it's utterly hopeless. This goes for utterly hopeless. This goes for alcoholics, overeaters, chainsmokers—the whole kit and kaboodle. Nobody changes anybody. People have to change themselves. And it's the hardest work there is.

'Era Ends' In Schools

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — At the end of June this year a pile of the Rochford Square School will be transferred to other schools in the province, ending an era in the city's educational system.

The school on Pownal Street is housed in a building which, yet, one of the oldest landmarks of Christianity in Prince Edward Island.

The central section was built in the late 1700s in St. Andrews, P.E.I. After serving as a parish church for 60 years it was offered to the Bishop of Charlottown for sale as a school.

Designers Invited

MONTREAL (CP) — Seven leading Canadian fashion designers will show their creations at Yugoslavia's third annual Modefest, the international fashion festival at Trogir, Yugoslavia, Aug. 10-17. Du Pont of Canada, working with the Fashion Designers' Association of Canada has invited Tom D'Auria, Leo Chevalier, Elvira, Pat McDonogh, Nicola Pelly, Michel Robichaud and John Warden to show designs at the event.

Contraceptives Banned

RYADH, Saudia Arabia (AP) — The use of contraceptives here has been banned following a ruling by the World Moslem League that "birth control was invented by the enemies of Islam." Officials said that the decree makes smuggling pills or any contraceptive device into the country, punishable by six months in prison.

Parties Attack Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — The opposition plans a concerted attack this week on the government's 10-cents-a-gallon excise tax on gasoline for personal use.

Spokesmen for the Progressive Conservatives and the New Democrats say the debate may take most, if not all, of the week.

This means there is little hope of the House recessing this week so MPs can go home for summer vacations.

Mitchell Sharp, government House leader, has said he wants the Commons to deal with the excise tax changes to the Unemployment Insurance Act, the Public Service Staff Relations Act and the ... before the Commons rises.

While the government wants Parliament to stay in session ... excise tax becomes ... it will be cumbersome ... progress with the other bills.

PCs to Elect Leader

OTTAWA (CP) — About 2,600 ... Progressive Conservative delegates will gather in Ottawa next February to choose a successor to Robert Stanfield as party leader.

Mr. Stanfield, 61, will step down at that time after 8½ ... as leader. The former Nova Scotia premier, making it clear he will not enter the contest, last week asked the party executive to set the convention date.

Party president Michael Meighen, after a three-hour meeting of the 26-member executive committee, said reservations have been made for Feb. 18-22, but added it will not be a five-day convention. Firm dates are to be set later.

Economic and political considerations had led the executive to choose Ottawa over Winnipeg as the location for the convention.

Party Seeks Investigation

ROME (AP) — The Italian Communist party denied Sunday it ever received contributions from the Exxon Corp. and called for a full investigation into the case.

"Not only our hands but also the coffers of the Italian Communist party are clean," the party newspaper Unita said in a front-page editorial.

The United States oil firm said Saturday it had authorized its Italian affiliate, Esso Italiana, to make political contributions of $3 million a year between 1963 and 1971. Another $19 million to $22 million had been made by the managing director of Esso on his own authority, Exxon announced in a statement.

Napanee Repeats as Tourney Champion

The dramatic ending of Saturday's Second annual McDonald's Squirt Softball Tournament could have been right off the stage in Strat-ford-upon-Avon, but it was acted out right on the ball diamond at Alemeda Park.

With a three-run homer in the bottom of the seventh frame by Doug Weese, Napanee Ryans defeated Second look the tourney for the second straight year, with a come-from-behind 8-7 win over Alderwood, the team from Agincourt in Toronto.

Alderwood had gone into the bottom of the seventh, with a 7-5 lead riding on the arm of Ed Kasteik, still firing the strong game he had thrown throughout.

Mike Foley, the ninth hitter in the Napanee lineup, led off the last chance for Napanee with a single, with Jackie McKittrick moving him to second, gaining first himself with Gordon Fielder's choice. Kasteik fanned the next batter, but then Fred Weese, Doug Weese's brother, walked.

Weese had already pounded a three-run homer in the fifth and a double and single as well, and came through once with the runners on base, counting for four runs-batted-in.

His batting prowess also showed in the team's opener against Richmond Hill where he clouted two doubles and a single to get an RBI. He also threw the win, stopping the strong Richmond Hill team on only four hits while setting 10 down on third strikes.

The Most Valuable Player on the Consolation side of the Tournament was Rick Semeniuk of Bridlewood, who notched his team to the B title, in allowing eight hits in the final, he set nine back on third strikes, walking only one.

He also had two other wins in the tourney, a 5-4 win over Richmond Hill, and an 11-3 victory over North Bramalea.

In these contests, he had a four hitter and made 12 and 14 respectively, collecting strikeouts, and shared the opening loss to Eringate with Parkie Baile, striking out five to three innings.

Napanee catcher Mike Foley slides into third base in the bottom of the seventh inning after reaching on a single, to start the comeback rally that helped Napanee Ryans' take their second straight McDonald's Squirt Tournament, Saturday. Alderwood's third baseman Bob Rose is too late to tag Foley, taking the throw from second baseman Greg Walton on a fielder's choice by Jackie McKittrick.

Macs' Jim Chase Logs Squad's Fourth Win

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

The Belleville McDonald's proved on Saturday night that, on any given night, one team can beat another, regardless of the standings.

The Macs took the London Dukes 4-1 in the second game of the Ontario Fastball League doubleheader in London, after losing the first 3-0.

Sunday night in Kitchener nothing seemed to go right for the Belleville squad, as they worked hard, but still came out 1-0 losers.

Kitchener jumped on Scott Reid, Belleville's starter, in the first inning, coming up with a run on Jim Bowman team's leadoff double and John Murdoch's hard hit single and a Belleville error.

Things went downhill from there, as the Kitchener team scored another run off Reid and he had to be relieved by Jimmy Chase.

Chase gave up three runs in five innings. He allowed five Kitchener hits and walked three batters.

The loss went to Reid, while the win went to Terry Gallenoe, who gave up only three hits.

Belleville never got an offensive drive going, as Steve Ling, Carl Goodfellow, only Chris Carlton were the only batters to get safeties, and they never got past second.

In London on Saturday night Belleville pitcher Ted Hawely and Jim Chase gave up just three hits in two full games.

In the first game Wallie fired his two-hitter at London, who still ended up losing 3-0.

The first two London runs scored on an error, with Bruce Everett's single bringing the two runners around.

The other London hit was a home run by Bob Moggach, his third of the season, to give London the three runs.

Belleville had two hits off Weaver Mello Smith, Steve Ling and Frank Robinson both singled, while Carlton got all the way to third in the first inning on Szeryk's throwing error.

In the second game, It was Belleville's turn to jump all over a pitcher, as the Macs scored a run in the first when Ling singled and moved over to second on Terry Meagher's bunt. Larry Mavety hit a hard single to score Ling and give the Macs what was to be the winning run.

Chase never had any problems with the Londonderbats, as he silenced them with a one-hit performance.

Chase used an assortment of pitches and his own experience to keep London batters off balance, he only struck out four batters, but he kept the other hitters from getting anything with substantial power.

The only London hit came from Dick Hames, who came in to relieve Don Scotland, the Duke's starter.

Belleville had one of their best offensive nights to date.

Safeties for the Macs came from Carleton, Ling, Paul Goodfellow, Boomhower and Robinson, all with singles.

Hawely had a double and a single, while Chase hit two singles to help himself to the win.

All in all, it was one of the best games the McDonald's have played all year, and it proved they can go with any team.

As the London Free Press said, "One more team in the league and the Belleville McDonald's will be contenders for first place".

SLICES — Three Belleville players have been named in the final Division all star-team of the Ontario Fastball League. The game will be played Saturday in St. Catharines.

The three Belleville players are catcher Jimmy Harvey, who already has four homers and 16 runs batted in, first baseman Frank Robinson and shortstop Paul Goodfellow, who leads the league in doubles, and is second in triples. The three were voted to the team by their fellow players in the OFL, although their own teammates could not vote for them.

DAT Investors is a new sports company set up in Belleville, and will be helping to finance the Macs. What it is a combination of the three people involved. They are Dale Dorrel and Doug Adams, co-owners of the Macs, and a new partner, Bob Dorrel.

"We plan to back a number of major sports projects over the next few years," said Adams at the first meeting of the Belleville area.

The Macs have signed a new coach, Don Gavey, who at this time is tied up in family business, and will not be able to join the team until next week when the Macs play here against Toronto. Gavey will assist Harold Reid More on the new coach later in the week.

Berth in Provincial Final

Branch 99 Peewees Capture Legion Title

PETERBOROUGH — Belleville Branch 99 captured the District championship in the Royal Canadian Legion peewee baseball playoffs here, Saturday, blanking Oshawa 2-0 after slipping by Peterborough Branch 110 6-3.

The title earns Branch 99 a berth in the Provincial Final Tournament scheduled for Newmarket, August 8-9.

Glenn McQuaid provided the heroics for a ballclub Belleville team in the final with Oshawa.

He not only went the distance to log the win but broke the game open in the first extra inning with a double after the clubs had battled through seven scoreless innings.

McQuaid finished up with a sixth one-hitter while striking out five and walking two.

John Samaniuk took the loss on a three-hitter. He fanned nine and walked four.

The only Oshawa hit was an eighth inning single by Chris Smith.

Adding Belleville singles to McQuaid's double were Brian Crookright and John Dent.

Each team was charged with only one error in the well-played contest.

Branch 99 was in trouble in the ninth with Trenton when the Branch 110 squad broke out for a pair of runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to overcome a 3-1 deficit and get an even terms. But the Belleville team locked it up with a single counter in the seventh.

Winning pitcher Tony Parks went the distance on a fine pitching performance. He struck out three and walked two. Steve Smith worked the first six innings for Trenton, holding Belleville to three hits while fanning three and walking two.

Bob Alexander came on in relief in the ninth and reclaimed three strikeouts while walking one and allowing one hit.

Sharing the winners' hits were Crookright, Dent, Charlie Doran and Matt Whitley.

Barry McIntosh helped himself to three Trenton singles, four Glenn claimed a triple while Bruce McKechnie and Steve Whyte each bagged a double.

Peterborough, host for the District playoff as winner in 1974, did not field a team for the competition.

Midgets Score In PENSSL

The Yardmen Midgets of the Belleville Edward North Sports league had no problem proving their worth on Saturday night, as they won 11-3 over Picton.

Danny Vance took the win, giving up three hits and three walks while striking out seven.

Pat Miracle was saddled with the loss, giving up nine hits and eight walks. He struck out six.

Scott Bowes homered and singled for the winners while Dale Vance had two singles.

Picton scored in the second on two errors and a double by Dave Hall.

Pitchers Take MVP Awards

Although Alderwood pitcher Ed Kasteik was the victim of Doug Weese's seventh inning dramatics for Napanee, he was chosen the Most Valuable Player in the A side of the Squirt Softball McDonald's Squirt Tournament.

Kasteik appeared to have things under control in the final, going into the bottom of the seventh with a two-run lead before Weese unloaded the shot to centre field. He had taken over for Alderwood in the fifth after Weese had tagged starter Buck Hutchings for his first four bagger.

In his two and a third innings in the final game,he fanned six batters, while giving up two hits and walking none, also adding a single to the offensive cause.

In their semi-final game with Eringate, Kasteik had stopped them on three hits while picking up nine whiffs. He was deadly at the bat, with a home run, triple, and double, accounting for four runs-batted-in.

His batting prowess also showed in the team's opener against Richmond Hill where he clouted two doubles and a single to get an RBI. He also threw the win, stopping the strong Richmond Hill team on only four hits while setting 10 down on third strikes.

The Most Valuable Player on the Consolation side of the Tournament was Rick Semeniuk of Bridlewood, who notched his team to the B title, in allowing eight hits in the final, he set nine back on third strikes, walking only one.

He also had two other wins in the tourney, a 5-4 win over Richmond Hill, and an 11-3 victory over North Bramalea.

In these contests, he had a four hitter and made 12 and 14 respectively, collecting strikeouts, and shared the opening loss to Eringate with Parkie Baile, striking out five to three innings.

Foxboro Nips Deseronto

blanked Shannonville 9-0.

Ted Foster and Ron McTaggart pitched Foxboro to victory giving up three hits, three walks and striking out six combined.

Gord Kummert did a good job for the losers, giving up eight hits while walking three and striking out six batters.

Foxboro scored twice and singled for the winners, while Farley Vader doubled and singled and Foster had two singles.

Wayne Brant and Denny Reynolds provided for the losers.

Bob Reid took the Latta win, giving up three hits and a run while striking out eight.

The loss went to Mike Walsh, who gave up seven hits and six runs while striking out six.

Farley Ray doubled and singled for the winners, and Roger Ray tripled.

Phil Badgeley had a triple for the losers, while Walsh singled.

Garney Adams took the loss in relief, as the consecutive shutout, striking out 10 batters.

The loss went to Tim Reid and Glen Barbierstock who gave up nine hits and three walks.

John Tweedy had three singles for the winners while Warren Hay came up with two doubles.

Mike Brant singled as did Barberstock for the losers.

Hellenic Gets Job Done But Olympics Are Nipped

Quinte Hellenic and Belleville Olympics were busy in Premier Soccer League competition on the weekend. Hellenic scored a 5-2 victory over Thorncrest Ferma, in Toronto, while Olympics fell in Kingston Sunday, with Portuguese Canadians scoring the winning time.

The Hellenic win was decided on penalty shots after the teams finished the regulation minutes all even at 1-1.

Sandy Duckart was the Hellenic marksman in regulation time and he also clicked for one in the penalty shot competition. Others connecting on shots in the penalty spot were Andy Stavrou, George Lalanas and Nick Milonas.

Tim Kingston, Portuguese reared into a 3-0 lead in the first 30 minutes on goals by Peter Landa, Manuel Contreras and Ramos.

Olympics came right back with a display of power of their own in the first few minutes with two goals coming from Paul Bartlett, one off the other by Eugene Courtney.

Bantams One Win Away

The Belleville Bantam All Star team needs two of their three games at the Amesbury Tournament, on the weekend.

The first game was a 5-0 victory over Bramalea, with Tim Soule hurling the victory.

Soule gave up just two hits in the shutout and walked two while striking out 13 batters.

Pat O'Brien of Bramalea was saddled with the loss.

Paul Morrison smacked a homer and, a triple, while Ward Morrison came up with a homer and a single in the win. Andy Ronat hit a double and a single for the other Belleville batter.

The second game was a little closer, as Belleville just got by Galt 3-2, with Rick Tripp picking up the win.

Tripp gave up seven hits and no walks while striking out five batsmen.

Mike Bennett took the loss.

Tripp doubled while Andy Ronat, Morrison and Rob Begg, all singled.

The final game for Belleville was against North Bendale, as they were defeated 7-0.

Soule pitched well, giving up seven hits and five walks, while striking out eight. Belleville made four errors.

The win went to Barry Holt of the North Bendale team.

Morrison led the Belleville team with a pair of the loss.

He smacked three singles.

BEGINS COMEBACK

SLAVE LAKE, Alta. (CP) — Al Ford of Edmonton, former Canadian middleweight and lightweight boxing champion, began a comeback Saturday night after a five-year layoff. He posted an easy decision over Jo Jo Jackson of Montreal. Ford was knocked down in the fourth round by Jackson but came back with a right to the body to win the bout. The 10-rounder, considered a tuneup for bouts with Jackson and Johnny Summerhays of Brantford, Ont., was refereed by Jimmy Ross and Barry Sawgoose of Picton, N.S.; the top challenger.

LED ALL THE WAY

NEW YORK (AP) — Dearly Precious led all the way Sunday to win Bedwell Fell's Astoria Stakes for two-year-old fillies by a length straight while covering the mile in stakes record time of 1:33 4/5 for seven furlongs on the fast main track at Aqueduct. Dearly Precious, ridden by Jacinto Vasquez, paid $5.60, $3.40 and $2.80 to win. Miss Bonnie Bell was second, paying $4.20 and $3.60, and Sandy Tuck was third, paying $6.00. Dearly Precious, a daughter of Precipitation, earned $30,000 for her owner-breeder, Mrs. Richard E. Bailey-owned winner defeated Bwamazon Farm's Old Quest by 1½ lengths. Bwamazon Farm's Sandy Duck finished third. Dearly Precious paid $2.10 and $2.10 in the two-dollar pari-mutuel match race.

FINISHES THIRD

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (CP) — Richel Bay, owned by Quebec City businessman Gaston Gagnon, finished third in the $2,000 third-place money in the Adirondack Grand Circuit pacing stakes at Lake Placid Saturday night. Valiancourt, riding Damodil, had a time of 46.5 seconds and four faults to finish behind winner Joe Fargis of Virginia and Buddy Brown of Tennessee in the feature event of the 16-day Lake Placid horse show. Fargis, riding Caesar, had a time of 43.7 seconds with no faults to win $4,500. Brown, aboard A Little Bit, finished in 43.8 seconds with four faults to win $3,000.

Evans 'Steals' Game With Alert Running

ATLANTA (AP) — Montreal Expos learned the hard way Sunday never to trust Atlanta's Darrell Evans, who stole a National League baseball game for the Braves with his alert baserunning.

The action was rookie second baseman Pete Mackanin of the Expos, who turned his back on Evans in the 14th inning, allowing the Atlanta third baseman to score the winning run in a 5-4 victory over the Expos.

The win, Atlanta's third in the four-game series with the Expos, was set up when Evans drew a no-out walk from reliever Don DeMola, 3-4.

After Earl Williams fouled out, Mike Lum drifted a hit to right field and a sliding Evans beat the throw to Larry Parrish at third with Lum taking aid for second.

Parrish threw to Mackanin at second trying to get Lum, and Evans took off running to easily beat Mackinin's throw home.

"I was going right away," explained Evans afterward. "I was already up from sliding

DARRELL EVANS

(late third) when Mike went second, so I got a good jump.

"He (Mackanin) was waiting, I think, to see if the umpire called Mike safe or out. By that time, he didn't have much chance to get me, because when I took off, Mackanin's back was turned."

Montreal manager Gen Mauch, however, defended his young second baseman.

"I thought Mackanin had dropped the ball, for that's the only way the runner could have been safe," he said. "Mackanin didn't make a mistake in holding the ball, for I'm sure he thought the runner was out, too.

"The umpire just made a slow call."

Williams drove in three of Atlanta's four runs in the first two innings off Montreal starter Steve Rogers on a pair of singles. The other Atlanta run came on an errant pickoff toss by Rogers.

But the Expos, who have now lost six of seven games in the all-star break, tied it in the eighth on Tim Foli's single. Foli also produced a sacrifice fly earlier while Parrish had a run-scoring single and another run came in on a wild pitch.

B.C. Senior Champ

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia All-Stars defeated weary Calgary Jimmies 4-3 Monday to capture the Canadian senior baseball tournament.

The Alberta representatives were playing their sixth game in three days and failed to cop the title for the second year in a row.

That brought Rose to the plate and Rick Baldwin out of the bullpen.

"I did a little research on Baldwin last week," Rose recalled. "I took my buddies, Greg Luzinski and Larry Bowa (of the Phillies), over to my house and showed them some films. And I asked them about Baldwin."

In Sunday's other games, Philadelphia Pirates lost 7-5 to San Diego Padres but retained their five-game East Division edge over Philadelphia Phillies, who lost 9-5 to Houston Astros. Atlanta Braves beat Montreal Expos 5-4 in 14 innings and San Francisco Giants defeated Chicago Cubs 6-1.

On Saturday, the Reds edged New York 3-2, the Cardinals shaded Los Angeles 2-1, the Pirates topped San Diego 8-0, the Phillies beat Houston 9-2, the Braves downed Montreal 8-4 in the first game of a double-header, then lost the second 7-8 and the Cubs downed San Francisco 6-4.

Tom Seaver was cruising along with a 3-0 lead and had allowed the Reds only two singles by Rose before they woke up.

Joe Morgan walked, stole second and scored on Dan Driessen's double. Cesar Geronimo and Dave Concepcion then singled for another run and pitcher Terry Crowley drew a walk, loading the bases.

That brought Rose to the plate and Rick Baldwin out of the bullpen.

"I did a little research on Baldwin last week," Rose recalled. "I took my buddies, Greg Luzinski and Larry Bowa (of the Phillies), over to my house and showed them some films. And I asked them about Baldwin."

A's Are Pulling Away

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oakland A's are starting to pull away from the pack.

Baseball's three-time world champions are not only first in the American League West at the all-star break—but they're first by a whopping 6½ games.

"The pressure is on the other teams now," said Oakland's Bill North after the A's beat the Baltimore Orioles 4-3 Sunday and increased their lead.

The second place Royals dropped another notch behind the A's by losing an 8-4 decision to Detroit. Tigers in another Sunday game, Boston Red Sox improved their lead in the East to 6½ games by whipping Texas Rangers 7-5.

In Sunday's other American League games, Cleveland Indians sipped California Angels 9-7 and Chicago White Sox stopped Milwaukee Brewers 5-0.

Rain forced postponement of action between Minnesota and New York. They were to have completed a game suspended because of the league curfew Saturday night before their regularly-scheduled game.

The Yankees and Twins were tied 6-6 after 14 innings in the Saturday game. In Saturday's other games, Oakland whipped Baltimore 7-1, Detroit blanked Kansas City 2-0, Boston walloped Texas 10-4, Cleveland defeated California 9-1 and Milwaukee edged Chicago 5-4.

Aurelio Rodriguez had three hits and started two rallies as Detroit erased a three-run deficit in the first inning and went on to beat Kansas City.

Rodrigues doubled off loser Dennis Leonard, 5-5, and scored the Tigers' first run on Gary Sutherland's sacrifice fly in the third. He added singles in the next two innings when the Tigers had four and three-run rallies.

His big sensation Fred Lynn drove in four runs and veteran Carl Yastrzemski had five successive hits, leading Boston past Texas for the Red Sox' seventh consecutive victory.

Lynn's first-inning grounder single and Buddy Bell's two-run double highlighted a five-run uprising that carried Cleveland beat California.

It was Cleveland's 12th win in a row over the Angels in Anaheim, equaling the American League mark for consecutive victories against one team on the road.

The New York Yankees did it to the old St. Louis Browns 13 times during 1936-40.

Wilbur Wood pitched a three-hitter and Nyls Nyman drove in two runs, leading Chicago over Milwaukee. Chicago gave Wood, 7-13, all the offense he needed with four runs in the fourth inning.

American League Out for Revenge

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Baseball's 46th all-star game will be staged here Tuesday night with the American League once again seeking to end a National League domination of the mid-season showdown.

AL president Lee MacPhail pledged an all-out effort to beat the Nationals in last summer's game at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium. But the NL prevailed with a 7-2 victory to give it a tie with one NL win in the series that started in 1933. The National League made the game a virtual one-league show for the last dozen years, winning 11 times to take control in a series they once trailed 13-4.

The Americans will attempt to end their all-star frustration with an Oakland A's-New York Yankee dominated lineup featuring five first-time starters and an NL cast that is made up almost entirely of Los Angeles Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds and is virtually the same one that began last year's game.

The first-time AL starters will be catcher Thurman Munson, outfielder Bobby Bonds and third baseman Craig Nettles, along with two Oakland players, pitcher Ross Tenace and outfielder Joe Rudi.

The other AL starters are two more A's, outfielder Reggie Jackson and shortstop Bert Campaneris, and second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota, whose 3,184,614 votes was the highest total for any player in fan balloting.

Opposing the AL starters will be a starting NL lineup popolated almost completely by the Reds and Dodgers. Cincinnati's contingent is headed by catcher Johnny Bench, who led all NL players with 2,830,197 votes. The other Reds are Pete Rose in the outfield and the second baseman-shortstop combination of Joe Morgan and Dave Concepcion.

From the Dodgers, fans elected first baseman Steve Garvey, the most valuable player in last year's game; third baseman Ron Cey and outfielder Jimmy Wynn. Rounding the Dodger-Red contrel of the NL starting team was outfielder Lou Brock of the Cardinals.

Except for Concepcion and Brock, the NL lineup is the same one that opened last year's game. Concepcion beat out Philadelphia's Larry Bowa last year's starter at shortstop, and Brock replaced Hank Aaron, traded to the American League Milwaukee Brewers during the winter.

Opposing managers Walt Alston of the NL and Alvin Dark of the AL will name their starting pitchers on Tuesday, each picked three Dodgers. Don Sutton, Andy Messersmith and Mike Marshall, to head his staff for Alston, and Vida Blue, Jon Matlack of New York Mets, Jerry McGraw of Philadelphia, Jerry Reuss of Pittsburgh, Phil Niekro of Atlanta and Randy Jones of San Diego.

Dark's pitchers include two of his Oakland hurlers, Vida Blue and Ken Holtzman, plus Catfish Hunter of the Yankees, Baltimore's Jim Palmer, Nolan Ryan of California and Chicago's Steve Busby and Jim Kaat and Rich Gossage of the Chicago White Sox.

Bowerman Third in CPGA

Tape Under Pressure But Refuses to Wilt

TORONTO (CP) — As far as Bill Tape is concerned, ignorance is bliss, especially for a young golfer facing the pressure of trying to beat out veteran George Knudson for first money in the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship.

Tape, 28-year-old pro from the Nakina Club at Woodbridge, Ont., charged from three strokes behind to overtake the 38-year-old Knudson on the final five holes of the 72-hole tournament Sunday at Bayview Golf and Country Club.

But he had no thanks for the spectators who informed him that he had drawn even with Knudson on 16 and that, when he got to 18, all he needed was a par to win his first CPGA crown.

"I'd rather have not known," he said. "There was enough pressure without the knowledge. When I got to 18 and learned I was one stroke ahead, my heart started pounding twice as fast. But while I was walking to put, I had a little talk with myself.

"I told myself that even if I missed, there would be a playoff and that took a little pressure off."

As it turned out, he rolled in his three-footer and walked off the green to claim his $7,000 first prize, his biggest payday in seven years as a pro, along with the Labatt's Cup.

Knudson, who has won eight United States pro tournaments and nearly $500,000 during his pro career, had to settle for the $3,250 second prize.

Tape, who came to the final round trailing Knudson and Gary Bowerman of Toronto (formerly of Belleville) by two strokes, had a winning score of 67-71-68-69—275, nine under par on the 6,445-yard par-71 course.

Knudson, who was 10 under par after an eagle on the 495-yard par-five second and birdies on 6, 7 and 12, saw his lead disappear with bogeys on the par-four 418-yard 14th—"not my favorite hole"—and the par-four 385-yard 15th. His scores were 68-72-68-68—276.

In third place, another stroke back, was Bowerman whose 71-70-67-69—277 earned him $2,500, more important, an automatic berth in the Canadian Open in Montreal on July 24-27.

Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., Bob Rose of Hamilton and Wiz Homenuk of Winnipeg tied for fourth with 280 and each won $2,250. Norman decided he did not want to play in the Canadian Open and passed up a chance to play off with Rose and Homenuk for the final exemption, won by Rose on the second hole.

Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., who led for sixth with Frank Whibley at 281, also has a Canadian Open exemption along with Knudson and winner Tape.

Tape, whose only previous Canadian professional tour victory was last year's Manitoba Open, said he thought he had surrendered any hope of winning when he bogeyed the 13th, but he birdied 15 and 16 when Knudson got into the sand and blasted 18 feet past the pin on 16, it was all tied.

Knudson, not wanting to make the same mistake as on Saturday when his second shot was short on 18, hit a eight-iron over the green. His ball hit a spectator and bounced back, saving him from an almost impossible chip.

He still put his third shot eight feet past the pin and when his putt curled past the hole, it left Tape needing only a par to win.

Cindy Nicholas – Channel Challenge

Tides May Postpone Swim

TORONTO (CP) — A bid by Cindy Nicholas of Toronto to swim the English Channel this month could be cancelled or at least postponed because of low temperatures and unsuitable tides.

The 17-year-old high school student, who swam Lake Ontario in record time last summer, flew to London on Sunday night to check channel conditions first-hand. She was accompanied by her father, Jim Nicholas.

"Cindy planned to swim the Channel on July 27," her mother said Sunday night in a telephone interview. "But the trainer we've arranged for is in Fukuoka and is by phone that the tides won't be favorable that day.

"She could go any day from July 17 to 21, if the water warms up and the tides are right."

Mrs. Nicholas said the current water temperature in the Channel is about 15 degrees Celsius but that her daughter would like it to be at least 18.

Miss Nicholas has set a deadline of "early August" as the latest she would challenge the Channel this year.

Winning Boxer Dies

MONTEREY, Mexico (CP) — A young boxer, whose fighting licence had been withdrawn because he had taken too many punches, has died after appearing in the ring under a false name.

Alfonso Diaz Garcia, 22, was a preliminary fighter when he lost his licence. On Friday his manager put him in a 10-round main-bout here under the name of Jose Luis Garcia—and he won over local boxer Abraham Saucedo.

But hours after leaving the ring, Diaz Garcia was rushed to a hospital to be operated on for cerebral hematoma, and died.

The boxer's manager, who was reported to have abandoned his fighter in hospital, was being sought in connection with responsibility for Diaz Garcia's death.

British Open

Watson's Eagle Just One Better

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — Any golfer who birdies Carnoustie's feared par-five 14th hole can feel pleased with himself.

Jack Newton of Australia did it in Sunday's playoff for the British Open. But Tom Watson went him one better. He eagled it.

Watson, who was earning a history of choking in major tournaments, went on to win the crown and he said his eagle chip at the 14th was the stroke that counted the most toward the title.

"I hit a good wood for my second shot, and it landed in short grass just off the green, about 30 feet from the pin," Watson said. "I took a chipping wedge for my third shot and it ended in the hole."

Watson went on to a one-under-par 71 over the 7,063-yard, par-72 course and edged Newton by one stroke.

Carnoustie is a dragon when the wind comes up, but for the first three days there was scarcely a breath of wind. Watson had scores of 71, 67 and 69 on the first three rounds. Newton shot 69, 71 and a course record 65.

Then a westerly wind came up, and in the fourth round, the title was up for grabs as player after player bowed in the stiff breeze. Watson made 72 and Newton, 73.

The scores put them even at 279, one stroke ahead of Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Neil Coles, and they went to an 18-hole playoff.

Sunday the wind blew again, hail from the east.

In the playoff, Watson took the lead with a birdie on the second, then moved two strokes out in front when Newton, an Australian pro who plays the European circuit, bogeyed the third. But Watson bogeyed the fifth and Newton evened it with a birdie on the sixth.

They made the turn in par 36. Newton, who like Watson is 23 and virtually unknown on the international circuit, led briefly when he birdied the 12th, but he lost a stroke at 13.

Then came the 14th which was played with such perfection that either player should have had reason to puff up with pride. As it turned out, the eagle was the margin Watson needed.

He bogeyed the 16th, sending the playoff to the wire.

By the time the two approached No. 18, rain splashed the course and semi many of the spectators scurrying to tents to watch the finale on television.

Watson played it in par. Newton blasted from a bunker beside the green and needed a 12-foot putt to send the playoff into more extra holes.

He missed by inches.

The title, the first major victory in nearly four years as a pro, belonged to Watson, as did the $16,500 first prize. Newton earned the course record and $13,200 as runner-up.

Mann the Leader; Rain Halts Play

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Carol Mann had a one-shot lead over Jan Ferraris when play was suspended Sunday in the final round of a rain-interrupted $65,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

There were three threesomes still on the Riviera Country Club course when Bill Ford, LPGA tournament supervisor, called play. The nine players resumed at 10 a.m. today.

Miss Ferraris, who started the last nine holes trailing Miss Mann by two shots, caught up with the LPGA president with a birdie on the 15th hole, but two holes later, snagged a bogey.

Miss Mann, the first and second-round leader, stood seven under par for the tournament, day.

She was one over for the final round.

Miss Ferraris was three under par for the day and seven under for the tournament.

Sandra Haynie, a Skala finished with a two-under-par 70 and was the closest leader at 211, five under par.

Her stroke back at 212 was Australian Penny Pulz and JoAnne Carner, Both fired 70s for final 18 holes.

At 213 were Sandra Palmer, who had 71, and Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, in with a 69.

Sandra Post, formerly of Oakville, Ont., was one over par with a 217 after shooting a 74 in Sunday's round and a 73 Saturday.

Warriors Stop Excelsiors

VIRGIL, Ont. (CP) — Niagara-Brantford Warriors defeated first-place Brampton Excelsiors 25-18 Sunday at Ontario Lacrosse Association Major games.

The Warriors held a 4-3 lead after the first period and increased the margin to 12-9 after two periods.

Al Thompson and John Mouradian led the winners with five goals each. Mike French scored three, Lou Nowakowski, John Hoculik, Tony Gollan and Willy Walker two each and Bob Bimpson once.

Genois Over Power

HAMILTON (CP) — Dale Power was apologetic after losing to Robert Genois of Quebec in Sunday's singles final in the Ontario Open tennis tournament.

"I'm sorry, Rejean," Power told his opponent. "I didn't give you a very good game."

The Quebec-based Genois, unseeded in the tournament, took little more than an hour to defeat Power of Toronto, No. 2 seed, 6-2, 6-1.

A one-year layoff cost Genois seeding in the tournament. He was Canada's top-seeded player in 1973 and fourth-ranked this year.

To get to Sunday's final, he upset Don McCormick of Vancouver, No. 1 seed in the tournament and tops in the national rankings.

On Saturday, Genois downed Harry Fritz of the United States 6-3, 6-3 and Power was strong in a 6-4, 7-5 triumph over No. 3 seed John Sharpe of Toronto.

"I was really feeling good out there today," said Genois, who thought I was moving around and hitting out there today better than I have before this week ."

In Sunday's other final, Jane O'Hara of Toronto overcame a weak first set to stop second Stone of Vancouver 4-6, 6-2, 6-3 to take the women's title.

In doubles finals, Harry and Guy Fritz overcame Genois and Richard Legendre of Quebec 7-6, 6-2 and Miss O'Hara and Alcelia Spor of the U.S. defeated Mrs. Stone and Andree Martin of Montreal 6-2, 7-6.

After losing her first set, Miss O'Hara played her best tennis in almost flawless style, forcing Mrs. Stone to make a number of errors.

Wings Upset By Bolts

BOSTON (CP) — Ivan Thompson and Brian Davidson scored four goals each Sunday night as Boston Bolts upset Philadelphia Wings 19-14 in National Lacrosse League action.

Charlie Marlowe contributed three goals to the Boston attack, while Jim Wasson and Terry Lloyd had four goals apiece for the Wings. Philadelphia's John Grant scored one and set up six others.

The Bolts had a 48-47 edge in shots on goal in the game before 3,023 fans. Each team was assessed three minor penalties.

Diane Jones Goes over the Bar

Saskatoon Star Takes Pentathlon

WINNIPEG (CP) — Diane Jones of Saskatoon was four of five events to win the women's penta'hlon Sunday at the first annual Canada Inter-regional Decathlon-Pentathlon Championships. Jones accumulated 4,467 points while finishing first in the 100-metre hurdles, shot put, high jump, long jump, in the 200 metres, she tied for third with a time of 25.4 seconds.

Her sister, Joanne, placed second in the overall standings with 3,833 points, followed by Liz McBlain of Edmonton with 3,723 points.

Jones' performance also led the Prairies to victory in the team standings with 12,054 points. Ontario finished second with 10,704 points and Quebec third with 10,083 points. British Columbia was the other region represented in the two-day championships.

All three women, plus fourth-place finisher Sue Summers of Calgary, earned the right to represent Canada in the pentathlon at a track meet in Eugene, Ore., Aug. 9 and 10 against the United States, Soviet Union and Poland.

In the men's division, John Gamble of London, Ont., took individual honors in the 10-event decathlon with 6,674 points. Gord Graham of B.C. was second with 6,536 points and Al Northcott of Ontario third with 6,332 points.

Gamble gained the win by placing first in the 1,500 metres, second in the javelin, and third in both the 400 metres and shot put. He also tied for second in the high jump with a leap of 1.85 metres.

Ontario took top spot in the team standings followed by the Prairies and Quebec.

Fans Force Referee To Abandon Match

TORONTO (CP) — A near riot brought an international soccer game at CNE Stadium to a halt Sunday night.

An estimated 50 policemen along with 12 cruisers were rushed to the stadium when the disturbance broke out with 23 minutes left to play in a game between Toronto Serbian White Eagles and Monterrey of Mexico.

The score was tied 1-1, which gave the Mexicans a 3-1 edge in the two-game, total-goal first-round series in Congress of North-Central American and Caribbean Soccer Federation play.

The uprising began when Dragos Denkowski of Toronto and Gustavo of Monterrey started hacking at one another's legs.

They each started punching and then Denkowski started running for the sidelines. The taller Mexican was in hot pursuit and caught the Toronto player near the touchlines.

Without warning about 100 of the 7,500 spectators rushed the field and police were called. Referee Harry Landauer of San Francisco stood by as players of both teams tossed punches at one another and the fans joined the melee.

Some of the spectators were wielding steel chairs they had picked up at the liner's bench.

Listless Ti-Cats Losers

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats suffered what quarterback Bill Etter called "a total team breakdown" and took a 38-6 trouncing from Calgary Stampeders in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Saturday.

Game statistics reflect the Stampeders' advantage more accurately than the score. Calgary had a total offence of 423 yards and 27 first downs to Hamilton's 72 yards and four first downs.

Etter, ineffective during most of the first half, ascribed his team's defeat to a lack of vitality rather than talent.

"We just looked like we were punching time clocks," he said.

Hamilton managed all four of its first downs during a one-minute stretch late in the second quarter. They had possession in Calgary's territory for five of the game's 134 plays.

The closest the Ticats got to scoring was the Stampeders' 19-yard line, after a fumble recovery by lineb'acker Delaney Morgan, where an Etter pass was intercepted by defensive back Greg Hare.

In contrast, the Calgary offence overwhelmed the Hamilton defence, under the poised, relentless command of quarterbacks Joe Picarek and Karl Douglas.

To add to the aggravation, Hamilton players Dave Easley and Bill Danychuk were injured.

Easley, a defensive back, broke his left arm and will be out of action for six weeks. Danychuck, a defensive tackle, broke a bone in the base of his left thumb, but should be ready to play in the Ticats' regular-season opener July 23 against Montreal.

Biggest man on the night was Calgary's 200-pound running back Willie Burden. He carried 22 times for 169 yards and caught four passes for 43 more. He scored one touchdown and had another disallowed.

Sports Briefs

WINS TRIO

MONTREAL (CP) — Ted Grygier of Ottawa won all three races for no penalty points during the weekend to win the Quebec open shark sailing championship on the nearby Lake of Two Mountains. Maurice St. Onge of Montreal was second with two third-place finishes and a fourth and 19.4 points. Andre Julien, also of Montreal, finished third with two seconds and an eighth and 20 points.

RING CHAMPIONSHIP

QUEBEC (CP) — Andre Gagne of Quebec City shot a Nickawampus Leroy, last in the two-under-par 70 Sunday to win the Duke of Kent golf championship with a record 36-hole total of 136. Gagne's performance erased the mark of 140 set in 1972 by Dan Talbot of Montreal. Que., and gave him his second title. He also won in 1966. Myles Saunders of Pembroke, Ont., shot a 69 Sunday to tie for second with Henry Sebastave of Thetford Mines, Que., who had a second-round 71.

RALLIES IN STRETCH

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Rookie import Mark Green scored Calgary's other touchdown.

Left-footed placekicker Cyril McFall kicked three field goals en route to a 13-point evening. He also kicked two converts and two singles. Ron Southwick's Tiger-Cat single rounded out the scoring.

Hamilton now has an 0-5 record in pre-season play.

Napoles Retains Title

MEXICO CITY (AP) — World Boxing Council welterweight champion Jose Napoles retained his title Saturday night by pounding out a 15-round decision over challenger Armando Muniz of Los Angeles. Both boxers were knocked down in the fourth. Napoles dominated the bout from the early going. He knocked down Muniz with 10 seconds to go in the eighth round with a right jab and a left hook. It was Napoles' 14th defence of the title he won seven years ago and the 83rd professional fight of his 17-year boxing career.

Aces Defeat Jays

Jim Kaat pitched a five-hitter and Bill Robinson drove in three runs with a double and a single as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Montreal Expos 5-1 Sunday.

Kaat, 6-8, struck out seven and walked two in raising his record to 11-6. He retired the last 13 batters he faced.

Robinson's double in the fifth inning scored Jay Johnstone and Dave Cash, who had singled and stolen second. Robinson's single in the seventh scored Cash.

Montreal starter Steve Rogers, 6-7, was the loser.

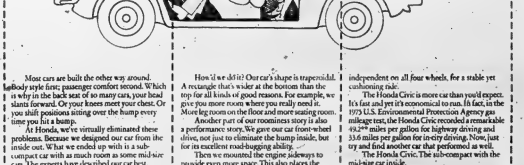
SALES OFFICE: 11 VICTORIA AVENUE - BELLEVILLE

First we built a mid-size car inside. Then we built a sub-compact around it.



Most cars are built the other way around. Nobody style first, passenger comfort second. Which is why in the back seat of so many cars, your head slants forward. Or your knees meet your chest. Or you shift positions sitting over the hump every time you hit a bump.

At Honda, we've virtually eliminated these problems. Because we designed our car from the inside out. What we ended up with is a sub-compact car with as much room as some mid-size cars. The experts have described our car best.

"Many makes talk about small on the outside, big on the inside, but Honda has done it." (Road and Track).

How'd we do it? Our car's shape is trapezoidal. A rectangle that's wider at the bottom than the top for all kinds of good reasons. For example, we give you more room where you really need it. More leg room on the floor and more seating room.

Another part of our roominess story is also performance story. We gave our car front-wheel drive, not just to eliminate the hump inside, but for an excellent road-hugging ability.

Then we mounted the engine sideways to provide even more space. This also places the engine weight directly over the drive wheels for better traction. For added comfort, we equipped the Civic with a McPherson strut suspension, independent on all four wheels, for a stable yet cushioning ride.

The Honda Civic is more car than you'd expect. It's fast and yet it's economical to run. In fact, in the 1975 U.S. Environmental Protection Agency gas mileage test, the Honda Civic recorded a remarkable 40.2 miles per gallon for highway driving and 33.6 miles per gallon for in-city driving. Now, just try and find another car that performed as well.

CP News Roundup

Miss Canada Arrives

SANTA ANA, El Salvador (AP) — A crowd controlled by combat-armed troops waited several hours in the hot sun to welcome seven young women competing for the title of Miss Universe in this small Central American country.

Hear Appeal

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Supreme Court resumed today to begin hearings Aug. 11 on Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's appeal against her conviction for violating election laws.

Rip Van Winkle?

GENOA, Italy (Reuter) — A man who vanished from his home near here nearly 30 years ago and was declared legally dead, was found asleep on a bench at the Genoa railway station Saturday night.

Police said they identified Alberto Thoesca, 48, from a 1946 identity card which he was still carrying.

Security Tightened

LA GRANDE RIVIERE, Que. (CP) — Security measures were tightened Sunday at the LG-3 dam site when Prime Minister Trudeau and Jean-Pierre Goyer, federal supply and services minister, toured the James Bay hydroelectric project by helicopter.

McVean Recovers

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — Bill McVean, a broadcaster with radio station CFRB in Toronto, is in satisfactory condition in North Bay Civic Hospital following the crash of his Nieuport Scout aircraft at the North Bay air show Saturday afternoon.

Kennedy Charged

WOODSTOCK, Va. (AP) — David Kennedy, 20, son of the late senator Robert Kennedy, was charged with reckless driving and failure to have a driver's license and auto registration in his possession Saturday night, police said.

Security Uncertain

MONTREAL (CP) — The participation of Canadian troops in security for the 1976 Summer Olympic Games is still being discussed and no firm decisions have been made on its extent or nature, Defence Forces spokesman said Sunday.

Nurses Settle

TORONTO (CP) — A settlement between the Ontario Nurses Association and 104 hospitals was reached late Saturday under the guidance of provincial mediator Ray Illing.

The tentative settlement has to be ratified by the 19,000 nurses and the board of governors for each hospital. No date for a ratification vote has been indicated.

200 Die

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — At least 200 persons have died and more than a million are homeless after two weeks of monsoon floods affecting large areas of Northern India and parts of the south, latest reports said.

Gains Independence

LISBON (AP) — Portugal's tiny island colony of Sao Tome off West Africa received its independence Saturday after 500 years of Portuguese rule.

Prince Helps

LONDON (AP) — The Sunday Telegraph says Prince Charles has been secretly working and spending his own money to rescue delinquent and poor youngsters from drifting into crime.

Editors Protest

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The American Society of Newspaper Editors has asked Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to stop requiring United States news correspondents to observe her country's censorship laws as a condition for remaining there.

Attendance Down

CALGARY (CP) — The 1975 edition of the Calgary Stampede ended Saturday with attendance well below expectations, even though this is the city's centennial year.

Lottery May Extend Beyond 1976 Games

MONTREAL (CP) — The Olympic lottery has been so successful that it "will continue a long time after" the 1976 Olympic Games, Mayor Jean Drapeau said Saturday.

The lottery, which had been forecast to produce $23 million, has surpassed expectations and revenue estimates now are up to $227 million, he said in a radio interview.

Mr. Drapeau also said there was no contradiction between his statement to the International Olympic Committee last May and the statement to the parliamentary commission recently citing the amount of work lost due to the recent construction strike at the 1976 Olympic Games site.

In May he said that the construction project was not behind schedule. The president of the construction firm told the municipal affairs standing committee in the national assembly Wednesday that the 11-week delay in work can easily be made up and the project had not been adversely affected.

Mayor Drapeau said the statements were not contradictory, but that they complemented each other. His statement had been misinterpreted.

The "modest" increase in the cost was not unrealistic, because of skyrocketing costs everywhere. For example, he said, the French-language newspaper La Presse has raised the cost of its newspaper three and a half times the price it was three years ago.

It was three years ago, he said, that he made the first estimate of costs for the Olympics. The original cost estimate of $310 million has been raised to $714.8 million.

Foreign Cars Cheaper in U.S.

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — British, West German and Italian cars are being dumped in the United States at prices below cost, the president of the United Auto Workers Union (UAW) said Saturday.

Leonard Woodcock called for an investigation by the treasury department and for "due relief" for American car workers.

He said foreign cars that might have been dumped on the American market were the 1975 Volkswagen Rabbit, British Leyland's 1974 Austin Maxina and the 1975 Fiat 128 Coupe.

The 1975 Rabbit two-door models with a 1500-cubic-centimetre engine has a current factory price in West Germany of $4,407, he said. The port of entry retail price of the car in the U.S. was $3,230, including ocean freight and import fees.

Leyland's 1974 Austin Maxina four-door de luxe model carried a factory price of approximately $2,884 in Britain, compared with $2,429 in the U.S.

The Fiat model cost $3,395 wholesale in Italy, compared with the U.S. port of entry retail price of $2,257, he said.

He said the disparities are even greater when the cost of several hundred dollars worth of government-mandated pollution control and safety equipment—not required in the manufacturing countries — are taken into account.

In London, British Leyland denied it is dumping cars on the United States market at prices below cost.

Referring to the allegation that the company is selling the 1974 Marina for about $400 less than in Britain, a spokesman said British Leyland only started offering cut-price incentives in the U.S. when other firms there did so.

Talks Open Tuesday

OTTAWA (CP) — Another round of federal-provincial negotiations on communications opens here Tuesday and Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier hopes it will be the last full-scale conference on the subject.

The two-day conference is the third meeting of communications ministers aimed at reaching agreement on the form and extent of what will be greater provincial involvement in the regulation of communications, hitherto a federal preserve.

It is an extension of a May meeting at which the provincial ministers promoted three "consensus proposals" that sought provincial jurisdiction over most aspects of cable systems, telephone and television communications carriers operating entirely within a province, and licensing of all "local" broadcasting within a province.

Michigan Solves Welfare

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) — A plan to pay welfare recipients $5,000 each to leave the state is being considered by a group of economic experts, says the chairman of the Michigan Manpower Council.

Dr. Daniil Kruger, a professor of industrial relations at Michigan State University, told the summer meeting of the Michigan Press Association that Michigan is auditioning about 100,000 new welfare enrollees in the next six months.

Kruger, in a speech before the association Friday, said those favoring the enticement include himself, Dr. John Dempsey, director of state social services, and Wilbur Cohen, a University of Michigan economist and former official in the federal department of health, education and welfare.

The economists are considering ways to reduce welfare rolls, Kruger said.

Inco Strike Settlement Outlook Still Bleak

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The good, even though the terms outlook for an early settlement are fairly close to their bargainof the five-day strike at the In- ing team's last proposal.
ternational Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Inco) remained uncertain this weekend as the 13,- 000 employees began hearing details of tentative agreement signed Thursday in Toronto.

Negotiators for Local 6500, United Steelworkers of America, ended a three-week silence Saturday morning at a meeting of about 300 shop stewards who voted almost unanimously to reject the agreement.

Reaction was mixed Sunday among the 2,500 men who attended the first of eight membership meetings.

One steward said the general feeling of the men is that the contract was not particularly

Alberta Development Body in Small Town

PONOKA, Alta. (CP) — Minister of Business Development and Tourism, Allan Warrack, announced here that Edmonton as part of a decentralization program has paid grant dividends both in its business operation and its staff morale, says 44-year-old Ed Clarke.

Mr. Clarke, the firm's managing director, gave up his job with Ontario Development Corp. to take the position. He said it was not hard to relinquish a 42-mile daily round-trip commuting to Toronto on the Queen Elizabeth Highway for the "delight" of a 30-minute walk each way to and from his office.

"Most of the people in town drive wherever they want to go, and they think I'm nuts because I walk," he said.

The initial concerns about the decision to move faded quickly and the re-establishment period was relatively short and the firm now is able to devote full attention to the financing needs of Alberta businessmen.

When the decision was made in January, 1973, to move to this central Alberta community of 4,500 people 65 miles south of Edmonton, a survey was made of the staff's attitude to moving.

For many years 85 per cent of the staff decided against the move so jobs could be found in the businesses they held were quickly filled from other government departments or the private sector, he said.

"Then we found that the school system here is excellent in training clerical skills and our staff is made up of about one-third clerical people."

Mr. Clarke said the Ponoka schools graduate 150 to 200 students with clerical skills each year.

"They're terrific and we get the pick of the crop."

That decision was resolved "by people that already were here."

But the most startling revelations came when Mr. Clarke started to recruit management and loans officers — semi-professional people.

"When we talked with groups of them, there would usually be one outstanding in the group who said his next promotion would be to Toronto or Montreal and that he didn't want to go and, besides, he didn't really like big cities," he said.

In a month, we've picked up 15 or 20 of the smartest young accountants in Alberta from banks, finance companies and other such institutions."

Mr. Clarke said he has been "delighted with the calibre of people we've been able to attract."

He emphasized the staff attitude by saying that last summer there were new branch manager's positions to fill from the local office ranks here.

"We had trouble getting 'our people here to take promotions because they didn't want to leave Ponoka. In fact, one refused and he's still here and, as happy as a lark."

And the move had been beneficial to the firm's business activity.

"What really tickled me is that we have an excellent air charter service here and we can fly most distances over 100 miles more cheaply than we can drive," he said.

After an applicant flies, the firm's staff representative will go to his location—anywhere in Alberta—if it decides the application has merit.

"So it means we can get there faster and cheaper," Mr. Clarke said.

"Logistically, it's been a tremendous benefit. The firm originally was funded to $50 million and, last fall, this amount was increased by another $50 million.

Mr. Clarke is enthusiastic about the delights of "small-town living."

"It's just great being able to hear the small birds chirping outside the office window."

In other moves at decentralizing government offices, the Alberta government moved the Agricultural Development Corp. to Camrose, the agricultural department's land and licensing section to Stettler, the dairy division to Westlock, the hail and crop insurance branch to Lacombe, the weather modification section to Three Hills and its data processing centre's key-punch operation to Red Deer.

The government now intends to, establish an environmental laboratory and research centre at Vegreville.

Game by Game Tourney Results

BELLEVILLE 5
SCARBOROUGH CORVETTE 4

PARK 4

The host team started out in an unacceptable fashion by pounding out 13 hits to dump Scarborough in the opener of the tourney. John Ramsey led the way with a double and two singles, with Dave Phillips, Stephen Cook and Billy Curry each adding two singles each. Allan Thompson fanned seven batters in the victory, allowing only six hits. Mike Kehaer was tagged with the loss, whilling five.

UNIONVILLE 15
AMHERSTVIEW 0

Seven Amherstview errors, combined with a one-hit pitching performance by Unionville's Jim Stanley put Amherstview on the consolation side. Hawley added five strikeouts in the five inning contest, walking only two. Ged Loyalist had a 3 home run and single to lead the attack with Grant Manley adding a double and single.

NAPANEE 12
GLENFIELD 1

Seven runs in the fourth and four more in the fifth and final frame placed Napanee in the first win of four in the tourney. Sending 11 men to the plate in the fourth, they collected seven of their 12 hits in the game, with Kelly Bartlett leading the attack with a home run and single. Scott Thompson chipped in with a triple and single, with the only Glenfield hits, both singles, going to Herb Sylvestrini.

SCARBOROUGH CEDAR HILL 3

SPRINGBROOK 1

Paul Gilbert gave a one-hitter over five innings on the Scarborough rubber as his teammates had 13 hits of their own for the pasting of Springbrook. Gilbert fanned nine batters, while the infield accounted for all the remaining outs. Stan Clarke had three singles in three trips to pace the winners, with Gilbey adding a double and single to his own cause.

WOODSTOCK 12
NORTH BENDALE 12

Sloppy play on both sides of the field, along with eight hits in the game accounted for the 3-1-run total. Although Woodstock could come up with only 13 of the hits, they received the benefit of seven errors, while committing nine themselves. Dave Kleemer was tops at th plate for the winners, with a triple and single, with Darcy Perrier stroking three singles for the loss.

BRIDLEWOOD 1

Eleven hits accounted for the same number of runs in the five inning game paced by Eringate, with Montgomery pounded a home run, two doubles, and a single to lead the winners, while Toni Koslowski singled twice. John Eastman threw a one-hitter in taking the win, striking out five and walking two. Dave Hart had the only hit for the losers, a second inning, four bagger.

ALDERWOOD 19
RICHMOND HILL 4

Greg Walton had a home run, double and single to pace a 16-hit attack while Ed Kastelik added a pair of doubles and a single to his four hit pitching performance in the Alderwood win. Five other players had a pair of hits each, while four players connected for singles for Richmond Hill. Kastelik struck out 10 in taking the win, with Paul Sarazin and Garry Kozlowski being tagged with the loss.

CORVETTE PARK II.
AMHERSTVIEW 1

The Scarborough team scored 12 runs in the top of the first inning and never looked back in the shellacking of Amherstview, pounding out 21 hits in the process. Darian Lorne had a home run, two doubles and a single to lead the way, adding to nine runs and scoring four himself. Larry Chisolm had a two bagger in the losers' scoring four in the five inning game.

SPRINGBROOK 4,
GLENFIELD 1

Springbrook bounced back from the first round defeat to eliminate Glenfield on a two hitter by Gary Finch, who had eight strikeouts to go along with only two walks. Rick Blakely had a triple, and single with Herb Reid and Rodney Cooney each stroking two singles. Herb Silvestrini had both hits for the losers, both singles.

BELLEVILLE 10,
UNIONVILLE 5

Unionville had a 6-2 lead going to the bottom of the sixth, but the home towners came back with six-run opening on eight hits for the win. Dennis Tam had three singles for the winners, with Dave Phillips adding a pair of hits. Each team committed six errors, with Allan Thompson and Angelo Leotis sharing the win.

NAPANEE 3
CEDAR HILL 0

In only the second shutout of the tourney, Napanee took the win with all three runs coming in the top of the fifth inning. Mike Foley allowed only four baserunners in pitching a brilliant one-hitter. He walked two, while one other reached base on an error. Napanee had three hits, all singles.

BRIDLEWOOD 11,
NORTH BENDALE 2

Bridlewood collected 11 runs on only 10 hits, while North Bendale could manage only five off winner Rick Semenoff. Tim Reffle led the way with a home run and double, while Eric Jones contributed a double and single in a losing cause for North Bendale.

ERINGATE 18,
WOODSTOCK 4

Eringate pounded out 15 hits in the win, with Ben Montgomery clouting a pair of triples and a single to four runs batted in, with Eric Gil adding three singles. Dave Gilmour and John Eastman had a four-hitter with three strikeouts to pace the winning pitchers. The losers committed four errors in the five inning game.

SPRINGBROOK 8
CORVETTE PARK 1

Springbrook made it to the B championship game, with Gary Finch outpitching, advancing against Bridlewood. Bryce Rowe had a home run and single to pace the eight-hit attack, with Brian Reid also connecting for a four bagger. Rowe gave up only a single to Phil Preston in taking the win.

NAPANEE 21
BELLEVILLE 9

Belleville bowed out of their own tourney as Napanee piled up a 7-3 lead after one inning and coasted in 17-7-4 after two. Danny Weese had a pair of doubles and two singles to pace the 21-hit slugfest for Napanee, with Terry Whalen stroking a home run and single, Mike Finn and Mike Foley shared the win, allowing nine Belleville hits. John Ramsey hit a home run and double for the losers.

BRIDLEWOOD 8
RICHMOND HILL 4

Bridlewood pulled until the bottom of the sixth to put away the victory with a single run, after scoring four in the fifth, on nine hits in the game. Craig Hurl had three of the nine, all singles. Rick Semenoff was the win, giving up seven hits while striking eight.

ERINGATE 1

Alderwood won a berth in the A championship game against Napanee in doubling the score over Eringate. The winners pounded out 15 hits, 12 of them singles while Eringate had 11. Phillip Reid had three for the winners, with Terry Kozlowski striking three safeties for the losers.

FEILDWOOD 10
SPRINGBROOK 4

Feildwood racked up 13 hits in the B championship game to take the decision from the tired Springbrook club. Craig Duff had a double and three singles for the winners, with Tim Reffle banging a pair of three-run homeruns. Rick Semenonk was on the mound for his third win in four games, striking out nine and walking one. Bryce Rowe and Garry Finch shared the loss, combining for six strikeouts.

NAPANEE 8
ALDERWOOD 7

Doug Weese's second three-run home run of the game, in the bottom of the seventh, finished off the tourney as Napanee carried home the A championship for the second year in a row. Weese added a double and single to his homer's, batting in a total of seven of the eight runs in four trips to the plate. Keevin McDonald fired the win for Napanee, striking out four in a six-hit performance with Ed Kastelik and Bulck Hutchings fanning nine in defeat.

Wall Clarifies New Contract

An ad hoc arbitration board, headed by Justice Willard Estey, has handed down a final award in the dispute between Ontario's 5,500 community college teachers and the provincial government for a contract which should have started Sept. 1, 1973 and will end Aug. 31 this year.

The final award reaffirms an interim salary decision announced March 17 and finalizes the remaining five standing issues such as definition of the academic year, vacations, workload, merit increments and the salary adjustments for some classifications.

However, Paul Wall, Loyalist College faculty association president, said Thursday there has been a discrepancy in some news reports due to misinterpretation of a final award for instructors. He said instructors have been properly defined as the entire teaching staff.

Mr. Wall explained instructors are the bottom level of faculty classification. Some colleges have five levels and others only two, but instructors are at the bottom in both cases.

He said instructors initially received the same salary per current salary, hike that all teachers were given for 1973-74 but the final award added another 2.7% per cent for a total of 15.75 per cent to eliminate the gap that had been between the five-and-two-level systems.

Other final award highlights:

In addition to the March increase, the top two levels of instructors received an additional increase of $400 on Sept. 1, 1974, and another one of $250 on Sept. 1, 1974.

Extended staff vacations will be two months, subject to the 35 per cent teacher practice where only one month of vacation is allowed, provided the arrangement is voluntary.

Sport Briefs

WINS ROUND

ST. GABRIEL, Que. (CP) — Antonin Saborovsky of Czechoslovakia won the Canadian round of the world 125 c.c. motocross championships Sunday, finishing second in both 15-minute heats. Gilbert Delhaveyd of Belgium finished second over-all, followed by Japan's McKenzie of Penticton, B.C. was the top Canadian, finishing sixth overall.

WINS SINGLES

BAASTAD, Sweden (AP) — Manuel Orantes thrashed Jose Higueras 6-0 6-0 6-0 in an all-Spanish singles final in the $50,000 Swedish Open tennis championships Sunday. Orantes, 26, won $8,500 for his victory counting toward the Grand Prix title. The doubles title went to Bjorn Borg and Ove Bengtson, who edged Orantes and Juan Gisbert of Spain 7-6, 7-5 Saturday.

REPLACE SIGNS

MIAMI (AP) — Fullback Nodin Bulaich signed a contract Sunday with Miami Dolphins after he reported to the National Football League team's training camp along with 20 other veterans and rookies. Terms were not disclosed. Bulaich was obtained Wednesday from Philadelphia Eagles for an undisclosed future draft pick.

WINS CAR RACE

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Don White of Keokuk, Iowa, rolled away from defending champion Butch Hartman of Bellefontaine, Ohio, on the 162nd lap Sunday and won the United State Autos Club (USAC) 200-mile stock car race at Wisconsin's State Fair Park. While finished with an average speed of 83.546 miles an hour, Bay Darnell of Deerfield, Ill., was second, followed by Hartman.

WIN FUTURITY

LIVONIA, Mich. (CP) — Pine Valley Farm of Lapeer and Sanders Farm of Metamora sent out the winners of the $54,000 Michigan Futurity at Detroit Race Course Sunday as Pine Valley's Avalanche ran off with the two divisions of the Michigan-bred headliner for 2-year-olds.

Winning by five lengths, Tom Tom cowered the tryout camps in Ontario this week, Jim Frank, a scouting assistant for the National League baseball team, said Sunday. The camps will be held Wednesday at McMillan Park in Thorold, Thursday at Talbot Park in Toronto, and Friday at Mac Park in Windsor. The camps, open to players aged 16 to 25, will get underway each day at 10 a.m. EDT under the direction of area supervisor Branch Rickey III, Frail said.

WINS MAJOR AMATEUR

EDMUNDSTON, N.B. (CP) — Starting with the second hole, Richard Dickinson of Saint John Riverside reeled off four consecutive birdies Sunday and two beats.

Purinaettes And Ellis Team Record Wins

The Bellevile and District Ladies softball League held a doubleheader at the Alemlis Park on Sunday with both games impressive showings for the winners.

In the first game Ellis Construction defeated Lakeside Optic 11-3, while in the second the Purinaettes beat Mobil Chemical 9-0.

Hatton Barbercock and Donna Brant threw the Ellis Construction win, giving up just two hits and six walks while striking out 10.

Norma McQuarrie took the loss, giving up eight hits and three walks. It was errors that hurt her.

Sharon Francis powered two extra-base hits for the winners, while Donna Brant also had two safeties.

Ann Fiskle and Shirley Best led the losers in Lakeside hits.

The Purinaettes had no trouble in defeating Mobil Chem team 9-0, with Darlen Redore taking the win. She gave up six hits and a walk, while striking out six batters.

Gerald Lowe took the loss, going all the way for Mobil.

Jane Bailey had a triple and a single while Joan Bailey and Donna Thompson doubled and singled to lead the winners.

Audrey Cassibo had a double and a single for the losers.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Tuesday, July 15

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) Not the most harmonious day in the house. If an argument develops, better to back off. The odds are against you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Avoid working with tools or mechanical devices if possible today. You tend to be careless. Serious consequences could result.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't attempt anything risky, or if the outcome depends on chance. You're irresponsible today and will make a wrong, costly decision.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll be bearing the burdens of others today. Unfortunately, they won't appreciate what you do in their behalf.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Recharge your batteries by withdrawing to a quiet place alone. There's not in the mood for fun and games.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be wary of a friend who approaches you for a loan. It's possible you could lose the money and the friend, too.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Through no fault of yours you could lose face among associates in an area which means a lot to you. It's just teary luck.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22) Your perception is way off-base today. It would be wise to avoid analyzing another's motives. You'll only embarrass yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An outspoken friend will unthinkingly cause a rift between you and your loved one, or split you and another up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Refrain from making any agreement or contract today. You'll be dealing in good faith. Others won't.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll be long on words, but short on deeds today. You'll spread yourself too thin and accomplish little.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone may try to talk you into attending a social function. If you go, you'll spend a lot of money on a boring time.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Jim: "In the language of kids, any bid of one less than game 'is a strong invitation to partner to go on to game. In most cases if you want to play it as a force, you won't get into trouble."

Oswald: "In standard American, South's two notrump rebid is just a strong invitation, but not quite a force. In Jacoby modern we go along with the best current practice and play it as a force to game, except if partner rebids to three of his minor suit, we can drop him there."

Jim: "South's opening bid is only about a jack above a minimum, but North's two over one response has promised at least ten points. South properly elects to rebid his long minor."

Oswald: "Even if North does not play the two notrump bid as a force, he should go on to three notrump. You might as well try for something worth while rather than go after a part score."

Jim: "There is little to the play of the hand. South takes the first heart, tries the diamond finesse and wraps up three notrump when it succeeds."

Oswald: "If it had failed, he would have been down one, but your lie in just as good as you would by bidding even-money games."

Ask the Jacoby's

What is the correct opening bid vulnerable with:
♠ A K Q J 7 6 3 ♥ A 2 ♦ 6 4 ♣ 5 3 2?

The correct opening bid either vulnerable or not vulnerable is one spade. There is no good reason to preempt when you hold two aces and your hand is not strong enough for a forcing opening bid. Of course, you will jump at your next turn if partner responds.

Nerve Pressure Causes Sciatica

By G C Thecsiesse, M D

Dear Dr. Thecsiesse: Please discuss sciatica. I have had it three or four times in about 3 years. The flare-ups usually last only a few days, but the last one lasted five weeks.

I put a board under my mattress to relieve the back pain, and I apply heat and rest for about a week when it happens. I still worry about what causes it. I am 30-year-old, five feet tall and weigh 135. — Mrs. R.H.

The sciatic nerve is the large one going from the lower spine and branching out into the legs. Since the roots are at the spine, any disorder that puts pressure upon this area can cause sciatica, a pain or discomfort along the entire nerve network.

You may have suffered an injury that distorted the fibrous disc between a pair of bony discs between a pair of lower vertebra, or you may have developed one of the vertebra ill-suited.

Some structural changes caused by osteoarthritis can exert pressure on the root of the nerve. However, at 30, you seem a bit young for that.

And, of course, the question arises as to whether or not you have true sciatica. Your problem could be an unstable back, in which recurrent muscle spasm can occur. This can mimic the symptoms of sciatic nerve problems.

Bending and lifting can provoke attacks. Mothers who are always lifting babies from cribs or bending and straining exercises are prone to low back problems. Perhaps such an activity in earlier years may be your condition. Smaller women, like you, who are pregnant a lot are prime candidates for back pains.

And speaking of your size, you didn't think you were going to get off scot-free in the matter of weight, did you? At five feet, you can certainly afford to lose some of that poundage. Overweight is often a factor in this kind of problems you report, and can aggravate a sciatic condition.

Your heat treatment, a firm mattress and rest should help.

You should examine your lifting habits and try to correct them if they are placing undue strain on your lower back area. At 30, you are much too young to allow your back to deteriorate if the simple adjustments I have suggested can help.

Dear Dr. Thecsiesse: The whites of my eyes are red most of the time. I am 37-years-old and have had this problem for quite some time. Could this be serious? — Y.M.

This could be conjunctivitis, an irritation of the outer lining of the eyeball. Smoke, fumes and dust are common causes, as is an allergy to a medication or, in the case of men, to an after-shave lotion. It can also stem from a chronic bacterial infection, and this should be investigated.

This is usually more irritating than serious. Unless it is allowed to worsen, it should be looked at by an specialist to make out any serious aspects. If it is conjunctivi's, cortisone containing a steroid drug may help. This should be prescribed by your doctor.

Dear Dr. Thecsiesse: Are negative-heel shoes harmful? I would like to buy a pair, but I am concerned about how they would affect my back and feet. — J.G.H.

Negative-heel shoes are those in which the toe is higher than the heel. I have been told that it takes a while to get used to them. However, as far as noticed in the legs and back, so you would buy a pair at the risk of being able to use them.

Any shoes that distort the foot from its natural configuration cannot do much good, unless it is prescribed for therapeutic purposes. In fact, they can do harm.

Improper footwear is at the root of many of the foot, leg, back and posture problems discussed these days. And style-conscious women seem to be the most prominent victims, although recently many men have joined the ranks of the ill-shod.

Dear Dr. Thecsiesse: Do you have information on people getting sick from meat cooked over charcoal? I've heard something about people not liking their charcoal burn down before putting the meat on to cook.—Mrs. C. L. M.

There is no evidence that normal charcoal broiling of meat is in itself harmful.

It has been shown experimentally that fats heated to 600 degrees (F) begin to undergo changes that have been suspected of being harmful. However, most meats are broiled at temperatures lower than that.

It is advisable that cooking over charcoal be done by the heat from the coals, and not in flames itself. One should wait until the coals are grey and keep the meat about six inches above the coals.

Town Evacuated

PORT HOPE SIMPSON, Nfld. (CP) — Two hundred women, children and elderly residents spent Monday night at St. Mary's Harbor, about 25 miles south of here, as the men stayed behind to fight a forest fire raging near this community in southern Labrador. The residents were evacuated on the Canadian National Penitentiary ship Petite Forte.

Trudeau Visits Crees

FORT GEORGE, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau made a surprise visit Monday to this Cree Indian village at the mouth of the LaGrande River. The 1,700 Crees and 30 Eskimos living in the James Bay community will lose much of their traditional fishing and hunting area when the largest hydroelectric project in North America is completed. Mr. Trudeau stayed for a couple of hours.

More Join Strike

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — About 300 workers at the Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd newsprint mill in Smooth Rock Falls went on strike today, bringing to about 2,700 the number of workers on strike at five Abitibi plants in Northern Ontario.

U.S. Gas Price to Go Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's proposal to end price controls on domestic oils could increase the cost of gasoline by seven cents a gallon in the United States and raise consumer prices by nearly one per cent, administration spokesmen say. The over-all impact would cost the average family $200 a year in higher energy prices. Administration officials say this is the price the U.S. must pay to increase its supplies of domestically produced oil to conserve energy

Refugee Status Sought

MONTREAL (CP) — Dang Van Quang, a former South Vietnamese general facing a deportation order, fled a claim of refugee status Monday seeking to have the order quashed by the immigration appeal board.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A two-man Soyuz ship rocketed away from earth today on the first of twin launchings that aim for an historic linkup in space between Soviet cosmonauts and United States astronauts.

A rocket lifted Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov into orbit from the Baikonur Cosmodrome on the edge of a central Russian desert 1,400 miles southeast of Moscow.

Liftoff was scheduled at 9:20 a.m. EDT. Ten minutes later the Soviet flight control centre near Moscow reported Soyuz was in an orbit ranging from 131 to 141 miles high—almost-precisely the path desired.

Leonov and Kubasov reported they were feeling well and said all systems aboard their space ship were performing properly.

At Cape Canaveral, half a world away, the countdown continued on the Saturn rocket which was to send Apollo astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton in pursuit of the Soviet craft at 3:36 p.m. today.

Because of their late liftoff, the astronauts were still in bed and did not watch the Soviet launch on television. They were to see a videotape replay over the traditional launch-day breakfast of steak and eggs.

For the first time, the Soviet Union provided live television coverage of one of its launchings to the rest of the world. But Western reporters were barred from the launch site at Baikonur.

Millions watched as the rocket lifted away from its launch pad and carved a fiery path in a clear sky, pitching quickly over toward the northeast.

The booster accelerated rapidly and pushed Soyuz into orbit at more than 17,000 miles an hour.

As the rocket rose, flight control provided news centres in Moscow, Cape Canaveral and Houston with a running commentary, using such phrases as "the engines are stable. The crew reports first-stage shutdown and third-stage ignition."

There were no direct comments from the crew.

Once in orbit, Soyuz spread its two solar panels, which collect heat from the sun and convert it to energy.

"Have a happy flight," the control centre communicator told the cosmonauts as they flew out of radio range of the first tracking station.

Earlier, a worldwide audience had a ringside seat as the cosmonauts arrived at the launching pad and Commander Leonov saluted the government commission overseeing the launch, saying:

"The crew of Soyuz is ready for the joint flight with the American spaceship Apollo.

"I wish you, dear flight and a successful return to earth," a voice replied, but the speaker was not shown.

As the cosmonauts mounted the steps to the elevator for the trip to the top of the 130-foot, three-stage rocket, an unidentified voice called out the Russian expression for good luck.

Leonov replied with the customary Russian response: "To the devil."

They checked out systems aboard the spacecraft, found no problems, and spent the final minutes before launch listening to music played over their communications channel.

No Barrier

TORONTO (CP) — The hunting industry has no place to be held back by new provincial environmental assessment legislation, Environment Minister William Newman said Monday. He told the legislature that the proposed law will have "no restrictive effect" on new housebuilding in the province and will not hinder or delay any environmentally-acceptable undertaking.

Board Bucks Hydro

TORONTO (CP) — An advisory board to the Ontario Energy Board has criticized Ontario Hydro's expansion plans saying: "It's like building a four-lane Expressway wide enough so you'll have congestion only one day in 10 years."

The Gardiner is a Toronto expressway.

The expansion plans are a factor in Hydro's bid for a rate increase that until Friday was about 30 per cent. The board was told Friday Hydro would submit a reduced request early in August.

Rewards Offered

Trenton Man Fights 'Crazy' Vandalism

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Damage to downtown Trenton businesses has prompted a local insurance agent to embark on a program of offering rewards for the arrest and conviction of vandals.

Agent Gary Whitley announced Monday he will offer a reward to anyone that helps police convict a vandal.

"I'm sick and tired of them destroying property," Mr. Whitley said angrily, calling the damage "senseless and out of sight".

The straw that broke his patience came this weekend and it directly represents the kind of reward policy he believes is the first in the Quinte area. He said the size of the reward will likely change, depending on the circumstances in each case.

Mr. Whitley has offered a $100 reward for the conviction of the person or persons who broke the glass door of the former carpeting station on Albert St., property he owns.

Delay Setting Parley Date

GENEVA (AP) — The European Security Conference today delayed normally convening a 35-country summit in Helsinki on July 30 and double began to spread whether that wrapup date would be met.

estimated replacement would cost more than $70.

Along with the glass door, two maple trees in planters outside the downtown Bank of Montreal were snapped, also in half. Replacement cost for the trees is estimated at $35 apiece.

A bank spokesman said Monday it is the first time trees have been broken. He said that although the bank will likely replace the broken trees this time, "we'd certainly back off if this persists."

Mr. Whitley said "This is just the last straw—an excuse for that kind of thing."

He said he hopes the reward will help decrease the rate of vandalism in Trenton, both of business and homes: "I hope it will encourage people to be more responsible."

A reward will be established on all properties owned by Mr. Whitley or in which his insurance agency has an interest.

He said the policy is working in the United States where a special telephone number is used to guarantee anonymity to callers, and in the larger cities. His agency has been considering establishment of the reward system for some time, but was in no setting up the program, Mr. Whitley said it inspired no criticism of the Trenton police department.

Police are doing "a hell of a job" but on a Friday or Saturday night city police "can't for them to be in all places at one time".

Cape Canaveral Is Crowded For Last Launch of Apollo

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP)

As the one hour neared for the Apollo launch, thousands streamed into the Cape Canaveral area. Many were lured by the fact Apollo-Soyuz will be the last U.S. man-in-space shot for at least four years, when a next generation rocket plane called a Shuttle is to be ready.

President Ford, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, other diplomats and NASA Administrator James Fletcher watched the television coverage of the Soyuz launch at the state department auditorium. Dobrynin and Fletcher then left for Cape Canaveral for the Apollo launch.

Ford told the state department audience Apollo-Soyuz "marks the beginning of a very epic adventure into space. We are blazing a new trail of space co-operation that demonstrates the United States and Soviet Union are prepared to co-operate toward a common end."

Much symbolism and prestige is involved in this first joint space flight of the two nations who battled for space supremacy through the late 1950s and 1960s until Americans landed on the moon in 1969.

Neither wants to fail in the global spotlight that will follow every moment.

As Apollo enters orbit, Soyuz will be 4,140 miles ahead, over Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

The more sophisticated Apollo, with commander Stafford at the controls, is to conduct all the tricky manoeuvres to gradually close the gap and bring the two ships to an historic linkup 140 miles above West Germany at 12:15 p.m. Thursday.

Astronauts and cosmonauts will soar in comfort of double, representing two countries once keen rivals in space.

Three hours after the spaceships dock, Thursday, both ends of a connecting tunnel will open and the U.S. commander, Stafford, and the Russian commander, Alexei Leonov, will

It won't be just a handshake at the sky map for astronauts and cosmonauts, but a mission that will further detente and lead to future co-operative flights in large space stations and perhaps to the moon.

Brand, the U.S. command-module pilot, calls the mission a "springboard for detente. Where detente will go is not clear to me, but I think we're all to a good start."

Kubasov, the brilliant Soyuz flight engineer, said a major objective of the flight is to test a common docking mechanism developed by engineers of both countries for Apollo and Soyuz.

"Maybe in the future such a device could be used for joints other- American and Soviet spacecraft," he said. "Or it could possibly aid in rescuing stranded spacecraft, or one experiencing a problem."

"For the first time ambassadors of our two countries will meet in space," Leonov stated. "This will demonstrate to all of mankind that both nations are striving for peace on earth."

"Space is an expensive place to explore," said commander Stafford. "By exploring it together we can cut down the cost substantially."

The five spacemen have become friends during two years of training. They have shared many earthly adventures and have learned to speak the language of the other.

The rule during the linkup is: Americans speak Russian, Russians speak English.

Key personnel at the flight control centres of each country also have become proficient in the other's language.

Once hooked in orbit, Apollo and Soyuz will remain together for about 47 hours. They will visit each other's spacecraft, share meals and exchange flags, letters from their leaders and surprise gifts.

They also will conduct five joint medical and scientific experiments, including a unique melting test in a space furnace aboard Apollo.

Docking, an accomplished artist, plans to record his impressions while orbiting the earth. He did about 10 pictures during the 1965 flight when he became the first man to walk in space.

After two days of togetherness, the spacemen will hold a televised news conference from orbit, answering questions from reporters in Moscow and at Houston's Johnson Space Centre.

Then the two spaceships will disengage, move apart and link up again, this time with Soyuz as the active vehicle.

Then they will undock for the last time on Saturday and Soyuz will return to earth Monday at 6:31 p.m., landing in eastern Russia.

Apollo, with its longer stay in power, will remain in orbit three additional days for experimental work. Splashdown is scheduled in the Pacific Ocean west of Hawaii at 5:18 p.m., July 24.

That will mark the last ocean splashdown for the U.S. manned space program, the last flight of the Apollo spacecraft, which successfully transported 12 astronauts on moon-landing missions, and the last American manned flight until at least 1978.

Nixon Not Invited

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Richard Nixon, the man who set in motion the final plans for the Apollo-Soyuz space flight, was not invited to attend the launch today of the United States spaceship.

Nixon signed a treaty for the U.S.-Soviet mission May 24, 1972.

Macdonald Asks Price Of Oil

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald has asked oil companies to explain why they have made no plan to raise prices because of $1.30-a-barrel increase in crude oil.

A memo to company officials Monday, he requested will be no increase until Aug. 15. That is the date when refineries are expected to run out of stocks on hand July 1 when crude oil prices were raised to a barrel from $6.50.

But he asks all companies to say by today how much their prices will go up, "regardless of the effective date" of increases.

Mr. Macdonald, who released copies of his memo, said any price increases caused by increased operating costs should not be implemented at the same time as price increases associated with the new price of crude oil.

Jobless Rises Slightly

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment was up slightly in June as the rate for the country rose but there was a broad range of ups and downs in provincial rates.

Statistics Canada said the national rate was 7.3 per cent, up from 7.1 in May and the same as the rate in April.

The number of available jobs increased in June but the number of those working or looking for work grew slightly faster.

The total without work was 704,000.

For those 24 and younger the unemployment rate went to 12.8 per cent, from 12.5 while for the 25-and-older group the rate was unchanged at 4.2 per cent.

The greatest improvement in the provinces was in Nova Scotia, where the unemployment rate fell to 7.3 per cent from 10.2.

British Columbia had the greatest increase in unemployment rate—to 8.3 per cent from 7.6.

Little change had been expected in the unemployment rate, which forecasters predict will rise more later in the year. The Canadian Labor Congress is predicting rates of between 7.5 and eight per cent in the coming months.

Russell Bell, CLC research director, said job prospects generally are light at the end of a recession.

"At times like this management does not take on new employees — they simply utilize more efficiently employees they already have," he said.

Student unemployment in June was high compared with the two previous years. Of the 718,000 in the student labor force, 14.4 per cent were unemployed. A year ago the student unemployment rate was 8.4 per cent and in June, 1973, it was 11.3 per cent.

The 7.3-per-cent overall unemployment rate is adjusted to discount seasonal factors. Economists consider seasonally-adjusted figures better indicators of performance of the economy.

Paint Has No Business Being on Ladder

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

If you want to climb the ladder of success don't start by painting your ladder—at least that's the advice from one expert.

Those who paint their wooden ladders often end up with broken limbs or, if the ladder is high enough, the many eyes see their success.

For those of you who have never noticed wooden ladders are one of the few items that come in the raw on your local hardware store shelves.

"It's not a law," says Les Young, general manager of McFarlane Gendron Manufacturing Ltd., "but it is a regulation of the Canadian Standards Association." Mr. Young said the company has been making wooden ladders for a 100 years and not one has ever been painted.

Mr. Young also advised people against painting their ladders and there is a very sound reason behind his argument.

"If wooden ladders are painted they may look pretty underneath without the owner knowing of the fault until it is too late," he explained.

The Belleville manager also said that paint may cover flaws in the wood or defects. The ladders made in Belleville are constructed from Sitka spruce or hemlock.

McFarlane Gendron manufactures industrial ladders and has a number of companies such as Bell Canada, Mr. Young said most of the industrial orders require a special type of construction.

He recommended most people, who buy either step-ladders or extension ladders, should use a wood preservative to protect their ladder and as a safety measure.

He said varnish is a common type.

Mr. Young also said that painted ladders could be potentially more slippery to climb and thus more dangerous. The Canadian Standards Association will not allow any manufacturers to paint their ladders. The CSA is chartered by the federal government and many of its publishes are embodied in provincial legislation.

With more ladder advice Mr. Young said that wooden ladders have one major advantage over aluminum ladders and that is the user can't be electrocuted while standing on them. Apparently, people have been electrocuted while using aluminum ladders.

For storage of your ladder, Mr. Young advises home owners to keep them in dry and ventilated areas.

Mall Growth May Cause Traffic Problem

A caution about cost-sharing between Quinte Mall developers and city hall was sounded Monday at city council's traffic committee.

City councillor Arthur Keegan indicated concern that developers be charged too much for street changes from which other area businesses would also profit.

His caution came as the committee moved to approve a consultant's report on road changes needed to accommodate the anticipated increase in traffic resulting from the planned expansion in the northeast shopping facility.

Among proposals are increasing the number of lanes on Bell Blvd. — the route serving most of the mall traffic flow — from one to two lanes for traffic turning north onto North Front St.

Talk would also mean changes in traffic signals.

Sharing of costs for the improvement has yet to be discussed between the developer, Cambridge Leaseholds and city officials, the committee was told.

But, Ald. Keegan noted Cambridge already had paid for part of developing the intersection when the mall first opened its business several years ago.

Other businesses and developers in the area also benefited from the changes, he said.

"We have to talk cost. We don't know what they (Cambridge) are going to share yet," said Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

"I want them to pay something. But I don't want them to be overcharged," said Ald. Keegan.

The planned expansion moved another step through the local government process as the committee accepted the report of consultants Damas and Smith.

The move was a sequel to approval last month of recommendations from city engineer Ken Angelo based on the experts findings.

The document included widening Bell Blvd., parallel to the shopping centre extension — running west from the present mall — to four lanes, then tapering down to two. Estimated cost of all changes was $130,000.

But the committee has also agreed with Mr. Angelo that the four lanes be extended about another 600 feet to Lemoine St. the entire length of Cambridge holding.

This would also increase the cost, the city engineer said later.

The increased facilities — almost doubling present shopping space — was only part of a $15 million scheme which industrial park on the mall's western perimeter and 300 apartment units across the other side of Bell.

Earlier this year the committee was told the motel and industrial developments had hit unexpected land drainage problems. However, Frank Stakeman, Quinte Planning Board deputy director, said the board had never been officially notified, of any change in plans. Rezoning is called for since the area — including the motel and apartment sites —is classified industrial.

The traffic committee also approved a proposal from Mr. Stakeman altering the access pattern into the motel-industrial sites.

Developer's plans call for a 66-foot driveway to the proposed motel location.

But Mr. Stakeman's suggested access be widened to city street dimensions. The roadway could eventually be extended into neighbouring developments, arching back onto Bell Blvd. west of Lemoine St.

A member of the non-teaching staff Robert Greene, who contributed significantly to the teaching effort at PECI through his work as a machinist was given a barometer.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive new healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoidal tissue. Amazingly, relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and seeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported the "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

CLUES IN THE BASEMENT

St. McKinney Realty Ltd.
J. E. McKinney

When inspecting an older home for sale, you don't have to be an expert to discover symptoms of construction problems if you know what to look for. The basement is a good place to uncover such clues.

Water seepage can be costly. Look for signs of moisture. Search for dampness in corners, and water stains along walls or cabinets.

Water pipes in houses built before WWII are likely to be made of iron or steel which tend to corrode over long years of use. Copper piping is usually found in newer houses. If you see a length of copper between segments of iron or steel, there have been plumbing problems.

Before you go upstairs, check the water heater's age, condition and capacity. Nowadays, a water heater of less than 60 gallons capacity is considered adequate for a family of four or more. Check for rust or small leaks at the bottom of the tank.

Taylor Questions Loss Of Voting Right by British

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Amendments to the Immigration Act prohibiting British-born subjects the right to vote in Canadian federal elections have been termed "strange and illogical" by James Taylor, MPP, Prince Edward—Lennox.

Mr. Taylor this week stated in a news release that on July 1, 1875, Canada's 1867th birthday the traditional and automatic right of Canadian citizenship enjoyed for decades by British citizens born in Great Britain but raised in Canada was repealed.

"I find its most strange and illogical that the federal government has seen fit to remove by law a birthright and heritage of British-born Canadian citizens, many of whom fought in Two World Wars and worked all their lives to make Canada a better country for all of us to grow up and live in," he said.

Mr Taylor added that these British-born persons are "for all practical purposes" full-fledged Canadian citizens.

"Their loyalty to Canada is beyond question. Instead of removing their birthright and forcing them to apply for Canadian citizenship the legislation should have given them automatic citizenship and granted the appearance of reverse discrimination "from arrivals," he commented.

"We in Canada are concerned with creating a climate of equal opportunity. Let's apply this principle to British-born subjects. To do less is to insult their heritage and our own firmly held convictions about freedom of speech, assembly and our parliamentary form of government," he observed.

Mr. Taylor said, "We will never permit this development to occur in Ontario."

The MP called on Ottawa to change this "discriminatory" policy and described it as another classic example of a need to re-order immigration priorities.

Riot Police in Parks Untrue Says Official

PICTON — An information officer with the Ontario ministry of natural resources said Monday it is an exaggeration to say that officers added to provincial parks staff have been trained in riot control.

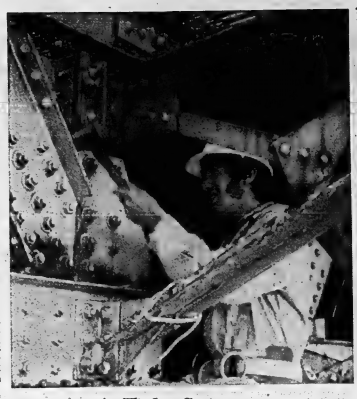
David Helliwell, a Toronto information officer with the ministry of natural resources said the term "riot trained" is an exaggeration. Mr. Helliwell's statement follows Friday's announcement by natural resources minister Leo Bernier that the special trained forces would staff the parks.

Mr. Helliwell told The Intelligencer Monday that the cost of a real riot squad, complete with helicopter would be extremely high.

He said Ontario Provincial Park in Prince Edward County was among the first to be staffed with two security officers "trained through the new program.

Mr. Helliwell said this park has received a high incidence of rowdyism. Since the patrols have started problems in the park have declined.

The park security officers have the same authority as Ontario Provincial Police constables. However, they have no jurisdiction outside the park.



A Tight Squeeze

Quinte Machine and Repair Co. employee Jack Baumbour crawls among the steel girders under the Dundas St. bridge Monday to check where work must be done. The company has been given a $1,200 job to patch steel girders badly corroded by weather and the effects of age. Now sandblasted, one steel member will be reinforced by a five-foot 5-16-inch thick, steel plate.

A Weighty Task

Trenton constable Fred Moore lifts one of four weight scales into the trunk of a provincial transportation ministry vehicle after Monday morning's weighing trucks using the Dundas St. Bridge. Twice within the past week, scales have been set up near the bridge. Efforts are being made to restrict traffic to trucks under six tons, the recently established load limit.

Police Warn Truckers To Obey Bridge Limit

TRENTON — Most local truck drivers are observing the six-ton load limit imposed on the Dundas St. bridge after a Toronto consultant recommended the limit be dropped earlier this year from 15 tons.

A Trenton police spokesman said Monday most local drivers now are aware of the restriction due to earlier publicity.

"Most are certainly using the new bridge," said the spokesman.

Trenton police and provincial transportation ministry officials have twice in the past week been checking the weight of trucks using the structure, described as badly corroded in places by engineers.

The spokesman said that as of Monday, no charges for contravention of the limit have been laid.

Some drivers have simply been warned not to use the bridge.

Police have been required by town bylaw to enforce the load limit. The spokesman said it is not being abused "extensively."

Portable weight scales supplied by the provincial government have so far been used twice to enforce the bylaw. No plans are set to bring the scales back to Trenton for additional checks of truck tonnage, but the possibility was not ruled out by the spokesman.

The six-ton load limit was established earlier this year and twinned with a pledge by Trenton mayor Bob Patrick that the town will spend $75,000 to repair the bridge.

Repairs Under Way

TRENTON — Two Quinte Machine and Repair Co. men began work Monday to reinforce a steel beam in the understructure of the Dundas St. bridge.

The work was okayed by council in late June and is expected to be complete by mid-week. Cost of the work is $1,200.

Due for repairs is a steel girder at the end of the fixed portion of the structure, is now in badly corroded with at least one hole measuring the size of a softball.

Workers sandblasted the girder Monday in preparation for welding. Soon a plate there will be cut out and replaced with larger-diameter bolts to add strength. A five-by-one-foot, 5-16th inch piece of steel will be welded over the weakened beam.

While the two men worked Monday, mid-morning traffic over the bridge was restricted to one lane.

District at a Glance

Hospital Hires Purchaser

TRENTON — Trenton Memorial Hospital has announced the appointment of Andre Schabracq as its purchasing director with a chain of Ontario nursing homes and with Mount Sinai Hospital in Toronto, will assume his new post in mid-August.

Experts to Tour Centre

CAMPBELLFORD — A bus will leave here July 23 with members of the Northumberland Soil and Crop Improvement Association aboard for a day-long tour that will include the Elora research facility run by the University of Guelph. The facility in Elora about 15 miles north of Guelph, is the university's research centre for large farm animals and farm crops and soils.

Bus Seminar Endorsed

BLOOMFIELD — Two Prince Edward school trustees who recently attended the School Bus Operators' convention Monday endorsed the value of this seminar at a meeting of the board of education.

Sophiasburg trustee John Hankinson observed the convention offered much food for thought in areas such as liability for accidents.

Trustee for Ameliasburg, George Cumingham, observed the convention was highly informative and recommended that, in future, as many members of the transportation committee as possible should attend.

"Not Another Accident!"

Group Home Management Course

For those planning to open a group home, Loyalist College is offering an intensive, two-week summer course in Group Home Management.

Group homes are today's alternative to the training school for the juvenile offender, the psychiatric ward for the emotionally disturbed, the hospital-school for the mentally retarded. There is a growing demand for professionally trained directors to manage these homes.

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Ridley, directors of Wingfield, developed and will teach this course, and have offered their facilities as its setting. Students will have a unique opportunity to consider all aspects of group home management with experienced instructors, in a realistic environment. Morning seminars at Wingfield College will be supplemented with afternoon practicums at the home.

COURSE COMMENCES: August 4, 2 p.m. —Orientation
August 5th - 15th, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. plus 2 evenings.

Course Experiment Gaining Momentum

BLOOMFIELD — A community-oriented program of community education The County as a Classroom, has enjoyed good response, says program co-ordinator Susan Greetham of the Prince Edward County Board of Education.

Mrs. Greetham established in the program through a ministry of education grant for the introduction of a community education program to Prince Edward County Schools.

"The program is getting along well," commented Mrs. Greetham.

In May, 150 surveys were distributed throughout the county to determine the interests and needs of county residents and from the 30 surveys returned, bi-weekly programs from mid-September until March 31 are presently being planned. To date, the programs are booked until May, 77, said Mrs. Greetham.

Each session will deal with a different subject and a few of the topics chosen by the county included adult physical education, police procedures, birds of the county, the supernatural, UFOs, a metric workshop and agriculture.

PLO Has Kindred Groups in the Third World Which Now Dominates U.N.

By JOHN D. HARERON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The question of whether Canada should permit representatives of the Palestinian Liberation Organization to attend a United Nations criminology conference in Toronto, is part of a larger UN identity problem.

It was emphasized last fall by the United Nations' decision to give the PLO representative status at the UN, even though they do not represent an accredited state.

They are not the only so-called "liberation movements" to have special representation at the UN. And set of them together are raising serious doubts and much cynicism among the older member nations about the UN's long-term purposes.

Technically speaking therefore, the PLO is entitled to take part in the UN Conference on Criminology whether it is held here or in any other country.

And though that outfit has engaged in some very brutal crimes of its own making and execution, the PLO has its own legal and constitutional minds. Arab lawyers are the many some day work out a constitution for the Arab state of Palestine the PLO insist must come about.

Whatever Canada's status of the United Nations effectiveness as one of the founding industrially-developed and racially-white nations, the UN is now made up largely of the many new countries of the Third World, more than 100 of them in fact, all with delegations and points of view.

Actually the Third World nations in the UN function in regional blocs, Arab, African and Latin American, all of these groups functioning more or less as one on such issues as the expulsion of racist South Africa.

The vote to permit the PLO special status within the UN, also received large support from Third World nations-powers because so many of them emerged the same way, with determined liberation movements winning their struggle for power.

Since the start of the world energy crisis, the regional blocs have concentrated on a single theme, a drive to change the existing economic relationship between rich and poor countries.

Several Third World nations involved in this powerful cause, have emerged as major states in their own right, Brazil, Iran, Indonesia and Nigeria. Their potential for a different kind of UN leadership was not anticipated by the traditional great powers who formed the UN just 30 years ago.

A key United Nations' member in all this is the United States where public and congressional support for aid and assistance to the developing world has dwindled considerably.

The new American ambassador to the UN is urbanologist Daniel P. Moynihan, recently American ambassador to India, who came home to write and talk though against the Third World for its hard line on American policies.

Ambassador Moynihan, who met the developing world's problems on the largest scale national study, describes the chaos, corruption and backwardness of India, has since softened his remarks somewhat.

Nevertheless this Irishman who is not by nature a hardliner, is giving Third World nations a message about the currently low state of patience in the U.S. with the power politics antics of Third World UN regional blocs. President Ford said much the same thing earlier.

This fall's major UN session on the new world order promises to be tasty and controversial, given all these internal United Nations developments between the dominant Third World, nation members are concerned.

Responsible Image Is Arabs' Goal

By GEORGE KITCHEN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) is quietly trying to dampen the outcry that has arisen in Canada over the invitation to the PLO to send delegates to the United Nations crime prevention conference in Toronto in September.

The PLO has let it be known in diplomatic channels that it has no intention of using the conference as a forum in which to open a Middle East debate. Rather, it said, the PLO regards the Toronto meeting purely as a technical conference and not a proper place to make political points.

The PLO position is that there are many paper forums in which it can, and will, raise the question of the rights of Palestinians in the Middle East.

The UN General Assembly granted the PLO official observer status last fall and a Canadian government decision to bar PLO delegates could force the UN to cancel the conference and shift it to another country. The General Assembly action gave the PLO the right to attend UN meetings and conferences and join in discussion and debate without the right to vote.

The PLO has advised the UN that it plans to send to Toronto a small delegation of four or five persons of high professional calibre.

There have been reports that one of the PLO delegates would be a Canadian. Since the Palestinians have no government and no homeland and lack a distinct nationality, the delegation likely will be made up of varying nationalities and the PLO may select as one of their representatives a Canadian of Arab origin who is involved in criminology or social work.

Merchants' Reaction

Belleville's downtown merchants appear to have over-reacted to the proposed bylaw that would regulate development of the city's core.

Their concern is to be expressed at city council's next meeting July 21.

The bylaw seeks to restrict downtown development in much the same fashion as residential growth is controlled. Developers would have to provide council with suitable plans containing adequate provision for, say, parking, before getting approval to proceed with their project.

The concept began with the city's Industrial Commission, and city Commissioner Fred Bemis can't understand all the commotion.

"We're looking at long-range development. Primarily these controls would be for all NEW redevelopment in the downtown core," notes Mr. Bemis. "We just want to make sure if someone comes to the city with a proposal to put up a $6 million building, someone can't build a tin can next door."

As a matter of personal opinion, Mr. Bemis couldn't see a single existing downtown merchant who would have anything over which to find concern in the proposed bylaw.

"Actually, the regulations would protect their investment," he says.

Perhaps the fault has been with the presentation of the proposal.

Whatever the problem, the city's downtown merchants will have to be sold on a plan that follows the original concern of the Industrial Commission — the revitalization of Belleville's core.

The onus is now on city council to demonstrate to the merchants that the proposed bylaw is in their own best interests.

News—The Silly Season

The "news" on the national and international scene these days is mighty dull. What does pass for news at that level has an artificial, manufactured flavor.

In Canada, the government is dickering whether to give the green light for admittance of Palestinian liberation organization representatives to a conference.

In the United States the networks are working themselves to death on the Senate investigation of the Central Intelligence Agency. Soon the United States may be able to claim for its passionate watch-hunting activities, from Watergate on, the most purified of national images. The Russians, as Toronto columnist Bruce West suggested recently, will be either nonplussed or laughing their heads off.

Higher Property and Auto Insurance as Well as Fuel Costs Are in Store

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The brief period of single-digit inflation has ended with a bang.

For the next several months, the prospect is that inflation will run well ahead of this spring's annualized rate of seven to eight per cent.

The May-June increase of 1.5 per cent—or 18 per cent on an annual basis—is a taste of what's to come.

The increase in living costs for the 12 months ended May was 10.4 per cent, with food costs adding most to the increase.

June figures from Statistics Canada are expected to show increase of 18 per cent in beef prices and almost 20 per cent for all foods.

In Ontario alone, egg prices have jumped 25 per cent since the beginning of June, and an artificial shortage could send them still higher.

Meat prices also climbing sharply on processed vegetables, dairy products, cereals and other bakery items.

Food accounts for almost one-quarter of the cost of living, as determined by federal statisticians. Housing is the biggest category at 31.4 per cent, and transportation third most important at 15.2 per cent of living costs.

These two areas—housing and transportation—will probably give prices the biggest wallop in the months ahead.

The reason: Our government has chanced it's mind about holding down the price of oil and gas. By July 1 the Canadian prices are to rise to world levels gradually.

But it didn't seem "gradual" when the federal government slapped on a super-tax of 10 cents per gallon of gasoline in late June, and decreed a 22 per cent jump in the price of crude oil on July 1.

At the same time, Ottawa has decided that the price of natural gas is to rise to its so-called commodity value. What that means to the household using natural gas is an increase of more than 50 per cent in the fuel bills next winter.

Such big price increases are directly attributable to the rising of manufactured goods, since it is nearly all petroleum-based products.

But some of the biggest increases of all could be in those bills that you pay at intervals and that you may not associate with the cost of day-to-day living.

Property taxes, for example, are likely to rise in the order of 25 per cent during 1975, predicts economist Barbara Hoyle of Woods Gundy Ltd., Toronto.

This week's bill for electrical insurance will likely be 32 per cent higher than in 1974, and auto insurance rates are also higher, according to her prediction. Unemployment and health insurance will also cost more as a result of last month's federal budget).

She expects housing to replace food as the main source of inflation for at least the next two years, average rents could go up 15 or 16 per cent both this year and next. Mortgage interest—representing nearly a tenth of the cost of housing—is about 11 per cent higher in 1975 than 1974.

All indications are that, for the foreseeable future, inflation will be the number one item in the United States—and quite possibly more than it is in Canada, like industrialized countries.

Swimmer Was Beyond Aid of Those on Shore

Ottawa Journal

"Thirty persons stand and watch and many drowns," the headline read in describing circumstances surrounding the drowning recently of an Ottawa man who was swimming in the Ottawa River near the foot of Parkdale Avenue.

The first instinct is to be horrified at the callousness and selfishness, to deplore man's inhumanity to man. For some years there have been accounts of onlookers elsewhere being either too indifferent or too frightened to interfere in cases of persons being criminally attacked, or in other kinds of trouble. Was this a similar case?

Clearly it is not. Some 30 persons may indeed have watched as the victim drowned. But they watched in helplessness, not in indifference. So swift was the current that only a remarkably strong swimmer would have stood any chance of effecting a rescue. Even a trained lifeguard might not have succeeded. The police report that a boat would have been necessary to make any rescue attempt prudent.

These facts do not in any way minimize the tragedy. But they are reassuring that a group of ordinary persons did not act in some brutish way. The onlookers may also be a lesson to discount some of the other accounts of indifference to human need, and to avoid confusing ineffectiveness and confusion with callousness. Such callousness we would like to believe, is a completely unnatural reaction, still exceedingly rare.

Workers, Lotus-eaters, Vacations

The Calgary Star

It's great to dig your toes into the sand and enjoy a vacation. The best vacations of all are those doing nothing — absolutely nothing — just be one of the latest lotus-eaters on earth. Most Canadians have only a couple of short weeks a year to enjoy this blissful lack of responsibility, and they earn every minute of it.

But are you enjoying your holidays this season, don't feel ashamed if a selfish thought creeps into your head. Are you being played for a sucker? How many of these happy young people in the sand believe you are living off the "pogey" you are paying for, and making no effort to find jobs?

A surprising number, we are afraid.

We are all in favor of helping those in need. But we have no sympathy for subsidizing somebody's summer amour.

Unemployment Insurance Commission payments for the first four months of this year are $1.2 billion, up by 30 per cent from $925 million in the same period last year. Employees are now paying huge sums of money into this so-called "insurance".

In a two-to-one pay period, employee contributions can run as high as $148.84 a year. This is matched by $305.30 from the employer, for a total of $351.84 a year, per employee. The rate of contributions is going to go up — there is talk of 50 per cent increase. This would bring the annual "take" up to $527 a year.

It is a fabulous grab now. It will become an even more fabulous grab.

What do you think?

Banner Says It

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I see another overhead sign has joined the motley cluster that decorates the downtown area.

Greeting persons entering Belleville from the west on Bridge Street is a large banner proclaiming "God Save the Queen".

I thought this antiquated nonsense went out of vogue in Canada years ago — it is certainly being relegated to the dust heap in the UK.

Something like "God Save Canada" might be more appropriate than the primordial cry of a dead empire.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY
Editor's note: The revolution is not here yet, or in the United Kingdom for that matter, "God Save The Queen" remains the national anthem of Britain, as well as a toast to Her Majesty, and is still sung on occasions in Canada of which she is head of state.

He's Fine!

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I am writing to thank Mr. Hockley for all the time and energy he saves myself and a lot of other people in this city. Several times my husband and I see things in the days they'll say we are going to write the editor about it. It seems we never get around to it, and then in a few days there's normally a letter from Mr. Hockley saying what we would have said.

An example is $500 spent on a handful of peanuts given to Lahr.

D. LATCHFORD

Out with Him!

Editor
The Intelligencer:

Why doesn't Mr. Hockley return to his native country? Harold Wilson the Prime Minister. Could certainly use a man of his seeming knowledge as one who apparently has all the answers to what I see wrong with the country. He might just put England on its feet again!

Moped Regulations Pleases Police Chief

By ROBIN CHASE

The Ontario legislature has approved legislation regarding the operation of motor-assisted bicycles (mopeds) and Belleville police officials, although welcoming the act, say the issue could have been easily resolved months ago.

The legislation amends the Highway Traffic Act with special provisions for mopeds.

However, Chief Douglas Crosbie commented recently "if they've got a motor attached to them, they should have been classed as motorcycles in the first place."

He was echoed by Deputy-Chief Harold Reid who remarked, "I think they were wrong in the first place not to put restrictions on them already. After all, they are a motorized vehicle."

The legislation originally omitted use of helmets but after listening to colleagues, John Rhodes, transportation and communications minister, offered an amendment making mandatory the wearing of helmets.

English Test Planned

BLOOMFIELD — Prince Edward Director of Education John McNeil told trustees Monday he is preparing a test of basic English skills for Grade 8 students across the county in the 1975-76 school year.

Mr. McNeil said the examination tests spelling, use of words and, possibly, sentence language. It is expected the test will be given in October.

If trustees agree, the test will also be administered at board level.

Ski Slope Becomes Summer Nature Trail

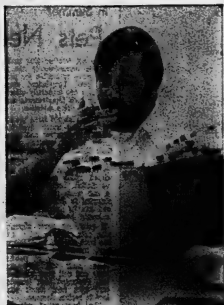
By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Reporter

PICTON — In the winter ski slopes have of snow and skiers for another year at Macaulay Mountain Conservation area, east of here, visitors to the 425-acre site now are enjoying the scenic two-mile long nature trail. Tom Frost, resources manager for the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority (PERCA) says that although the trail is two miles long, there are several loops in the trail which the hiker may take to shorten the distance.

"The trail is well-marked. As yet we have no signs describing any unique natural features along the trails route, but we hope to do so near future," explained Mr. Frost.

The trail makes a complete circle at its extreme length and winds through a variety of habitat, from open fields and flat areas to heavily wooded sections, part of the trail climbing up a portion of the mountainside. The trail is interspersed with a number of tiny bridges over creeks and cat-walks across marshy areas.

Macaulay Mountain Conservation Area is one of seven conservation areas in Prince Edward County managed by PERCA and is the only site which has been developed significantly.



Mr. Clean

Trenton weed inspector Robert Kirchemayer studies weed manual and checks the number of letters sent to town landholders who have failed to keep weeds in check. Since the 28-year-old Loyalist College student began work in June, he has requested 36 property owners to clean up their land.

Arnold Calls Budget 'A Bad Joke'

Nancy Arnold, New Democratic Party candidate for Hastings-Peterborough, has called the recent provincial mini-budget a "bad joke."

Money marked for housing will not help young couples with down payments or any "reasonable portion" of mortgage interest payments.

"It will just go to certain developers who promise to speed up construction of what already planned," said Mrs. Arnold

She said the budget meant the government will have to borrow more money at a time of high interest rates and when the province already is paying close to $2 million a day in interest on Ontario's debt.

Mrs. Arnold said the sales tax rebate on North American cars will not boost car sales, but may stimulate "the sagging Tory vote if the cheque is timed to arrive close to election day."

Vandalism Worries Education Board

Hastings County Board of Education officials would welcome the opportunity to get involved with a public education program designed to reduce vandalism.

Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie appealed to education officials Monday for support in trying to reduce vandalism in the city. Chief Crosbie revealed that in the last 25 years acts of vandalism have increased from three a year to 700 this year.

Acting director of education L. F. Reid said Monday the Hastings County Board of Education would be glad to participate in any type of program which could help solve this problem.

Student Matches Wits with Weeds

By AL XABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — If you have one weed on your property, says Trenton weed inspector Robert Kirchemayer, you've got a problem.

It's not that he'll swoop down on you and slap your wrists, although that's his job and he probably would, it's just that one weed breeds other weeds.

Soon you could have a field or a front lawn overgrown with weeds. Then, Mr. Kirchmayer's interest in you would increase, and you just might be open for some unwanted work on your property — at about $8 an hour.

Four weeks on the job, the weed inspector has sent letters to 36 land owners in Trenton asking them to clean up their properties.

Costs for that service are $8 an hour, says Mr. Kirchmayer, "So if he has a big field it's going to run into some money."

Works department crews cut a property owner's weeds as a last resort, only if the owner doesn't do it himself. Letters requesting compliance with a town weed control bylaw are sent by the inspector first.

It's an unusual job for a first-year civil engineering technician student at Loyalist College. It's also one that is new in him.

A Canadian navy cook for over seven years, he said Friday "I didn't know about noxious weeds before, but I had a feeling you weren't supposed to have them around in the middle of town."

He hasn't found many downtown. It's near the outskirts of Trenton, one runs across weed beds.

BCI Has 13 Scholars

Belleville Collegiate Institute (BCI) can boast 13 Ontario scholars this year with Corinna Wong taking the top honors with 91.2 per cent.

BCI principal J.A. Walker announced Wednesday that Grade 13 students Douglas Ridley, Richard Hounslow, Karen Hamelink, Debbie Blizard, Anne Mikel, Wayne Murray, Barbara Graham, Ian Kellogg, Gerry Kelly, Sandra Driscoll and Tina Heyduck also finished with 80 plus averages.

Construction sites also present problems. It's unlimited land, he says, and construction companies couldn't care less if there's weeds on them.

"You have to keep your eyes open. People try to get away with things."

Not only are weeds unpleasant — to those suffering from allergies — but they have a tendency to spread from one property to another. "A lot of people complain about other people's property. The seeds blow onto theirs."

They can also present a fire hazard. Dried by a lack of rain, a burning cigarette butt can set a field afire, he says.

When he first started to work for the town's building inspection department, Mr. Kirchmayer said he acted on complaints from citizens. Now, with a sheet of papers illustrating weeds under his arm, he drives Trenton streets to look for them.

It takes up close to half of his 35-hour work week. Luckily, there's not much territory to cover, says Mr. Kirchmayer. Trenton isn't like Belleville, two or three times the town's size.

And how does he like his job? "I suppose it's alright for the summer, but I wouldn't like doing it all the time."

After all, he said, "you can only take so much of looking at weeds."

Today's Child

by Helen Allen

RON AND KEN

Boys this age would never be caught expressing affection for each other. But it's obvious there is brotherly love between Ken (left), just turned 15, and Ron, 16 — and they are good friends as well.

These boys enjoy each other's company. They like hiking and camping together. They share jokes and good-natured teasing. So, since being together is important to both, a home is sought where the two brothers will be elcomed into the family.

Ken and Ron are Ojibway Indians, a healthy, handsome pair with black hair and very dark eyes.

Ken is quiet and pleasant. He gets along well with people of all ages but is somewhat unsure of himself and inclined to be a follower rather than a leader. Ken seldom says or does anything to call attention to himself but he welcomes friendly overtures. Considered a slow learner, Ken has been promoted to Grade 7 more because of his age than because of academic standing. Though not scholastically inclined, he is a co-operative student and has always been a favorite with his teachers. Ken loves the outdoors and is interested in sports. He plays hockey and belongs to a judo club.

Ron is happy and lively, more outgoing than his brother and also more likely to get into mischief. Ron's average is intelligence, he has had difficulties in school because he finds it hard to concentrate. He did not do very well in Grade 5 last term and will have to repeat that grade. Ron can be restless and demanding — symptoms of a need for attention and acceptance. He very much wants to be adopted, to have a family and to belong. When these are achieved he will feel more settled and at peace with the world — and his schoolwork will undoubtedly improve.

Ron has a sense of humor and can be quite witty when he feels at ease. Ron loves the outdoors and is keen on all games.

The brothers' adopting parents should enjoy their personalities, be proud of their heritage and not pressure them for academic achievement.

To inquire about adopting Ken and Ron, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 808, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your style of life.

Special attention is necessary for pup in summer

In Summer

Pets Need Special Care

The hot weather that makes humans uncomfortable can be even more miserable for animal pets. Long-haired dogs and cats are especially affected by high temperatures and may need extra attention.

All pets should have plenty of drinking water available since they perspire and thirst more in hot weather. Keep their dishes full of clean water at alltimes.

Never leave a pet in an enclosed space without proper ventilation. Locking a dog in a car while you go grocery shopping in July is heartless, and can be dangerous to the animal's health.

If your dog pants abnormally, acts dizzy or faint, and has been exposed to excessive heat, move him to a cooler place as quickly as possible (cold water will help cool him) and call your veterinarian. Prolonged high temperatures with heat shock could lead to serious damage.

Tiny bags called ectoparasites attack our canine pets during summer months more than other times. These little parasites, working their way through the animal's coat, cause an itching sensation that is terribly irritating. Some types bite, and that is why you may see your dog suddenly biting his skin frantically. Your veterinarian can advise you about the best type of parasite-control preparation to use.

Some dogs suffer a skin condition called "hot spots" during hot weather. If left untreated, this irritation can cause the hair to fall out, and will leave a large red patch of bare skin. At this point, the infection can spread to other parts of the body, and becomes a serious matter.

This need not happen if you keep your pet's coat particularly clean during this season, checking frequently for any sign of skin eruption. If you do see a "hot spot", call your veterinarian.

If you are travelling with your pets, make sure their rabies and distemper vaccinations are up to date — that's a must — and make sure that their licence and name tags are secure on their collars, in case of loss.

Your dog's eyes can be damaged or inflamed by grit and the wind if he rides with his whole head outside the car. Close the windows just far enough so that he can get his nose in the fresh air without getting his head through.

One further piece of advice to pet-owners who are also parents of small children — don't permit the cuddly mailing that can give a cat or dog the sensation of being smothered. Who'd blame a fluffy persian or shaggy sheepdog for biting or scratching after being hugged in July. —Hyodie's you?

Sisters Score a First

Carol and Elisabeth

Two Belleville sisters scored a first recently the Department of National Defence announced.

Carol Michel, 14, and Elizabeth Michel, 15, are among the first girls to attend Upperwash Girls' Training Camp at Upperwash, Ontario.

The girls live at RR 5, Belleville.

More than 1,200 boys and girls from across Ontario plus exchange cadets from Quebec and the United Kingdom will attend two or six week courses during the summer long camp.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. W. Moreau are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter Heather Lee to Thomas Pridmore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Pridmore. The marriage will take place August 16 at 2 p.m. at Bridge Street United Church.

Bags Clothes

TORONTO (CP) — Clothes designer Pat McDonagh recently demonstrated versatility of kitchen bags in a fashion show billed as "The most original since the fig leaf." She has created a 45-piece collection from garbage, sandwich and food storag bags including a polka dot bikini, a Victorian wedding ensemble and a fur-lined garbage bag raincoat.

Stirling Woman Wins Scholarship

Gayle Hoover

Gayle Hoover, Stirling, was recently awarded the $2,000 Mary A. Clarke Memorial Scholarship awarded by the Canadian Home Economics Association.

Margaret Pope, president of the association, announced the scholarship award at its recent annual meeting in Montreal.

Miss Hoover is a 1975 graduate of the University of Guelph. She received a Bachelor of Applied Science degree in human nutrition with special honors.

A former student of Centennial Secondary School, Miss Hover, who was born in Belleville, will attend Harvard University this fall where she will pursue post-graduate study in nutritional education.

"I would like to spend a period of time overseas in a Third World country, teaching and helping to improve the nutritional status of the people," Miss Hoover said.

Men Only

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — For Kiwanis International, it's still "men only." Delegates to the international businessmen's service club rejected a proposal to change the laws and allow women to become members. They also rejected proposals to re-admit two clubs whose charters were revoked because they had admitted women.

Women's Task Force Head: Psychoanalyst to the City

TORONTO (CP) — Being coordinator of the Mayor's Task Force on the Status of Women in Toronto is like "being a psychoanalyst to every woman in the city," says Judith Adam, who has held the post since it was created 18 months ago.

The co-ordinator is charged with the task of deciding what action should be taken to ensure that women in all levels of society in the city have equal opportunities with men.

Miss Adam and a volunteer executive committee of six women have produced a report comparing salaries of men and women in the civic service. It follows four other reports which dealt with abortion counselling services, day-care needs, venereal disease and the fact that public health nurses are paid less than men in other departments, with fewer qualifications.

But her activities as co-ordinator don't stop at preparing reports.

She also acts as an unofficial ances for various women's groups, advising women who telephone her office with specific problems and actig as a support for female employees at city hall.

From some department will march into my office at 4:30 and tell me how furious they are," the native of New York said.

In one case, a department head had forbidden women to wear trousers; in another, a woman had been forbidden to wear her native dress; in several others, women had been dismissed for what seemed to be discriminatory reasons. They subsequently were rehired.

Asked whether she could gauge reaction to her activity, she replied: "Oh yes. I can say it has been generally greeted with resentment.

"The union resents it, the city resents it, everybody resents it. Everybody has told me to mind my own business."

Everybody, she adds, except Mayor David Crombie.

"He has been supremely supportive," she said.

Lace and Embroidery Back in Style Again

ST. GALLEN, Switzerland (CP) — For centuries lace and embroidery has been in and out of fashion. This year with interest turning again to the peasant, earthy look, they are back. This 1870 lace bonnet, machine-made Tulle, is part of the extensive collection of laces and embroideries from the 18th century to present day at the Jacoby Museum in St. Gallen, Switzerland.

In any event, the embroidery industry took a firm hold in the region. By 1772, Appenzell had some 40,000 embroiderers working in their homes.

But it was the St. Gallen businessmen who sold it to the world. Most of it was millefleur embroidery on white or multi-colored muslin and was used for shawls, scarves, bonnets, aprons and even curtains.

Before too long, an enterprising St. Gallen businessman installed in 1828 the first machine for making embroidery.

Since St. Gallen has been the centre of the Swiss textile industry from the Middle Ages it is fitting that the city should have a lace and embroidery museum.

Original pieces of 18th-century lace in needlepoint and bobbin are on display. They feature simple motifs such as stars. One display case contains laces from the 17th century when embroidered neckfrills, cuffs and large collars were the vogue, especially with men.

These original laces and embroideries collected in the museum are from every country as well as Switzerland. There is needlepoint from Louis XIV's time with designs of chandeliers and human figures which are ceremonial and elegant.

The museum also possesses a magnificent gown made for the Empress Eugenie in Napoleon III's efforts to revive the French lace industry. It is made entirely in French needlepoint lace.

Although lace and embroidery has been in and out of fashion, there has always been a steady demand to keep the Swiss factories in operation.

Today embroideries are still produced in large and small factories scattered about the St. Gallen and Appenzell districts. The machines now are controlled by punched tape.

Yet there are a few homes where the old art of handmade lace and embroidery carries on.

Swiss embroideries are a big export item. The basic cotton of the yarn of the country has been joined by wool, silk, rayon, vinyl and imitation silk.

A number of exporters even create two haute-couture shows a year to highlight the St. Gallen product and present the collections in London, Paris, Rome and New York.

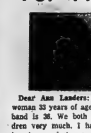
Ann Landers

Couple Wants a Mother — For His Unborn Child



Dear Ann Landers: I am a woman 33 years of age. My husband is 36. We both love children very much. I had a hysterectomy last year which means I will never be able to bear a child. My husband is the perfect health, very handsome and would make a wonderful father.

We are not wealthy, but we do have some stocks, bonds and a nice savings account. My husband and I would pay a woman $10,000 to have this child, provided she promised to keep it a secret and relinquish all rights. Together, we would select the candidate. She would stay in our home as a "guest" until she became pregnant. The woman would then be provided for in a nearby city where she could work. If she chose, but all her living expenses would be paid by us.

When she gave birth, we would pay all bills, take the child from the hospital and buy the woman a ticket to any city in the continental United States with the understanding that she would never return.

Are we crazy to want a child who has the genes of at least one of us? Could it work? Should we run a blind ad in the newspaper? Would you be willing to serve as the intermediary?—Hoping

Dear H.: I would not presume to comment on whether or not you are crazy, but the normal adoption procedure is the course rational people would take. I suppose your wild idea COULD work; in fact, I'm sure it has somewhere . . . at some time. Nothing is so bizarre but that someone has done it.

Don't run any ads. You will be besieged by hundreds of weirdos, oddballs, dingbats and wingy dames.

As for me serving as an "intermediary"—thanks a lot, but no thanks.

Dear Ann Landers: What advice can you give a gal, 28, single, not beautiful, but witty? (Please forgive the bragging.)

To make up for my lack of beauty I find myself trying too hard to be the life of the party. I often feel that I'm pressing to please others. The next day I'm unhappy with myself. Is there any cure for this?—Zelda

Dear Z.: A problem recognized is half solved.

Here's a quote from Pete Hamill, a splendid journalist who says it better than I could:

"I realized early that one central reason for my change was that I didn't want to be on anymore.

"I had spent too many nights entertaining other people—doing numbers on myself that lead only to sweet, bitter afternoons of remorse. I wanted to live a life—not a performance."

Beautifully said, Pete.

Dear Ann Landers: Why would a man who is "over the hill" (and I mean completely impotent) talk about nothing but sex whenever we are out in company? He doesn't know any clean jokes. Only dirty ones. Of course I am describing my husband.

Sometimes I get so embarrassed I'd like to drop through the floor.

P. S. He doesn't drink. What's the matter with him?—Tensie Face

Dear Face: Talk can be a substitute for performance—and hopefully for the talker, a smokescreen. Sometimes an extremely patient and understanding wife can reverse the situation. I also recommend counselling.

CYCLOPEDIA OF HOMEMAKING IDEAS
By Barbara Taylor Bradford

Mrs. Bradford has not only written extensively on the subject but has executed numerous design commissions including the Tunisian Embassy in London. She is now the editor of a decorating magazine in New York.

Her book is encyclopedic in scope although instead of being alphabetically arranged, it is set up to cover each subject in a logical sequence.

It begins with The Master Plan, and covers all aspects of home decoration, including budgeting, colour schemes, do-it-yourself projects, outdoor living through to Part Seven which covers housekeeping and household information in five chapters. The book, illustrated in color and black and white, is available in the Corby Public Library.

TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW — AUDITOR'S REPORT
FINANCIAL STATEMENTS FOR 1974

The Reeve
Members of Council Inhabitants and Ratepayers of the Corporation of the Township of Thurlow

We have examined the 1974 financial statements of the Corporation of the Township of Thurlow, and its local boards, which are listed on the attached index. Our examination included a general review of the accounting procedures, and such test of accounting records and other supporting evidence as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, these financial statements present fairly the financial position of the Corporation of the Township of Thurlow as at December 31, 1974, and the results of its operations for the year then ended, in accordance with accounting principles, generally accepted for Ontario municipalities, applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Suntan Lotions Won't Speed Up Tan

SUTTON (CP) — The best way to choose a suntan lotion is to read the label.

That advice in a new federal health department pamphlet is as easy as it sounds if the shopper notes one factor that all suntan preparations have in common.

"None of them will allow you to tan faster, darker, or more evenly than you normally would," the department says.

Tanning is actually your skin's way of protecting you from a sunburn." And rarer of tanning and sale-exposure limits depend on skin type.

People with dark complexions tan fast and do not usually burn while fair-skinned people tan slowly and may burn first. Red-heads burn easily and produce an uneven tan-freckles. Very lightskinned people never tan at all.

Cells in the skin, called brown pigment called melanin, which absorbs sun rays and prevents burning.

Suntan lotions and creams either absorb or reflect sun rays. Moisturizers offer only a little protection against sunburn by increasing the skin's ability to reflect radiation.

"Physical sunscreens and highly concentrated chemical sunscreens are capable of absorbing or reflecting most of the sunlight rays, even during peak hours of sunlight activity," the health department says.

The "tan" caused by artificial tanning agents is the result of a chemical reaction that mimics the action of melanin and causes the skin to turn brown.

"Most contain chemical sunscreens do as well, or the waterr can help tanned while actually getting a tan.

"There should be clues on the label or in the advertising product to buy. Ask your copy to help you decide how much protection the product will give you.

"A product which claims to promote rapid tanning probably has little or no sunscreen, while one advertising maximum protection against sunburn most likely has only a high sunscreen concentration.

"If you can't decide watch pharmacist for help."

Never intentionally get a burn, thinking it will turn into a tan, the pamphlet says. "It won't."

"As the burn fades, the tan you acquired while burning may show through, making it appear as though the tan was a direct result of the burn."

Sun should be taken in small doses, about 15 to 30 minutes on each side the first day, increasing exposure each day by half the previous day's exposure time.

"Even when the sun's rays are dispersed, by fog or haze, you can still get a sunburn if you are exposed too long."

Once you have a sunburn, sunscreens will not help. They might even be hazardous to health experts say.

"Sunburn pain can be temporarily alleviated by applying a cooling wet dressing—such as three-per-cent sodium bicarbonate (baking soda) followed by a soothing lotion."

Chronic exposure to sunlight over many years can lead to premature aging of the skin or to skin cancer in fair-skinned people.

CP News Roundup

Oil Price Prober Is Chosen

TORONTO (CP) — Claude M. Isbister, a Canadian who has been serving as executive director of the World Bank Group in Washington, D.C., was named Monday as Ontario's Royal commissioner investigating oil and gas prices.

Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell told the legislature that Mr. Isbister, 61, would take up his new appointment Aug. 1.

Rebate May Hurt

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario's new sales tax rebates to purchasers of 1975 North American-built cars might have pedversc effects on the Canadian automobile industry and Canada's trade position, Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said Monday.

Mr. Gillespie said the rebate program, introduced July 7, might be a violation of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

Booze, Drugs Fed Pigs

OTTAWA (CP) — For two years, 18 pigs have guzzled alcohol and become heroin addicts—all in the name of science.

They were the "guinea pigs" in an experiment by two Carleton University psychologists trying to discover why so many heroin addicts turn to alcohol when they are weaned off the drug by methadone, a heroin substitute.

MPs Seek Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs pressed the government Monday to find alternate employment for thousands of railway employees and Nova Scotia steel workers who have been laid off this summer.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) asked in the Commons what the government has done to persuade the national railways "to keep their employees at work, especially in view of the great need for improvement . in the rolling stock of both railways."

Flush Daily Says MP

TORONTO (CP) — Home water systems should be flushed each morning to guard against poisoning from heavy metals which accumulate in drinking water overnight, Bernie Newman (L — Windsor Walkerville) told the legislature Monday. He asked Environment Minister William Newman to investigate the problem. High blood pressure and mental retardation can result from excessive absorption of heavy metals such as cadmium, present in water pipes and solder, he said.

Picks up Winnings

TORONTO (CP) — The second winner of the $100,000 grand prize in last week's Wintario draw said he would really like a car with a chauffeur but that he also plans to invest the money.

James Bedford Allen, 89, of Toronto picked his winnings Monday. He was helped by a friend to the lottery office from a nursing home where he is currently staying.

Nixon Comments

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro should cut its rate increase request by half and rent out office space in its new headquarters in order to cut budget corners, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon told the legislature Monday.

Hydro originally proposed a rate increase of 29.6 per cent to come into effect next January—an increase Treasurer Darcy McKeough has called "appalling."

Arab Promises Action If Canada Bars PLO

OTTAWA (CP) — The head of a delegation of Canadian Arabs warned Monday his group will do all in its power to keep Arab delegations away from the September United Nations conference in Toronto if the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) is banned from attending.

George Hajjar also told the Canadian Arab Federation, which he says represents 10,000 Canadian Arabs, will attempt to disrupt Canadian-Arab business in such an eventuality.

Mr. Hajjar and three others spoke to reporters after a meeting with External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen urging that the PLO be permitted to attend the Toronto conference on crime.

Mr. Hajjar said he got no commitment from the minister whose government is considering whether to heed demands from Ontario government and Jewish groups and ban the organization which its opponents call terrorist.

Mr. Hajjar described himself as an assistant to Khaled Mouammar, president of the federation who was unable to attend the meeting with Mr. MacEachen.

Before the meeting Mr. Hajjar had said in an interview that if he did not get a hearing from the minister he would shout his demands from the Commons public galleries.

Appeals Possible

TORONTO (CP) — Lay people in Ontario now will have more say in governing medicine, dentistry, nursing, optometry and pharmacy as a result of the proclamation Monday of the Health Disciplines Act.

Regulations also spell out conflict of interest for health professionals.

The act gives power to a seven-member board of lay people to hear appeals from anyone dissatisfied with the way their complaints have been handled by the governing college of any of the five professions.

Can Close Schools

TORONTO (CP) — A board of education will be allowed to close schools or lock out teachers during a strike by teachers only after holding a public meeting to explain its position, a committee of the Ontario legislature decided Monday.

A motion to amend proposed legislation governing collective bargaining between boards of education and teachers to include this provision was carried by a 7-6-6 vote.

Brainpower Purchased

OTTAWA (CP) — Companies here spent about three times as much abroad as foreign firms spent in Canada for a variety of business services from royalties to research, Statistics Canada said in results of a special study on transactions in 1973.

The study of 6,000 businesses gives a rough idea of how much domestic companies rely on foreign brainpower and experience, but there may be many charges for which statisticians cannot account.

Consider Burglaries

WASHINGTON (AP) — The justice department is weighing the legality of burglaries conducted by the FBI to gain information considered necessary for national security.

Department spokesman Robert Havel said Monday officials will review the circumstances of the break-ins. But he said any criminal charges might be barred by the statute of limitations, which prevents federal prosecutions for most offences after five years.

Havel said it is Attorney-General Edward Levi's policy and the department's policy that burglary is a legal tactic to gather foreign intelligence in limited cases.

Remedy Weaknesses

MONTREAL (CP) — Some of weaknesses uncovered in Air Canada's financial control procedures by a special investigator are now being remedied, an inquiry into the airline's financial operations was told Monday.

Charge Denied

MONTREAL (CP) — The assertion that abortion referral agencies are being used to channel newborn Canadian babies to couples in the United States is entirely false, various agencies involved said Monday.

Love All, Avoid Issues Get Cheques, PCs Are Told

TORONTO (CP) — Love everyone, avoid the issues and get the money is the advice being given to Progressive Conservative fund-raisers, Jim Fleddis (NDP—Port Arthur) told the legislature Monday.

"Never voice your own opinions on issues, obey the fundamentals of grassroots fund-raising, love everybody, avoid the issues and get the cheques," he said, quoting from a party manual.

GREAT NEWS FROM GENERAL MOTORS FOR SMALL CAR BUYERS
60,000-MILE ENGINE GUARANTEE
Until now, in the 1975 model year, the toughest engine guarantee you could get on Imported or North American cars covered either three years or 50,000 miles, or one year with unlimited mileage. Well, General Motors has just gone all the rest of them one tougher, with a 60,000 mile or five year engine guarantee (whichever comes first), on new 1975 Chevrolet Vegas, and Chevrolet Monzas equipped with a 140 cubic inch 4-cylinder engine delivered on or after June 25, 1975.
General Motors guarantees to the owners of 1975 vehicles equipped with a 140 cubic inch 4-cylinder engine that any authorized General Motors dealer will make repairs, without charge to the owner, during the term of the guarantee, to the cylinder block, cylinder head, all internal engine parts, the intake and exhaust manifolds and water-pump made necessary because of defects in material or workmanship.
This guarantee is in addition to the New Vehicle Warranty but does not apply to repairs required because of misuse, negligence, accident or lack of reasonable or proper maintenance.
This guarantee is available to earlier purchasers of 1975 Chevrolet Vegas and 4-cylinder Chevrolet Monzas at extra cost through any General Motors dealer before October 1, 1975.
A 60,000 mile engine guarantee! Don't make any deals until you see Trudeau's.
MONZA

Year After Death Hazardous Railway Crossing Still in Use

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

Almost a year after Oscar King was killed by a train on one of the private railway crossings he was trying to have replaced the dangerous situation has not been changed.

Thurlow Township, the ministry of transportation and communications; CNR and his neighbors have not agreed on a way to solve the problem.

After two years of negotiation with the ministry and CNR about plans and financing of a new road, council's plan was rejected by an assemblage of property-owners, Monday night.

Mr. King's widow and son-in-law walked out of the meeting when it became evident the group was going to reject council's proposal calling for a new road servicing the farmland.

After rejecting the proposal council was instructed by the property-owners to approach the CNR and the ministry about building a new 40-foot road just south of the tracks using part of the railroad's right-of-way, between Mitchell's Road and Elmwood Drive.

A plan for a new road allowance across lots 19-20 between Mitchell's Road and Elmwood Dr., south of the CNR Tracks would have split the existing properties into two large pieces but was modified by the group.

Originally council's plan was to build the new road 500 feet south of the CNR right of way. This would not force any of the homes to be moved or destroyed, allowing room for existing structures.

The original petition to correct the hazardous situation was presented to the Thurlow Township Council May, 1972 by Mr. King and six of the 13 landowners and asked for the abolition of the crossings.

A replacement road allowing access to the farm land from the south side of the tracks would be built on land donated to the townships by the property owners.

The petition also expressed concern about the crossing delays of up to one hour caused by trains waiting to enter the Belleville Yards.

Mr. King succumbed to the injuries he received in a car-train collision on the crossing.

The police also expressed concern about the crossing delays of up to one hour caused by trains waiting to enter the Belleville Yards.

Mr. King succumbed to the ministry of health and Jack Ellis, MP for said in speeding up the bureaucratic tangle

"How unless some thing is done soon, there will be more deaths due to unnecessary delays and paper work by superior sources who keep pawning it off onto someone else," he said in prophetic letter to the Ministry of Health in November, 1973, months before he died.

Potter Remains Silent On Political Future

By HARRY. MULHALL
Staff Reporter

With expectancy still mounting over a full provincial election both Progressive Conservative and Liberal parties in Quinte riding have yet to call nominating conventions.

Events at Queen's Park are being closely watched by local political organizers in the riding and indications are that the timing of conventions will depend on when Premier William Davis will call an election.

The Belleville—Trenton area constituency is the seat of Correctional Services Minister Richard Potter.

He has represented the riding since he first entered provincial politics in 1967.

Dr. Potter has yet to officially confirm his intentions and there has been speculation as to the nomination to date.

But Gerry Brennan, president of the riding's Conservative party association said the organization had no statement until Dr. Potter makes his announcement.

"We're going on the premise that Dr. Potter is running, that Dr. Potter will be a candidate," he said. "As far as I'm concerned I'm going to call a convention after Mr. Davis issues the election writ."

Mr. Brennan said the riding executive had decided that a convention would be the kick-off to the party's campaign in Quinte.

One personality on whom speculation has centred has been Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

But the mayor said Monday she was not ready to "make any statement whatsoever."

"If Dr. Potter runs again I will support Dick Potter," she added.

If the office of mayor became vacant city council has a choice of appointing one of its members or calling an election — providing the vacancy does not occur after August 31 in a municipal election year. After that, the office is filled by appointment. Next local election is December 1976).

Charles Bates, Melrose farmer and a Liberal party candidate for eastern Ontario ridings, said organizers were still conferring about a convention date for Quinte.

He said plans are "definitely underway" and candidates have been asked about dates of announcing their intentions.

The only party with a candidate in the field is the New Democratic Party.

He is Carson McLauchlan, 30-year-old Belleville railroad office worker. Mr. McLauchlan has been campaigning in Quinte since his nomination March 13.

Officials Delay Action on Sidewalk

City council's traffic committee Monday decided to collect more data before it makes any new move on a controversial sidewalk project involving northend city school children.

Water Deal Nears

Belleville city council at its next meeting will be asked to approve a water and sewer agreement with Sidney Township — an agreement which so far has been the major stumbling block of a 71-home subdivision.

The subdivision proposed by Belleville builder Reg Breault has been stalled for several months as professional staff from both municipalities wrestled with the wording of the agreement.

Before Ontario's ministry of housing will approve the development slated for the city's east end in the vicinity of Harder Drive, the project first must be serviced with both water and sewer lines.

The agreement came under fire from Mr. Breault several weeks ago when the document contained the stipulation that the development meet city of Belleville standards.

"If the development is in the township, then it should meet township standards — not that these would be any more relaxed than the city standards" " told Mr. Breault.

Township council concurred with Mr. Breault ...many night and altered the wo ding to include "sound engineering principals."

A resolution to accept the agreement passed council and will be delivered immediately to Belleville city hall for its decision on council's agenda July 21.

Turner Remanded

Donald Turner of Prospect Hill in Trenton, charged with assault causing bodily harm in connection with a brief following a lacrosse game here [illegible] 2, has been remanded to July 18 for trial in provincial court.

A city police spokesman said today Turner appeared in court Monday after a three-week waiting period during which he applied for legal aid.

The charge resulted from a donnybrook at the completion of a minor league lacrosse game at Dick Ellis Rink during which Robert Hurst, 16 of Pine St., in Belleville, had his nose broken in three places.

The exhibition Frankford-Belleville juvenile match was called midway through the third period on the referees due to roughness. The league has suspended Frankford from further play in Belleville

Police Chase Brings Arrest

MADOC — A 24-year-old Belleville man has been charged with dangerous driving and speeding following a 90-minute high-speed chase early today that covered 56 miles and crossed three township lines.

George Walter Reid, of Ann St., Belleville, was apprehended by Belleville city police at his home around 2:45 a.m. early today. The high speed chase, that reached speeds of 115 miles per hour, originated no th of Moira Lake on Highway 62 about 1:15 a.m.

Constables Bill Reid and Derrick Travis of the Madoc OPP began to chase the late model car on Highway 62. After more than an one-hour chase the provincial constable lost the car.

Madoc OPP notified the Belleville police who spotted the car near the man's home. He will appear in Madoc provincial court Aug. 26.

Rape Suspect In Court

Lyna William Parker, 21, of 230A West Moira St., in Belleville, charged in connection with the rape of a 23-year-old Chatham woman here Thursday has been remanded to next Monday in provincial court at which time a trial date will be set.

A city police spokesman said today Parker appeared in court for the first time Monday.

Parker has been charged with one count of rape in connection with the incident which occurred at about 3 p.m. near a foot path in a wooded area between Tracy St. and Bell Blvd.

Pie-throwing Incident Ends Band Engagement

An American rock music group was treated to some slap-stick comedy at a dancing lounge here early today but it did not strike a humorous vein on the part of band members.

A city police spokesman said today the group, Harem Scarem, of New York City was midway through its set at about 12:10 a.m. in the Mad Mechanic Lounge at the Four Seasons Motor Hotel when four men clad in khaki overalls and heads covered by skit-type balaclavas walked in and hit them have it with fruit pies covered with whipped cream.

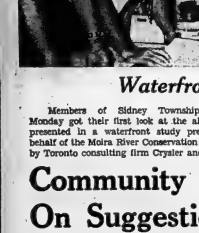
The spokesman said the men, described as tall and in their early 20's, had been admitted by an unknown person and fled after throwing the pies.

Chris Davies, Four Seasons manager, confirmed the group of three women and two men had decided to cancel their engagement due to the incident.



Waterfront Study Presented

Members of Sidney Township council Monday got their first look at the alternatives presented in a waterfront study prepared on behalf of the Moira River Conservation Authority by Toronto consulting firm Crysler and Lathem.

The study gained the informal approval of council with its major recommendation being provision of a community centre for the township in the area of the bay front.

Community Centre for Sidney On Suggestion of Harbor Study

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The recommendations of Toronto environmental consultants converting recreational use of the bay front won informal approval from Sidney Township Council Monday.

Ralph Crysler representing Crysler and Latham consultants, pointed out that the study is not making firm recommendations but offering a number of alternatives for bayside municipalities.

The study — calling for a two-range recreational development plan for the Bay of Quinte waterfront in the Belleville area — was commissioned by the Moira River Conservation Authority.

For the Sidney Township sector of the study area, consultants have tentatively suggested a biking trail to follow Highway 14, walking trails along the shoreline in the vicinity of Belleville cemetery and a community centre facility east of the Bay of Quinte Golf course. Questioned about the walkway along the cemetery's perimeter, Mr. Crysler commented: "It's very peaceful to walk through the area."

The community centre particularly caught council's fancy though no formal resolution of approval was taken.

Mr. Crysler emphasized the centre would not be intended as a sporting facility but for more passive recreations such as theatre, arts and crafts, and the like.

French Students Made Honorary Citizens

Mayor Robin Jeffrey made 17 French-Canadian students honorary citizens of Belleville during an afternoon ceremony at City Hall, Monday.

In council chambers, the mayor bestowed the honor upon the exchange group of students visiting the Quinte area for two weeks.

Part of a program sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, the group had spent part of the afternoon touring the Deloro Stellite, before arriving at City Hall for the presentation.

The visit continues with another week.

Dog Slain

City police are investigating the knife-slaying of a dog sometime late Sunday or early Monday at 28 Great St. James St., while a next-door house at 28½ Great St. James St. was being sold.

A police spokesman said today the dog, owned by Peter Scruby, had its throat cut. He added police were not sure if turned as to the kind of canine.

Belleville Public Utilities Commission saying his area was basically residential and he can not understand why it was necessary to turn his quiet street into a Broadway.

It seems during routine maintenance of the area, PUC crews had re-aimed the lens covers, replaced the old lamps with new ones increasing the light output.

The contribution of these factors along with the fact that Highland avenue used to be Highway No. 2 until it was rerouted and had lighting for a major artery was the cause of the problem.

Mr. Britton thanked the observant man for his note and said the matter would be rectified as soon as city council saw the light.

PUC Rejects Claim For Water Damage

The Belleville Public Utilities Commission formally rejected Monday a water damage claim by a local resident saying they didn't want to set a precedent.

Previously, the $50 claim for damages caused by a break in a water pipe, was being paid and may have been paid as a goodwill gesture, said Neil Britton, general manager of the utilities commission.

"Legally, technically and morally we were not responsible for the damage," he said, in an interview following the commission's monthly meeting.

During the meeting Gerry O'Connor, a member of the commission, conveyed the feelings of other municipal council members he encountered at a regional meeting in Madoc.

He said it was the general opinion the claim should be rejected because it was unsafe to set a precedent even if the amount was small.

The commission agreed with the advice and, following the recommendation of their lawyer and insurance company, mailed a letter to the property owner involved.

Hike for Blueberries Becomes Nightmare

There are still blueberries to be found in the Quinte bush.

But today there are also four Belleville-area people — including a young brother and sister — who won't bother much about finding the wild fruit in future.

They're resting after a carefree berry-picking hike in the country that turned into a 20-hour ordeal in swampy mosquito-infested bush.

"No. Never for blueberries. I've had an experience now," said 23-year-old Harold Prest, RR 1 Corbyville, as he recuperated Monday night.

It's a sentiment readily echoed by his sister, Mrs. Thelma Goodfellow, and two of her seven children, Cathie, 13 and Roy 10.

Sunday, Mr. Prest set off with his sister — a resident on Tyendinaga Township's eighth concession near the Moira River — and, with the two younger Goodfellow's headed north of Madoc to pick blueberries.

They drove into what they believe was the Cooper area in northeast Madoc Township, parked the car off a dead-end sideroad in a wooded area — and strode into the bush.

At first they noticed nothing amiss. Then, about three hours later — after climbing around beaver ponds — they realized they had lost their bearings.

What threw their sense of direction was the ponds and climbing over beaver houses, in the rough bush, said Mrs. Goodfellow.

After several hours wading swamps and climbing rocks, they tried following the sun toward the west.

After the initial shock, said Mrs. Goodfellow, her two children remained in high spirits, often laughed because "they couldn't believe this was happening to us."

The worst part came with the dark. They followed a hollow, covered themselves with layers of boughs to keep off bugs.

"But the mosquitoes were unreal," said Mr. Prest, father of two and drug-store merchandising manager.

At dawn they began following the sun back home, said Mrs. Goodfellow.

When they came to the show Sunday night Mary Prest and Harvey Goodfellow — who also works as a Canadian railmarker — began exchanging anxious phone calls. Then they called the provincial police.

Early Monday morning police told Mr. Goodfellow to investigate all leads at Actinolite to begin a search. When they seemed late in arriving he phoned the OPP at Madoc. Then he learned the party had been found.

What had happened in the interim: The four kept following the sun without any sign of highway or settlement. Suddenly they stumbled on an old logging trail.

"It was like a miracle," said Mrs. Goodfellow. After what seemed like 10 miles she said they suddenly came on a bungalow — the home of Mrs. Albert Campbell near Queensboro.

Mrs. Campbell fed them, even recognized the spot where they'd left their car from their description, said Mrs. Goodfellow From there, they also phoned police and home to give them the news.

The Last Berries ?

These may be among the last wild blueberries this family group says it will pick in the bush. Mrs. Thelma Goodfellow, son Roy, 10 and daughter Cathie, 13, relax at home on Tyendinaga Township's eighth concession after spending night in mosquito-infested bush. Goodfellow's brother, Harold Prest, RR 1, Corbyville, they became lost Sunday in Madoc Township on berry-picking expedition.

Tripping in Outdoors Still Four Weeks to Go

In the parlance of the hip generation (that is passed on to others?) you either dig it or you don't.

That is, some are turned on by what Wilderness Adventure has to offer, while for others, it's not their bag.

Wilderness Adventure (directors in Belleville are H. Cooke, head of the Physical Education Department at Moira Secondary School, and M. Dallack, supervisor of athletics at Bayside Secondary School) is a program dedicated to offering a unique program to residents of the Quinte area.

Dig it or not, the opportunity offered is one which should appeal to many. Its objectives are to provide canoe tripping opportunities so that young people can appreciate the outdoors; to promote physical fitness, self discipline and the pleasure of being self others, and to develop skills necessary for successful canoeing and camping experiences.

Explains Michael Dollack, "Wilderness Adventure is offering a canoe tripping experience to all persons 11 years of age and over who have at least a minimum of swimming ability.

"Trips leave Belleville on Monday mornings and return on Friday evenings. That's five days of healthy activity and living in the out-of-doors.

"We offer several different canoe routes, depending on the individual's wishes and his or her capabilities.

"The cost is $80 ($12 per day) and covers transportation, food, canoes, paddles, tents and life jackets.

"Participants must provide their personal gear, including sleeping bags."

Groups of eight plus a leader make up the personnel for a trip. The next four weeks are booked solid but that leaves four weeks for organizing similar trips.

More information and application forms may be obtained by writing Wilderness Adventure, 238 Bleecker Ave., Belleville, or call 967-1525.

I dig it. Do you?

SLICES — That deck 'ill dawn rally organized by members of the Quinte Auto Sport Club last weekend, proved to be a success.

Entries from Picton, Napanee, Kingston, Toronto and Belleville took part in the 160-mile event which began just after 10 p.m., Saturday, and wound up about 5 a.m. Sunday.

Says organizer Ginger Marshall, "The Trenton Radio Club's assistance proved invaluable as they relayed messages while manning the checkpoints and we knew at all times where the competitors were."

Mike Weld and Bill Eschellier from Napanee took first place in a BMW, with 15 points. Second place went to Greg Gingrich and Dave Morgan of Kingston in a Datsun, 29 points. Belleville's Mike McCarney and Richard Woodley were third, driving a Volvo. They had 32 penalty points.

Fitcher's Night in QFL Three Teams Scoreless

Auger Men's Wear and Bardon Supplies staged a real pitcher's show in Quinte Fastball League fare on Monday night at the Alemite.

It was the second game of the doubleheader and pitchers Darryl Kramp (Auger's) and Ken Demille (Bardon) went nine innings without allowing a runner to cross the plate. Final score 0-0.

In the first game, Devolin Motors defeated the Ellis Janitors 3-0.

Demille pitched no-hit ball for Bardon until the ninth inning, giving up a double to Dennis Orr. He walked no batters and struck out one.

Kramp had his longest outing of the season, giving up just four hits and two walks while striking out nine batters.

Wayne McConnell led Bardon batters with two singles, while Ron Weese and Carl Stacey both singled once.

The only Auger hit was Orr's double in the ninth.

Bayview Trims O'Brien's

Bayview Orchards went out to bat on Monday night in Prince Edward North Men's Softball League action, and they were quite successful.

Bayview took a 12-3 win over O'Brien's Tree Service with Dennis Snell pitching the win.

Snell gave up six hits and three walks while striking out eight batters.

John McCormick took the loss, giving up nine hits, five walks and managed one strikeout.

George Chapman had two hits for the winners, as did Bill Kerslake's wife Dour Mason, John Allison, Gary Mason, Mike Reddick and Snell all had singles.

Terry MacLeod and Tony Parks shared the Belleville pitching, limiting the home side to five hits. Steve Morgan went all the way in defeat. He struck out four batteries.

Parks had three Belleville singles with Hugh Norbey and Dave Mortensen each supplying a pair. David Maikawa doubled and while Brian Cronkright, Glenn McGuire and Mike Skelly each punched out a single.

Nicklaus Still Leads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roger Maltbie's $15,000 win in the Quad Cities Open golf tournament pushed him among the top 30 money-winners on the Professional Golfers Association circuit, the association said Monday. Maltbie's 1973 earnings now are $34,907. Jack Nicklaus leads with $180,799, followed by Johnny Miller, $180,670 Hale Irwin, $175,627; Tom Watson, whose $14,500 win at the Memphis Open did not count in the standings, $130,751; Tom Weiskopf, $128,565; John Mahaffey, $121,665; Al Geiberger, $111,742; Gene Littler, $111,182; Bob Murphy, $110,927, and Lee Trevino, $106,573.

Posties on the Move

Post Office came up with a clutch run in the bottom of the seventh inning to produce a 4-3 victory over CNRA, Monday in Belleville Industrial Softball League play.

In other league action, Black Diamond defeated The Intelligencer 20-1 and Brooke Bond upset UIC 5-2.

With the win over CNRA the Post Office came closer to regaining their lead in the League's West Division.

Norm Lockhart hurled the Posties to the victory, giving up seven hits and three walks while sending 10 batters to the bench on third strikes.

Brian Plumbe took the loss, giving up eight hits and no walks while striking out four batters.

Bob Wladyka came up with the singles of the game for the losers, Eric Maher and John Burnside also singled.

Safeties for the Juniors came from Ken Voss, with two singles and Peter Hallowell and Mike Crawford singled once.

REPRESENT CANADA — OTTAWA (CP) — Fifty-seven swimmers will represent Canada at the second world aquatic championships at Cali, Colombia July 18 to 27, the Aquatic Federation of Canada said Monday. The team will be led by Bruce Robertson of Vancouver, defending world butterfly champion, and Nancy Garapick, 13, of Halifax, who holds the world 200-metre backstroke record, and will be made up of 30 swimmers, six divers, 11 water-polo players and 10 synchronized swimmers.

TAKES LEAD — MONTREAL (CP) — Louise Lanoche of Chicoutimi, Que., fired an even-par 74 Monday to take a three-stroke lead after the first round of the 54-hole Quebec women's amateur golf championship. Claire Richardson of Montreal and Francoise Vie des Jets. "This is the first five heard of it," said Al Ward, second at 77. Francine general manager of Montional Football League team, confirmed that Nowlan will sign within the next week or 10 days.

LYNN MOVES UP — BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Mike Lynn was named general manager of Minnesota Vikings Monday, movlup from the post of assistant to the president. Lynn, 39, joined the National Football League team last August after Jim Finks resigned as general manager to take a similar post with Chicago Bears.

CALLS CONFERENCE — NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath called a news conference for today and set off speculation about his future—will he sign for the 11th year with New York Jets or will he set out on a new career as a movie actor or in some other form of show business. The question was raised because Joe, in setting up the 2 p.m. EDT meeting with reporters, neglected to ask Rousseau of Gaspe, Que., tied for second at 78, Francine Larue of St. Hyacinthe, Que., and Linda Bell, all at 80. Miss Louise Chaine of Trois-Rivieres, Que., and Debbie Sauvé of Le Turque, Que. Sharon Blok-Anderson of Brockville, Ont., had a hole-in-one on the par-three, 123-yard 12th hole on the way to an 82.

Thurlow Gets the Nod In 12-inning Contest

When the Yardmen hook up, things happen. And in an Eastern Ontario Baseball Association midget contest Sunday, at Centennial Park, Thurlow and Belleville teams sponsored by the Belleville Yardmen Athletic Fund, produced a 13-inning thriller. Thurlow took a 5-3 decision with a three-run blast in the top of the 12th.

Belleville battled to score once in the bottom of the 12th but it was too little, too late, as winning pitcher Barry Beer shut off the rally.

The teams were tied 1-1 after nine innings and the team scored once in the 11th frame.

Beer, and Belleville's Gary Stapley, both went the distance with Beer fanning 14 and Stapley 13 and limiting just two free tickets to first.

Beer got credit for 22 on third strikes and walked only one. Stapley fanned 15 and issued just two free tickets to first.

Beer got support at his team at the plate from Brad Sullivan who connected for a home run, two triples and a single. Dave Chisholm collected three hits, singles and Tom Crook had a pair.

Tops for losers was Mike Burke who homered and singled. Bill Gow was in step with a triple and a single.

It was a good weekend for Thurlow. In peewee action, Thurlow Plane's Concrete subdued Alex 13-4.

Winning pitcher Dale Forestell spun a seven-hitter while fanning seven and walking two.

Leading the winners at the slugfest and a single, and Boyd Sullivan, a double and two singles.

At Peterborough, Saturday, Belleville Broadcom spotted Peterborough Minors an early 4-0 lead and then bounced back to record a 14-7 peewee victory.

Tony Parks shared the Belleville pitching, limiting the home side to five hits. Steve Morgan went all the way in defeat. He struck out four batteries.

Parks had three Belleville singles with Hugh Norbey and Dave Mortensen each supplying a pair. David Maikawa doubled and while Brian Cronkright, Glenn McGuire and Mike Skelly each punched out a single.

Merchants Top Deseronto 5-1

The Foxboro Merchants took a 5-1 victory from Deseronto in South Hastings Baseball League action on Monday night.

Early in the game Deseronto loaded the bases and, with two out, a long fly ball was hit to centrefielder Dale Harlson, who had to make a great catch to come up with the third out.

Meanwhile, John Masterson and Ron McTaggart pitched Foxboro to the victory, giving up nine hits, three walks, and striking out eight batters.

Stephen Heffernan took the loss, giving up eight hits, two walks and striking out six batters.

Masterson tripled for the winners while Dale Harrison had two singles to help in the offensive.

Minor Softball

Red Shark Sharp

Red Shark picked up their third win in a row in Belleville Minor Softball League action, going in the Bantam division.

Randy Smith and Ray Ellis buried in 12-10 game for Red Shark, beating the Police Association by two runs.

The loss went to John Jianopoulos and Tim McWilliams.

Andy lane hit a clutch triple to help win the game for Red Shark while Rick Turner had two base hits.

Mike Shaugnessy hit a triple, double and single for the losers.

Red Shark was at it again, this time against the SACO Peewees, with a 10-6 victory.

Ray Ellis and Randy Smith combined for the win again, with just five hits being given up.

Mike Wood pitched well for the loss e, but got no help from his infield, as they made five errors.

Rick Turner hit a homer and two singles for the winners.

In Squirt play Sidney Ins defeated Eastern Business 22-8 behind Dave Brown Wright taking the win and going four for four at the plate, with a single, two doubles and a triple.

Stephen Douglas pitched in relief to help Sidney Ins to victory.

In Peewee action Branch 99 House Dart League defeated Dixie Lee Reds, Jeff Whiting, Daryl Brennan and Leonard Wigger pitching the win.

The loss went to Ray Lucas and Dan Rose.

Steve Sopha hit a homer and two singles, while Jeff Whiting smacked a four bagger to lend the club to victory.

Tyke action Tuesday defeated Sun Luck Gardens 48-3.

Brian Clarry had two homers in the win, while Steve Elliot came up with one.

Pocket Rocket Retires

MONTREAL (CP) — After 20 years and 1,256 games in the National Hockey League, Henri Richard has decided to retire from Montreal Canadiens.

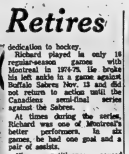
The diminutive 38-year-old centre, who played on a record 11 Stanley Cup championship teams, made the announcement Monday at a hastily-called news conference.

"It's a very difficult decision for me," he said. "After 20 years, a good thing is over after all as well."

Richard, who had another year to go on a two-year contract, said the rigors of a heavy travel schedule and his age were factors in his decision.

"The deal...I play hockey was missing a little because of these factors. I had another year to go on my contract . . . I worked out a settlement with the club."

During his career, Richard scored 358 goals and 688 assists in regular-season play. In 1972-74, he was awarded the Bill



HENRI RICHARD

Masterton Memorial Trophy presented annually to the player best exemplifying perseverance, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey.

Richard played in only 16 regular-season games with Montreal in 1974-75. He broke his left ankle in a game against Buffalo Sabres Nov. 13 and did not return to action until the Canadiens opened the season against the Sabres.

At times during the series, Richard was one of Montreal's better performers. In six games, he had one goal and a pair of assists.

His competitiveness caused some stormy moments during his 20-year stint with the Canadiens.

During the 1971 Stanley Cup finals against Chicago Black Hawks, he called Al MacNeil, the would-coach he had never played under. Two years later, he and team-mate Serge Savard engaged in an argument after a game and Richard slapped Savard across the face.

Richard did not dress for the Canadiens' 1974-75 opener against New York Islanders last Oct. 9, touching off controversy with current Montreal coach Scotty Bowman.

Richard's brother Maurice was honored that evening along with several other Canadiens who were elected to the Hall of Fame and Henri was upset because he was not given ice for the ceremonies.

But Richard enjoyed some great moments in a Montreal uniform. In 1960, he scored the Cup-winning goal in the sixth game of the Canadiens final series against Toronto Maple Leafs and five years later, he got the game-winning goal in the seventh game of Montreal's final against Chicago.

"Henri was associated with me 25 years as a player and Canadiens," said Sam Pollock, Montreal Canadiens general manager. "Thes he went up to the Canadiens in 1955. His record speaks for itself. I'm sure it won't be long before Henri's name . . . will be mentioned in the hall of fame."

Pollock said Richard's No. 16 will be officially retired at a ceremony before a game next season.

Richard now will devote his time to running a brasserie in downtown Montreal and will be actively involved with the Canadiens any more.

"But although he will not actively be working here, he will always be a member of our family," Pollock said.

A's Vida Blue

A. L. Starter Is Confident

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Vida Blue, with little regard for the American League's record history of all-star frustration, still exudes confidence.

"I recall the last time the American League won one I was the starting pitcher," said the Oakland A's left-hander. "I don't see Jimmy the Greek here, but I believe that gives us a little advantage.

"There is no doubt in my mind the American League is just as good as the National."

The American League, led by starters from the world champion A's, will try to back Blue's boast in baseball's 46th midsummer showcase at Milwaukee County Stadium tonight starting at 8:30 p.m. EDT.

The American League's only victory in the last 11 all-star games was by a 5-4 score in Detroit in 1971.

Determined to reverse that trend, American manager Alvin Dark of Oakland said he would use all of his starting pitchers. Only Catfish Hunter of the American League squad were withheld from Tuesday's games in order to get a fresh start for the game.

"I'm not saying I'm going to win this game. I'm sure (National League manager) Walter Alston will do the same."

Dark's pitching corps was bolstered late Monday when Jim Palmer, Baltimore's game winner, said he was ready and able to go after getting examination of his sore arm.

Dark had planned to add A's reliever Paul Lindblad if Palmer couldn't pitch, but Lindblad will continue to serve as batting practice pitcher.

Dark's other starting pitchers are Steve Busby, Catfish Hunter, Jim Kaat and Nolan Ryan. He has Rollie Fingers and Rich Gossage as bullpen specialists.

They will confront a National League squad under consideration by Pete Rose, Cincinnati, right field; Lou Brock, St. Louis, left field; Johnny Bench, Cincinnati, second base; Johnny Beech, Cincinnati, second base; Steve Garvey, Los Angles, first base; Jimmy Wynn, Los Angeles, centre field; Ron Cey, Los Angeles, third base; Dave Concepcion, Cincinnati, shortstop, and Jerry Reuss, Pittsburgh, pitcher.

"If we can't get runs with this club, then I'm in a slump," quipped Alston, the Dodgers' longtime manager.

Dark's batting order reads: Bobby Bonds, New York, centre field; Rod Carew, Minnesota, second base; Thurman Munson, New York, catcher; Reggie Jackson, Oakland, right field; Joe Rudi, Oakland, left field; Craig Nettles, New York, third base; Gene Tenace, Oakland, first base; Bert Campaneris, Oakland, shortstop, and Alston, whose pitchers did not have to be batted during play last Sunday, wasn't sure who would follow Rouse, his freshest pitcher with four days of rest.

Alston said Dodger right-handed Don Sutton, sidelined for a week with a groin injury, wants to pitch and may be ready.

Tom Seaver and Andy Messersmith of the Nationals pitched 8 2-3 and 7 innings, respectively, Sunday.

Rhe vowed to challenge the final League hitters with "about 95 per cent fast balls."

"I don't think the all-star record indicated the National League is better," he said. "I think maybe the fans just haven't always voted for the best American League player. Reggie and Hank Aaron is on our side for this time."

$6.5 Million Offer

Saints Bid for Orr

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Pioneer Press says in a copyright story today that Boston Bruin superstar Bobby Orr has been offered a $6.5 million, five-year contract by Minnesota Fighting Saints and the World Hockey Association.

The deal would be the largest in hockey history and would include a cash payment of $1 million, The Pioneer Press said.

Earlier in the day, when Toronto Sun reported that Orr might sign with the WHA, a spokesman for Orr called it "strictly speculation." Then Bill Walters, an associate of Orr's lawyer, Allan Eagleson, confirmed a multi-million dollar offer had been made by the WHA.

Orr has a year left on his contract, with the National Hockey League Bruins which calls for a reported $250,000 annually.

"Bobby has no comment," said Walters. "He has not indicated one way or another. Nothing has been consummated nor will there be until the Bruins become part of the negotiation."

The newspaper said the Saints would pay approximately 40 per cent of the contract with the league picking up the rest.

A spokesman for the Bruins said Eagleson had told them "he would be sitting down with negotiations on the contract."

Dukes Edged

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — Woodstock Warriors edged London Dukes 3-1 Monday in the only Ontario Baseball League game scheduled.

The Warriors now are 18-11, one-half game behind Newmarket Hays, the east division leaders.

Don Heeder threw a six-hitter for the Warriors and struck out two.

Dick Haines went the distance for the Dukes, giving up three hits and fanning five batters out.

Warriors wasted no time in getting a jump on the west division leaders. Pat Wertby started the batting parade in the first inning with a double.

Terry Hollowed and went to first on an error by Haines. He went to third on the error. Lamb stole second and Randy Hewitt singled both runners in.

London came close to scoring in the top of the third after Barry Vaughann singled, went to second on a sacrifice by Hames and to third on an error before the next two batters were put out.

Woodstock picked up their third and final hit of the game in the fourth when Hewitt hit his second single.

The Dukes got on the scoreboard in the eighth. Hames opened with an error by shortstop Lamb and was substituted by runner Bob Goss.

Charles Wieger doubled Goss home and made third on a sacrifice before the inning closed.

Bill Fairbairn kept London's hopes alive in the ninth when he hit a double with only one out. But he was put out on a fielder's choice at second and the next batter flied out to win the game.

With No Major Changes, Bucs Are Still a Power

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Most baseball season as the start of La Phase Deux or Phase Two. The arrival of their farm talent. They're last in the National League's east division.

Chicago hit-man Bill Madlock helped the Cubs take over first place April 15 and stay there until June. Now they're fifth.

St. Louis Cardinals made several winter moves and were acclaimed as the division's most improved team. They're fourth.

And New York Mets, who Joe Torre, Dave Kingman and Del Unser, are third.

Philadelphia Phillies caused a stir when they lured Dick Allen out of the Chicago business. And they're a distand second.

In Pittsburgh, there've been no major changes. Danny Murtaugh's Pirates are still atop the division, threatening to make a runaway of it. Montreal Expos are en route to their fifth divisional title in six years.

The only Pirate pennant lapse in the last five seasons came in 1973 when Roberto Clemente was killed in a plane crash, all-star pitcher Steve Blass was stricken with loss of control and Bob Robertson went from slugger to a .185 hitter.

The Pirates lead the National League with 53 wins, and they've third in team batting by with a .288 average. Jerry Reuss (10-6, 2.22 ERA) is the only 10-game winner on the staff, but the team ERA of 3.07 ranks second only to Los Angeles Dodgers.

The last time the Pirates were this far over .500 was 1971 when they finished with the best season record in oldest baseball.

On papes—and in Philadelphia—the Phillies are as awesome as reliever Tug Mcgraw says they are. They're beaten the Pirates seven of 10 games including four straight at home.

Greg Luzinski leads the majors in homers with 25 and runs batted in with 79, and Dave Cash leads the majors in hits with 122.

The Phillies are 16-27 away from Veterans Stadium, but Allen could help change that. He's hit four homers in the first half, but was the American League home run leader last year, another boost could come from Mike Schmidt, the major league home run leader last year, who has 16 homers with 100 strikeouts.

The Mets dealt some pitching talent and cash to acquire Torre, Unser and Kingman, but have still scored fewer runs than all but San Francisco Padres and Montreal.

In St. Louis, the Cardinals started the season with newcomer Ed Brinkman at short, young Keith Hernandez at first and former Met Ray Sadecki in the bullpen. A few injuries and the Cardinals lead the league in personnel changes.

Chicago, Cubs' bright-eyed manager Jim Marshall may be young Maddock's kid for the Cubs' National League East crown.

In Montreal, manager Gene Mauch has a young, revamped team. He has had his share of pains. Gone are veterans Mike Torrez, Willie Davis, Ken Singleton and, of course, Allen. Mauch is counting on the likes of Gary Carter, Larry Parrish and Barry Foote, who helped Montreal win its first Triple-A championship a year ago.

It looks as if the Phillies and Mets have outside chances, but it's a toughie to see the Pirates not being one of the two from the National League's east division and another dogfight developing rivalry with Cincinnati Reds in the post-season playoffs.

LPGA Champion Had That Feeling

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Carol Mann had a feeling she would win the $65,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament ending Monday. And she did.

"I had the same motel room number, 136, as Medina, I almost asked that a lot," she said after winning the storm-delayed LPGA event. Medina, Ohio, was Miss Mann's other 1975 triumph.

On Monday, she knocked in a 2½-foot par putt on the final hole for a final one-over-par 73. Her 209 total put her seven under par for the 54-hole tournament and one shot ahead of Jan Ferraris.

Miss Mann matched par on her final four holes for the $9,200 first prize and her 36th career victory, while Miss Ferraris scrambled to a par on the lone hole she had left, finishing with a 69-210 for $6,700.

Nine players returned to golf after play was interrupted four times Sunday because of thunderstorms.

Carole Jo Skala was third at 211. Lancy Street finished with a 71 and Sandra Haynie a 72. Monday to share fourth spot with JoAnne Carner, Sherri Steinhauer, Pope, Pat Bradley and Judy Rankin.

Joanne Carner, the Sharonville, Que., shot a final round 71 to finish at 212 and earn $3,433. Sandra Post, formerly of Oakville, Ont., had a three-round total of 217 and earned $413.

Hang Defeat on Roughies

Eskimos Are Opportunists

REGINA (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos took advantage of all their breaks Monday night to defeat Saskatchewan Roughriders 26-22 in a Western Football Conference exhibition game.

Although the Eskimos managed only six first downs, they benefited from an interception by Dick Dupuis which led to a touchdown and a late fumble recovery by Sam Britts that enabled Edmonton to break a 15-15 tie.

Dupuis opened scoring by intercepting a pass for a touchdown in the first quarter after intercepting a pass by Ron Lancaster.

Don Warrington took a 53-yard pass from Tom Wilkinson in the fourth quarter for the other Edmonton touchdown as the Eskimos extended their touchdown streak in exhibition play to three games.

The rest of Edmonton's scoring was provided by Dave Cutler, who had two converts and four field goals from 47, 31, 44 and 14 yards.

Short plunges by George Reed and Steve Molnar accounted for the Saskatchewan touchdowns. Brian Berg converted one and kicked three field goals.

After Dupuis's meaningless touchdown in the final three minutes, quarterback Dave Mattingly's short pass attempt was intercepted and Britts failed.

Eskimos coach Ray Jauch, who began immediately to prepare for Sunday's final exhibition game Wednesday in Calgary against the Stampeders, said he believed Saskatchewan wanted to win more than the Eskimos did.

"We wanted to experiment," said Jauch, who started rookie Dennis Morrison at quarterback. Morrison, another who played last season in the National Football League, had more success than veteran Wilkinson and Bruce Lemmerman in relief.

Lancaster, who sparked Saskatchewan in a solid third-quarter display, was shaken when hit in the second quarter by Edmonton tackle Dave Fennell, who drew a rough-play penalty.

Coach John Payne of Saskatchewan said he is not disturbed that his club, considered by many Edmonton's toughest challenge in the Western Conference, won only one of four exhibition games.

He is concerned, however, that the Roughriders had difficulty advancing along the ground. Reed led the groundgainers with 51 yards in 17 carries.

Saskatchewan committed 71 first downs to Edmonton's six. The Riders relied on long pass attack—Lancaster was good on 14 of 22 attempts—for 326 yards.

Edmonton quarterbacks completed six of 17 attempts and no player caught more than one pass.

Davis A Hit In Debut

ANAHEIM (AP) — Anthony played only the final 3½ innings Monday night as the Southern California Angels outslugged Memphis Southern 10-8 in a World Football League exhibition game in Anaheim Stadium. Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield played major roles.

Csonka, who received an estimated $1.4 million contract, played only the first half in his WFL debut gaining only 22 yards in four carries.

Warfield, the second of the three Miami Dolphins switched to the WFL, caught one pass for 28 yards as he also played only the first half.

Kiick played both halves but carried the ball only twice in the first for four yards and two times in the second without a net gain.

Davis, in his rookie year of professional football, highlighted the action before 24,810 in Anaheim Stadium.

He scored touchdowns on runs of four, three and one yards and caught a 17-yard touchdown pass from reserve quarterback Mike Ernst.

City Archers Top Competitors

By ALAN TESWORTH

The Belleville area has once again been well-represented at the Canadian Championship held in archery in the Championships held in Caledon, about 15 miles north-west of Brampton this past week, two Belleville area archers brought home second and fifth place finishes.

Linda Adamson took second place in the Junior Girls' category, for the second straight year, while Jean Mainland, competing in her first Canadian Championship, captured fifth place in the Senior Women's division.

The second place finish by Linda was somewhat disappointing, after finishing in the same spot last year. In 1974 at the Championships held in Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, Linda shot an aggregate total of 2,378, about 200 points behind winner Patti Thompson of Ottawa, and formerly of Belleville. Linda had only a year of experience at the time.

This year, after another year of practice, and coaching under Floyd Armstrong, she improved her score by about 540 points. Still she finished second.

Nancy Lowe, of Calgary, who finished third last year with a 2,267, added nearly 600 points to her total to a 2,903, and the first place gold medal, and a new Junior record.

But it was not all bad for the grade 13 student at Centennial Secondary School. Linda did set one record herself, and tied another. In her first day of target shooting, Linda collected 1001 points out of a possible 1320 to the Canadian 1300 round.

The round consists of 120 arrows shot from varying distances — 30, 40, 50 and 60 metres. It was in the 60 metre round that she set a new record, collecting a 328 out of a possible 360 score.

In the second round of target, the 72-year-old shot 932 out of 1440 in the FITA (International) round, with distances of 30, 50 and 70 metres. She tied the record at the 30 metre distance.

However, in shooting the two rounds that placed her only about 20 points behind Love, and in a good spot to catch up with usually good final rounds to come, Linda developed a bad blister on the index finger of her drawing hand. The blister caused great pain when shooting and the result showed it, with a 267 score of a possible 600 in the first round of field shooting.

She bounced back in the final of the four rounds on Friday, however, regained her old form and coming in with a 311 final of 600, in the Hunter round, cementing away second place by 32 points. Taking the third place was Yolande Valaincourt of Quebec, with a 287.

But the 17-year-old archer had by no means given up with the second place silver medals. She was part of a threesome that won a provincial challenge among the juniors during the tourney, teaming up with Cindy Schewchuk and Scot McKercher, both of Ottawa, to defeat British Columbia by a two point margin, 2020-2018, giving her a gold medal in the event.

She's aiming now at the Ontario Summer Games, on the Labor Day weekend, to be held at Loyalist's University of Western Ontario. As well, with the Olympics coming up next year in Montreal, there's a chance at the Canadian team.

To qualify for the team, she must first attain the standard to go to the Olympic trials, to be held next June. To qualify, a woman must shoot four rounds of at least 1050 in a FITA round, while a man must attain 1120 within the next year. Linda has shot only six FITA rounds with the 932 score her best so far, although she has improved each time out.

She'll receive some pretty stiff competition for the Olympic team, competing against all the women archers in Canada for the two berths.

Request for Submission of Briefs from the Public to the SPECIAL PROGRAM REVIEW

The Government of Ontario has established a Special Program Review to enquire into ways and means of reducing the costs of Government and public sector expenditures.

The Special Program review will welcome the views of the public on various courses of action which the Government might take to reduce public expenditures. Therefore, they will receive written briefs from any individual, group, organization or association which can provide suggestions to:

(1) operate the existing programs of government more efficiently and economically;
(2) deliver the desired public services in a different way to give better service at reduced cost;
(3) reduce the level of service of programs whose benefits no longer have as high a priority as they once had;
(4) phase out programs which have outlived their usefulness.

Briefs are requested by September 15, 1975.

Volleyball Interests Producers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Why are two successful television producers promoting a brand new professional volleyball team?

"We saw real volleyball for the first time in the Munich Olympics of 1972," says David M. Gerber, executive vice-president of Columbia Pictures Television and executive producer of such series as Police Woman and Police Story.

"We felt that it has the dynamic qualities to become the next big spectator sport in the United States.

"It's a game that has an immense amount of excitement," says David L. Wolper, famed documentary maker whose Visions of Eight was the official film of the 1972 Olympics. "And it is the only major team sport in which men and women can compete on an equal basis. Our rules require that two women be included in the six players on each side at all times."

Wolper and Gerber are owners of the team, the Los Angeles Stars, and Wolper is also president of the International Volleyball Association, which includes teams in Santa Barbara, San Diego, Irvine and El Paso-Juarez. The producers were hosts at a celebrity party for the Stars' first home game at Santa Monica City College, the guests including Diana Ross, Connie Stevens and Wayne Rogers.

The Stars, who had been 0-4, managed a close win over Santa Barbara.

Actress Misses Gunsmoke

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Amanda Blake has no urge to reopen the Long Branch saloon in Gunsmoke, the TV series which made her famous as Miss Kitty, but admits to an occasional twinge of nostalgia for the life of a series actress.

"If I'd known it was only going to last a year after I left, I'd have stayed on," she said in an interview. "I could see that show running for another 20 years, but not with me."

Her only solace has been in a television movie.

Miss Blake, who has been married to wealthy retired businessman Frank Gilbert for eight years, is a native of Buffalo, N.Y., who migrated west in 1948. She said she made up her mind in high school that she wanted to be an actress.

She said her selection as Miss Kitty didn't "just happen."

"Frankly, I think I just made such a success of myself they decided to get me off their back," she said. Gunsmoke had been a successful radio show for many years before and I was determined to go with it on TV."

That she did and stayed with it until the surprise announcement last year that she was leaving the show. She praised its star, Jim Arness, as "a wonderful man" to work with.

A woman of diverse interests, Miss Blake is known as a growing number of Arizonans, especially legislators, for her dedication to preserving wildlife.

Behind the Gilberts' two-story, Spanish style ranch-type northeast Phoenix is more than an acre of shaded area where her pet lion, Kenno, seven cheetahs, a leopard, a pair of raccoons and a desert kit fox roam.

Miss Blake said her real interest now is doing an "honest animal documentary."

She and her husband spent several months in Africa last year.

"Africa is doing little to protect its most valuable asset, the wildlife," she said. "Some of the game wardens are poaching on the preserves they're hired to protect."

She said she is corresponding with Roger Caras, an author and conservationist in New York, about going back to Africa and preparing a documentary.

Fun Outside the City

More than 600 boys and girls, who otherwise would spend the hot summer within the boundaries of downtown Toronto, are getting a refreshing breather in the cool countryside. Enjoying a baseball game Thursday at Regent Park Green Summer Day Camp are Gordie, 12, at bat, Andy, 12, catching and Tommy, 13, as umpire. (CP Photo)

Showbiz Shorts

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (Reuters) — Dancer Ray Bolger, the straw man in the Wizard of Oz and now 71, put on his dancing shoes Wednesday to appear in a dramatic and dancing screen role after a 10-year retirement from the movies.

The crew of the film The Entertainer burst into applause as Bolger, looking as agile as a man of 30, went through rapid-fire tap dance routines, spun off his role much more tiring.

The film is a remake of the John Osborne stage play with Jack Lemmon playing the Archie Rice role, originally performed by Sir Laurence Olivier, and Bolger as his father.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Wednesday, July 16

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your day will be happier if you concentrate on helping friends or family, rather than pursuing self-interest.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You are attuned to verbal or written communication today. You must, however, be wary of offending by thoughtless actions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Work, especially if physical labor, will depress you. Take a lighthearted shopping trip or visit some friends if you can.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The coolness of the home and family will make your day more pleasant. Pals, even close ones, will get under your skin.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your mood is subdued. You must be careful that someone in authority doesn't mistake your low-key attitude for indifference to duties.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Stay in familiar areas if involved in a group discussion. Otherwise, your lack of knowledge will be easily exposed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Friends will make you the top banana today. Don't let this turn your head so much you become overly-generous.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're able to accomplish most anything you want to today. Guard against becoming too cocky and thus offending less capable friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If possible, avoid physical labor or work with tools or machinery today. Sports activity would be safer for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll be very nervous in large social gathering today. Choose a close friend or two. Have a quiet get-together.

AQUARIUS (J an. 20-Feb. 19) At work, you'll get many pats on the back and words of praise. Don't expect the same reception at home.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you have to communicate with a friend, write a letter. It's likely, if you drop over to his house, he won't be home.

To Your Good Health

Lack of Vitamins Can Crack Mouth

By G. C. Thosteson, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 28 and am in good health. But maybe once or twice a year the corners of my mouth crack. After applying creams and trying to keep my lips moist, the cracks heal up but leave unattractive scars.

Do you know why this happens to me, and how it can be prevented?—Miss L.N.

I cannot tell you what the specific problem is in your case, but I can offer a few general thoughts that might apply.

The possibility that comes to mind is what is called "angular stomatitis." This is usually related to a vitamin deficiency, and the symptoms are erosions and fissures at the angles (corners) of the mouth — Hence the name. Stomatitis means any inflammation of the mucosal membranes of the mouth.

The usual vitamin deficiency is in vitamin B group, and you might investigate whether these episodes can be related to variations in your intake of vitamin B during the year. A primary source is milk and other animal protein foods.

The same symptoms can be caused by sensitivity to certain material, by chronic diarrhea, a liver problem or chronic alcoholism. You should have a blood test to rule out the two-year possibility of anemia, even though you say you are in good health. Anemia can be a subtle and unsuspected problem.

Such symptoms, needless to say, do not occur without a reason, and it is determining that reason that is. It is rather easy to alleviate the condition with vitamins, either in supplement form or in diet, if that is the underlying cause.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Isn't it true that if a person wanted to do it, he or she could lose the desired amount of weight without dieting? Just cut down enough to do it? I mean take a person like me, a man five-feet 8 inches tall, weighing 147 pounds. Is it a matter of willpowering?

I have no dieting willpower, so you can see why I'm interested in your answer. — Mrs. F.E.

Sure you can do it, but it might take you quite a while. I'm assuming you at present tend to overdo on fattening foods, or just eat too much.

A recent, very interesting study shows it can be done. In a University of California study, a group of 49 middle-aged women managed to lose an average of 32 pounds over a year strictly on the basis of exercise.

The women used brisk walks as their exercise. It was reported that no weight was lost until the walks were beyond a half hour a day. The greatest loss occurred in the women who walked up to two or three hours daily.

The weight loss was rather slow, and it was quickly put back on if the exercise stopped even for a few days. There was no dietary restriction at all. The researchers observed that even though exercise tended to decrease appetite and food consumption somewhat, weight loss was still reported.

So I'd say yes, it can be done. But I believe a combination of reasonable diet and moderate exercise is the best method. And if you don't have the willpower to lose weight through cutting calories, I must wonder whether you would be able to summon sufficient motivation to make an extended exercise regimen.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a dietary habit from my breast. have had it for two years. It is dark green in color. No blood. I have had x-rays, and my doctor says it is not cancer.

It is painful, especially around the nipples. I have very small breasts but my nipples have enlarged since having this problem. What should I do? I am 31. — E.C.

This could be a papilloma (a benign growth) or a cyst in the milk ducts. This can often be surgically removed. Although they are non-malignant, they sometimes recur repeatedly with minimal distortion of the breast itself.

You probably should have this done, since it is causing you distress.

Grass Seed Glut Follows Housing Slump

OTTAWA (CP) — Creeping red fescue producers in the Peace River district of Alberta and British Columbia are happy with the current housing slump in Canada.

The low rate of housing starts, they complain, has reduced the demand for lawn grasses, such as creeping red fescue, and bumper crops in other countries have resulted in a buildup of grass seed stocks.

Canada is the major producer of the seed variety, grown largely in the Peace River district.

About 85 per cent is exported to the United States, the United Kingdom, Europe and Japan.

Producers of creeping red fescue received as much as 40 cents a pound for their crop in 1973.

"But they are being paid 18 or 19 cents a pound," says Ken Hall, a forage crop specialist at the agriculture department's research station at Beaverlodge, Alta.

The grass, he says, grows well in poor soil, has reasonably good shade tolerance and does relatively well as a companion crop with major competitor, Kentucky bluegrass.

Creeping red fescue is widely used on playgrounds, parks, golf courses and cemeteries.

Canadian farmers harvested 67 creeping red fescue is 'o tne 69 million pounds, harvested from about 63,000 acres.

High Failure Rate

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — A recent study of first-year engineering students at University of Waterloo indicates that more than half of them are failing to make it into second year. The study dealt only with students entering the university directly out of Grade 13. Of those who entered the engineering program with 60 to 65 per cent high school average in 1968, 52 per cent eventually passed second year. Of those who entered the 1973 freshman class with the same high school average, only 42 per cent made it to second year.

In the language of bids, North's two notrump call is either an absolute, one-round force or a strong invitation for South to bid again.

It is a bid of one less than game.

South's three-diamond call conveys the message, "I don't have the number of high-card points I should have for my initial two-diamond response, nor do I have a three-card suit. If you want to bid three notrump, do so at your own risk."

George North's hand so that his spades are headed by queen-jack and his lack of diamonds is the ace. He has the same distribution and the same 11 high-card points but he would know that his ace of diamonds may be the key to six or seven diamond tricks. He should bid three notrump.

As it is, North realizes that diamonds are not going to run. While South may have something in one of the unbid suits, he almost certain that he does not hold strength in both, so North passes.

Against a heart lead North could go down with a bid of three notrump. He might bring it in against some other lead, but you expect your opponents to defend well and North and South should be happy when South brings his diamond partscore home.

Ask the Jacobys

East bids one spade. You double with:

♠2 ♥KJ54 ♦AKQ72 ♣AQ5

West bids two spades which is passed around to you. What do you do now?

The correct bid is to double again. This second double is still for takeout. If you bid three diamonds you may be losing the heart suit. If you pass you are giving up when you should be going ahead.

Minors Visit Sydney Mines

CAPE BRETON, N.S. (CP) — School students from Rosa Road Elementary School in Halifax visited the Miners Village in the Sydney-Glace Bay industrial region of Cape Breton as part of a four-day tour of eastern Nova Scotia in conjunction with their social studies program. The trip was made possible by funding from the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, the Nova Scotia Youth Agency, the Black United Front and almost $700 raised by the children themselves.

Squabble on Technicality Wastes Commons Evening

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs talked on a technicality Monday night to embarrass the government and delay debate on the new 10-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax.

Division bells rang for more than an hour as Liberals scrambled to collect enough MPs to win an unexpected Commons vote forced by the Progressive Conservatives.

The Conservatives wanted to adjourn debate on the controversial bill until today, but their attempt was defeated 85 to 67. But the delay worked out all but 40 minutes of a two-hour evening debate on the bill.

Speaker James Jerome gave the Conservatives the opening with a delayed ruling on a technical objection raised last week by Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), a former Speaker.

The veteran Alberta Conservative argued that the tax bill does not conform with a covering ways and means motion introduced in advance by the government. Ways and means motions, under parliamentary rules, must precede all tax changes.

Mr. Jerome agreed that the motion differs with the bill on one technical point and suggested that party House leaders seek a mutually acceptable solution. Brief discussions were held during the evening dinner break but no solution was found.

Conservative MPs objected to resumption of the debate when the House reconvened at 8 p.m. EDT. An amendment bringing the bill and motion into line should be introduced first, they argued.

When government spokesmen, including House Leader Mitchell Sharp disagreed, they called for an adjournment and demanded a recorded vote to settle the issue.

The government had to search out some MPs in parliamentary offices and others from home to muster voting strength.

Vienna Agency To Watch Candus

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will rely on the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) to oversee its nuclear reactors in other countries despite the possibility agency safeguards may be inferior, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Monday.

Allan Lawrence (PC—North Rumberland-Durham) had said in the Commons that there is worldwide criticism that the Vienna-based agency cannot do its job properly because of a staff shortage.

Mr. Macdonald replied that the usual terms of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) require that the agency supervise the operation of reactors in other countries. He said the IAEA has the "confidence and support of so many countries."

Mr. Lawrence retorted that "we don't believe the NPT is strong enough."

He said that India's nuclear bomb, developed through Canadian technology, is proof the agency is ineffective.

But Mr. Macdonald said the IAEA and the NPT did not exist when India acquired a Canadian-built research reactor, which produces plutonium in its spent fuel. Plutonium is used for nuclear bombs.

The situation has been brought to a head by, among other things, the proposed sale of a Candu reactor to Argentina.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said he has asked Argentina for permission to make public details of a draft contract between the two countries, but that this had not been received.

He told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield that he will table the relevant papers in the Commons when permission is received.

Danson Is Disturbed About Mortgage Money

OTTAWA (CP) — Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson says he is disturbed about the clashing vibrations he is getting from the mortgage market.

He said in an interview Monday he is seeking definite answers in the next couple of weeks from mortgage lenders on the availability of housing mortgage funds and how they are lending money.

"There are too many vagaries in this market—no consistency," he said. "This is disturbing me. Some seem to have money and some don't."

The minister repeated that he wants mortgage money absorbed into low-and moderate-priced housing.

He said he had heard from some builders that they have no trouble getting mortgage money for fancy, $200,000 homes but have more difficulty getting money for cheaper houses. But that still had to be checked out with the mortgage lenders.

Mr. Danson said he is concerned that mortgage lenders should provide money for small builders as well as big builders.

A comprehensive review of the mortgage situation is being carried out with the mortgage lenders, the minister said. He was writing each of the lending institutions.

CBRT Opposes Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CBRT), representing 1,000 marine workers, has challenged a proposal from the 5,000-member Seafarers' International Union for a 15-year, no-strike agreement. If a Canadian merchant marine is set up, Don Nicholson, CBRT vice-president, said Monday that no union can commit its members to such a moratorium. "If they are unhappy or dissatisfied with their terms of employment, they'll strike anyway, regardless of what the union has promised the employer," he said.

Communications Parley

Provinces Reiterate Stand

OTTAWA (CP) — The third federal-provincial conference on communications opened today with John Rhodes of Ontario insisting the provinces remain unified in their demands for greater control over communications.

Following a pre-conference caucus of eight provincial ministers Monday night, Mr. Rhodes said the provinces had reaffirmed the common front defined at a similar conference in May. Alberta and Prince Edward Island were not represented at the caucus.

However, Mr. Rhodes' assertion that the provincial proposals are negotiable appeared to be in conflict with Quebec's stance.

And his declaration of solidarity came on the heels of Gerard Pelletier, federal communications minister, saying the provincial alliance would fall apart.

Mr. Pelletier was quoted in a Montreal newspaper as saying that divergent provincial interests would lead them to abandon the three so-called "consensus proposals" advanced in May.

UN Pressed to Seek Israeli Withdrawal from Sinai Desert

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Egypt is demanding new Security Council pressure for an Israeli withdrawal as its price for allowing the United Nations emergency force in the Sinai Desert to continue acting as a buffer between Israeli and Egyptian troops.

Egypt told UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim on Tuesday that it would not agree to renewal of the force's mandate when it expires July 24.

Egypt added, however, that "she is not against the proper use of the force. Egypt objects to its presence as a means to maintain the state of 'no war—no peace' and the perpetuation of the occupation of Egyptian territory."

Waldheim, after a conference with Egyptian Ambassador Abdel Meguid, said Egypt expects the Security Council to adopt a resolution "which will help to implement the previous decisions of the council."

These called for Israeli withdrawal from Arab territories it occupied in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war and an end to the Arab state of war against Israel.

Security Council President Alberto Cavaglieri planned to consult with other members, and a council meeting was expected in a few days.

"It is a serious situation, a dangerous situation," Waldheim told reporters. But he said it could not be compared with "what we had in 1967," when Secretary-General U Thant withdrew peacekeeping force on Egypt's demand, and war followed.

The secretary-general said the 4,000-man buffer force, which includes Canadians, could not remain in Sinai unless both Egypt and Israel consented.

U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger, who is trying to negotiate a new Israeli-Egyptian agreement for a further Israeli withdrawal in Sinai, told a news conference in Minneapolis that Egypt's action "calls attention to the urgency of the problem and to the need of working out some new interim solution."

Israeli officials in Jerusalem viewed the action as a new attempt to pressure Israel into an agreement without the political concessions which Israel has been demanding of Egypt.

Workmen this week began to install the two large storm sewers just below the College Street bridge. The city storm sewer project will cost about $475,000 and is expected to be completed by mid-October. The sewers will serve the entire northeast area of the city.

Spaceships Repaired

HOUSTON (AP) — The Soviet Soyuz spacecraft shifted into position for a cosmic linkup with an United States Apollo ship on Thursday while astronauts and cosmonauts used a screwdriver, pieces of tape and bandaids for repairs to their ships.

After removing a stuck docking mechanism from a tunnel that will connect the two spaceships when they book up, the astronauts relayed televised pictures of the tunnel to Houston Mission Control as they inspected it and found it in good condition.

Cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valri Kubasov lired their spaceship engine for 21 seconds and reported the manoeuvre was performed perfectly.

The Moscow Mission Control Centre reported the men placed Soyuz in a near-circular orbit of 137 to 179 miles above the earth, precisely where the cosmonauts want to be to receive the visiting U.S. astronauts at 12:15 p.m. EDT over West Germany.

The docking probe problem was discovered aboard Apollo on Tuesday night when astronaut Vance Brand attempted to remove it to open the tunnel.

He reported he was unable to undo latches on the mechanism with a special tool because the tool passage was blocked by an out-of-position connecting mechanism.

Houston Mission Control told Brand the problem was minor and instructed him to wait until morning to fix it.

The centre today radioed instructions to remove a cover plate with a screwdriver. Brand, after a night's sleep, did this easily and used a piece of tape to get the docking mechanism out of the way so he could release the latches and remove the probe.

If the astronauts had not been able to remove the probe, the spacecraft would still have been able to transfer between spaceships when they docked up with the Soviets. However, officials said they never had any confirm that this would happen.

"I think we are all aquated away from that," Brand reported after the repair.

Brand, Thomas Stafford and Donald Slayton earlier corrected a simple problem involving a clogged urine-disposal system aboard the Apollo.

Aboard the Soyuz, Leonov and Kubasov were busy repairing one of their four television cameras. It was to have televised their reaction to docking and launching phase on Tuesday, but did not work.

Moscow Mission Control radioed repair instructions, the first set of which interrupted the cosmonauts' lunch.

As they worked, Kubasov asked:

"Can we use bandaids from our medical kit for insulating material—to insulate out of the end of the cable?"

"Yes, Valeri, you can do it," the ground replied.

When Moscow Mission Control informed the astronauts of the successful orbital change by Soyuz, Slayton remarked: "Sooperb. Great."

They're up there waiting for you," the U.S. capsule communicator said.

It was the second orbit chance for Soyuz since it was launched from the Baikonur Cosmodrome.

Apollo also has executed two orbital shifts and plans several more as it closes in on Soyuz, which is serving as the larger vehicle in the celestial chase.

About 3½ hours after Apollo blasted into orbit, an astronaut reported a "hitchhiker" aboard. The conversation went like this:

Apollo: We wanted you to report to the cape they put a hitchhiker aboard.

Mission control: Okay.

Apollo: We found a super Florida mesquito flying around here.

Mission control: (Laughter) Okay. Maybe you could think of a new experiment to do with him.

Apollo: I'm going to feed him to our fish.

Mission control: Okay.

The fish the astronaut referred to is a killifish, a tropical fish sometimes used in mosquito control projects. The fish will be used in an experiment later in the flight.

Crime Parley to Talk About Police Misdeeds

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 100 countries, many at odds with one another or experiencing some sort of internal conflict, will attend the fifth United Nations congress on crime prevention in Toronto.

Official observers will include not only the Palestine Liberation Organization, (PLO), theory of controversy in Canada, but eight lesser-known African movements.

Among the 2,000 delegates will be Angela Davis, a California Black Panther acquitted of murder in the slaying of a judge, and British author Jessica Mitford, whose book on medical experiments on U.S. prisoners quickly brought legal protections for the prisoners.

Among minor issues, the congress will try to gain agreement on restricting imprisonment. A Canadian jailed on drug charges for 3 years in the Middle East would be returned to Canada to serve the sentence, and vice versa.

It also will try to gain agreement on an international code of police ethics. Police in an alien country no longer would sell the unsuspecting tourist drugs, then arrest and jail him for possession. This is only one of the caustic police practices that afflict the world traveller.

More than 25 million people in the world's jails on any given day, a Canadian organizer says, and the use of torture in many countries is well-documented.

"The real controversy will involve the inhuman treatment of prisoners," the organizer says. "That's way up on the agenda."

Rival Army Forms

Angolan Capital Held By Warring Nationals

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — One of Angola's warring nationalist armies controlled most of Angola's capital today, but Portuguese military authorities said a rival guerrilla army of 3,000 men might be preparing to advance on the city.

After a week of nightly fighting in which an estimated 300 persons have been killed and about 1,000 wounded, Agostinho Neto's Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA) had driven Holden Roberto's fighters of the National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA) from all but a few pockets of the port city on the Atlantic Ocean.

Portugal's leftist military government was considering flying at least 2,000 troops from Lisbon to reinforce the 24,000 Portuguese troops still in the southwest African territory, which is scheduled to become independent Nov. 11.

The troops' chief mission would be to protect the 400,000 Portuguese still in Angola. But so far all the fighting has been between the rival nationalist factions, and almost all the casualties have been Africans.

Chipenda, who defected from the MPLA with the 3,000 troops about four months ago, said in Carmona he opposed Portuguese military interference. He said the FNLA is "capable of taking on its own responsibilities."

Ontario Responsible Says PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau reiterated Tuesday that Ontario's Progressive Conservative government is responsible for inviting the United Nations' crime prevention congress to Toronto Sept. 1-12.

The congress has come to be come an Ontario election issue—an election may be held this fall—since Ontario Premier William Davis wrote Mr. Trudeau last spring urging that Ottawa not allow Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) observers to attend the congress.

Mr. Trudeau said the federal government must make this decision. But Ontario, having taken the initiative in inviting the congress, "should be sure enough not to wash their hands of responsibility."

Mother Charged With Murder

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Judy Irwin, 29, was charged Tuesday with murder punishable by life imprisonment in the knife-killing of her 3½-month-old son in their home.

Niagara regional police said a coroner has been informed.

Police originally reported Tuesday that Mrs. Irwin told them a stranger entered her home about 2 p.m. Tuesday on the pretext of wanting to use the telephone, locked himself in the house with the child, Jason Ross, 6 weeks, and attacked him with a knife.

Move Rejected

TORONTO (CP) — An attempt by Prof. Boussaili of Windsor West to amend the Ontario Labor Relations Act to outlaw automatic certification when a simple majority of employees sign union membership cards failed to gain—suffer a majority vote Tuesday.

After rejecting Mr. Boussaili's amendment, the legislature's standing resource development committee voted to recommend the house accept Labor Minister John MacBeth's proposal to lower to 55 from 65 the percentage requirement for automatic union certification.

Ball Park Building Is Planned

By HARRY MULHALL

Tenders will soon be called for expansion of service facilities at Alemite ball park.

Pressure for bigger facilities mounted this year with the expiry of a city team in the Ontario Football League.

Tuesday the parks board and recreation - arena committee approved the design of Morden-Guthrie, Belleville engineering firm, for a bigger building and authorized the calling of tenders.

The additions include public washrooms, bigger dressing-rooms and canteen services.

The new building won't have any windows, solving a vandalism problem, said parks director Lloyd Ayer. Instead, it will fan-ventilated.

General Seeks U.S. Residency

MONTREAL (CP) — Dang Van Quang, a former South Vietnamese general and military adviser facing deportation from Canada, has requested permanent residency for himself and his family in the United States, the U.S. consulate here said Tuesday.

A spokesman said Mr. Quang's request made in a letter to consular study by the U.S. state department. He refused further comment.

The report published in the Washington Star Tuesday said Mr. Quang's letter named two sponsors, Hollywood producer Sam Jaffee and Washington insurance executive Theodore Barker.

The Weather

Synopsis: Generally sunny weather with temperatures reaching the high 20s is forecast for most of southern Ontario today and Thursday.

News Briefs

CEDUNA, Australia (Reuter) — After running 11,000 miles, Halfway across Australia, Europe, the Middle East, India and Australia, English athlete Kelvin Bowers has been told his effort has all been in vain. His sponsors have run out of money. The Ladies and Dads Club of Stoke-on-Trent had hoped to collect about 22 cents from citizens for every 100 miles he ran to build a sports centre. Now the sports centre has fallen through.

401 Gas Prices Questioned

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Davis is investigating the reason for high gasoline prices at service centres on Highway 401. The premier said he would have a reply soon for Fred Burr (NDP-Sandwich-Riverside) who complained in the legislature that gasoline prices at the centres are between seven and 14 cents a gallon higher than at off highway gasoline stations.

Argentine Crisis Deepers

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Argentina plunged deeper into political and economic crisis today after the second major devaluation of the peso in less than six weeks. As police were mobilized to protect airline booking offices, the military watched the situation with growing concern. "This is chaos," an Air Force military officer said. "Things can't be allowed to go on like this."

Gasoline Rebates Taxable

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue department officials said today refunds of the 10 cents a gallon excise tax on gasoline used for business will be treated as taxable income, contrary to earlier statements by Revenue Minister Ron Basford.

Housing Fine

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario public housing field is in a healthy state, despite what the government's advisory committee on community sponsored and non-profit housing says, Housing Minister Donald Irvine said in the legislature Tuesday.

Last February the committee said Mr. Irvine is "deliberately destroying" public housing construction.

Policy Changed

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC says it has learned that the federal cabinet will abandon its "Canada first" energy policy. Donald Macdonald, minister of energy, was to make a formal statement in the Commons today concerning energy. The CBC says natural gas shortages in Alberta and the Maritimes and Canada will be forced to adapt to shortages, to comply with its United States customers.

Supervisor's Protest Brings Suspension

TORONTO (CP) — A former Air Canada supervisor says handfuls of cash from Canada's Toronto and Dorval operations is so fast that he purposely took home a bank deposit bag containing $18,000 that had been left lying around at Dorval and didn't report it until he was reported missing—five weeks later.

Paul Dubois said in an interview that he was frustrated at the way complaints about security brought no improvement.

Mr. Dubois was suspended and fired by the airline, an action which top officials of Air Canada Employees Board upheld about a month ago.

However, the board's hearing brought out evidence that part of the reason for his being fired was that Mr. Dubois had come to Air Canada from another airline's supervisors into a union.

He said the real reason he hasn't appealed is because he doesn't have enough money.

Mr. Dubois was a 10-year employee with Air Canada with commendations in his file from seven former vice presidents.

The only thing he concedes is a "terrible error in judgment" in making his protest a one-man affair. He said he should have let someone else in on what he was doing but he felt the security situation needed to be brought home to the company.

Vivian Jasmine and Margaret Koenka, who both worked in the cashiers' office at Dorval last year, said anyone could enter the room even though there were deposit bags containing thousands of dollars lying around.

Since the demonstration by Mr. Dubois, a window was put in the cash control room through which close circuit TV cashiers are supposed to count—but Miss Koenka said:

"It didn't make any difference." Mrs. Jasmine said: "They'd reach through it and open the door.

"It's ridiculous, people in an out all the time."

Mrs. Koenka said loose bills were blown around by drafts through the door and more than once she found $100 bills in newspaper baskets.

She also said RCMP at Dorval were supposed to escort her in making a deposit but she rarely could get them to help. Instead, she would wait until her husband came to take her home and he would escort her with bags containing thousands of dollars.

Ambulance Cost-cutting Moves Coming in Fall

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Measures to cut the cost of Belleville ambulance service will be implemented by the end of September, a ministry of health spokesman told The Intelligencer Tuesday.

Last February, director of ambulance service Charles Brubacher said the cost of Belleville ambulance service is "high" and that a provincial study would delve into cost reduction.

Stu Meeks, representing La Salle Ambulance, and Les Steele, representing City Ambulance, met with ministry officials in Toronto Tuesday to discuss report findings.

The major recommendation of the report included elimination of individual radio stations for each ambulance company. A central dispatch centre would handle all ambulance communications between Trenton, Picton, Napanee, Belleville and Madoc.

Gerry Bahr, author of the study said a second long range recommendation is "to amalgamate the management units of both firms." Mr. Bahr said the two Belleville operators agree generally with the first recommendations and "made no particular comment" concerning the second.

Mr. Meeks and Mr. Steele have until Aug. 12 to reply in writing to the study said Mr. Bahr.

The provincial spokesman said that by Aug. 30 the province expects to complete a manual of procedures and policies for the Belleville dispatch centre and that by Sept. 30 "some cost — cutting measures will be implemented."

"We hope to have an adjusted level of service by that time," said Mr. Bahr. "We have to create some cost efficiency."

What a Catch!

Ontario Premier Bill Davis jumps off the ground to catch the ball during a baseball game with some members of the press in Toronto Monday. After 10 innings, the press finally came out on top, 5-5.

Speed Limit Lowered

Complaints by residents about traffic on a west Belleville suburban street met with a decisive answer at city hall Monday.

The city's traffic committee decided to recommend that city hall institute a 25-miles-an-hour speed limit on Dunnett Blvd.

The recommendation came from Police Chief Douglas Mabon, whose department conducted an intensive traffic vigil on the street following earlier complaints before the committee.

The results showed most motorists were considerate — the average speed was 34 miles an hour.

But, some exceeded 30 miles an hour. One motorcyclist was clocked at 55 miles an hour. There are 56 children living on Dunnett, which has no sidewalk, police discovered.

However, the conditions, said Chief Crabbe, "strengthen my continued recommendations of sidewalks in subdivisions."

Dunnett arcs from the Quinte Exhibition Grounds into Palmer Rd.

Province To Check Water Level

Thurlow Township council has made arrangements with the ministry of natural resources to have representatives examine ways of raising the water level on the Moira River.

During an afternoon meeting with Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources in Queen's Park, Tuesday, Reeve Horace Casey expressed concern because the Moira River Conservation Authority (MRCA) would not repair or purchase the privately — owned Canniton and Latta dams.

Complaints have been made that the dams need repairing to stem the heavy water loss, but the MRCA claims they have no right to work on the privately — owned dams.

Summer Peak Period For Emergency Ward

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Greater use of the emergency department at Trenton Memorial Hospital by town residents and Quinte vacationers doubles the department's case load from late May to Labor Day but does not tax its facilities, hospital officials say.

Hospital administrator John Lupton said Tuesday there is a definite trend to increased use of the department in summer months.

Department head nurse Ted Francis said his case load doubles between May 24 and Sept. 1 and adds that three-quarters of the increase in cases is due to people who are non-residents.

However, said Mr. Lupton, the ward load is adequately handled by hospital staff and facilities.

His comments come in the wake of an indication that the Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital Board is hoping to double the size of its emergency facilities. Extension of services is termed necessary because of the need to accommodate area vacationers and to adapt to the trend of people going to hospital instead of a doctor's office.

Mr. Lupton said both circumstances affect the hospital here but Trenton is able to cope with the increased case load because demands on inpatient care decrease in summer.

People prefer not to enter hospital in summer and prefer out-patient treatment, he said. Staff, therefore is less in demand in in-patient departments and is switched to emergency to cope with the rush, he said.

The administrator said that patient preference for ambulatory care is suggested in a recent survey of eastern Ontario hospitals. The survey indicates 30 per cent emergency cases need immediate treatment, that is, either department staff or equipment.

Of that percentage half of one per cent were in "life and death" situations. Another five per cent were classed urgent — needing help within 15 minutes.

Mr. Lupton said he prefers that the remaining 65 per cent did not need emergency care and could have gone to a doctor's office. He said he was surprised at the survey results, having believed only 40 per cent of cases needed emergency treatment.

In summer, the trend of town residents to bypass a doctor's office is coupled with the needs of injured non-area vacationers for treatment. A tourist, with his own doctor unavailable, naturally thinks of the hospital for help, he said.

Water Wise

The Water Safety Theatre Company actors Tigger Jourard and seated Catherine Cunningham illustrate water safety rules in a skit during Tuesday performance before 79 playground children in Trenton's Centennial Park. The four-member company, funded by a $10,500 Opportunities For Youth Grant is touring Quinte area playgrounds and camp-sites to tell children to be water wise and safety conscience.

Nine Scouts Prepare For World Jamboree

TRENTON — Friday, nine boys from Trenton will be winging their way into what possibly will be the adventure of their mid-teens.

It's a month in Europe including visits to Sweden, Denmark, and Norway, where the 14th World Jamboree for scouts will be held.

The nine boys are either Scouts or Venturers in the scouting movement co-ordinated by the Trenton District Council, which has spent close to a year raising $9,000 to send the boys to the Jamboree.

Trip co-ordinator Bruce Mouse says they will be leaving Trenton Friday at 1 p.m. to catch a plane in Toronto for Copenhagan, Desmark.

The main attraction in Europe is the 7 to 10-day Jamboree, located in Lillehammer, a camp site where about 13,000 boys from around the world will gather about 120 miles north of Oslo, Norway.

Nearly 1,200 Canadian youth are expected to attend, said Mr. Mouse.

He said the Trenton youths have been prepared for the trip with a intensive weekend crash course on camping, survivalism and first aid, skills at the Trenton council's Camp Alexy at Steenburg Lake.

"We got a list to tell us what they should have up on," he said.

The boys are Chris Avery, Tom Robinson, Philip Aubin, Peter Aubin, Colin Moase, George Crouch, Robert Goyetche, Lyle David and Arthur Mac.

Their trip has been made possible through an extensive fund raising campaign in which most of the Trenton council's 350 estimated youthful members have participated. Fund-raising events included from walk-a-thon, paper and bottle drives, auctions and tree-planting programs.

Vandalism Reward Raised

TRENTON — A ripple affect may have set in over an attempt by one downtown businessman to help stem vandalism in the area.

Bill Adams, owner of the Canadian Tire Corp franchise here, pledged Tuesday $100 as a reward for information supplied to police that would lead to the arrest and conviction of a vandal.

The money will be added to the $100 pledged by Trenton insurance agent Doug Whitley Monday.

Mr. Adams said the incidence of vandalism on the Canadian Tire property has been increasing. This year, 12 trees, have been broken.

In the last week, lighting fixtures behind the store have been broken. Earlier, someone threw several beer bottles through a sign face and damage was set at $1,200.

Mr. Adams complained that insurance companies have "gotten to the point where they're getting touchy" about insuring signs.

Antique Car Buffs Gather in Picton

PICTON — Running boards and rumble seats will make a nostalgic comeback this weekend when a Farmers Market on Bridge St. where the Antique and Classic Car Club of Canada, Upper Canada Region will hold a show on Saturday.

Mr. Gentile, one of the first members to join the club from this area, has been recruited the first show held here in 1974 as a fund raising project. A flea market was sponsored during the antique car display and more than $800 raised to bolster the group's sagging bank account.

Because of the success of last summer's show and sale, it was decided the popular event would be repeated. All club members contribute items for sale in the flea market as well as baked goods for a home cooking table.

Mr. Gentile says approximately 50 antique cars are expected here Saturday to participate in the exhibit. Trophies will be awarded for the car coming the longest distance and for the people's choice of first, second and third among the show's entries.

An antique car enthusiast for 12 years, Mr. Gentile owns six horseless carriages from bygone eras and says he enjoys the restoration work involved in his hobby.

He says membership in the auto club is steadily growing and now more than 100 persons belong to the club.

The display of antique cars planned for this Saturday will open at 9 a.m. and continue until 7 p.m.

Early-morning Mishap Causes Heavy Damage

TWEED — A spectacular two-truck collision near here early today caused a total of $45,000 damage to both vehicles plus an undetermined amount of damage to their contents. Both drivers received only minor injuries in the mishap.

Madoc OPP said the collision occurred about 2 a.m. on Highway 37, about seven miles south of here.

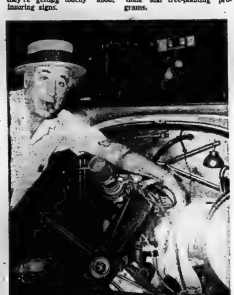
Police said traffic on the highway was tied up for about three hours. The Tweed volunteer fire department was called in when leaking gas from one of the trucks threatened the highway.

Driver of the northbound truck was 23-year-old Daniel Campkin, of Ajax. The truck, owned by J. F. Trucking Co. of Ajax, was carrying a load of lumber valued at $5,000.

Driver of the southbound truck was 25-year-old Christopher Moffatt, of Carleton Place. The truck, owned by Gardiner Transport, of Carleton Place, was carrying a load of metal tooling.

Police said the two trucks side-swiped and both trucks turned over. No charges have been laid in connection with the mishap. Provincial constables Derick Travias and Bill Reid are investigating the accident. Both drivers were taken to Belleville General Hospital and later released.

In Purr-fect Tune



This 1923 Studebaker owned by Vincent Gentile, of Picton is being restored by the antique car buff who enjoys tuning a motor almost as much as driving the finished product. He has painted this vehicle from the Flapper era vivd canary yellow.

The Price Was Right

PICTON — "Women's Lib" was not invented by the modern Ma but dates back to World War One says Picton businessmen Victor Lord, owner of Vic's Camera Shop.

Mr. Lord says he based his observation on descriptions of a farmers market held in Picton in 1916 when many of Prince Edward County's young men were overseas. Women did farm chores and took responsibility for berry patches, demonstrating their independence.

Red raspberries and "black caps" were priced at 10 cents a box with most of them picked by farm wives in the absence of their husband.

Mr. Lord's information, obtained from old newspapers and historical publications stated that blue berries were sold here for seven to eight cents a box in July 1916. New potatoes were offered on the market for 25 cents a peck and butter priced at 30 to 35 cents a pound. Eggs sold for 25 cents a dozen and honey for 20 cents a pound.

Doctor Begins Practice

PICTON — A gynecologist and obstetrician has set up an office at Picton Edward County Memorial Hospital and will accept patients only by referral from their family physicians.

Dr. Patrick Hulleran was a student of Saskatoon University in Saskatchewan. He is married and the father of two children.

Camper Missing

BLOOMFIELD — A Bloomfield area man is missing and believed drowned in British Columbia following an incident in an observation area near a whirlpool.

John Michael Pierce' 25 of RR1, Bloomfield, was on a camping trip last weekend with his brother Mark while on a visit to Vancouver when he toppled into the whirlpool that connects with strong rapids.

The missing man is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Pierce, of RR1, Bloomfield.

Horse Show July 27

TRENTON — The Prince Edward Horse and Pony Club will hold a show at Picton fairgrounds Sunday, July 27 starting at 1 p.m.

A new event on the program is the buck race requiring contestants to ride bare back with dollar bills pressed under their knees. Horses and ponies are ordered through regular ring calls and the last rider to keep his "buck" will win $5. All of the dollar dollars that drop during competition will be gathered for donation to the riding club.

Taxi Rates Increase

PICTON — Picton taxi owners this week announced rate increases to cover rising expenses but the price of in-town fares was not raised.

Cost of a town call remains at $1, with 25 cents extra charged for additional stops. Out of town calls were listed at 30 cents per running mile. Waiting time now is $6. per hour.

Detente in Space Cannot Cloak Main Political Objectives of Communism

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Soviet writer Alexandr Solzhenitsyn has warned us about the heightened spread of communism since 1945, telling us that 20 nations have become Communist totalitarian states since then.

By way of proof of communism's insidious course, while the Soviet newspaper Tass takes the United States to task for constant reference to nuclear war possibilities, is the spread of Communist parties in major European democracies.

In Portugal of course, the April, 1974 revolution which was supposed to bring democracy to that country after a very long right-wing dictatorship, has just about resulted in a new Communist one.

The Popular Democrats remain the only non Communist party in an almost totally disintegrated coalition of the left, now dominated by the Communists. Unbelievably Portugal is a Cuban edge away from Communist rule.

In France, Germany and the Scandinavian nations, large and small Communist parties, growing in strength, talk about working within coalitions of parties of the left.

This of course is pure bunkum. Not a single example exists where Communists have maintained the coalition once in power. The end of the short-lived post-war democracy in Czechoslovakia by the 1948 Communist coup remains the saddest example of how domestic Communist parties destroy coalitions in which they have promised to function.

Lately, the Communists have become the second most powerful party after the divided and tired Christian Democrats, a result of their success last month in nation-wide municipal elections.

In Japan the rise of communism has taken place in direct ratio to the decline in the Japanese boom and the resultant growing unemployment and inflation.

The Japanese Communists also play on the still-strong Japanese fear of nuclear weapons, big national policy not to build these and concern with nuclear power for commercial uses.

Just as helpful to the Japanese Communists has been Japan's recent recognition of the People's Republic of China and the increase in trade with Peking.

Britain, Canada and the United States among the industrialized states, seem removed from the growing strength of domestic Communist parties, though some British parliamentarians and commentators are not sure of this.

Several of Britain's key industrial unions have a sprinkling of British Communist party members at the top and the policy intentions of extreme leftwing Labor members of Parliament and Communist parties about the same.

Third World Communist parties often flourish, though small, by virtue of atrocious and slavish changing social and economic conditions.

They have been accused of domestic subversion because of their associations either with Russian or Chinese communism. These connections come to light when a government expels members of embassies of Communist nations.

In the week that a Soviet and Canadian astronaut planned to meet in space, on earth the Soviet program continues for the parasitic advance of communism.

City's Bus Service

Belleville's bus service — is it, in fact, providing the best service possible?

Well, for one thing, there have been rumblings of late concerning curtailment of late-night service in the city. This brought a letter saying it was no way to attract new passengers or retain regular ones which the writer saw as the only way to help reduce the transit deficit.

"Providing better service should be the goal."

And who would disagree with that?

Earn would be burning through if members of the transit commission and drivers could hear some other comments of the public.

Three women who are occasional bus users and who work in a downtown office were sounding off.

One major complaint: what's happened to buses marked "Quinte Mall?" One of the trio said she waited from 3.00 p.m. until 4.10 p.m. at the County building recently before discovering that Avondale-Parkdale is the bus for the Mall. Even then it can be a long haul if the route winds through suburbia.

It seems there are two buses on this route, one of them direct, the other roundabout. It would be a big help to everyone if prospective passengers were aware of this.

Even to those who are not bus users, it is apparent these vehicles move along at quite a clip, and it is the unwary pedestrian, venturing too close to the edge of the sidewalk, who finds himself having to step back smartly on occasions.

One of the ladies, this time in her own car, says she was forced across the centre line on Pinnacle one day, when a bus made a quick stop and was off again almost immediately.

This gave rise to yet another complaint, that passengers in the city themselves thinking of the elderly in particular — are sometimes jolted off balance as the bus moves off again before they can take a seat.

These are long hot summer days and it is good to see them, but the heat is trying for everyone other than in air-conditioned comfort. It is disturbing nonetheless to see of bus drivers who are less than civil.

The job undoubtedly is a tiring one, monotonous too, the constant stopping and starting and maneuvering of the heavy vehicles in traffic, exacting. It's an important job though in that it involves dealing with the public — including visitors.

There is room for better public relations, with attention to little things. There is a small notice inside the bus about exact fares being required, but what about visitors to town who are unaware of this? There is room all round for making the bus service one that has the public interest at heart. This might include distribution of brochures, erecting new, more clearly-defined signs listing schedules and perhaps other tourist information.

Olympic Material ?

Sign on the wall of a soft drink plant in Belleville: "Let's Get Together and Support our Olympic Team." And sitting on the surrounding grass rim, right below the sign, the other day, two teenage boys taking their ease.

Anybody of Olympic material in our midst? It would be nice to think there is. There is a lawn bowler here who went to the Commonwealth Games in Christchurch, N.Z., and there is a weightlifter who would have gone but for an injury suffered shortly before.

We have yet to make a mark in the Olympics though. And, while taking it easy in the sun is about all most of us are fit for in this heat, it will not produce any athletes of the calibre we have in mind.

No Longer In The Red

Belleville's YMCA has literally been given new life.

The so-called "quiet campaign" spearheaded by city alderman Ben Corke raised $102,000 and retired the organization's capital debt.

Mr. Corke's perseverance in the project and the generosity of 312 contributors — including the Belleville Yardmen ($12,000) and soon-to-be-established Procter and Gamble ($2,000) — are exemplary accomplishments at a time when inflation makes people think twice before they reach for their wallets.

But now is no time for complacency on the part of the Belleville "Y". The organization has more than its share of critics and detractors.

A debt-free base should make a good foundation for a program that will make the YMCA more than 312 friends in the community.

Less Affluence a Blessing in Disguise?

United Church

At times one wonders if the media — press and radio — are not intent upon thrusting the dreaded depression down the people's throats.

They quote unemployment and depressing percentages and talk stridently about the depression's threat to this world's envied high standard of living.

It sounds almost as if these so-called signs of an economic crisis are for deserved fault we've committed against the sacred principles of that clay-footed god, our present economic set-up. Press and radio sound almost glad, if somewhat depressed — as if the world is getting something it eminently deserves. All these threats of doom are so smug and so all-knowing.

Let's take a look at one of these threatened idols — the lowering of this western civilization's present high standard.

What's so wrong about lowering it? What would be lost? Certainly nothing that really matters.

We would certainly learn to be more discriminatory — to judge by quality, rather than transient fads — to cut out those things we may have grown accustomed to, but don't really need.

Some are already doing this conscientiously. The number of people who passe nowadays in conscientiously read contents labels, and compare ounces.

Some very empty of the store shelves would become if all the products which are simply overrefinements of foods and cleaning conveniences to save time and effort, were removed.

The modern fast pace of living has made these products seem necessities.

With depression and work shortages, people would have more time and these so-called necessities would disappear. While none of these changes would work drastic differences in our standard of living, they would certainly reduce the sheer cost of living. Why not give it a try?

Perhaps it may help to lower the inflationary cost of ordinary necessities, such as potatoes, eggs, milk and sugar.

Grief and Cost of Air Searches

Sudbury Star.

How much searching for a lost person or a lost group is enough? How many people should be out spending how many hours and dollars when a small plane crashes, a hunter wanders away from his companions, a light boat sinks?

As in the case of the medieval theological debate about how many angels could dance on the head of a pin, there is no definite answer. But the question arises from time to time, most recently out west, where friends of a 20-year-old man in passenger in a helicopter lost since June 1, have been demanding that the search be resumed.

Their anguish and determined hope are understandable. Somewhere in the vast expanse of forests, hills and valleys in practically uninhabited northern British Columbia, a car the Yukon border, Gil Seagrist and pilot Fred Young might still be alive, eking out each day with the hope that rescue is on the way.

But where to look and for how long? The search was called off 12 days after it began, according to officials at the Victoria, B.C., rescue operation undertaken at the centre. During that time eight government and nine civilian aircraft flew 472 hours and covered roughly 50,000 square miles.

Awards for Rescue Work

Corrwall Standard-Freeholder

Our congratulations to the city police and district men who received certificates from the Royal Canadian Humane Association this week.

Honored for helping to rescue three young women from a burning car last July were Constables Chisholm of St. Andrews West, Langston McDonald of North Lancaster, Neil McGregor of Dalhousie Station, Que., Finlay McLeod of North Lancaster and Edward Quinn of St. Andrews West.

Honored for saving a man from drowning in the St. Lawrence near Summerstown last August was Brian Hunt of Cornwall.

All of these individuals showed great presence of mind and courage in effecting the rescues.

It is rare that a day goes without someone from Cornwall and district performing an act of courage and heroism, although a considerable danger to himself.

A week or so ago, for instance, an employee of C.I.L was travelling to Montreal when he saw a car plunge into a river. Gordon Fuller jumped into the water and pulled a woman to safety from the submerged car.

In the latter case, the incident occurred in Quebec and we are not sure what form recognition might take. But we are sure that Mr. Fuller earned a life and his reaction to an emergency was courageous and praiseworthy.

The Game's The Thing

Ulster Commentary

Wednesday, April 16, was a red-letter day in the history of sport in Northern Ireland. It was the day on which, for the first time in nearly four years, international soccer returned to Northern Ireland.

During those "barren" years Northern Ireland, because of the disturbances, had to play its "home" international games as Great Britain — very often in front of small crowds of almost disinterested neutrals. In spite of which, some highly creditable performances were achieved.

The team which broke the soccer "barrier" was Yugoslavia, which volunteered to play the first leg of their European Championship tie in Belfast. It was a fine gesture and it evoked a warm response from soccer fans.

The Yugoslavs, world-class players who gave a good account of themselves in the 1974 World Cup finals, were given a tremendous welcome by 30,000 spectators in Belfast's Windsor Park. It was an emotional moment for spectators starved for so long of soccer at international level.

It was almost beside the point that Northern Ireland beat Yugoslavia by a goal to nil, though the cheer which greeted Bryan Hamilton's winning "header" might have been heard in Belgrade. The important point was that the game had taken place without incident of any kind.

It was a match well worth watching for its sportsmanship as well as for its skilful soccer.

Toronto Vigilante

Oshawa Times

A terrifying story came out of Toronto over the weekend. It was a report on a letter labelled bragging perhaps — of a 30-year-old North York man that he regularly rides Toronto's subways for a few hours a night looking for trouble brewing, apparently young thugs harassing people.

Our hero, 255 pounds and a former boxer, says he regularly clobbers these lawbreakers when they start stuff whatever it is they are doing that he doesn't like, ranging from peaceably snatching to smoking on the subways. What is disturbing is that there are quite a number of people like him who ride the subways for the same purpose, and assert if there weren't even more people doing this, it wouldn't be as bad as it seems it is today."

No doubt this man, and others like him, mean well. Apparently anyone who sees others roughing things up or spends a purse from an elderly woman, as he reports he did, shouldn't stand by ignoring the whole thing.

But anyone who rides the subways looking for this kind of trouble, who sets themselves up as personal guardians of the law vigilantes, or whatever they are called) is a dangerous to the principle of peace-keeping as the punks and thieves they beat up.

Y's Debt Cleared

Editor,

The Intelligencer:

How gratifying to read that the White Elephant of Victoria Street is now debt free.

The Herculean efforts of Ben Corke and the boards of the YMCA" were responsible for the raising of $102,000 to retire their capital debt. This milestone has been the reason advanced by the YMCA for the recent persistent annual raids on the city tax chest. For years the United Way Appeal, and the ordinary taxpayers have been lined by the YMCA's alleged poverty. Now all this is over.

Perhaps, now, with the settlement of this debt, the YMCA will, once and for all, get off the taxpayer's back, and, if necessary, raise their rates in financial trouble, they will always have the name "friends" who tossed in the $102,000 to fall back on.

Any volunteer agency that can so easily raise such a sizable sum as $102,000 does not right laying on the backs of the taxpayers for "operating" costs — so let us have no more of this nonsense.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY

Vermont Utility Institutes Plan for Levelling Peak Loads

The Globe and Mail

Ingenuity, adjustability, the capacity to stand back and take a new look at an old problem — these are qualities useful in any situation, but that could be especially useful in tackling the growing problem of high-priced energy that threatens to be in short supply.

One of the difficulties, at any time, in meeting the demand for electrical power is that it is an uneven demand, and the system has until now been designed to meet heavy peak demand. The Central Vermont Public Service Corporation has started to experiment with a system that could level out the peaks, thus making it unnecessary to provide expensive new generating plants to provide more peak power. It is offering some of its customers the chance to buy power cheaply at off-peak times.

A customer who wants to try the new deal gets — at a price — a new electric meter with two sets of dials. The dials are in red and measures expensive kilowatt hours which cost 10.32 cents each. The bottom dial, in black, measures cheap kilowatt hours, at 1.65 cents each. There is a warning light which tells when the high-cost period is on.

One householder, for example, found that it was going to cost her around $2,000 a year to run her all-electric home. She paid for the installation of the new meter system, and for the wiring changes that expects to save around $500 a year; but it means changing some of the family living and working habits, being conscious of the times when it is cheaper to use electric power.

Housework, when she used appliances, had to be transferred to the low-cost afternoon hours, while tennis and sewing filled into the high-cost hours.

Heating was more of a problem; she builds up heat during the low-cost hours and turns it well down for the high-cost hours.

The idea of time-of-day rates with which Vermont is experimenting is being widely considered in the United States. The New York State Public Service Commission has scheduled hearings on the concept later this year; it is being examined in Michigan, Wisconsin and California.

Will it be considered in Ontario, where Ontario Hydro has been making an argument for large rate increases to maintain the old system of building to meet peak demand?

This is just one new idea. If we cleared our minds of old concepts and thought deliberately of the new and different, how many power and cost saving projects would be discovered!

Local Actor In Play

A lifetime resident of Belleville, Gary McLeod will be production and stage manager of the Norfolk Summer Theatre Company in Simcoe, this summer.

One of the founding members of the company, Mr. McLeod has been acting for the last three years in the Hamilton area. During that time, he has received critical acclaim at Hamilton Place for his roles in Alice in Wonderland.

Mr. McLeod received his formal training at the Banff School of Fine Arts and at Sheridan College in Oakville.

Members of the Prince Edward regiment summer training program were on parade on the front lawn of the armories recently to recognized the anniversary of the Canadian regiment's landing on Italy's beaches in 1943. The students will train for the entire summer with the regiment, wrapping up the summer with two weeks training in Petawawa.

County Museum Displays Chairs

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The town of Picton may be Prince Edward County's official seat but a museum display here titled A Seat in the County this summer shows a striking sit-down of Bostos, Windsor and Brentwood.

A special collection of chairs loaned from Prince Edward antique buffs will be exhibited at the county museum in Picton. The display ends August 17.

Among the chairs is a Boston rocker circa 1850, a Victorian side chair and a Brentwood chair, circa 1880.

Museum curator James Gooding said purpose of the display is to illustrate chairs of the types used and made in Prince Edward and to provide an illustrated dictionary of chair designs from about 1750 to the latter years of the 19th century.

He adds that Prince Edward County is a clearly defined area in southern Ontario. It is located on the north shore of Lake Ontario about half way between the Niagara River to the west and the St. Lawrence River to the east. It was settled in the last decades of the 18th century, first by United Empire Loyalists and later by craftsmen, farmers and industrialists who recognized the importance of "Quinte" with its proximity to the new Canadian markets and the traditional markets in the United States.

Mr. Gooding says furnishings in Prince Edward County homes cover the fashions of the period.

"There was the wealth to acquire the latest designs, the craftsmanship to produce the latest designs and a wealthy rural population to retain the traditional designs," he explains.

Basic research for the display at the county museum was conducted by Charles Baird, a student of museum technology at Algonquin College, Ottawa, who is working here this summer. He was assisted by Donald MacDermaid of the county museum staff and Mrs. Jeanne Minhinnick, historic furnishings consultant.

The display includes a collection of 23 chairs and rockers all fully described in a catalogue available at the museum.

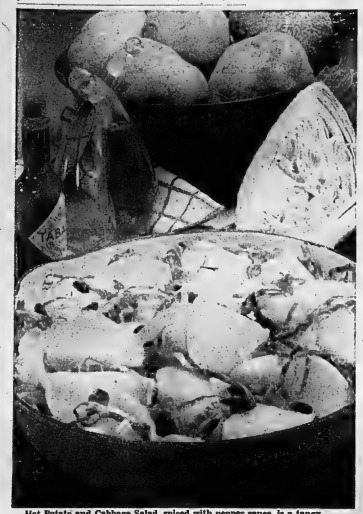
Potato Salads: 14 Different Kinds to Try



Hot Potato and Cabbage Salad, spiced with pepper sauce, is a tangy, hearty accompaniment to steak or hamburgers.

If it's true everyone makes potato salad, it's also true that everyone makes it differently.

While they all contain the same main ingredient, the additions and methods produce widely different tastes. If you're a potato salad fan, you'll want to try them all.

The best potatoes to use, incidentally, are the small and waxy red potatoes. Boil them in their jackets, then peel while hot.

Potato and Herring Salad

two cups sliced boiled potatoes
1½ cups diced pickled herring fillets
¾ cup chopped celery
2 cups cubed cooked one tbsp. minced parsley one tbsp. minced chives six tbsp. sour cream
1½ tsps. lemon juice
¾ tsp. paprika
Chill. Serves in lettuce cups.

Sour Cream Potato Salad

three to four tbsps. French dressing ¾ cup dairy sour cream potatoes
two hard cooked eggs, chopped
½ tsp. onion salt
1/16 tsp. seasoned pepper
Blend French dressing and sour cream. Toss lightly through potatoes and eggs. Add salt and pepper. Taste. Add more seasoning if desired. Serve chilled on mixed greens.

Potato and Cabbage Salad

two tbsps. salad oil
½ cup chopped onion
4½ tsps. flour
4½ tsps. sugar
one tsp. salt
¼ tsp. Tabasco pepper sauce two-thirds cup cider vinegar two-thirds cup water four cups shredded cabbage three cups sliced and halved cooked potatoes
½ cup raisins
In large skillet heat oil. Add onion and cook until tender, about five minutes. Blend in flour, sugar, salt and Tabasco. Stir in vinegar and water. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add cabbage, potatoes and raisins, mix well and heat thoroughly. Serves six.

Garden Potato Salad

½ cup oil
two tbsps. wine vinegar four cups diced hot potatoes six radishes, halved
½ cup sliced green onions
½ cup chopped cucumber
½ cup chopped green pepper
two tbsps. chopped parsley
one cup sliced celery
two diced hard-cooked eggs
one small onion, diced
Blend oil, vinegar. Pour over potato. Set aside to cool. Add remaining ingredients; refrigerate. Serves six.

Beer-Potato Salad

½ cup diced onion three tbsps. salad oil two tbsps. flour
one tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
two tsps. sugar
1½ cups beer or ale
½ cup cider vinegar eight cups sliced, cooked potatoes
½ cup chopped pimiento
½ cup sliced celery
two hard-cooked eggs, sliced
Saute onions in oil until soft and transparent.
Add next six ingredients (in order) stirring constantly to boiling point.
Simmer five minutes; cool.
Combine potatoes, pimiento and celery; pour dressing over mixture; garnish with egg slices.

Golden Salmon Potato Salad

one can (15½-oz.) salmon four cups diced, cooked potatoes
one small onion, chopped
two tbsps. finely chopped parsley one cup diced celery
one tsp. salt
Drain salmon and break into bite-size chunks. Toss lightly with potatoes, onion, parsley, celery, and 1 teaspoon salt.

Dressing

two tbsps. light cream four tbsps. prepared mustard two tbsps. sugar
two tbsps. vinegar
¼ tsp. salt
dash pepper
Combine cream with mustard, sugar, vinegar, ¼ tsp. salt and pepper. Beat until light and fluffy, and pour over salmon mixture. Toss gently until well mixed. Cover; let stand about one hour in refrigerator. Serve with greens. Serves six.

Potato Salad

two cups cooked, cubed potatoes
two hard - cooked eggs, chopped
½ cup diced sweet pickle
½ cup sliced radishes
½ cup chopped celery
two tbsps. chopped onion
two tbsps. chopped green pepper
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. celery seed
¾ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
Combine all ingredients and toss gently. Chill thoroughly before serving. If desired, hot cubed potatoes may be marinated in French dressing, then chilled, and added to remaining ingredients. Serves 4.

Tuna Potato Salad

Add two cups torn lettuce, ½ cup cheese cut in strips and one can (6½ oz.) tuna, drained, and flaked. Makes six to eight servings.

Rich Potato Salad

½ cup salad oil
two tbsps. vinegar
1½ tsp. salt
four cups diced hot potato
two diced hard cooked eggs
one cup sliced celery
¼ cup chopped dill pickle
¼ cup chopped pimiento
one small onion, minced
½ cup mayonnaise
one cup ripe olives, pitted
Blend oil, vinegar, salt. Pour over potato. Toss, set aside to cool. Add remaining ingredients. Refrigerate.

White Wine Potato Salad

four large potatoes eight small new potatoes
⅓ cup Canadian white table wine
¼ cup salad oil three tbsps. vinegar
one tbsp. sugar
three tbsps. onion, chopped
salt and pepper
Boil potatoes in jackets until done. Peel, and slice into bowl while still warm, moisten thoroughly with the wine. Add other ingredients. Allow to stand in cool place for at least one hour before serving. Serves six.

Ham and Potato Salad

1½ pounds potatoes
two tbsps. salad oil
one tbsp. chopped fresh onion one tbsp. fresh lemon juice
1½ tsps. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 cup chopped celery
one cup diced cooked ham eight hard-cooked eggs, diced
½ cup mayonnaise
Lettuce
Cook potatoes in boiling water, covered, until tender. Peel and slice. Add salad oil, onion, lemon juice, salt and pepper; mix well and let stand one or two hours. Add celery, green pepper, ham, eggs and mayonnaise. Mix lightly and spoon into a salad bowl lined with lettuce. Serves eight.

Marriage Break Ups

More Fathers Retain Custody of Children

TORONTO (CP) — Single-parent father Frank Roberts is finding out what the mother of his three children had to live through each week.

As part of a growing number of fathers raising their families after marriage breakdown, Mr. Roberts said:

"It's given me a whole new perspective on being a parent. I don't much care for the expression 'single parent.'

He said that a parent is a complete and total person.

He questioned the traditional assumption that the children stay with the mother after a marriage split, at the time he and his wife terminated their 20-year marriage.

The children also involved themselves in the decision while their father continued to stay on at the family's suburban Toronto home.

At that time the children went to their parents and said to them "haven't we (your children) got a decision to make too?"

Children over 12, in cases of custody litigation, are normally asked by a family court representative which parent they wish to live with.

Joy, 19, announced that whatever transpired, she intended to proceed with her plans to go to college.

Dave, 16, and Brian 15, opted to stay with whichever parent stayed in the family home.

And although they now live with their father, the three Roberts children maintain a warm relationship with their mother.

Mr. Roberts' decision to seek and secure custody of his children is part of a growing trend in the ongoing evolution of family living patterns.

The latest statistics show that in Canada more than 120,000 men are caring for 182,000 children, following divorce or separation and the numbers are growing.

But single fathers are facing difficulties. A study released this year on the lifestyle of 72 such men, conducted by the University of Toronto school of social work, showed the majority of fathers interviewed felt there was a definite bias against a male raising children alone.

The men said they have trouble getting and keeping housekeepers because neighbors gossip.

There were problems hiring female teen-age babysitters because the girls' mothers were afraid the single father might make a pass at the sitter.

Dr. Benjamin Schlesinger, professor of social work at U of T predicts that by the year 2000 children will be raised with men as much as with women.

He sees the trend of fathers taking custody as being directly related to the fact that more women are leaving home, and in some instances leaving their children with the fathers.

"Nowadays," he said, "it isn't as essential for mothers to stay with their children in order to prove themselves successful.

"Fathers, on the other hand, are faced with having to prove themselves perfect in that role, when they decide to seek custody of their children."

He added that because women are not now judged harshly for leaving home and children, another myth has been exploded.

"With more and more men assuming the responsibility of total parenting, it is becoming apparent that women are not the only ones who can effectively look after their children. Men are finding out that they can do this quite well."

He said he felt that good things were coming out of single fathers' involvement with children and home.

"Two generations ago, when many men worked at home as farmers, ministers or carpenters, children were able to watch their fathers at work. They could take pride in and identify with their fathers' triumphs and defeats.

"Today fathers are out at work all day and many children have little idea what they do. But these single fathers are once more able to influence and involve their families by example around the home."

Ann Landers

Friend's Diagnosis Angers Mother

Dear Ann Landers: A while back I read a letter in your column about hyperactive children. I have a dear friend who has a hyperactive child. She refuses to admit it.

I wrote to the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities (ACLD) for information when you printed the address in the column. I asked them to send my friend some reading material and enclosed her name and address.

Guess what the organization did? They sent her MY letter along with the brochure. Now my friend refuses to speak to me on the phone. When we meet on the street she turns her head and keeps on walking.

You, Ann Landers, are supposed to help people and look what you've done! Between you and the ACLD I have lost a friend of over 15 years. — Double-Crossed

Dear D. C.: Sorry about your friend, but her reaction isn't rational.

The ACLD sent the material because you asked them to. You asked them to because you wanted to help the child. Your former friend obviously does not choose to face reality and I feel sorry for her youngster.

Dear Ann: He is 41, an attractive college professor, divorced, with three children—the oldest, 15. The man has been active in "good causes" and is popular on campus. He has been in our home twice. One morning he came for breakfast and asked for a Scotch on the rocks instead of orange juice. I obliged. On his second visit he had a beer. I know nothing more about him.

Next month this man will marry my only daughter. (Her father died when she was nine.) The bride is 22, a student at the college. Any advice?—Her Mother

Dear Mother: Apparently your daughter hasn't asked for your counsel and you have wisely offered none.

To you, however, all I can say is this: Your future son-in-law sounds like an alcoholic and if his bride isn't aware of his problem now, she will be before long.

Keep the door open and the latch-string out, Mother. And don't rent her room.

Dear Ann Landers: I am troubled by some advice you gave recently. I hope when you hear my personal story you will change your stand.

I come from a large family. My parents have inherited money. They also have many relatives and friends and didn't want to leave out anyone—so there were 700 guests at my wedding.

Ushers handed out small scrolls saying, "Thank you for the gift. It was greatly appreciated." These scrolls went to everyone. I decided it was the best way to handle it. No bride should be expected to write 700 thank-you notes.

I hope you will print my letter and reverse yourself. People put a lot of stock in what you say.—Fan Roses

Dear Rose: Sorry, dear, I don't care how many guests there were. Every person who took time and spent money on a wedding gift should have received a note of thanks in the mail.

Handing out scrolls indiscriminately without even knowing for certain if the person had sent a gift, was in very poor taste.

Driving Advertised

PERU, Ind. (AP) — When Debra Bakehorn got her beginner's permit to drive a car, everybody in town knew about it. Her father took out an ad in the newspaper that said: "Warning: All drivers and pedestrians should be aware that Debra Bakehorn has received her beginner's permit (through no oversight). This has been a public service message."

Ban Lifted

CAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — President Idi Amin has lifted a ban on women wearing trousers because he said it benefits foreign tourists from countries where women normally wear trousers. A ban on wigs and miniskirts is still enforced.

Indians Decline

PUYALLUP, Wash (AP) — The Puyallup Indian tribe has declined an offer from the Bicentennial wagon train to dress in native costume and stage an attack on the covered wagons. Tribal Chairman Raymond Skemkin dismissed the invitation to attack the train as a "ridiculous insult to the Indian community.

Food Attacked

ROME, Italy (AP) — The World Food Conference came under attack by some women's international organizations for ignoring the issue of women's liberation on the farms. Delegates said they wanted a better look at women on the farms but did not know whether equal rights can penetrate the farms of the poorer countries.

Communication Board Now Being Considered

OTTAWA (CP) — The third of a d eral provincial communications conferente entered its final session today with the chance for any agreement apparently hinging on whether Ottawa can grant the provinces a measure of authority without relinquishing any jurisdiction in the field.

Except for the more-militant Quebec—which announced that it new considers itself only an observer—the provinces agreed Tuesday to consider a new proposal for an informal council of communications ministers.

Federal Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier agreed to draft such a proposal overnight after some provinces complained that a federally-proposed policy committee was too forma.. The council would act as a negotiating forum on national policy and power sharing.

Mr. Pelletier told reporters that provincial recognition of Ottawa's jurisdiction will remain a key to formation of the proposed council, as it had for the previously-proposed committee.

Croll Hits Plan to Cut Medicare

OTTAWA (CP) — The majority Liberal government was attacked from its Senate flank Tuesday when Liberal Senator David Croll emerged as a vehement critic of Ottawa's plans to cut its share of medical care programs.

The outspoken Ontario senator, a frequent thorn in the government's side, said in the Senate that his feelings "are somewhere in between" those expressed by Common Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and former New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas (Nanaima Coquhan-The Islands).

"The leader of the opposition used the term betrayal and Tommy Douglas for the NDP said we were sabotaging medicare."

Finance Minister John Turner announced in his June 23 budget that Ottawa will end, in five years, the current agreement to split hospital and diagnostic insurance costs 50-50 with the provinces. A new agreement will be negotiated. He also announced ceilings on federal contributions to provincial medical care insurance plans.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde repeatedly has said the quality of health care will not suffer. The Progressive Conservatives, New Democrats, the Canadian Medical Association, and now Senator Croll, say it will.

Senator Croll said "medicare, hospitalization and the health care services cannot be sacrificed to our immediate financial problems."

Province to Ease Water Costs

The Point Anne water purification plant and distribution system should be in operation by the fall, says Reeve Horace Casey of Thurlow Township council.

He said work on the project will begin immediately based on assurances of provincial aid received Tuesday from William Newman provincial minister of environment.

The minister he said, assured him proposed legislation would pay 75 per cent of any amount in excess of $110 for annual water bills of a township resident.

"It would be a safe guess to say water for the houses will cost nearly $500 per year, based on the $80,000 construction estimate for the project amortized over a 15 year period," said Reeve Casey.

The province would then pay 75 per cent of the $390 over the maximum of $110 or nearly $280 yearly.

Currently, water is supplied to the homes by the existing Canada Cement Lafarge Ltd. system even though their plant closed more than 2½ years ago.

Point Anne residents have been maintaining the system until recently when it was simplified, thus reducing the necessity for constant monitoring.

Cost of the project has risen from the original $28,000 estimate and at a recent meeting some homeowners said they were considering abandoning the idea.

"We live quite pleased by the recent developments, said one resident. "But we hope it will go through."

Union Plans to Fight Cut in Bus Service

By COLIN BRUCE

The reduction of transit commission service will be a major area of bargaining during contract talks with city bus drivers this fall, says union chairman Hugh Kerr.

The commission is suffering mounting annual operating deficits and recently began an experiment to reduce service as a cost-cutting measure. Beginning June 30, drivers working the night shift began returning to the garage at 10 p.m. — two hours earlier than usual.

Mr. Kerr, chairman of Local 126, Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Transport and General Workers described the service reduction Tuesday as "ridiculous" and that a net saving to the commission of approximately $3,000 over the nine-week experiment period. He said this saving is calculated on the reduction of nine job hours (2,000) and reduced mileage and gas consumption by the buses.

Mr. Kerr said because some of the men will be working split shifts in the new timetable, "it will be necessary for some men to spend 20 hours of their own time travelling to and from work to complete 40 hour of split shifts."

"This will certainly be a bargaining issue this fall," he said.

For the moment, "there's nothing we can do," said the union chairman. "We can't legally strike."

"When we get to the bargaining table we'll be demanding a straight, eight-hour shift with no split shifts at all," he said.

The service reduction has meant the loss of one job and some drivers' schedules," he said.

Since the new schedule has been implemented, four drivers spend two hours sitting around the garage "drinking coffee" until midnight so that each will be credited with a complete, 40-hour week. The new schedule will not go into effect until next Monday following a mandatory two week posting of change required by the drivers' collective agreement.

Marijka Burtt, chairman of the commission, said during an interview, she can't think of any problem as a net saving to the commission of approximately 2,000 over the nine-week experiment period.

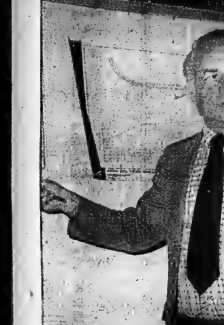
"This will be a net saving to the commission of approximately 2,000 over the nine-week experiment period, she said this saving is calculated on the reduction of nine job hours (2,000) and reduced mileage and gas consumption by the buses.

Mr. Kerr said because some of the men will be working split shifts in the new timetable, "it will be necessary for some men to spend 20 hours of their own time travelling to and from work to complete 40 hour of split shifts."

"This will certainly be a bargaining issue this fall," he said.

For the moment, "there's nothing we can do," said the union chairman. "We can't legally strike."

"When we get to the bargaining table we'll be demanding a straight, eight-hour shift with no split shifts at all," he said.



Project Outlined

Parks director Lloyd Syer describes layout of road and parking lot into outdoors winter recreation site to parks and recreation committees Tuesday. The area, with tobogan hill and natural rink in old quarry, is south of Highway 401 and part of West Riverside Park development.

Bicycling Paths Suggested for City

Bicycling is a fast-growing pastime and where possible — pathways should be built to accommodate cyclists an Ontario government official agrees.

Although funds aren't available to build them province-wide, a municipality might receive financial help with planning such routes.

The observations were made by F. Coderberg, director, public safety and information branch of the transportation and communications ministry, in a letter to Margaret Wood, RR2, Consecon.

The letter was later received by Mayor Robin Jeffrey and wound up on the agenda of recreation-arena committee Tuesday.

Bicycle paths should be built "when and where possible — because the number of adults taking to bicycles is growing at an astounding rate," wrote Mr. Coderberg.

Build them province-wide would be costly and "funds simply aren't available" at this time.

However, the ministry will assist a local government in planning such paths. Providing there is a real and "demonstrated need and the cost isn't astronomical".

Finkle in Hospital After Fall from Roof

Ray Finkle of United Rigging and Machinery Movers is in Belleville General Hospital today in the intensive care unit with multiple fractures to his elbow, pelvis, ribs and spine following an industrial accident in the city Monday.

He is listed in fair condition.

A company spokesman said today Mr. Finkle was installing a metal roof deck on the roof of a building at Union Carbide Canada Ltd., a plastics and chemicals plant at 421 East Dundas St. when he fell.

The spokesman added previous report: that Mr. Finkle fell 30 feet were "exaggerated" but declined to release the height pending a report to the safety inspector.

Officials Want More Swimming Areas

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Need for more swimming and small-boat launching facilities on the city's Bay of Quinte shoreline has been emphasized to consultants now studying waterfront development resources.

The parks board and recreation-arena committee members underlined the needs as they approved in principle the interim stage of the Quinte Bayfront Study.

The report, now is being circulated for reactions from local governments and agencies in the area involved — the south shoreline of the Bay, including the city, Thurlow Township and Sidney Township west to Aiken's Road.

Suggestions so far advanced by Ralph Crysler — of Toronto engineering consultants Crysler and Lothem — include emphasis on the need for public launching ramps for boats in the city area. Among proposals are a yacht basin east of the present federal dock and adjacent small boat shelter off South George St.

Ald. Paul Russell, parks board chairman, said both groups should be concerned about swimming, launching ramp facilities.

He won approval for a recommendation suggesting Mr. Crysler study:

— Launching ramps for small craft on the Bay front in east and west Belleville.

— Incorporate a swimming area in the suggestion for the George St. small boat basin.

Mr. Crysler said one possible site for a launching ramp could be the foot of Herchimer Ave., where a marine operation including launching railway — once existed.

In west Belleville there is a section at the bottom of Avondale Road that might be considered. But, his final report would also be involved with facilities at the Potter conservation property on the shoreline west of Belleville. And this could also include a ramp, serving the west end of the city.

Swimming facilities have been lessened in the harbor area with a recent city ban against swimmers off Victoria Park docks. Recreation department staff now already are examining a George St. site and should have a report ready next month, indicated recreation director Clifford Belch later.

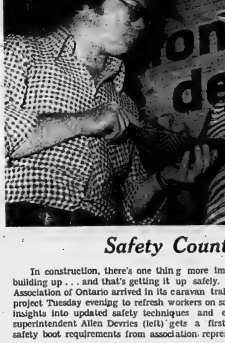
Two Face Seizure Charge

A 21-year-old Trenton area man and a 19-year-old Brighton area youth will appear in provincial court here tomorrow to answer charges relating to the abduction of a 19-year-old female in Stirling July 5.

Ontario Provincial Police in Belleville said today James Stewart of RR 2, Trenton and Robert William Hitwagge have been charged with attempted rape and forcible seizure.

Stewart will appear for trial Sept. 18 and Hitwagge will make his first court appearance July 28.

A Belleville detachment spokesman said Stewart was arrested July 6 near Sault Ste. Marie by provincial police there. Hitwagge was located in the Cobourg Jail Tuesday where he is currently serving a six-month sentence imposed July 8 on two breaking and enter charges from the Brighton area.



Safety Counts

In construction, there's one thing more important than getting the building up . . . and that's getting it up safely. The Construction Safety Association of Ontario arrived in its caravan trailer at the Century Place project Tuesday evening to refresh workers on safety practices and provide insights into updated safety techniques and equipment. Here project superintendent Allen Demrey (left) gets a first-hand demonstration on safety boot requirements from association representative John Blogg.

Director Surprised at Lack Of Interest in Art Classes

Youngsters in the College St. sector of Belleville may be missing an opportunity to learn artistic basics for free.

Free sessions in art and ceramics are part of the city's summer recreation programs at two community school.

At Queen Victoria public school and Quinte Secondary School the lessons are run daily by the city recreation department in drawing, painting, pottery and a specialty — stitchery.

There are both closed and open sessions. The closed sessions are more advanced in techniques taught and cost a $2 for the summer — $3 to non-taxpayers.

The open sessions are for free and have always attracted good response since started several years ago, says Wilma Summers deputy recreation director.

This year, however, at QSS attendance has "been way down."

The drop is particularly noticeable at the afternoon sessions.

Last year, the class in the first week registered 37 youngsters, 67 in the second week.

One afternoon recently there were only two in attendance.

One reason for the drop in numbers may be that other recreation programs have been moved out of QSS this summer. Because of construction, archery and gymnasium and other athletic programs had to shifted to nearby King-George public school. But the arts session had to remain at QSS. The kilns needed in ceramics is installed there.

The move has left QSS with a low recreation profile this summer, Fewer people — particularly youngsters in the area are aware that there is any sort of program in progress, says Mrs. Summers.

"More would be interested if they knew what was going on," she said.

Fence Issue Divides Parks Board Officials

City parks and recreation representatives learned Tuesday that vandalism and property damage problems have raised complaints among neighbors of the Belleville YMCA.

However, both the parks board and recreation-arena committee turned down a suggestion to assist financially with a solution to the situation.

The complaints came from householders whose homes are adjacent to the Y's sports field, indicated a letter from D.G. Diamantides, YMCA executive director.

Meetings, initiated by the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre last month, discussed the problem.

One solution put forward was erection of a fence bordering the field, to protect the properties. Some 318 feet long it would cost about $3,072. It was suggested property owners about 12 — split the cost equally with the Y.

But, pointed out Mr. Diamantides, except for the a few joggers the YMCA does not use the field, or need the fence.

The facility is primarily used by the Hastings County Board of Education and the recreation department for outdoor programs.

But the YMCA — wishing to continue "harmonious relationships with all those concerned" — agreed to pay a third of the cost to the users.

A recreation staff comment on the request said area children appear to be making greater use of the field than department-sponsored programs.

Clifford Belch, recreation director, felt the bulk of vandalism involved youngsters in the area.

Ald. George Zegouras, recreation-arena committee chairman, felt there should be "some concern to ourselves because we do use the land."

However, vice-chairman John Guthrie objected strongly to the sharing suggestion from the YMCA and said it didn't "promote a very good image."

Ald. Paul Russell, parks board chairman, who moved against the proposal, said it was contrary to parks policy.

"We shouldn't be expending public money on private land," he observed.

Rec Site Improved

A road and parking lot will be built at the new recreation site now used for winter outdoors sports in northend Belleville.

The area is immediately south of Highway 401 and is part of the ongoing development of West Riverside Park.

The site now includes a tobogan hill and a nearby abandoned quarry provides a natural skating surface.

Tuesday, the city parks board and recreation-arena committee received an engineering layout of the road and parking lot.

The roadway into the site will be off the north end of North Park St. The parking lot is designed for 50 cars.

Poole Gets $250 Fine

Gerald Poole, 31, of RR3, Trenton, pleaded guilty in provincial court, Monday to dangerous driving, resulting in a $250 fine as well as being prohibited from driving for a year.

Poole was charged by Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville June 27 following a high-speed chase by a provincial police officer for about an eight-mile distance in the Frankford area.

Mitts Remanded

Donald F. Mitts, 20, of RR3, Frankford, pleaded guilty to a charge of dangerous driving in provincial court here Monday and was remanded to next Monday for sentencing.

Mitts was charged June 8 by Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville following a high-speed chase in the early morning hours in the Frankford area involving a 4½-mile distance during which several cars were forced off the road.

Highest Bid Gets Home

A Belleville couple has been awarded a home offered as part of a fund-raising project for the Stirling arena.

Wayne and Anne Cooney submitted a tender of $22,000, the highest of the three received by the building committee.

A $9,000-$10,000 profit was realized from the project said Jack Bush, chairman of the committee.

The home was completed by volunteer labor and with donated supplies.

Over a Barrel

One-year-old Brian Carson, of North Park Gardens, found the early part over the barrel Tuesday during gardening duties. The cat, named Pebbles, waited patiently for a ride but the young gardener just didn't have the wheeling power.

Course Credit System Ends Summer School

Remember the days when one of your high school friends failed math and had to spend the first six weeks of the summer learning the as and ys of algebra in order to pass into the next grade — it doesn't happen anymore in Belleville.

The credit system has all but eliminated the need for summer courses and the option is still available to Belleville students.

Acting director of education L.F. Reid said a Kingston high school offers courses and arrangements can be made for Quinte area students to attend.

Mr. Reid said the Belleville summer schools were phased out during the late 60s because school officials felt the credit system removed the need for these courses.

With the introduction of the credit system students who failed one or two subjects could still advance without missing a year. The student would simply repeat the credit course next year.

The introduction of the semester system in some high schools has eliminated the need for summer courses, Mr. Reid estimated that only two or three students will be taking courses in Kingston this summer.

Students interested in the Kingston summer program can get further information from the Hastings County Board of Education on Ann St.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Tuesday, July 15, 8:22 a.m. fire in front of container box of garbage truck at 208 East Bridge St., slight damage, combustion probable cause.

Tuesday, July 15, 4:38 p.m. — fire in chimney of incinerator at Regency Apartments at 75 Victoria Ave., no damage.

Newfoundland Doctors Are Unhappy with Pay

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) —Ithey are not happy with the Newfoundland's doctors say current fee structure under the provincial medical-care program, known officially as the Newfoundland Medicare Commission.

At its annual meeting, the Newfoundland Medical Association (NMA) expressed dissatisfaction with a new agreement calling for a 15-per-cent increase next April 1.

The increase was based on the total amount of money spent on providing doctors services in the province and will be distributed on an average basis with doctors having the greatest operating expenses receiving the largest percentage of the increase.

The fee increase applies to physicians in private practice.

Dr. J. Douglas Wallace, general manager of the Canadian Medical Association, told the delegates he was surprised salaried doctors in Newfoundland are doing so well.

These doctors, employed by the province mainly in outport communities, recently had their pay scale revised to range between $29,000 and $40,000, depending on experience. It previously ranged between $21,000 and $42,000.

But some physicians in private practice feel that their professional compatriots in cottage hospitals or employed directly by the government are earning more money because they have no overhead expenses to contend with.

Private practitioners have wondered why they have no pension fund like the government doctors and also why they shouldn't be paid on the basis of experience also.

NMA officials say that when the time comes to negotiate, the government may find the physicians a bit tougher to deal with.

Dr. Wallace says the CMW plans to acquire the services of experts in the labor field when negotiating new contracts with government.

Dr. C. U. Henderson, past president of the NMA, said a committee has been established to meet with medicare officials for any further negotiations.

He said the committee will ensure that matters will not be left "to the last moment" when contract talks come up in future.

Keep'em safe on the home and cottage front!

A STATE OF PEACE — THE DOUBLE DEALERS — Janice Elliot

Set in post-war London, this powerful and moving novel portrays the lives of its characters and how they respond or fail to respond to the aftermath of victory. There is drama, humor, and a sense of the fustie of life in this book. It is about people looking for themselves at a bleak time in our history. The author is dealing at a deeply serious level with the relationship between the individual and society.

THE CAMERONS — Robert Crichton.

The place is Scotland and the time is the turn of the century. Maggie Drum awakes on the morning of her sixteenth birthday and sets in motion the plan she has constructed for her life: to find herself the right husband, one who will be by her side to help her fulfil her dreams of a place in society. When she discovers Gillon Cameron, he seems to fit the picture of her "ideal husband" but Gillon, the romantic, is more than she bargained for.

THE BLUE HEAVEN BENDS OVER ALL. — Jane Oliver

Janet Oliver has shown in this biographical novel of the life of Sir Walter Scott her expertise as a storyteller; and her integrity in researching, to give us a novel both warm and intensely human as well as factual. Walter Scott started life handicapped physically and yet went on to become a prominent lawyer serving as a county sheriff for many years as well as Scotland's best-loved novelist.

Polliwogs Didn't Sell

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Dick Berry II, has decided to think of a new business venture that will be more profitable than his polliwog enterprise. He set up shop with a good stock of polliwogs, but had few takers. He said he thinks that other boys find it easier, there is a well more fun to catch their own in nearby sloughs or that watching a polliwog grow has lost its fascination.

No Real Tigers, So Man Suffers

VANCOUVER (CP) — The stresses and strains of daily living have changed since primitive days.

"We learn we must hold back from hitting the boss on the nose or running away from responsibility and so we become creatures with permanently knotted muscles," said Dr. Buckler in an interview. He said that man's natural response to stress is a "fight or flight" stance in which muscles are tensed in readiness for attack or running away.

"Man has been around for a million years and 99 per cent of that time he has been in battle with nature . . . But in modern society we meet no real tigers. We're not allowed to let it out, to indulge in the fight or the flight. Thus we are fixed in a tense, literally and no one can tell us how to unwind, it seems—even the doctors."

Dr. Buckler said this has resulted in a stress filled modern society where psychosomatic illnesses, cardio-vascular disease and strokes take a heavy toll.

"It's gone so far that the old saying 'He is a pain in the neck' has become literal," said the doctor. "We are told to relax but often not told how, or told wrongly."

For example, doctors have traditionally prescribed rest for tension-caused complaints, but Dr. Buckler said real relaxation comes through exercise which helps to loosen up tense muscles that cause physical and mental pains.

"Measure have known for years about the knots that can develop in muscles but it's only recently we've come to self-exercising completely.

Dr. Buckler, who has his own prescription for relaxation.

It consists of slowly increasing regular exercise that can lead to better heart functioning and lower cholesterol levels.

Swimming, tennis and other ball-playing sports along with meditations are good ways to begin the muscle relief, reduce physical and mental tension, he said.

And a word of caution: Don't exercise strenuously right away. The doctor said hard exercise with seldom-used muscles is painful and this often leads the person to want to stop exercising completely.

recognize the state of rigor—which has many similarities to the rigor mortis which sets in after death," said Dr. Buckler.

Executives Get Raise

NEW YORK (AP) — The percentage increase in business executive pay in 1974 was highest in the past five years, says the 38th annual Top Management Report of the American Management Association. Total executives' compensation including bonuses increased 10.3 per cent says the report, average annual executive income was about $63,000.

Fish Frozen

KEMMERER, Wyo. (AP) — Fish that swam in waters that covered what now is the state of Wyoming, 40 to 45 million years ago, can still be seen in total form in the state's Fossil Butte National Monument, reports Rand McNally's National Park Guide for 1975.

The Double Dealers

— May Mackintosh.

Kari Gobdon felt life was just about perfect on the morning she was to start her vacation. The antique shop she had just inherited from her aunt kept her occupied and in relative security for the first time in her life, having been raised by several sets of foster parents. But her peace of mind was in some to an abrupt end when she discovers a handsome stranger about to steal a valuable antique desk hood from her and she finds herself allied with David Moore on the track of a gang of thieves.

The Double Dealers is May Mackintosh's fourth romantic suspense novel and embodies once again her particular skill for deftness, charm and setting.

PRIVATE PRACTICE — Matthew Best.

A gifted young doctor's integrity as a surgeon and as a man is threatened when he becomes head of the new giant urban hospital for the apparent peace of private practice. But practice in the small community of Pine Hills is powered by the personal profit motive, with medicine a cutthroat economic competition. For Alan Strong, Dr. Lucas has yet to learn the medicine of the market place. Private Practice is told in clear and authoritative detail. Its medical precision is as absorbing as the plight of Dr. Mark Lucas is disturbing.

The Flight of Man

In 1972, at a cost of $800, Sqdn. Ldr. John Potter of London, Eng., flew 1,171 yards to set a world record for man-propelled flight. Now with a new lighter version of the Jupiter, the vehicle that carried him to the world record, Potter hopes to get off the ground for a longer flight. This time he'll be competing for the $120,000 prize offered by a British businessman for a man-propelled flight over a special mile-long, figure - 8 track. (CP Photo)

RAF Computer Man Pedals Own Plane

OTTAWA (CP) — Picture a silver tadpole riding on a bicycle wheel with a 60-foot wingspan, and you have the Jupiter—the farthest flying, man-propelled airplane ever.

This hobby of a Royal Air Force computer teacher in 1971 set the world record for man-propelled flight—1,171 yards. The key word is man-propelled, meaning man-powered usually by pedalling.
